In the opener, Gordon and Rolfe collected home runs and Joe DiMaggio picked up two circuit clouts in the nightcap. DiMaggio also had a double in the opener. Besides his two homers in the nightcap he also had a single, driving in a total of eight runs before the second game was called because of darkness.

Thai Troops Gathering Along Indo-China Border

Domei Tsushin

HONGKONG, Aug. 16—Approximately five divisions of the Thai military forces are said to be concentrated along the French Indo-China border. French Indo-China is also concentrating her forces along the border and constructing forts as a counter measure, according to a report reaching Chinese circles here today.

The rumored concentration of the Thai forces along the French Indo-China border is considered renewed activities on the part of Thailand in demanding the return of her old territory from French Indo-China.

It is reliably learned here that newspapers and other propaganding organs are energetically claiming the immediate recovery of the lost territory of Thailand from French Indo-China.

British Plane Arrives In New York Airport

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—A trans-Atlantic flight which may be the forerunner of regular British commercial service ended at LaGuardia Airport last night with the arrival of the four-motored British passenger plane Clare.

The high-winged monoplane, which was camouflaged, left Boucherville, Canada, on the third and final leg of her trip to New York at 5:15 p.m., E.D.T., yesterday and arrived here at 7:42 p.m.

The plane took off from Foynes, Ireland, late Saturday and made its first stop at Botwood, Newfoundland.

Upon arriving here the plane circled over the airport twice and then landed in nearby Flushing Bay amid the cheers of 500 persons who turned out to welcome the plane on its first flight to the United States.

Girl Sets U.S. Swim Record In Women's Mile Freestyle

PHILIPPINES SAID LOOKING FOR 'TROJAN-HORSE' ACTIVITIES

U.S. Army and Manila Officals Prepared to Meet Any Emergency

United Press

MANILA, Aug. 10—Germans and Italians, not Japanese are the chief object of joint United States and Philippines Commonwealth anti-"fifth column" activities in the Philippines it was learned today from unimpeachable source.

Whether this indicates which way the "official" wind is blowing in this area of the Far East cannot be ascertained definitely, but it is known that a far closer watch is being kept on German and Italian subjects than on Japanese, although naturally the latter come in for their share of attention in view of recurring tension between Japan and the United States.

Filipinos, and a good many Americans, have been surveying nervously the possibility of a "fifth column" movement gaining power here, especially after the widespread publicity concerning Nazi under-cover activities in Norway, Belgium, Holland and France.

MUST BE REGISTERED

The Manila City Council recently passed an ordinance which would require all aliens, including Americans, to be registered and fingerprinted by the police and requiring those aliens to carry their registration cards at all times. The council sent a memorial to the National Assembly urging that a similar measure be made effective throughout the Commonwealth.

Manila newspapers have been filled recently with talk of alleged "Trojan Horse" activities, including reported landings by spies, prowling off the coast by foreign submarines, and mysterious activities of certain individuals.

Foreigners residing in Iloilo whose papers were not in order were given just four hours to produce their passports. Certain foreign nationals were said to be under surveillance, after they had been accused of gathering nightly on the outskirts of the city for secret meetings.

EMOTION RUNS HIGH

These demonstrated the emotional tensity of the average Filipino. Competent authorities point out that "fifth column" movements are designed not only to disrupt economic and military life by actual sabotage but to undermine the morale of the people. For this reason, the authorities instituted a campaign to induce civilians to report all strange activities only to the authorities, and not to spread rumors or organize vigilante groups to take the law into their hands.

It is known that every German and Italian in the Philippines has been listed and is under constant surveillance. Nazi groups, ranks increased by the flood of German evacuees from Hongkong, China, Singapore and the Dutch East Indies, are being subjected to careful scrutiny. The run-of-the-mill Japanese escapes this.

Also being watched are certain Filipinos, known more or less as members of the "Intellectual" group. Among these are several prominent newspapers and magazine writers, who were said to be receiving funds from Germany and Italy for propaganda services. Japan was also known to be sending slush funds into Manila for this purpose. It is known as a fact that officials recently questioned a certain prominent columnist, who was known to be living far beyond his income, regarding the sources of his funds.

Rev. Samuel Stagg, an American newspaper commentator and preacher, recently charged in an article that certain unnamed members of the National Assembly were involved in the "fifth column" movement under pay of foreign agents. Stagg was questioned by the national assembly, as well as by high government officials, regarding his charges and it was later learned from authoritative quarters that he had based his charges on rumors rather than actual facts.

GROUND FERTILE

These same authoritative quarters, however, admit that there is ample and fertile ground among some of the highest Filipino officials, elective and appointive, on which foreign agents could and probably have worked. It is known that there are some officials who believe their future lies in "cooperating" with the Japanese, and hence are laying the groundwork now for such "cooperation." This group however, is not by any means preponderant.

One Government official recently toured Mindanao, Japanese stronghold in the Philippines, in an effort to uncover some of this alleged fifth-column activity. He was besieged by Filipinos who "exposed" what they considered under-cover activity on the part of the Japanese. Numerous complaints were lodged against a certain Japanese plantation and factory. The Filipinos pointed out that strangely enough the plantation was surrounded by high wire fences and that armed guards patrolled the area continually.

The official found the plantation and plant exactly as described, and found himself barred from entering. Finally he went directly to the manager, produced his credentials and asked for a guide. Every request was granted, he toured the entire factory and plantation—and discovered that it was exactly that and nothing more. The Japanese foreman politely informed him later that the guards were posted "to guard trade secrets."

The official, however, did notice that there were long areas cleared of trees which could be quickly coverted into landing fields for warplanes, and that other strategic spots had been cleared, all of which commanded the harbor entrances. These could easily serve as gun emplacements—if necessity ever demanded.

SHIPMENTS EASY

There were also many rumors that the Japanese had brought in hundreds of rifles and machine-guns, and had cached these in the grounds. But it is a well-known fact that in a tropical climate, six weeks in the ground would render arms nearly useless. Authoritative quarters pointed out that the Japanese island of Palao is only 24 hours distant—so if guns were ever needed for the Japanese already here, they could be readily made available.

But U.S. Army and Philippine officials believe they are prepared for any emergency. They plan to duplicate the feat the Dutch in the East Indies carried out when Chancellor Adolf Hitler sent his troops pouring across the Holland border.

According to authenticated information in official quarters here, Germans in the East Indies were informed from Berlin that the invasion of The Netherlands would take place on May 15, and that they were to strike simultaneously. On May 9, Premier Jonkheer Dr. D. J. de Geer announced that steps had been taken to intern certain pro-Nazi elements in the Netherlands.

With his coup apparently frustrated, Hitler, according to information here was forced to act five days ahead of schedule. Berlin was unable to get this information to the East Indies in time. When first news of the invasion reached Batavia, the government instituted the strictest censorship, and not a word leaked out until every German in the colony had been rounded up and interned, together with pro-Nazi Dutch elements.

That is what the American and Philippine officials here are prepared for—to strike first and talk about it afterward.

Yanks Defeated 11-1 While Bees Humble Giants 12-1; Indians Strengthen Lead

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—Boston's National and American league teams inflicted humiliating defeats on the New York Giants and the New York Yankees today

The Yankees went down to defeat 11 to 1 on their own field here as Foxx and Williams, led a Red Sox slugging spree. Foxx knocked a home run in the first inning with two men on bases and Williams connected for a four-sacker in the fifth with bases loaded.

YANKEES WHIP BOSTON

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—The New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox 8 to 3 here today as the Yankees continued their late season drive for another world's championship.

Singles by Charlie Ruffing, Tommy Henrich and Roser, and a Double by Bob Rolfe, brought the Yankees victory in the seventh inning.

The Washington Senators meanwhile defeated Philadelphia 5 to 3 on the Athletics' home lot. Johnny Lewis' triple with two men on base and two out in the ninth won the game for the Senators.

The Brooklyn Dodgers split a double header in Brooklyn with the Philadelphia Phillies, winning the opener by a score of 6 to 5 and dropping the nightcap 9 to 6.

Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn first baseman, opened the Dodger scoring in the first game with his fourteenth home run of the season. Johnny Rizzo also knocked out a homer in the opener and collected two circuit clouts in the nightcap, bringing his season's total to 17.

Joe Medwick also collected a homer in the opener, scoring two men ahead of himself.

Japanese Woman Swimmer Wins in National AAU Meet

Domei Tsushin

PORTLAND, Oregon, Aug. 17—Miss Chieko Miyamoto, of Hawaii, today won the 330-yard individual medley event in the National Amateur Athletic Union women's swimming championships which are being held in Jantzen park pool in this city. Her winning time was 4 minutes 35.7 seconds.

In the women's 10-foot springboard diving championships, Miss Marjorie Gestring, of Los Angeles Athletic Club, turned the tables on Miss Helen Crienkovich, of Fairmont Plunge, San Francisco, who defeated her for first place in the same event in last year's National A.A.U. women's swimming championships held at Des Moines, Iowa. Miss Gestring today won over Miss Crienkovich with a score of 146.5 points.

MISS RYAN SETS 2 NEW RECORDS AT SWIMFEST

Miss Fujiko Katsutani Of Hawaii Defends 220-Yard Breaststroke Title

Domei Tsushin

PORTLAND, Oregon, Aug. 18—Continuing her brilliant record-smashing performance, Miss Mary Ryan, of the Lakeside Civic Club, Louisville, Kentucky, today obliterated two more national marks on the final day of the three-day National Amateur Athletic Union's women's swimfest at the Jantzen pool here.

Miss Ryan's victories today gave her a total of 15 points, or top individual honors in the meet, in which the cream of the nation's feminine aquatic stars performed.

Showing the same smooth-stroking form which brought her victory and a record in the one-mile freestyle event on Friday, the Lakeside swimmer set new marks in the 440-yard and 880-yard freestyle events, winning in times of 5 minutes 30.1 seconds and 11 minutes 26.4 seconds respectively.

She clipped 2.4 seconds off the 440-record, held by Miss Lenore Knight, and 6.8 seconds off the half-mile time, set by Miss Katherine Thompson.

Miss Fujiko Katsutani, Japanese-American star of Wailuku, Hawaii, successfully defended the 220-yard breast-stroke event for the second consecutive year, when she splashed through to win in 3 minutes 14.9 seconds, or 1.2 seconds faster than her previous mark.

The 330-yard medley relay was captured by the New York Women's Swimming Association, while the 880-yard freestyle relay was won by the New York Women's Athletic Club. Times for the events were 4 minutes 1.4 seconds and 10 minutes 58.8 seconds respectively.

Teams scores for the meet were as follows: first, New York Women's Swimming Association, 27 points; tie for second, Lakeside Civic Club and Multnomah Athletic Club, Portland, with 25 points each, and the Japanese girls' team (four members) of Maui, 14 points.

FILIPINOS URGED TO STICK TO DEMOCRATIC WAY

Civilian Population Asked To Enroll in First Aid Classes by General Grunert

United Press

MANILA, Aug. 14—Major General George Grunert, Commander of the Philippine Army Department of the United States Army, yesterday urged Filipinos to stick to the Democratic way of life.

Speaking on the occasion of the 42nd anniversary of the United States occupation of the Philippines, General Grunert said, "There is no room for those who would put their seeming economic well being ahead of their patriotism.

"No American or Filipino will forget the fact of his secure position under the Stars and Stripes or the debt he owes in consequence," he added.

The United States appears to have reached a point where popularity with other nationals and appeasement are things of the past, General Grunert said.

Therefore, he said, "we must make adverse criticism by aliens and disaffected nations a decidedly unpopular pastime . . . We must withdraw our moral and economic support from those who are against us," he asserted.

"We are looked to for guidance and counsel in times of stress," he told Americans, "and we must show the way with well laid plans and fearless leadership."

General Grunert urged civilians to enroll in first aid classes and also to assist in building a self sufficiency in food in the Philippines.

"There may come a time," he warned, "when we must rely on our own resources for food and other necessities."

General Grunert reviewed the all-Filipino 31st infantry and referred to a possible "future call" asserting that he did not doubt their ability to serve creditably.

Foreign Newsmen Warned Against Anti-Axis Stories in Hungary

United Press

BUDAPEST, Aug. 3—The Press Department of the Foreign Office yesterday warned foreign correspondents to refrain from sending stories from Hungary which could be construed against the interests of the Axis Powers.

They were warned against sending stories showing differences between the Axis Powers and Russia or hinting that the Axis Powers intend to absorb little countries.

Foreign diplomats here believed the warning represented a movement to bring Hungary further into line with the Axis policy.

THE CHOICE OF THE MULTITUDE

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" -by Ripley

WILLKIE HITS

overcome German autocracy once before, both in war and in business, and I promise to outdistance Chancellor Hitler in any course he chooses in 1940 or after."

Citing the tragic downfall of France and why the French people conducted their Democracy foolishly by believing politicians who did not know how to carry out their avowed tasks, he challenged the President to a series of debates on all national questions.

"I charge the Roosevelt Administration as following the same road as France because they are just leading the country into confusion and refuses to frankly state the nation's economic and military situation.

"When I am President," he said, "I will threatend foreign governments only when our country is threatened or when I am ready to act."

The Republican candidate did not mince words in his vigorous speech. He pointed out at great length the many failures of the Democratic Administrations.

Briefly outlining his own social and economic philosophy, Mr. Willkie declared: "I believe in spending little and hope for each a doctrine of growth and not a doctrine of division and hatred which the New Deal embodied.

PROGRAM OUTLINED

He outlined his own program for combatting the nation's economic troubles, asserting that he believes:

(1) The force against free enterprise as practiced by the Democratic regime must be checked while business monopolies, such as those created by the N.R.A. must be opposed;

(2) Maintenance of collective bargaining and the creation of a minimum wage and maximum hour standard;

(3) Government has responsibility to aid farmers with the least possible regimentation;

(4) Necessity of Federal regulations over interstate utilities, securities markets and the banking field; and,

(5) Establishment of adequate federal pensions, old age benefits, and unemployment allowances.

FRANCE'S ENVOY TO CHINA BACKS PETAIN REGIME

French Officials Warned They Will Be Dismissed Unless Petain Supported

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Aug. 19—Declaring that the present French Government is invested with administrative and executive authority by virtue of the French Constitution, Henri Cosme, French Ambassador to China, took the initiative in supporting the Petain Government in a proclamation issued last Friday to the French diplomatic organs and French residents in China.

Placed between the Petain Government in France and the National Committee in London since the capitulation of France, her diplomatic representatives abroad and colonial authorities have been unable to decide which Government they should support, and Henri Cosme is France's first diplomatic representative abroad to support the Petain Government.

ISSUES STATEMENT

"The present French Government is invested with administrative and executive authority by virtue of the French Constitution. Now that France has laid down her arms it is not only useless to criticize the Government but such an action is also liable to bring about unexpected misfortune to the people at home. To prevent the happening of such misfortune the French citizens should be faithful to the Petain Government to the last and at the same time should not allow themselves to be split into two factions. I, therefore, desire that the French citizens in China remain calm and prudent. The French Concession authorities shall also exercise discretion and caution in their conduct and words during the war in accordance with the instructions issued on April 9. I, therefore, make the following proclamation:

RESPECT DEMANDED

1. Any and all French Government officials stationed in China, who slander or attempt to slander, or conduct propaganda prejudicial to the prestige of the unified French Government or in violation of the laws of France, shall be promptly dismissed irrespective of their nationalities.

2. French Consuls-General and Consuls stationed in Shanghai, Tientsin, Hankow and Canton are hereby ordered to have the French residents under their jurisdiction strictly observe the aforesaid instructions."

Isolationists Denounce Envoy Bullitt's Speech

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—A group of isolationist senators today bitterly denounced William Bullitt, U.S. Ambassador to France, as a "warmonger" and "near traitor" for the latter's speech in Philadelphia yesterday urging the United States to enter the European war and advocating friendly relations with the Soviet Union.

Senator Rush Hok of West Virginia and Senator Burton Wheeler of Montana, describing Mr. Bullitt as the "spokesman for Communism," declared that his speech was nothing but a demagogic appeal to lead the United States into war.

Meanwhile, Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan and D.W. Clark of Idaho demanded to know whether Mr. Bullitt's speech had the approval of the White House and the State Department.

16 Persons Killed In Carolina Floods

United Press

RALEIGH, North Carolina, Aug. 16—At least sixteen were killed and thousands huddled in hastily organized refugee camps yesterday as floods swept over four southern states.

Property and crop damage was estimated yesterday at over $1,000,000. Several towns in North Carolina were isolated yesterday but the slackening of heavy rains curbed the rise of many streams, making it possible to inaugurate a wide scale relief program.

American Fleet Leaves Hawaii for Maneuvers

Domei Tsushin

HONOLULU, Aug. 19—Sailing secretly under the cover of near darkness, the main body of the United States Fleet today left Pearl Harbor to carry out additional intensive naval operations somewhere on the high seas.

Naval authorities refused comment, but it was expected that the maneuvers would last at least a month. During the middle of the month's exercises, the warships may return to the Pearl Harbor base for week-end shore liberty.

5 Billion Defense Bill Approved by Senate Body

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—The Senate appropriations committee today approved the $5,008,000,000 defense bill which will provide funds for starting the construction of a two-ocean navy and also for the purchase of needed equipment for the army such as tanks, guns and other vitally required war supplies.

The bulk of the defense funds are destined for the army, although sufficient appropriations have been provided to begin construction work on approximately 1,500,000 tons of new warships and 175,000 tons of auxiliary naval vessels, already authorized by the Vinson and other naval expansion bills.

Cleveland Indians Leading in American League; Tigers Next

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—The hard-hitting Cleveland Indians won five out of its last six games to bounce a faltering Detroit crew out of the lead in the American League for the first time in weeks. At the end of today's games, the Indians held a 3½ game advantage over the Tigers.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds slipped a half-game in the standings but managed to retain a 4½ game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers in second place. The Giants were a poor third, 12½ games behind the pace-setters.

Standings at the end of today's games were:

U.S. BUILDING ARMS PLANTS AT 60 PLACES

Decentralized System Used; Kansas City Trying To Become Munitions Center

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—The war Department plans the construction of 60 munitions plants to assure the nation an adequate supply of war materials "In peace or war," the Assistant Secretary of War, Robert Patterson, announced here yesterday.

The projected plants, costing $700,000,000, are intended to supply a potential army of 2,000,000 men, Mr. Patterson said.

The broad program, he said, is to permit private industry to operate the plants, which will be built with Federal funds "on an indefinite basis until all our needs are met." The sites of the plants are now being selected and negotiations with private firms are being expedited, he declared.

WITHIN U.S. BORDERS

The program contemplates the establishment of the larger portion of the projected munitions plants from 200 to 250 miles within the borders of the United States between the Rocky Mountains and the Alleghanies in order to decentralize the crowded industry along the eastern seaboard, which is vulnerable to bombing attacks.

"The plants will be constructed on a permanent basis in order to last many years," Mr. Patterson said.

Apropos of Mr. Patterson's declaration, it was recalled that Congress has so far appropriated $200,000,000 for starting the construction of munitions plants, while the funds for the remainder are contained in the $4,963,000,000 second supplemental defense appropriation bill which has already been approved by the House of Representatives.

The War Department has already signed a contract with Dupont de Nemours for a first factory—a $25,000,000 smokeless powder plant, which will be established at Charlestown, Indiana.

Meanwhile, Kansas City is seeking, with all the resources at its command, to become the beneficiary of the Government's program to decentralize national defense industries, aviation centers and training bases.

IN AMERICA'S HEART

As "The Heart of America" Kansas City citizens feel that their city is as remote as geographically possible from the threat of invasion of aerial bombardment. They argue that their city is the logical site for the construction of new airplane factories, armament supply bases, ammunition manufacturies, and other industrial establishments vital to national defense.

Mayor John B. Gage and C. M. Woodward, Kansas City Chamber of Commerce trade commissioner, placed Kansas City's presentation on Washington desks recently. It consisted principally of an elaborate brochure citing the area's advantages.

It laid particular stress on the patriotism of Middle Westerners. Eighty-one and five-tenths per cent of local labor is native born and of the remainder only 6.1 per cent was born overseas, the brochure said.

"Kansas City is located in the center of the United States," it said, "surrounded by an immense area of fertile agricultural land peopled with a high percentage of native born Americans.

"Therefore we have a setting that supplies real American educated men and women ready and anxious to enter industry."

Particular emphasis was laid on the area's availability for airplane factories because War Department officials have said that it is the location on the vulnerable East and West coasts of the present factories that causes them the most concern.

The pamphlet stressed the availability of 10 possible airplane factory sites with enough surrounding land for private airfields and the availability of 20,000 mechanics in the Kansas City area. Eighteen raw or finished materials used in plane construction are available in Kansas City.

It pointed out also that the area's weather would be no stumbling block to location of airplane plants here—that Kansas City has only nine days of dense fog a year, on the average.

Excellent transportation facilities to every section of the country and availability of all forms of power and utilities also were mentioned.

"Greater Kansas City (Kansas City, Mo., Kansas City, Kas. North Kansas City, Mo.) has in operation 27 manufacturing plants adaptable to aeronautic production," the brochure added.

Kansas City's representatives also told Government authorities of the area's vocational training institutes and its trade schools for aircraft workers, pilots and radio technicians.

BRITISH HOPES DWINDLE FOR U.S. AIRCRAFT

D. N. B. Quotes Press Survey Showing Production Capacity Limited for At Least Year

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 17—British hopes of getting a sufficient number of airplanes from the U.S.A. have been shattered. London wanted monthly delivery of 3,000 planes. The armament advisory board of the U.S.A. submitted a plan of William Knudsen to the British purchasing office, according to which the U.S.A. is willing to supply England with 1,300 planes monthly, starting the latter part of 1941.

The head of the British purchasing office modestly declared that he would be satisfied with limited supplies in the event a more extensive plan could not be worked out. The limitation of American deliveries obviously has been made in order to avoid an overlapping of American defense and British orders. It is also a sign that the American industry is rather doubtful about the long term of British orders.

Opinion has spread in America that England's fate is sealed. However, the final decision of the United States with respect to British wishes is still open. The negotiations thus far have only consisted of conferences and suggestions.

SURVEY MADE

In this connection the result of investigation by the United Press is extremely interesting. The United Press under the heading "Modernizing the American Army Takes Time" writes:

"An analysis of the present situation shows that the American automobile industry will need more than one year to modernize and motorize the American army. If we assume that one half of the 4 billion dollars, which have been set aside for the national defense program, will be used for tanks, trucks, airplane motors and motors for speed boats, we must keep in mind that in order to fulfill these gigantic orders about 300,000 trained workers will be needed. This conclusion is based on the fact that a trained industrial worker is in the position to manufacture annually goods valued at $5,000 to $10,000.

CAPACITY TOLD

"For a worker of the automobile industry this "capacity index" amounts to 6,000 dollars. In order to fulfill these government orders the respective factories would need a far greater number of skilled workers at the present time. The General Motors Company for example required 30 years to build up a concern, which produced goods amounting to 1½ billion dollars during its best year and then it gave employment to 250,000 workers.

"The American automobile industry has just closed a successful year. At the present time there is a lack of trained workers and the situation would become more difficult, if suddenly a stream of government orders for the national defense program would be given to those works, which are now concentrating on series production. In most of the plants preparations are being made to train workers for definite occupations and all plants, which are of any use for the fulfillment of the gigantic national defense program, are included in this huge scheme.

MACHINES LACKING

"All measures have been drawn up to avoid delays, when the sign to start is being given. Despite these measures it is a fact that many important machines are not at the disposal of the armament industry. It is easy to understand why private companies do not want to purchase the necessary machine tools, as long as they do not possess definite contracts from the government. Since most plants are working at full capacity most of these companies demand that the necessary extensions are to be financed by the government. The Packard Motor Company recently announced that the supply of the first airplane motor of a large series could not be turned out until ten months after receipt of the order. The Hudson Motor Company recently examined the drawings for a foreign tank and stated that it would take a year until the company could start with production."

With reference to these remarks by the United Press England probably will be disappointed with the capacity of deliveries of armament materials for England.

Russian Visas Required for Latvia, Estonia, Lithuania

The Tokyo Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics today announced revisions concerning the obtaining of visas for Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania.

Effective as of August 7, visas issued by former Diplomatic or Consular representatives of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania were no longer valid.

Entrance as well as transit into that part of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will be permitted only by visas issued by U.S.S.R. Embassies or Consulates.

MCNUTT BECOMES AIDE TO ROOSEVELT

Will Be Trouble-Shooter During Presidential Drive

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—The Federal Security Administrator, Paul V. McNutt, in his first official conference with President Roosevelt since the Democratic National Convention, pledged his acceptance of the role of "trouble-shooter" in the President's forthcoming campaign for a third term in the White House, according to informed quarters here last night.

Mr. McNutt, himself declined all comment on the conference, apparently wary of a political misinterpretation of his action in the tense campaign ahead.

Friends of the former United States High Commissioner to the Philippines, however, said the conference was carried out in a cordial spirit. Mr. McNutt was said to have agreed to campaign actively in behalf of the Democratic ticket in the entire mid-west, in addition to his home state, Indiana.

Mr. Roosevelt was said to desire Mr. McNutt's aid in order to offset the popularity of the Republican Presidential nominee, Wendell Willkie, in the Middle West. It was understood in informed quarters that the President feels that Mr. McNutt, also a Hoosier, would be an excellent counter for the Indiana-reared Mr. Willkie.

Mr. McNutt will apparently continue his present post in the Federal Government while he devotes his main attention to the campaign. It was understood that Wayne Coy would tentatively continue the active direction of the Federal Security Administration.

SOVIET DEMONSTRATION HELD ON AIR DAY

500,000 Turn Out to See Red Pilots in Action

Domei Tsushin

MOSCOW, Aug. 18—A milling crowd of 500,000 people turned out here and millions at other places throughout the country, as Soviet air heroes and civilian pilots, both men and women, participated today, Soviet Aviation Day, in gigantic displays of Red air might.

The newest fighters and bombers of the Soviet aviation corps were paraded before the public today for their wondering plaudits. Most spectacular were four ultra-secret high-speed bombers featuring unusual fish-like backfins and double tails.

Demonstrations of a new automatic parachute-opening device, operated by a timing mechanism, attracted a great deal of attention, as did the demonstration of the new two-gliders.

Besides these, were the usual spectacular mass flights, featuring some 400 planes, sham battles, trick maneuvers and the mass demonstration of parachute troops. Every stress was placed on showmanship in all effort to sell the people aviation. The display given by the Red parachute troops was a thing of splendor as some 120 parachutists mushroomed overhead in vari-colored chutes.

Josef Stalin, Communist Party Secretary, received a tremendous ovation as he appeared at his place during the air meet. Practically every high Government, army and navy official was present to witness the affair.

Like displays took place all over the Soviet Union. A crowd of 50,000 was reported at Minsk, 50,000 at Lwow, in Soviet-Occupied Poland, 100,000 at Yaroslav and at Kiev, and 200,000 at Gorky.

Claude Wickard to Succeed Wallace as Agriculture Head

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19— Claude Wickard, Undersecretary of Agriculture, was named today by President Roosevelt to succeed Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Wallace, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, resigned from his cabinet post last Thursday to campaign actively in the coming presidential elections.

Mr. Wickard, until recently, was director of the North Central Division in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration of the Department of Agriculture.

Funk Celebrates 50th Birthday

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Aug. 18—The Reich Minister for National Economy and Reichsbank President, Dr. Walther Funk, today celebrated his 50th birthday. Long one of the most important Nazis in Germany, Dr. Funk has been entrusted by Chancellor Adolf Hitler to carry out a number of vital German policies, including the coordination of Reich trade and Industry and stream-lining of the Reichsbank in accordance with National-Socialist principles.

HANSHIN AIR DRILLS BEGIN

Kobe, Osaka Citizens Subject to Measures Until September 8

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

OSAKA, Aug. 20—The air defense drill program in the Hanshin district was launched today. It will begin in Kobe with Osaka and other sections to follow in turn. The entire schedule will be completed on September 8, and an intensive program lasting for three days for each of the sections will be carried out. Authorities are asking for the full cooperation of the general public, including the foreigners, so as to make the undertaking a success. Drill rules to be strictly observed are as follows:—

HANG FLAGS

When a precautionary warning is sounded (Keikai Keiho), all households are asked to hang out a white flag in the daytime and to turn out the front lights at night. Indoor lights can be kept on provided they are limited to one 10 candle power light per three square meters. The use of lights of more than 50 candle power is forbidden, and it therefore follows that where 100 candle power light is permissible because of area, two 50 candle power lights must be used.

Needless to say, all lights must be be covered so that they are completely invisible from outside.

AUTOS CAN RUN

When the air raid warning (kushu keiho) is sounded, each household must hang out a red flag in the daytime and extinguish all lights at night. Lights indoors are permissible only when windows are so completely covered as not to permit any light to escape outside.

When air raid warnings are lifted, the state of precautionary warning returns, and the modified light control rules mentioned already must be observed.

Motorcars are allowed to run, even during the air raid warnings, with headlight covers furnished by the prefectural authorities and at a speed not to exceed 10 kilometers an hour.

TRAMS EXCLUDED

City trams will also be allowed to operate. Government railway and inter-urban tramcar services are excluded fom participation in the air defense drill this time.

Air defense exercises will be held on the street both in the daytime and at night, and everyone who happens to be on the scene is requested to follow the leadership of the policeman or members of the defense corps.

An air defense drill in eastern Japan embracing Tokyo and fifteen prefectures will be held for five days commencing on October 1, and a concrete plan is now being drafted by authorities concerned.

Embezzler Forgets Too Often, Nabbed

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

KOBE, Aug. 20—Forgetting a wallet containing ¥5,600 in 53 one hundred yen notes and smaller change, and an attempt to claim it, later proved a stumbling block for an embezzler who was apprehended by the police in Tokyo, Monday.

When express train No. 15 pulled into Kobe station at 7.53 a.m. Thursday, the conductor found a wallet containing the money. The loss subsequently was registered with the Osaka station master, in name of a Nagoya resident, so he was summoned to report to the Kobe station master. The man answered the summons Saturday, but because he seemed much too young to possess such a large sum of money, police suggested that his father be summoned to ascertain and endorse his claim, whereupon the young man vanished on pretext of going out for lunch. But this time he forgot his brief case, the contents of which indicated that he might have been engaged in illegal business transactions. Suspicion heightened when he failed to reappear and cooperation of the Economic Police was secured.

Meanwhile, police throughout the Empire were looking for a man answering the description of Tokuichi Takagi, who embezzled ¥6,000 in Nagoya. He was nabbed in Tokyo and interrogation revealed that he was the same man who had vanished from the Kobe station. The man will answer for his escapade and the money will be returned to the original owner through the Nagoya police.

Air Service Not Affected By Caledonian Decision

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—Unless hostilities develop in New Caledonia, Pan-American Airways' Antipodes service will not be affected by the reported determination of French insular officials there to continue the war against Germany, according to the spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Authority here yesterday.

The spokesman pointed out that no Pacific regions are at present designated as combat zones by the Neutrality Act. Therefore, American planes and ships can enter any open port in the Pacific.

250,000 Climbers Scale Mt. Fuji During Summer

All records for Mt. Fuji climbers have been shattered this year, the Yomiuri announces, adding that 250,000 persons scaled the mountain.

Last year's figures, which were record breaking then, were 170,000. The unprecedented number of climbers is ascribed to the 2,600th anniversary commemoration and prayers for the China Affair dead.

On July 26, 26,000 persons climbed the mountain when the Yomiuri dedicated lanterns at the mountain shrine.

Statistics compiled by the Asama shrine reveal 150,000 climbers went up from the Yoshida pass, 50,000 from Omiya pass, 30,000 from Gotemba pass and 20,000 from Subashiri pass, this summer.

LOWER RATES FOR DRAYAGE COMING SOON

Metropolitan Police Board Orders 50 Per Cent Drop In Charges for Next Month

Tokyo will have cheaper drayage charges for all kinds of motor trucks after September 1, the Nichi Nichi reports.

The new charges were agreed on at a conference of authorities of the Metropolitan Police Board, the Railways Ministry and a few prefectures contiguous to Tokyo Prefecture.

The final decision was reached Tuesday when the metropolitan police communicated the decision to all concerned.

The new official rates for motor truck hauling was reduced 20 to 50 per cent of the prevailing charges. Prices sky-rocketed with the State control on gasoline consumption and with the unprecedented freight congestion.

NEW RATES FIXED

The new rates, as quoted by the Nichi Nichi, follow:

"For ordinary motor trucks, with a capacity of more than 3,000 kilograms, the rates shall be less than ¥4 on the initial distance of 4 kilometers, 65 sen being asked for each additional kilometer. The same kind of trucks, when hired by the day, shall rent for no more than ¥26.

"For ordinary-type trucks, with a carrying capacity of from 1,300 to 3,000 kilograms, the charges shall be less than ¥3.2 for 4 kilometers with a 50 sen charge for each additional kilometer. When hired by the day the rate shall not exceed ¥21.

"A common-type motor truck whose carrying capacity is less than 1,300 kilograms must charge less than ¥2.40 for 4 kilometers with a 40 sen charge for each additional kilometer. The rent per day shall not exceed ¥16.

SMALL TRUCKS ¥16

"A small-type truck is entitled to ¥1.6 for the initial 4 kilometers and 40 sen for each additional kilometer. By the day the rate shall be no more than ¥11 per day."

All the rates mentioned above are to be enforced when the motor trucks are employed under carload consignment. Concerning the case when the trucks deal with various consignments at the same time, the new regulation is:

"A 10 kilogram load shall pay 20 sen for being carried over a distance of 10 kilometers, every additional weight of 10 kilograms for the same distance being charged 5 sen.

Americans Survey Tropical Areas for Rubber

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—The Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, announced yesterday that a survey of tropical America has begun to determine the most promising areas for growing rubber.

Three groups of rubber specialists and plant pathologists are now surveying three main tropical areas under provisions of the US$500,000 appropriation authorized early this year.

One group is working in southeastern Central America and Colombia, another in northwestern Central America, as far north as Vera Cruz, and the third in the Amazon Valley and the Atlantic Basin. The Department of Agriculture hopes to survey the entire area from Vera Cruz to Rio de Janeiro.

As soon as the survey is completed, at least two experimental bases will be established in the most promising areas and research will begin in actual production of rubber.

ELIMINATION OF SIGHT-SEEING BUSES CONSIDERED BY POLICE

The Peace Preservation Section of the Metropolitan Police Board now plans to eliminate sight-seeing buses, according to the Asahi.

They expect to change them to omnibuses and to strengthen transportation system. The plan has been submitted to companies concerned. It is expected to go into effect in a few months.

The Sight-seeing Section of the Tokyo Municipal Office and certain private bodies, oppose the plan. They insist that since the children of the war dead and the observers from China and Manchoukuo come up here very often, the necessity for sight-seeing buses is increasing.

They maintain, the existence of the sight-seeing buses is necessary for cultural education.

The authorities are of the opinion that some of them should be allowed to operate but only when they are necessary, the paper reports.

At present there are about 100 sight-seeing cars in the capital, half of which belong to the Tokyo Underground Railways Company.

CHIANG SEEN MANEUVERING FOR ARMISTICE

Asahi Dispatch Says Capital Of Chungking Now in Ruins From Heavy Bombing Raids

Chungking officials are decidedly interested in making peace with Japan, according to an Asahi dispatch from Hongkong.

"Chiang Kai-shek fears that the Communist 'emergency measures' will not reveal his real mind and will continue to voice his anti-Japanese resistance until the time when all Chungking officials agree to the peace movement," says the dispatch.

The Asahi correspondent further claims that Chiang Kai-shek has ordered a certain organ to start operations which he hopes will give him a chance to start peace talks with Japan.

Recent bombings are said to have turned Chungking into a desert land. The residential and business districts are said to have been virtually destroyed by fires which were of such immense proportions that fire brigades could not extinguish them.

Anti-aircraft guns which have been installed in and around the city are fired regularly but to date haven't brought down a Japanese plane, the Asahi dispatch said.

American Colonel Studies British Defense Set-up

United Press

LONDON, Aug. 7—Colonel William Donovan, New York lawyer and American World War officer, who recently visited England, reputedly the representative of President Roosevelt, was "much impressed by British preparedness and morale," British military quarters declared here yesterday.

Col. Donovan inspected British naval, military and aerial defenses in the British Isles. He has since returned to the United States.

"Col. Donovan's visit had the greatest implications," these quarters said.

Col. Donovan conferred with King George, the Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and other Government leaders. He visited the most important centers of British military preparations and inspected numerous naval depots, airdromes and munition factories during his visit.

CHINA TRADE COUNCIL TO BE FORMED

Will Coordinate China, Manchoukuo, Kwantung Exports; Fix Control Fee

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, Aug. 21—A China Trade Council, the object of which is the coordination of the export business to China of Manchoukuo and the Kwantung Leased Territory as a single unit, is to be shortly established, it was learned today.

The projected China Trade Council will be composed of Manchoukuoan Government officials and the Kwantung Government officials and will be instrumental in inaugurating an export pool for the purpose of doing away with the present disintegrated export system of Manchoukuo and Kwantung Leased Territory and to place same on a unified basis.

DOUBLE PRICES

In view of the prevailing high prices in North, Central and South China it is expected that the projected China Trade Council will adopt a double price system to readjust rationally the export and import prices to and from China.

The proposed China Trade Council will also act in close concert with the Provincial Foreign Exchange Bureau to be shortly inaugurated.

The launching of an export pool now under contemplation is said to be based upon the necessity of readjusting exports to China from Manchoukuo and the entrepot business of the Kwantung Leased Territory. The export to Japan will be made at the control prices of Japan with Manchoukuo and the Kwantung Leased Territory as a single unit, while a control fee will be imposed on the export to China through the port of Dairen.

FEE SLATED

This export control fee will be paid to the joint Manchoukuo and the Kwantung Leased Territory export pool as in the case of the control fee collected on exports to China of Manchoukuoan agricultural and pastoral products. This will enable the Manchoukuo Government to strictly fix the home and China export prices, which will further have the effect of readjusting the differences in prices prevailing in China and Manchoukuo. The control fees thus collected will be used for adjusting the high import prices of Chinese goods.

The projected China Trade Council which will manage the export pool is expected to be organized by officials of the Manchoukuoan Economic Ministry, Kwantung Bureau, Kwantung Government, Central Bank of Manchoukuo, the Industrial Bank and other Governmental organts.

RED TAPE THREATENS TOKYO SCHOOLS; DECREPIT BUILDINGS MAY COLLAPSE

Sixty five Tokyo primary school buildings are in danger of collapse during the coming typhoon season unless something is done at once, reports the Kokumin.

The buildings are so old and in such state of disrepair that a high wind can bowl them over, the Kokumin continues, blaming the deplorable state of affairs on official red tape.

Budget estimates for construction repairs have been approved by the Municipal Assembly, but repairs cannot start because of trouble over election of a Municipal Assembly Chairman. There being no chairman, authorization cannot be made by the board.

Parents are assailing the board for this state of affairs but the Kokumin offers no hint as to when the situation will be remedied.

Previously repairs were made during the summer vacation period, but political complications held them up this year. An official of the building and repair section of Tokyo Municipality declared:

"Although preparations are complete for repair work, it cannot start until the bill is passed by the council board. We wish to relieve minds of parents at the earliest possible time."

BROOKLYN GAINS ON CINCINNATI; TIGERS DOWNED

Fighting Chance for Pennant Seen As Dodgers Take Pair While Reds Go Down

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—The Brooklyn Dodgers climbed nearer to giving the National League-leading Cincinnati Reds a home stretch fight yesterday by taking both ends of a double header, while the Reds fell before the St. Louis Cardinals.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians gained a half game on the Detroit Tigers by the simple expedient of just not going through with their scheduled round with the St. Louis Browns because of rain. Meanwhile, the Tigers were taking a beating from Chicago White Sox.

U.S. Arms Licenses Total $161,781,000

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—Despite the fact that Japan, the Soviet Union and France received no arms exports permits, the United States during July set a record by granting licenses for arms exports totaling $161,781,000.

The bulk of the permits were issued to Great Britain which secured licenses amounting to $131,818,000 or more than 80 per cent of the total. China trailed far behind Britain with $226,000. French Indo-China was granted licenses which came to $153,000 to become the third largest purchaser of American arms during the month.

Great Britain also stood first in July for actual arms shipments, taking $24,145,000 of the total $30,056,000 shipped abroad by the United States last month. British purchases were approximately 80 per cent of total American shipments. Aircraft bought by the British came to $9,497,000.

China's purchases amounted to $389,000, representing in part 13 airplane engines, 372 propellers and two aerial gun mounts.

Kashima Maru to Be Placed On European Service

Domei Tsushin

KOBE, Aug. 22—The Kashima Maru, 9,908 tons, of the Toa Kaiun Kaisha on the Shanghai service, will shortly return to the European service of the N.Y.K.

Meanwhile, it is understood that the N.Y.K. liner Ginyo Maru, 8,613 tons, on the Bombay line will be placed on the Shanghai run of the Toa Kaiun Kaisha.

It is also said that the N.Y.K. vessel Haruna Maru, which is scheduled to arrive here on August 31, carrying many refugees from Europe, will replace the Ginyo Maru.

New Structure Move Descends Upon Golfdom

Golfdom will be renovated in line with the new national structure, with membership fees reduced and members under the age of 30 eliminated from the popular pastime, according to the Osaka Asahi.

Since golf equipment is made from such necessary materials as rubber, leather, and metals, and high membership fees are considered unsuitable for the situation of the country, the Kanto and Kansai Golf Leagues held committee sessions August 17 and 19 to work out reforms.

They decided to abolish tournaments, rule out the members under the age of 30, and to simplify the rules of the clubs.

Approximately 20 golf clubs participate in the Kansai Golf League, including Shinodayama, Takarazuka, Rokko, Arima and Inokawa. The members total more than 4,000, and particularly student members have been increasing recently.

GERMANS SUFFER 4 TO 1 LOSSES IN BRITISH RAIDS

English Air Chief Details Toll—192 Planes to 701 Lost by Reich in 12 Days

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Aug. 20—Deep praise of the Royal Air Force, which not only has successfully beaten back German aerial assaults on the British Isles but has been operating on a systematic plan for the destruction of military objectives vital to the enemy's war effort, was voiced by Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Secretary, during a debate on air attacks in the House of Commons today.

The Royal Air Force, he declared, has shot down since August 8 nearly four times as many planes as the British have lost in their attacks against Germany and Italy. "We accounted for the destruction of 701 German aircraft, while we lost only 192 fighters and bombers, including bombers we lost in attacks on Italy," he declared.

PILOT LOSS SMALL

Comparable figures for the losses of pilots, he added, are still more remarkable. Taking the fighter pilots casualties in the air over Britain and the sea around the coast since August 8, British losses have been 90 compared to 1,500 pilots and crews of German fighters and bombers.

"Including bomber crews lost over Germany, our losses were much less than 300 and German figures were greatly over 1,500," he said, adding that these were conservative figures.

Continuing, he declared that the Royal Air Force systematically is destroying German bases. "The Germans apparently believed in mass attacks by day and that night bombing was not very effective.

NIGHT RAIDS BEST

"Our night attack was much heavier than our day attack and as the nights grow longer so will the arm of our heavy bomber squadrons lengthen until we will be striking ever deeper into the enemy's vital territory.

"We were striking with a force of heavy bombers very much smaller than the German force and our success was remarkable proof of our efficiency," he declared, adding that since "we have no quarrel with the people of Germany and Italy we never will use our air power as an instrument of mass terrorism. Our blows were and will continue to be directed against airdromes, aircraft factories and other centers of military industry and supplies."

"But," he concluded, "wherever the instruments of cruelty and oppression are forged the strong arm of the air force will reach out and through it we shall break the fetter with which Hitler seeks to bind the peoples of Europe."

New York Paper Praises Defense with Canadians

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—The New York Herald Tribune today praised the agreement between President Roosevelt and the Canadian Prime Minister, William Mackenzie King, to establish a Canadian-American joint board for the defense of the Western Hemisphere, but said the plan "does not go far enough."

"This isn't a full treaty for mutual defense formally ratified by the constitutional agencies of both countries for which the situation urgently calls," the newspaper says. "It is not a complete understanding capable of being put instantly into effect which safety already demands".

ENTERPRISING JANITOR FASHIONS NEW ENVELOPES FROM OLD ONES

In his spare hours, Tomekichi Tomita, a janitor of the Sokugo village-office, Shiga Prefecture, has made in the past eight years about 876,000 new envelopes from used ones and other waste paper, according to the Nichi Nichi.

The paper hails him as a beacon light in the present nationwide thrift campaign. His paper-saving work is worthy of wide recommendation.

Making new envelopes from old ones is now practised at an increasing number of Government and other offices in order to utilize waste materials. Eight years ago, when he was employed at the village-office, Mr. Tomita started his hobby. He is now 56 years old.

The office where he works daily receives mail in about 100 envelopes. Instead of throwing them into waste basket they were turned inside out and made usable again by Mr. Tomita. The practice meant a saving of about ¥60 a year for the village-office.

Mr. Tomita also made about 300 envelopes daily from advertising handbills.

Almost all mail matters from the village-office, except letters sent to the prefectural office and which require larger envelopes, are sent in envelopes made by Mr. Tomita. He spends all his spare hours in the office making envelopes.

RUMANIA PUTS OIL CONCERN UNDER CONTROL

Development Largely Due To Germany's Initiative; Axis Powers Good Customers

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 20—The Rumanian Government has appointed a government commissioner for the Concordia Oil Company, according to a report from Bucharest. The Concordia, whose shares are largely in the possession of France and Belgium, is the second largest oil company in Rumania.

Some time ago a government commissioner was appointed for Rumania's largest oil company Astra Romana. The procedure with the Concordia shows that the Rumanian Government is making efforts to free Rumania's oil production from foreign influence. Nearly 52 per cent of Rumania's oil industry is governed by French and British capital and only 26 per cent is actually governed by Rumanian capital.

The development of the Rumanian oil industry is mainly due to German initiative. In 1907 the share of German capital in the oil industry of Rumania, amounted to 62 per cent. The majority of shares of one of the largest companies which had been in German hands, was turned over to the French and English after the World War.

While Germany was interested in the development of Rumania's oil industry, the British and French interests merely were on the line of keeping the industry at a level without making too much competition to their chief oil sources in the Near East. The oil production, therefore, dropped from 8,040,000 tons in 1936 to 6,240,000 tons in 1939.

Rumania with its annual capacity of 11. million tons, during the last few years only produced a little more than half of this amount due to the fact that the large foreign companies, which control about 89 per cent of the total capacity of the country only utilized about 50 per cent of their capacity. Exports of Rumanian oil to England and France decreased considerably since both these countries had other more important sources of supply.

Exports to Germany, however, increased to such an extent that Germany became by far Rumania's largest customer of oil. Exports to Italy also increased and by these facts it may be seen, where the real natural outlets for the Rumanian oil are.

Export-Import Bank Bill Approved by U.S. House

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—The House today passed and sent to the Senate a bill, firstly, authorizing the Export-Import Bank to lean $500,000,000 for marketing surplus American products to nations within the Western Hemisphere and, secondly, permitting the R. F. C. additional borrowing up to $1,500,000,000 of which $1,000,000,000 will be used to expand the national defense industries and $500,000,000 will be devoted to financing projects in Latin America and Canada.

New Yorkers to Be Asked To Give Blood to British

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Thousands of New York City residents will be canvassed to donate blood voluntarily for British war victims, the Chairman of the American Red Cross, Norman H. Davis, announced here last night.

The project, he said, "will furnish valuable experimental information" for the projected domestic program to collect blood reserves in the event of a national emergency.

Washington Post Sees British Prestige Decline in Orient

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—The Washington Post yesterday said the withdrawal of British forces from China "involves a further decline in British prestige in the Far East."

The newspaper said that the British, by withdrawing their troops from China to Hongkong or Singapore, have transformed them from a military weakness to a military strength. But it is unmistakable that the move "plays directly into the hands of the Japanese and places the United States in an embarrassing position," the post declared.

SCHOOLS WILL HAVE COURSES FOR VENEREAL DISEASES FIGHT

Campaigns for stamping out venereal diseases are being urged throughout the country, says the Hochi.

As the most conspicuous step in this line, the authorities of the Welfare Ministry are considering the presentation of a large request at the coming session of the Diet to cover an effective prevention and elimination program against venereal diseases.

The Hochi says some of Metropolitan Police Board is requiring blood tests on geisha girls, brothels and the waitresses of restaurants of dubious character.

The third report of this anti-venereal campaign, says the Hochi, has been obtained from the educational circles. All boys and girls attending secondary schools, who have so far been placed beyond any information about sex in their education, will soon be given a new lesson on the veneral diseases. Through films they will be explained the malignant character of the diseases and the ways of preventing them.

MINISTER HITS COMMERCIALISM IN ATHLETICS

Hashida Longs for Return To Old Days Minus The Furbelows of Westerners

"All problems confronting students' sports will be settled for good if only the commercial tendency is eliminated. Minor side issues are the questions of limiting sports events to Sundays or other holidays or how to simplify score recording in fencing and Jujitsu matches."

So said Education Minister Kunihiko Hashida in a press interview Thursday. He said many troubles which have arisen in sports circles in Japan, especially those connected with educational institutes, are all due to the fundamental nature of our school education, which is opposed outright adoption of Western sports.

STRUCTURE DIFFERENT

"Our educational institution was founded on the principle that all schools should offer every facility to quicken both intellectual and moral developments of the students. The adoption of Western sports occurred much later than the establishment of that principle in our schools. Though these adopted sports incidentally prospered because of our participation in the Olympic Games and the general national trend of stressing the importance of physical culture, the fact remained the same in almost all our schools that their innate structure had nothing to assure all-round growth of the new sports.

RENOVATION NEEDED

"As long as the fundamental structure of our schools remains the present sports problems will never be settled, for, under the cicumstances, any Government control of sports, will only usher in an awkward situation both for those who control and the controlled. At all events, a redical renovation of our school system is an urgent necessity of the day."

The Education Minister then explained that the suggested educational renovation should be carried out under a systematic plan, the lack of which will render any renovation futile. The necessity of reform in education, he added, has been mentioned more than once by Premier Fumimaro Konoye in connection with his declaration of the intended new political structure.

RETURN TO OLD DAYS

"Just think how baseball was played here when it was fresh from America. The players had no uniforms, gloves or shoes. Compared with those early days, how challengingly rich and showy are the knick-knacks of the baseball players today. The imitation of the American professionals has brought about the situation. Return to the old days, and then all the problems in the sports world will vanish."

He added that the tendency in our present-day sports circles is that some are intent on founding teams no matter how bad the material. To such people the prevailing control on sports goods ought to act so that their intentions may be given up, he said.

WAR IN EUROPE, HOME ELECTIONS AFFECTING LIVES OF AMERICAN PEOPLE

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—The war in Europe and the coming presidential election in the fall are affecting the lives of the American people in various ways.

In New York, movie houses have begun a movement to gauge the popularity of the presidential nominees by placing at the entrance containers of free badges inscribed with the names of Roosevelt and Willkie for the customers to pick.

When the total for all theaters was tallied up to the present it showed that Presidnet Roosevelt had polled 45 per cent of the discs while 55 per cent had gone to Mr. Willkie. A certain theater on Broadway disclosed, however, that 55 per cent had picked the Roosevelt badges and 45 per cent went to Willkie. At the Radio City Theater, where intellectuals and businessmen make up majority of attendants, the score was 40 per cent for Roosevelt and 60 per cent for Willkie.

Among the many British child evacuees from war-torn England, a nine-year-old girl created an excitement among her hosts recently when she ran home breathlessly on her way to school, exclaiming: "I forgot my gasmask."

GERMAN LABOR POLICY HAILED

Survey of War Period Released Showing Increase In Number of Workers

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 23—The Reichsarbeitsblatt No. 24 gives an interesting survey about the German labor policy during the war period. At the outbreak of the war the number of employed amounted to 24.46 million, of whom 16.33 million were men and 8.13 women.

At the end of June 1940 there was an increase in the number of women employes and a decrease in the number of men. This decrease in the number of men is due to the fact that many men were called for military service. The gap of more than one million men workers was partly filled in various ways. Pensioned men and foreign workers were given work in Germany.

200,000 GIVEN JOBS

Approximately 200,000 women were given employment. Germany, however, has not drawn on her last reserves and no changes with regard to women employment has been planned. The continued efforts to employ workers show that Germany made a shift from peace time to war time economy, without any unemployment.

The severe winter did not change anything in this respect. At the end of January there were 257,000 unemployed. At the end of June there were only 39,000. This has only been possible by direct measures.

The reduction of consumption released labor, whereas a greater number of workers was required for the armament industry. The engagement of workers for special work plays an important part in the labor policy. By the end of June 1940 1,75 million special workers were registered at the labor offices. This number includes 1.5 million men and 250,000 women, all these efforts, however, were not able to fill the gap.

FOREIGN LABOR NEEDED

It was necessary to employ foreign labor. A number of prisoners of war were given employment. Over 500,000 foreign workers were given employment on farms and 700,000 prisoners of war placed at the disposal of the agricultural department. These figures will probably be increased. In the trade nearly 400,000 foreign workers are employed and approximately 200,000 prisoners of war. These figures will also be increased in the near future and Germany's production is thus completely assured. The employment of labor has been successful in every respect.

PLANE DATA BARED BY REICH

British Aircraft Output Way Behind Schedule, Says German Officer

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 23—The discovery of documents in France, which contain data about the British airplane production and the possibilities of getting supplies from overseas, as well as from neutral states, was revealed to foreign press representatives in Berlin by an officer of the German airforce, Major von Siegler.

Major von Siegler made this revelation while commenting on Prime Minister Churchill's claim that the British airplane supply will soon exceed the German production. Major von Siegler declared that the German quarters are incredulous with regard to this "British miracle," which the English propaganda is forecasting.

FACTS PRESENTED

He declared that these doubts were based on the following facts: firstly, the German industry under its uniform leadership is far better prepared for war than the British industry. Secondly, during the eight to nine quiet months following the outbreak of the war, England and France were not in the position to offset Germany's headstart. Thirdly, England alone is even less in the position to do so particularly under the pressure of the German airforce and blockade. Fourthly, airraids, blockade and perhaps some additional measures will make that England's supply from abroad will not only not grow but dwindle. Fifthly, Germany's measures are based on a positive knowledge of England's resources as well as on those of the big rich hinterland, which is safe from English interference.

Major von Siegler declared that even if the English claim of production of 1,000 planes monthly would be conceded then his number would contain everything "with wings" including those not suitable for war purposes. In addition England must get 45 per cent of the necessary materials and accessories from abroad. Germany, however, thinks it much better to produce herself all those accessories for such complicated machines as airplanes.

ABOUT U.S. SITUATION

With regard to the United States, the German officer stated that it were absolutely understandable, if American industrialists were glad about the British plan to finance the erection of factories in the United States, which, however, according to statements of American experts could not start production until 1942. Major von Siegler stated finally that on the basis all experiences gathered in Germany and supported by documents mentioned by him,—and which also refer to the French armament production,—the time with regard to the production of airplanes and the necessary supplies were not working for but against England.

MILITARY MISSIONS VISITING GERMANY

Battlefields of France, Belgium Being Inspected by Three Groups

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Aug. 22—Three military missions from Slovakia, Hungary and Sweden arrived here today at the invitation of the German Government to inspect the battlefields in France and Begium.

The Slovak delegation, led by Defense Minister F. Catlos, will inspect Nazi military training institutions in addition to visiting the war areas.

The Hungarian party is headed by General Vitzez Magyarosy and the Swedish mission is led by Major-General Douglas.

NEW TODABASHI RACING COURSE NEARLY READY

The Todabashi regatta course, originally planned for the now defunct 1940 Tokyo Olympic Games, will be completed shortly for the annual Meiji Shrine Games.

The waterway is located in Toda village, Kitaadachi district, Saitama Prefecture. It was planned by the Tokyo Municipal Office's park section as part of the Todabashi water park along the Arakawa River, as well as for the Tokyo Olympic Games.

On completion at a cost of ¥900,000, the regatta course will be placed under the management of the Welfare Ministry.

The banks of the water course will have spectators' stands, promenades and flower gardens. Trees and lawns will also be planted.

The Todabashi regatta course was the only building planned for the Tokyo Olympics which was not cancelled. It will be used for a regatta for the first time at the 11th annual Meiji Shrine Games this fall.

BRITISH LOSS OF SOMALILAND SIGNIFICANT

German News Agency Says Victory of Italy Proved Remarkable Military Feat

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 20—In many respects the evacuation of British Somaliland is an important event. The arms of Fascist Italy have won a new victory and have proved their worth just as in Lybia, Abyssinia, Spain and on the French Alpine passes. In Somaliland not only a well armed power has been attacked by the British airforce and the British fleet, but the Italian troops had to overcome a difficult terrain in an equatorial climate. An extensive desert like area was conquered in a relatively short time.

Italy's operations were brilliant in view of the fact that they were carried out from a base, which has only been in Italian hands since few years. The best record for Italy's work of colonization is the fact that it has been possible to carry on a successful campaign from Abyssinia against a European colonial power, which has had its bases in this area for more than half a century.

FIRST DEFEAT

In Somaliland England has been defeated in her overseas possessions for the first time. Here, at the Red Sea, the main line to her empires in Africa and Asia the first British colony has been lost. The effect of this defeat goes far beyond the military strategic value. The coast of Somaliland lies in the circle of India and Arabia and is of vital importance for Great Britain, and the fact that British troops from many overseas possessions were defeated here is a hard blow to the British prestige.

Today the London press declared that there was no use of fighting under the hot African sun merely for the sake of prestige. Great Britain, the papers declared, had kept her forces for other more important battle fields. This statement not only shows a decline of British power, but also of the ideas, which represent the foundation of the Empire.

England used the same arguments in order to excuse her evacuation of Shanghai, her closing of the Burma route and her failure in Europe. The British high command declared that the coast of Somaliland is of no great importance for Italy. It will be recalled that England tried to console herself in a similar way for the loss of the French, Belgian and Dutch coasts. Water ways can never be controlled from the sea but only from the adjoining coasts. The strategic conception of the British Empire was built upon on this fact.

FRENCH CARRIED BURDEN

Another point of the communique of the British war ministry is worth mentioning. The defense of Somaliland had been arranged in such a way that the French forces in Djibuti had to bear the main burden. Djibuti itself was supposed to be the keystone of this defense system.

The British war ministry specially points out the fact that with the loss of Djibuti Somaliland could not be held. This conclusion, however, is true for the whole position of Great Britain. England, being without the cooperation of France cannot maintain her position in the world. The "Entente Cordiale" was not a matter of feeling but an ardent necessity for England to preserve her position in the world.

With the absence of France and the end of the Community of interests, the British position in Europe and in the other parts of the world has undergone a fundamental change. Great Britain's own forces are not sufficient to defend her own possessions. This is a fact that has been definitely confirmed by the last events in Somaliland. Germany took this fact into consideration when she appealed to the British common sense. The narrow mindedness, with which British statesmen not only turned down this offer and expressed their satisfaction in fighting alone, is showing the expected results today.

STRATEGIC FRONT

The Axis Powers possess a strategic front extending from the North Cape to the Indian Ocean. From a military and political point of view they have formed the greatest combination in European history. All who opposed this combination were defeated. The German, Italian successes follow one another like figures in mathematical series. In Somaliland another problem has been solved. The way for the solution of the final problems is being cleared.

United States Urged To Enter War

Domei Tsushin

OTTAWA, Aug. 19—"My hope for my own country is that the United States may draw its sword for freedom and humanity," declared Colonel Henry Breckenridge, Assistant Secretary of War in President Wilson's Cabinet, in the course of a nationwide radio broadcast today.

Speaking at the invitation of the Director of Public Information, he said: "Canada, I salute you. You have cast out doubt and fear. Self-interest, intelligence and courage all dictate that the nations of the Western Hemisphere should follow Canada's example and give Britain unstinted aid. If American sleeps and Britain falls, America will wake to its doom."

"The world cannot survive half slave, half free," he said. "Hitler knows that and has relentlessly pursued his ravaging race to destroy the last citadels of freedom."

Civil Service Rules Passed by Nanking

Domei Tsushin

NANKING, Aug. 23—The Central Political Council of the National Government at Nanking met in conference yesterday and passed Civil Service Regulations governing reinstatement of all Government officials under the Chungking Government's jurisdiction until September 30. The new Civil Service Regulations were put into effect immediately.

The new regulations are said to have been promulgated in view of the great influx of former Chungking Government officials to Nanking after the publication of the National Government's statement to take back former Chungking officials.

The new regulations provided for formal appointment after two month's trial.

Ford Signs Contract For Airplane Motors

United Press

DETROIT, Aug. 17—The Ford Motor Company announced yesterday that it had signed a contract with the War Department for the manufacture of 4,000 airplane motors of the Pratt-Whitney design.

The company also revealed that production will soon start on a two-motored airplane designed by Ford engineers which will be powered by a liquid-cooled motor with a speed of above 400 miles per hour. The plane will resemble the Army's new twin-motored Lockheed P-38.

Vichy to Purge Legion of Honor

United Press

VICHY, Aug. 20—A purging of the French Legion of Honor has been decided upon, it was officially stated today.

Commenting on this announcement, the French radio declared that a perusal of the list of members of the Legion of Honor showed many persons not deserving this honor. There were writers without readers, journalists without fame, actors without a public and "heroes" without glory. The broadcast concluded by stating that if the Legion of Honor is to be respected by the people, it must be "purged" thoroughly.

DODGERS, REDS BOTH DEFEATED IN TWIN BILLS

National League Leaders Muff Opportunities: A's Divide Games with Chicago

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—Sloppy fielding contributed to the downfall of Lee Ross, Philadelphia Athletics pitcher, yesterday when infielder Al Rubeling muffed three plays and let the American League's Chicago White Sox take the first half of a double header, 6-1.

In the 10-inning nightcap, the Athletics out-fielder, Wally Moses stole home with two out to make the winning tally for Philadelphia. The final score was 4-3.

In the National League, both leaders took a drubbing from the opposition, the Brooklyn Dodgers dropping both ends of a double header to the sixth-place St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati losing to New York.

'CHUTE TROOPS IN S.A. FEARED

U.S. Senator Broadcasts Reich Plans to Invade Western Hemisphere

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14—Senator Warren Austin, Assistant minority leader, yesterday charged that Germany has made preparations in South America to land parachute troops there after Britain has been defeated.

Speaking on a nationwide radio broadcast, Senator Austin said German air facilities in Latin America were the danger points. He said that gasoline supplies, plane parts and other equipment are ready and available at strategic places in Latin America for use when they are required by German forces.

Senator Austin specifically named the German owned Sedta air line in Ecuador and the Scadta line in Colombia. These air lines, he said, extend to the strategic jungle in the east, where no commerce exists. Germany would logically strike at the Western Hemisphere before the United States completes here defense preparations, he said.

"Hitler's chief aim is to search for raw materials," Senator Austin declared. "He can get them more easily in South America than any place in the world."

Meanwhile, the former German Consul in New York, Dr. Paul Schwarz, lodged a charge with the office of the United States Attorney that the New York headquarters of the German Gestapo are located in a travel exchange agency office, one floor below the German Consulate General.

Dr. Schwarz said the agency was previously quartered on the same floor as the Consulate General, but moved below when the Consul-General, Herr Hans Borchers, became enraged when he learned he and his staff were being spied upon. The agency was bombed June 20.

GERMAN PILOT SETS HIGH MILEAGE MARK

Flies Half Million Kilometers Over Spain, Norway, Britain

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 24—When Lieutenant Arthur Schwabe returned from his reconnaissance flight over Scotland to his base in Northern France Friday afternoon, he found his hangar decorated with garlands. The reason was that he had covered half a million kilometers in the service of the air force. Lieutenant Schwabe is 25 years old and took part in the Spanish war, where he was engaged in armed reconnaissance flights. On one of his flights he lost his plane in making an emergency landing. But he was able to reach his comrades without being captured by the reds.

In Poland he was especially fortunate. At the end of the eighteen days campaign his plane showed one hundred bullet marks. However, he did not have to give up his "Do 17."

While on reconnaissance over Norway his plane was covered with ice so that he had to descend to an altitude of 100 meters. But even at this altitude his aeronautical apparatus were still closed by ice.

Four weeks ago he was forced by a British fighter to bail out of his plane over the Channel. He was rescued by a German ambulance plane.

He is now flying a Heinkell III but he does not believe that the war will last long enough for him to reach the million kilometer mark. He has dropped about 500 bombs and has taken 7,000 meters of film.

U.S. TO INCREASE PAY OF ARMY, MARINE PRIVATES

Increase from $21 to $30 Monthly Voted by American Upper House

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—The Senate yesterday voted to increase the pay of buck privates in the Army and Marine Corps from $21 to $30 monthly in an effort to weaken opposition to the peace time draft bill.

Meanwhile, in the House of Representatives, William J. Miller, Connecticut Republican, offered an amendment to the National Guard Mobilization Bill to restrict the assignment of National Guardsmen to continental United States, U.S. island possessions and Alaska, the Panama Canal and the Philippines. The pending measure would permit the President to send militiamen anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

TAFT HITS STIMSON

In the Senate, Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican, launched a barrage of criticism against the Secretary of War, Col. Henry Stimson, the Assistant Secretary of War, Richard C. Patterson, Jr., the publisher of the New York Times, Col. Julius Ochs Alder, and others affiliated with the Military Training Camps Association, which sponsored the Conscription Bill.

He charged them with generating war hysteria in the United States in order to create a huge, unneeded United States Army. He said they were "deliberately inspiring nationwide propaganda" apparently in an effort to exert pressure on Congress through various constituencies.

Senator Taft said Senator Morris Sheppard, Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, admitted that he desired an army totalling only 700,000 men.

"He has them without this bill . . . ," Senator Taft declared. "It is a measure to create by a selective draft, an army of unlimited size—as that size may be determined later by Congress."

He estimated that the expanded forces would cost about $3,500,000,000.

"We should not exaggerate the character of the present emergency," Senator Taft declared. "I am convinced that, to meet the threat of the Totalitarian nations, we need not ourselves become Totalitarian. I shudder when I hear such words as 'total defense.'"

UTTERLY IMPOSSIBLE

He said it would be "utterly impossible" to defend Argentina, Brazil and other South American republics with an army.

"The Monroe Doctrine must be enforced with a Navy," he declared "and if it cannot be enforced by a navy it cannot be enforced at all."

The Roosevelt Administration, he said, "must have in mind the possibility of using our army draft in Brazil, Argentina and Chile."

He said he favored building up a large navy.

"I am inclined to agree that we should have a navy in the Atlantic sufficient to repel any European attack, while we have a navy in the Pacific sufficient to repel any attack from Japan.

"I believe our present navy can be moved back and forth with sufficient mobility so that no successful attack can be made on either ocean. But I see no reason to take a chance. If we are going to enforce the Monroe Doctrine, as far as Brazil and Argentina are concerned, we certainly must have a navy of the size now being authorized."

Senator Taft said he doubted Japan would attempt to invade the United States in view of her preoccupation in China.

GERMAN-SOVIET TREATY ANNIVERSARY WIDELY DISCUSSED BY MOSCOW PRESS

D.N.B.

MOSCOW, Aug. 24—Moscow newspapers devoted lengthy comments, prominently published, to the first anniversary of the German-Soviet Russian non-aggression pact of August 23, 1939.

These comments reveal the great importance attached in Moscow to the German-Soviet Russian treaty and to its development. Under the heading "date of great historic importance" the official newspaper "Isvestia" published an editorial on the treaty. The signing of the non-aggression pact, this paper writes, has put an end to the enemity, which war-mongers had artificially produced between Germany and Soviet-Russia. By quoting the words of Molotov, which meanwhile have become famous, the paper declares that the non-aggression pact had become the turning point not only in the history of the German-Soviet relations but also in the history of Europe.

This treaty, the paper adds, is one of the most important documents of the foreign political relations of the last decades. By signing it both sides voiced the view that ideological differences did not hinder the creation of neighborly and friendly relations between the two countries. The conclusion of this German-Soviet treaty for all times liquidated the hostile relations between Germany and the Soviet Union and for that reason alone it was and remains an important factor for peace.

The Moscow paper then alludes with special emphasis to the joint German-Soviet declaration, which at that time offered peace to the Western Powers. By declining the German-Soviet peace proposals Britain and France shouldered the responsibility for the continuation of the bloodshed.

Turning to the economic relations, which prospered as a result of the German-Soviet Russian reproachment in the first year of the treaty the Isvestia writes: "In order to judge the scope of the German-Soviet Russian agreement rightly, it must be recalled that the economic treaty provided for the first year of its existence a development of the trade between Germany and the Soviet Union, which corresponded to the maximum of the previous years. Thanks to this agreement, Germany gets the raw materials, of which it has special need owing to the blockade organized by Britain and which had first been organized only against Germany and which is now already directed against the whole of Europe. On the other hand, Germany is supplying the Soviet Union with industrial products including material for armaments which are of essential importance in the present tense of the international situation."

After these remarks the semi-official organ of the Soviet Union arrives at the following conclusions: "the German-Soviet treaty did not only withstand all tests, which it encountered in stormy times, with honor, but it has also proved its unshakeable firmness without regard of the circumstance that Germanys enemies as well as the enemies of the Soviet Union up to date did do everything to sow discord and distrust between Germany and the Soviet Union by provocative efforts. Thus the correctness of Molotov's recent statements before the Supreme Council of the Soviets has been proved that the neighborly and friendly German-Soviet Russian relations were not of a passing character but of a vital need for Germany as well as for the Soviet Union. By this treatment, peace has been guaranteed for Germany in the East as well as in her decisions on the economic tasks which confronted her."

Germans Making Magazine Print From Potatoes

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 24—The latest editorials of the paper "Vierjahresplan" which is being printed on the best magazine paper, consists of paper which has been produced solely from flour of potatoes according to an advertisement in the periodical of the papermill having developed this idea. The idea of making cellulose from the flour of the potatoes originated from Hitler himself.

On the initiative of the Fuehrer the first experiments were made in Thuringia, and proved successful. Not only paper can be produced from this cellulose but also materials for women and men clothings, some of which have been tested already for two years by ordinary wear.

As the greater Germany owns the world's largest potato producing area, German economic life has been given a new important source of raw materials. Experiments are being undertaken to find an even greater use for the potato flour.

No fewer than three million tons of potato flour can be produced in Germany. If 30 per cent of this flour could be exploited Germany might save from her forests up to 675,000 tons of cellulose.

BLITZKRIEG NOT YET

presence of German forces in the attack. The British Government are therefore acting wisely in taking no risks in weakening the defense of Britain in order to defend their possessions in Africa. If Britain proves she is impregnable in her sea girt fastness, she can afford the readjustment of the African situation.

MAY SEE DELAY

Thursday's battle may induce the further postponement and, not impossibly, a reconsideration of the plans which are based on a misconception of the strength of the obstacles to be overcome.

But, although Nazi plans for the destruction of Britain have not been disclosed, there can be no doubt that the war against the British Empire has begun in dead earnest. The Italians have precipitated their attack upon Britain's African Empire. Insofar as their plan of campaign has been revealed, they mean to rend it to pieces from the Mediterranean to the Equator and, out of the fragments of British and French possessions that continue, to reestablish the old Roman Empire in northern Africa.

They have already captured one of the most important military posts in central Sudan—Kassala. They are awaiting the subsidence of floods before their advance to the conquest of the rest of that rich country fertilized by the alluvial deposits which the Nile has for ages carried to the plains from the forests and mountains of the inerior.

They have now inaugurated a steady attack upon British Somaliland which, if it succeeds, will carry the Italian Empire to the rest of the shores of the Gulf of Aden not yet in their possession. They have also made menacing inroads into the province of Kenya, thus demonstrating their intention to annex tropical Africa. A still more important invasion is that which is threatened by large Nubian forces in Libya upon one of the most famous countries in the world—the ancient kingdom of Egypt—not only renowned for its historic associations, but having special importance of its own because of its strategic position as a connecting link between the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean.

Here the desertion of France has inflicted a disastrous blow upon the chances of resistance to this critical offensive. France had a very considerable force at Tunis and Syria, which, combined, with the strong garrison Britain had, both in Egypt and the Sudan, constituted an army which would have been equal, if not superior, to anything Italy could bring into the field in that region. The capture of Alexandria and Port Said would place the British Fleet in a precarious position in the Mediterranean.

U.S. Vessel Loads Wolfram And Antimony at Haiphong

United Press

HONGKONG, Aug. 21—An American vessel at Haiphong yesterday loaded $10,000,000 worth of wolfram and antimony consigned to the United States, the Wah Kul Yat Pao, reported today, quoting reliable sources at Haiphong.

The newspaper said it was believed the sale of the material to the United States was arranged by the former Chinese Finance Minister, Dr. T. V. Soong. It was understood the cargo was originally intended for Vladivostok under the Sino-Russian barter agreement.

YANKS, TIGERS THREATEN LEAD OF CLEVELAND

American League Pennant Race Becomes Mad Scramble; DiMaggio Boys Are Active

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—The pennant race in the American League developed into an open scramble today as first division teams launched late season campaigns to dethrone the Cleveland Indians who now hold the honor berth.

The New York Yankees took the battle into the Indian camp today to scalp the Redskins 15 to 2. The Boston Red Sox meanwhile, moved into a third place to tie with the Yankees, despite a 9 to 8 defeat at the hands of the Detroit Tigers. The second place Tigers, by virtue of their victory over the Red Sox, further weakened Cleveland's hold on first place.

YANKS WIN

Joe DiMaggio led the Yankees to victory, high-lighting his performance with a home run in the second inning with bases loaded. Weatherly and Henrich also collected homers. Russo, who went the route on the mound for the Yankees, turned in a six hit game to complete the performance in championship form.

In the National League, New York and Pittsburgh battled twelve innings in the opening game of a doubleheader before the Giants finally scored to win by a count of 5 to 4. Consecutive singles in the twelfth inning by Ott, Cucinello and Witek accounted for the winning tally. Vincent DiMaggio kept the Pirates in the game with two home runs, two singles and two walks.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, their pennant drive stalled, suffered a 2 hit shut-out today at the hands of Olsen, Chicago Cub rookie. Olsen yielded no hits for the first six innings and set the Dodgers down in one-two-three order in the last three frames. The final count was 5 to 0 for the Cubs.

REDS BEAT BEES

The league-leading Cincinnati Reds remained in the victory column today with a close 3 to 2 decision over the Boston Bees. Tight pitching on both sides featured the hard fought game.

GAME HARD FOUGHT

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—American baseball fans were treated to some of the closest games in weeks today as Cleveland reinforced her lead in the American League while Cincinnati weakened her position at the top of the National League by dropping an eleven inning game to New York.

Pitchers were in the limelight in the American League where two five hit and two seven hit games were turned in. The Chicago White Sox dropped a 3 to 0 game with Philadelphia in which Rigney and Beckman each yielded only five hits.

Entering the game as a relief pitcher, Detroit's Benton handed a 6 to 5 victory to the New York Yankees by walking Bill Dickey in the ninth inning when bases were loaded. George Selkirk had opened the Yankee scoring by lining out a home run in the first inning with bases loaded. The Yankee victory enabled New York to replace Chicago in third place in the American League Standings.

Witer's single in the eleventh inning enabled the New York-Giants to defeat Cincinnati 5 to 4. Brown's relief pitching for the Giants was the feature of the game.

Pinch-hitting in the tenth inning Linus Frey slammed out a home run with one man on base to give Philadelphia a 7 to 5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Burma Road Opening Sought in London

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Aug. 23—With Parliamentary debate centered on Far Eastern affairs, the China Camp Committee, headed by Margery Fry, today called on Foreign Undersecretary Richard Butler, demanding immediate and unconditional reopening of the Burma Road, closed since early in July.

The Committee referring to the suffering that would be caused by closing the Road, sack slackening of anti-epidemic work and shortage of medical supplies in vast areas of China would result.

Mr. Butler declared that passage of medical supplies would be permitted while the question of allowing shipment of petrol for transport of medical supplies through the interior of China had been taken up with the Japanese Government but no decision had been reached.

Mr. Butler took note of the deputation's views but added that no further indication of the development of Government policy could be given at present.

GERMAN TAX REVENUES UP DESPITE WAR

Large Increase Reported In Revenues; Bonds Issued For Additional Financing

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 26—The economic week from August 19 to 25 saw publication of a review on the German taxation which contrary to expectations revealed that the revenue of the year 1939-1940 had by far exceeded that of 1938-1939.

In the taxation year concluding March 31, 1940 the revenue from taxes amounted to 23.575 milliard marks compared with 17.71 milliard marks for the corresponding period of 1938-1939. This favorable development also continued in the first four months of the new taxation year, which according to the statement by State Secretary Reinhardt of the Reich's finance ministry yielded 8.17 milliard marks so that the total amount of the revenue of the present year is estimated to be exceeding 25 milliard marks.

WEALTH INCREASED

The amounts resulting from direct and indirect taxation show an increase of the wealth of the German-population, despite the war. In the period from April to July of this year taxes on wages had increased by 6.6 per cent, on the income by 5.1 per cent, on property by 19.1 per cent. At the same time the tax on sugar yielded an additional 15.8 per cent, on beer 4.3 per cent and on tobacco 3.3 per cent. The war, therefore, did not bring to the German people a lowering of the living standard but on the contrary an improvement.

ISSUED BONDS

That the war could not be financed exclusively by taxes is obvious and for this reason new 4 per cent exchequer bonds were issued, which are running 20 years, thus Germany returned to a long term loan system. The control of consumption, which had become necessary during the war, could to some extent be loosened now thanks to improved conditions of the German textile industry.

The new Reich's cards for clothes will give the people more shopping possibilities. The new soap card will be valid only for four months that is until end of January 1941. A material improvement is obviously to be expected for this date.

Another considerable improvement of Germany's raw materials supplies will result from the increased use of potato plants for the production of cellulose, which is expected to yield annually 650.000 tons of cellulose.

WILL SAVE TIMBER

This would mean an annual saving of 2 million cubic meters of timber. Germany, moreover, is steadily gaining importance as transit country.

The new oil agreement, for instance, between Sweden and Rumania provides for the transports of oil via Germany and Sassnitz to the Swedish port of Trelleborg.

Manila-Java Air Line Still Being Considered

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—The establishment of an air line between Manila and Java is still being actively considered, although there is little prospect of a favorable decision being reached in the near future, authoritative circles said here yesterday.

The State Department reiterated has nothing new was known of the matter. The Netherlands Legation here declined to comment, although officials there intimated the matter remains in the hands of the United States.

Unofficial speculation is that the United States favors the air line, but fears that if landing rights were granted the Dutch, it would be a precedent under which other, less welcome powers, might demand equal rights.

NEW EUROPEAN SETUP PROBED; HELD JUSTIFIED

Italian Newspaper Article Reviewed by German Press Service; See Many Changes

D.N.B.

MILAN, Aug. 26—The semi official Italian newspaper "Relazione Internationale" published an article, probably written by States Minister Alberto Pirelli regarding the new economic orientation of Europe after the victory of the Axis Powers, which can now safely be expected. The article states: "Europe is on the way toward a new economic order based above all on those groups, which are led by Berlin and Rome. The new order will also bring advantages to all the countries outside of Europe, which are in direct or indirect connection with the Axis Powers. Not only the military victory will entitle Italy and Germany to become the executers of this historic new order but also the new social order represented by the national revolutions of both these countries as well as their experiences in the new economic order.

HELD JUSTIFIED

"These important factors were accompanied by a tendency of expansion of both countries and by this furnished the social and economic justification for the creation of those vast spheres of interest. The principle of nationality as was endorsed by the treaty of Versailles proved to be contrary to modern basic economic views. The formal sovereignty of small states in the daily life proved to be an anachronism, since Versailles had created a Europe with too many small states hostile against each other and unable to create a well rounded national economic life.

"They were unable to give their people safety and welfare, while on the other hand the new vast economic sphere, which is to be created, would not only benefit Germany and Italy but also give the same advantage to the other states in Europe, the advantage of wider markets and the lowering of economic barriers.

SEE POLITICAL PEACE

"This would also bring about political peace as the small nations no longer needed to become the victims in the struggle of large powers and the interior order of these smaller nations would benefit from the disappearance of a class of warfare and capitalistic excesses, while the economic life would be regulated in the entire sphere in accordance with the mutual benefit for all nations.

"Europe would by these means support each other to such an extent that it will be protected against any danger from outside. Germany and Italy would control the ample sources of raw materials to safeguard the future against any eventualities."

French to Electrify Railways to Paris

Domei Tsushin

VICHY, Aug. 25—The French Ministry of Transportation announced last night that the railway between Paris and Marseilles and that between Paris and Montauban will soon be electrified.

The electrification of French railways is expected to help alleviate the coal shortage which is making itself felt in an increasing degree in France.

BATAVIA HISTORY INFLUENCED BY NIPPON TRADERS

17th Century Wills Show Japanese Activity in Netherlands East Indies

About 400 Japanese prospered in thriving businesses at Batavia around 1635 when the Tokugawa feudal government strictly prohibited Japanese people from traveling abroad, according to Masao Sato, expert on the history of Japanese-Dutch East Indies relations. Mr. Sato returned recently from an investigation trip to Batavia.

Japanese pirates are recorded to have landed at Batavia in the Ashikaga period (roughly from the 14th to 16th centuries). Before the Tokugawa Shogunate in 1635 prohibited travel abroad hundreds of Japanese had formed a colony in Batavia, engaging in shipping, lumber and banking businesses. Batavia was then called Jagatara by the Japanese.

ALL DIED THERE

Those Japanese pioneers all died at Batavia, for if they returned to Japan they were certain to be killed in accordance with the Shogunate law. However, they communicated with their families and friends in Japan by correspondence carried by Dutch ships which were allowed to visit Nagasaki.

One of the letters from Batavia to Japan, known as "Jagatara Bumi" (letter from Batavia), is very widely known. It was written by Oharu, a 14-year-old girl, who expresses touching nostalgia for Japan in a beautiful style. However, authenticity of the letter was doubted by scholars because its style was too mature for a girl of 14.

WILL DISCOVERED

Last year, however, Professor Seiichi Iwanari of Taihoku Imperial University, discovered in the municipal library of old documents at Batavia the will of a certain Oharu. He also discovered the will of a Mr. Sobei, Japanese resident who died there in 1663 and whose grave is located in the compound of the Japanese Consulate-General in Batavia.

Mr. Sato recently examined the two wills. Interviewed by the Nichi Nichi at his home at Nozawa-cho, Setagaya-ku, Tokyo, Sunday, he said:

"Oharu's will was so moth-eaten it was hardly legible. But it is certainly the will of a Japanese woman. It at least proves that Oharu was not an imaginary personage, though whether the famed "Jagatara Bumi" is authentic is open to doubt.

GRAVE INSCRIBED

"Sobei's grave has inscriptions in Dutch, saying that the deceased was a Japanese Christian who was born in Nagasaki in 1605 and died at Batavia in 1663. His will, discovered by Professor Iwanari last year, was written in Dutch on March 29, 1661, by a Dutch notary. It says that his remains should be buried on land or in the sea, that his assets should be inherited by Michiel Buzayemon and Jan Seiyemon, both Japanese. The will is signed by Sobei in Japanese.

"It is surmised from the will that Sobei had a considerable social position and fortune.

"Among the old documents I examined were also records of orders placed by the Tokugawa Shogunate with the Dutch East Indies Company from 1750 to 1830. There are hiatuses in the records but they shed an interesting sidelight on Japan's history of foreign trade.

HELPED SOLDIERS

"According to the records, European medicines, books, watches for women, glassware, lamps for ships, old paintings and Persian horses were ordered by the Shogunate.

"I also learned the fact that about 300 Japanese mercenaries in the Dutch Army routed in 1611 British sailors who attempted to seize Batavia forts which were newly completed. It is interesting to know that Japanese contributed to the Dutch development of the East Indies."

U.S. Exports Up To Far East

United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22—United States exports to the Far East, including China, Japan, Hongkong and Kwangtung, in the first ten months of the European war, increased by 13 per cent over the corresponding months of the previous year, the Department of Commerce announced here yesterday.

Exports to Japan increased 2.1 per cent, and to China, including Hongkong and Kwangtung, they increased by 46.3 per cent. A 19.1 per cent increase in exports to the Philippines was registered.

U.S. Military Mission in London

United Press

LONDON, Aug. 17—Rear-Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, head of President Roosevelt's mission sent to England to observe the German blitzkrieg, arrived here yesterday with two United States Army officers, and immediately reported to the U.S. Ambassador to London, Joseph Kennedy.

The new will take up their posts immediately as observers attached to the American Embassy here.

YANKS STAGING RALLY; CLIMB TO 3RD PLACE

Defending Champs Abandon Second Division and Move To 5½ Games Behind Indians

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—The New York Yankees, playing in the second division all season, climbed into third place last week after coming to life and battling their way past Boston and Chicago in the American League.

While the Cincinnati Reds won five games in the National League, the Cleveland Indians banged out three victories in the junior loop. The Detroit Tigers, in second place, could do not better and stayed three games behind.

The Yankees prodigious spurt gained them 4½ games on the league-leading Indians, leaving them but 5½ games behind.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals climbed into third place, ousting the New York Giants, while Chicago crept past Pittsburgh for the second change in the league standings.

The Cincinnati Reds held a comfortable margin for first place with the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers 7½ games behind and with the climbing St. Louis Cardinals 12 games in the rear.

Standings at the end of today's games were:

American League

Taylor Visits Pope, Leaves for America

Domei Tsushin

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 24—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Holy See, was received by the Pope yesterday in a farewell audience.

Mr. Taylor later left by plane for Lisbon, from where he will probably continue his return to the United States by Trans-Atlantic Clipper.

Germans May Retaliate Alleged Ambulance Attacks

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Aug. 26—Germany, through the Swiss Government, has served notice on Britain that it reserves the right to retaliate "in appropriate manner" alleged attacks by British aircraft of German ambulance planes.

The British attacks are alleged to have taken place specifically on July 6 northwest of Stavangar, on July 11 at a point 30 miles southeast of Portland, on July 26 and 27 over the English Channel and on July 27 and 28 near Boulogne. The protest points out that the reputedly victimized aircraft are unarmed planes of special construction which are not used for military purposes but only to save men in distress irrespectively of their nationality.

New R. A. F. Bombers Said More Powerful

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Aug. 23—New bombers whose specifications are a closely guarded secret will soon be available to the Royal Air Force, it was disclosed last night.

Although gigantic they are surprisingly fast and are stated to have maneuverability of much lighter craft and to be much more powerful than those which regularly bomb Germany and northern Italy.

Latvia and Lithuania Choose Commissars

Domei Tsushin

MOSCOW, Aug. 26—The provisional Supreme Soviets of the Lithuanian and Latvian Soviet Socialists Republics, meeting yesterday in Kovno and Riga respectively, approved lists of members of their Councils of Commissars, the Tass news agency reports.

Bahram, Derby Champ, Shipped to America, Says Daily Mail

Domei Tsushin

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27—"The most valuable horse ever to leave Britain for the United States" has safely reached its destination, it is reported by the London Daily Mail.

The horse in question is the famous racing horse, Bahram, which won the Derby in 1935 and is reported to be worth about £40,000. At the time it won the Derby it belonged to Aga Khan.

Bahram was most carefully tended throughout the perilous journey, with the equipment even including smelling salts against sea sickness, the London paper adds.

New Glider Record Set in Manchoukuo

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, Aug. 28—A new glider flying record of 4 hours 42 minutes and 30 seconds was established yesterday by Ryuzo Asakawa of the Chosen Aviation Association on the fourth day of All Manchoukuo Glider Contest now being held here.

Taking advantage of a favorable air-current six soarers went up led by a leader plane, among them being the "Dragonfly" type glider piloted by Mr. Asakawa.

With air conditions favorable, the Dragonfly climbed up higher and higher, and flew in large circles for 4 hours 42 minutes and 30 seconds maintaining an altitude of 2,000 meters and landed at 0:45:50 breaking the previously established Manchoukuo record of 4 hours and 41 minutes.

Volunteers for Canadian Air Force Mostly Americans

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Eighty per cent of the pilots volunteering for war service with the Canadian Air Force are Americans, the New York Herald Tribune reported today from Ottawa.

Indicating great desire of the Americans to serve overseas, the number of volunteers, the paper said, is increasing every day. The pilots are put through a preliminary training until they acquire 250 hours of flying time then they are given examinations for commissions as pilots with the R.A.F. Those who successfully pass the test are immediately sent to England.

Many Americans, the newspaper also revealed, are delivering American warplanes to Britain by flying them across the North Atlantic.

Soviet Icebreaker Sedov Leaves on New Arctic Voyage

Domei Tsushin

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 23—The Soviet icebreaker Sedov left on August 20 for Archangelsk on a new Arctic expedition.

It is recalled that a Russian icebreaker last year was rescued by other Russian vessels and icebreakers after having spent two years in the ice flows of the Arctic Sea.

OVERWORK CLAIMED DETRIMENTAL TO BRITISH FLYING EFFICIENCY

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 27—An interesting find was made when a British airplane, which after being hit by German anti-aircraft fire, made a forced landing. When German soldiers and police rushed to rescue the crew of the British plane, an exciting incident occurred.

One British airman—he later proved to be a flight lieutenant when coming out of his stupor took a cigaret lighter from his pocket and tried to set fire to a small booklet. After a brief struggle, the booklet was taken away from him. The booklet proved to be a small diary, which contained a number of highly interesting notes. Some of these notes revealed the present mood of the Royal Air Force.

There was, for instance, the following note: "June 7, 1940, learned today that R.A.F. officer been sentenced by court to 6 months imprisonment because he had remarked that all R.A.F. officers up from the group commander should be shot. I believe he is right.

"June 21, 1940. One unit refused to start at this tantamount suicide.

"August 20, 1940. Talked to Bill. His pursuit squadron is to be shifted. By the way, he had a sharp tattoo with his boss. He told him this over exertion of the pursuit flyers was impossible any longer. Boss told him his Majesty's air officers could not take into consideration their person or health. Said England's numerical inferiority in number to Germany must be made up by increased employment. Bill told him every British pursuit flyer knew that these were crucial months for England and that each pilot must give all to help England to win final victory but that pilots must not be overworked too much, because by such methods our pilots are made ripe for being shot down. I believe that we must employ our bombers more than before."

Escaped French Convicts Want to Join War

Domei Tsushin

MIAMI, Florida, Aug. 26—Eight bedraggled Frenchmen, who claim to have escaped from the French penal colony on Devil's Island, arrived here last night in a 30-foot sailboat.

They said they were attempting to reach England to join the French forces in fighting against Germany.

The famous penal colony on Devil's Island, they said, has been virtually abandoned by France since the French capitulation to Adolf Hitler.

Food is scarce on Devil's Island and the guards have gone unpaid for months, they said. A great number of the 5,000 prisoners on the island at the outbreak of the war have escaped.

SHIPBUILDING IN U.S. AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

10 Subs, 7 Destroyers Now Under Construction; Employment Up 30%

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—United States Navy Secretary Frank Knox, in an interview with the press today, said that the construction of 10 submarines and seven destroyers now building is from three to nine months ahead of schedule.

Colonel Knox said that thus far the following definite results have been obtained:

1. Employment in navy yards has increased 30 per cent as a result of lengthening the working week and the establishment of three shifts.

BARRACKS BUILT

2. Temporary barracks, training stations and various naval bases now being built are far ahead of schedule.

3. The Naval Academy at Annapolis will have its largest attendance starting on September 13 with a total of 2,396 cadets.

4. President Roosevelt has signed the bill approving an unlimited number of naval aviation reserve officers for regular commissions.

ARMY PROGRAM

With the Senate's approval of the amended Burke-Wadsworth bill, the War Department today, announced the outlines of its program envisaging the creation of a standing army of four million men for the United States' defense by the middle of 1945.

The army is planning to start the program on October 15 with the training of 75,000 men under provisions of the Burke-Wadsworth measure. Thereafter periodic calls will be made to train a force of approximately 3,400,000 men in the course of the next five years.

HITS DEFENSE SNAG

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—Senator Harry Byrd, Democrat of Virginia, today demanded that the Government explain the delay in ordering planes and tanks for the United States Army.

He said the delay in placing orders was "seriously menacing" national security. Unless a satisfactory explanation is forthcoming, he said, he will introduce legislation in Congress calling for a Congressional investigation of the Government's rearmament effort.

Senator Byrd's outburst against the Government significantly followed the proposal of Senator David I. Walsh, chairman of the Senate Military affairs committee, to summon the Secretary of Navy, Colonel Frank Knox, for a secret session with the committee.

Colonel Knox would be asked to explain at length the present status of the national defense program, according to Senator Walsh's proposal.

Senator Byrd charged that although aerial power has become a "deciding factor" in modern warfare, the United States possesses less than 1,000 combat planes. Of these, he added, only 500 are less than two years old.

He said that during May, President Roosevelt gave the country assurances that the United States would have 50,000 planes.

"I am disturbed and astonished that more than 100 days after this assurance was given, the army, navy and Marine Corps combined have ordered only 343 planes, none of which are to be delivered during the current calendar year," he said. "Some of these planes will not even be delivered until 1942. These figures are official."

Japanese Exhibit Art Wares At Canadian Pacific Show

VANCOUVER, Aug. 27—An exhibition of Japanese cloisonne, porcelain and cut glass wares, presented by the Nippon Industrial Arts Federation, attracted a great deal of attention among thousands who attended the opening ceremonies of the Canadian Pacific Exhibition yesterday.

The Japanese exhibit is sponsored by the newly-organized Nikka Trade Association, of Vancouver.

Narvik Rehabilitation Said Making Progress

Domei Tsushin

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27—The strategic Norwegian harbor of Narvik for which British and German naval and land forces fought bitterly in the Battle of Norway, is rapidly returning to normal, with the population increasing in the past three weeks from 3,000 to 6,000 persons, or approximately the size of the population before the struggle for its possession, the Stockholms Tidningen reports.

The clearing of debris from the harbor and town is said to be making rapid progress. Battered houses are being patched up and made livable and, food and material supplies are reported to be arriving in Norvik in enormous quantities from Sweden and southern Norway. Normal shipping operations are said to have been resumed along the entire Norwegian coast.

German Writer Watches Aerial Battle Over Channel; Says One Group Bags Nine Ships

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 29—A dramatic air battle between German and British planes over the Channel was witnessed by a special correspondent, Wolf Meyer Christian.

He relates: "We are sitting on a cliff near the Channel coast looking across the greyish greenish sea, from where Britain's coast becomes visible in the distant mist. With binoculars one was even able to make out the wireless masts of Dover, eight in number.

"High up, above the clouds, the roaring of innumerable engines is to be heard. Heavy German bombing formations are on their way towards England. Our attention is diverted from tiny German patrol boats, which are swaying gently on the slight swells to the North, where a white streak is to be seen on the water. A German motor torpedo-boat flotilla on advance. In view of the British coast German naval units move to the South, unhindered by the giants of the British battlefleet and the Royal Air Force.

BATTLE STARTS

"Over the clouds the battle of the air has started. We cannot see anything, but judging from the sunder of the engines we know that an engagement on large scale is under way betwen the fighting units of the German and the British forces. One can hear distinctly how they are steeply curving and circling firing from time to time incessantly from guns and machineguns. Suddenly a streak descends from the clouds. The cocarde is to be seen on the crashing plane.

"A giant fountain rises, when the British plane crushes into the water not far from the motor torpedo-boats. Now a Messerschmidt comes down with terrific speed. It is the machine, which has chased the British plane succeeding in shooting it down. Just above the water the pilot catches his plane, taking inland direction. Now another speck descends from the clouds and I can make out a trail of smoke. The burning plane descends steeply. It is a German plane and the left engine is on fire, a long flame reaching up to the rudder. About 300 meters over the water the pilot catches his plane and flies straight towards the coast.

"Suddenly a speck drops down from the plane and now another and a third one. Parachutes spread but where is the fourth one? The burning Dornier flies calmly over the land spouting flames and smoke. The pilot still controls the machine. Then the fourth parachute spreads. The pilot had spared his comrades jumping off far over the Channel. The "Do 17" immediately turns into a flat spin and crashes on the ground followed by a big explosion.

TORPEDO BOATS ACTIVE

"The motor torpedo boat flotilla in the meantime has stopped coming to the rescue of the men on the water, while a Sea emergency plane sets off for the help of another man, who had descended further away on the sea. The battle of fighters is continuing above. A part of the planes now fights below the clouds. Another British plane descends. The pilot catches it and flies towards the French coast. A trail of smoke spouts from the plane. The pilot bales out and shortly afterwards the plane crashes behind some hills, where column of smoke marks the spot of the crash.

"The motor torpedo boats have resumed their cruise and we drive to the place, where the Dornier plane crashed. A part of the corn field is on fire. Labor service and anti-aircraft artillery men are clearing up the spot. The plane shows a large number of hits and that the pilot despite of this damage could still bring the burning plane over from England is a proof of the good quality of the plane. In another field we find the remainder of a British Spitfire.

"The pilot, a lieutenent, is slightly wounded and has been taken prisoner by antiaircraft artillery men and is now under medical care. We go to the commander's place. The last Messerschmidt machines, which had pursued the British far into their country, have returned. No one is missing. The first report is received. One group alone reports, 'nine British fighters shot down'. The communique of the armed forces on this day can report 51 British planes brought down."

LEIPZIG FAIR SHOWS POWER

Demonstrates Stability Of German Economic Structure, Says D.N.B.

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 28—The Swiss newspaper "Tribune de Geneve" in a comment on the Leipzig Fair stated that in Germany the war has just the opposite effect on business life as in other countries, where the business is killed. Today Germany's position is stronger than ever before. Meanwhile the new economic order in Europe is a well established fact, being illustrated at the Leipzig Fair. Business was extremely active on the first two days of the Fair. Great interest was displayed in the exhibits of the textile department.

ARTIFICIAL SILK

A survey reveals the fact that Zellwolle and artificial silk assume a prominent position in this field. Artificial silk production for tires is now widely used. The same is true with regard to Zellyute. In addition to the German exhibits of the Zellwolle and the artificial silk industries Italy is also represented in this field. At the exhibition of inventions, novelties for blackouts have attracted great interest.

New discoveries give proof of the unabated development of the German industry in wartime. One firm, for example, by eliminating fat, has discovered a new washing process. Normally 160 kg. of soap can be obtained from 100 kg. of fat raw materials and this quantity of soap will wash 6,400 kg. of laundry. By means of the new process 300 kg. of washing solution can be obtained from the same quantity of fat and 34,000 kg. of laundry can be washed with this amount.

FILMS IMPROVED

The use of color photography has also greatest interest. By means of a new process it is possible to make paper copies from colored film and these copies can be produced in all sizes. In the field of synthetic materials greatest progress has been made. P.C. fibre has been developed in many ways, so, for instance, brushes are made of P.C. fibre, which are in many ways better than those made of natural animal bristles. In addition to these new P.C. bristles there are Perluran bristles, which are well suitable for mechanical purposes. The material, both kinds of bristles are made from, can be used for the manufacture of wire. This, on the other hand, is of greatest importance for the chemical industry as steel wire can only be used here for a short time.—The glass and the porcelain industry is well represented on the Leipzig Fair. A special kind of glass eliminates the blending of the sunrays and it is manufactured from Neodyt.

WEARING DOWN NERVES OF LONDON THOUGHT MAIN AIM OF RAIDERS

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Military experts here believed that the alteration of the Nazi aerial tactics against Britain from mass bombing raids to hit-and-run skirmishes has been adopted because big air squadrons are liable to become easy prey of R.A.F. fighters and also anti-aircraft guns involving disproportionately heavy losses.

These quarters estimate the Nazis are currently using about 3,000 planes, or a sixth of their total strength, for the incessant attacks on Britain.

The principal object of the raids is believed to envisage wearing down of British nerves by continuously interfering with the daily routine, and the Germans reputedly believe that several weeks of this mode of warfare will seriously menace the efficiency of Britain's war industries.

In order to prevent the morale of the Nazi air force from suffering, the German pilots reportedly carry sealed instructions individually routing them to scattered landing fields after taking part in the raids on Britain.

SLEEP NOW PROBLEM

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Aug. 27—Regular sleep is now one of the most pressing problems confronting Londoners.

As Nazi "nuisance raiders" continue to commute across the Channel with their loads of bombs, this form of war on civilians as already beginning to exact its toll today, if not extensively in lives and property, by disrupting the routine of daily life, thereby diminishing the efficiency of work and in mounting tempers.

The uncertainty of when the air raid warning will sound for the next time, coupled with discomfort of prolonged refuge in sultry shelters, has already produced its obvious effects on the populace while its results on the functioning of the Government, business and industry are likely to prove no less serious if the situation continues.

Yet the menace has not been without its sidelights and episodes of a lighter hue. During the longest air raids from Monday night to Tuesday morning, many theater and movie-goers were entertained for more than twice the length of ordinary programs. Several West End theaters put on extra shows to help relieve the tension. Numerous Londoners who went to dancehalls early in the evening found that they had to remain past 4 a.m. the next day wearily gyrating to the rhythm of haggard orchestras. In other parts of the darkened city, the strains of vigorous community singing were heard coming from underground cells.

The necessity of trying to get some sleep in bomb-proof shelters has brought an unexpected rush of department store buyers for cots and folding beds.

D.N.B. CONDEMNS REUTERS' FIGURES ON ENGLISH SHIPMENTS TO TURKEY

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 28—Reuter reported that the British Turkish trade had been extended and that Germany's share in the Turkish trade had declined in the first half of 1940, against which fact England's share has been increased.

Despite transportation difficulties through the Mediterranean Reuter asserts that England can supply Turkey with certain materials, which she formerly had to import from France. Reuter declares that Turkey wants steel, machines and railroad materials from Great Britain. London, however, overlooks the fact that the Turkish imports for the first six months of 1940 amounted to only 40.7 million Turkish pounds compared with 67.3 million Turkish pounds for the same period of 1939.

IMPORTS BEHIND

Even if England's share in the imports of Turkey increased from 6 per cent to 14 per cent this year these imports are far behind those of last year from the point of quantity. The percentage applies to a total Turkish import figure amounting to only one half of that of the previous year.

Moreover, higher prices must be taken into consideration. According to official Turkish figures the German share in the Turkish imports for the first six months of 1940 amounted to 16.1 per cent compared with the 13.3 per cent on behalf of England. England has not been able to replace the German share in the Turkish trade. The tremendous drop in Turkish imports and the lack of commodities show the importance of the lost German supplies.

SUPPLIES LIMITED

A few days ago London stated that the Berlin textile industry could not participate in the Smyrna Fair because of unfavorable shipping conditions. Turkey will also be disappointed if she expects steel machines and railroad materials from England now. England does not possess any of these goods for export. In this respect it is necessary to recall that the British Government ordered the registration of all machine tools in England in order to cover England's armament needs. England's supplies to Turkey therefore are out of question.

BRITAIN DISCARDS AIR ECONOMY; MAKING 10,000 PLANES A MONTH

R.A.F. Is Now Healthy, Centralized Organization Working With Army, Navy

By BRYDON TAVES

United Press

LONDON, Aug. 24—Great Britain has learned the costly lessons of the Great War and is approaching the climax of history's greatest aerial struggle with a tightly organized and modern air force.

Whereas in 1916 the nation was unable to meet an urgent call for 120 more fighting planes to reinforce the Royal Flying Corps in France, it is today attempting to meet the demands of air chiefs for 10,000 or more planes a month.

In her do-or-die effort to challenge Germany's air supremacy, an effort upon which may hinge the outcome of the Battle of Britain, the nation finally has discarded the economy which stunted the Royal Air Force's growth in the '20s and '30s.

R.A.F. NOW HEALTHY

The R.A.F. is now a healthy, centralized organization working in close cooperation with the Army and Navy. With its seven commands all under one control, it is the simplest of the three organizations.

Other branches of the British Commonwealth's air power include the Fleet Air Arm—aircraft and personel attached to naval vessels—which is responsible only to the Admiralty, four foreign air forces subordinate to the Air Staff and the independent Empire air forces.

The story of the R.A.F.'s birth, development and centralization goes back to an afternoon in late November, 1916, when Great Britain's war committee was studying anxiously a letter from the Great War commander of British forces in France.

The letter was from Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, and he was demanding immediate reinforcement of the Royal Flying Corps in France by 20 fighting squadrons, or 120 planes, to meet a German threat to Allied air supremacy.

The new German Albatross and Heinberstadt fighters were out-performing British planes. Adoption by Germany of a centralized system of control for her air force and new defenses fore-shadowed aerial warfare such as the world had never dreamed of. But the British Government was forced to tell Marshal Haig there was no possibility of meeting his request.

FACED SAME PROBLEM

Twenty-three years later, as German bombs blasted the semi-defenseless Allied armies out of Norway, Britain again faced the same fundamental problem of supply.

Preparing to repel any invasion, Britain's defense chiefs are now demanding, not 120 planes, but a steady stream of 10,000 or more planes a month—as many as the factories of Britain, Canada and the United States can squeeze into their production schedules.

When U. S. Secretary of Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., referred to the enormous cost involved in British plans to obtain 3,000 United States planes a month, over and above existing contracts, he cited an axiom which finally has been put into practice here—"when dealing with air power, throw all ideas of economy out of the window."

Centralization of command in air operations, and an organization capable of supervising experimentation, production and distribution of the most powerful fighting machines and of maintaining vast numbers constantly available are the all-important factors in aerial warfare, according to British air experts. And there have been suggestions that, had Britain's air chiefs had the ultimate power of decision in the R.A.F.'s peacetime policies, the battles for Norway and Flanders might have had a different outcome.

BORN IN 1918

Britain's modern air force was born April 1, 1918. Since the inception of the Royal Flying Corps in 1912, the nation's military and naval wings, originally intended to be mutually self-sufficient but under a central control, had drifted apart and become intent upon their own administrative and strategic problems, even to the extent of competing against each other for planes and equipment.

Marshal Haig's letter calling attention to the acute supply situation was instrumental in providing centralized Great War production control in the form of a second air board, but it was not until the following June that a second incident startled Britain into realization of the fact that centralized production was not in itself sufficient.

On June 13, 1917, mass formations of German Gothas, in a daylight raid, dropped four tons of bombs on London. In this foretaste of total warfare, for which Britain was entirely unprepared, 162 persons were killed and 432 were injured.

Only a central command, it became apparent, could enable the air force to provide adequate defense of industrial objectives at home, carry out reprisal raids on Germany and fulfill its major function as "the Army's long-range artillery."

In November, 1917, the air board was expanded into an Air Ministry authorized to effect amalgamation of the air services.

The R.A.F.'s organization is the simplest of the three branches of the armed services. It is divided into seven independent commands under an air chief marshal or air marshal, each of whom is directly responsible to the chief of the air staff, Air Chief Marshal Sir Cyril Newall.

SENIOR UNITS

Of the seven, the bomber and fighter commands are the senior units. The bomber command is responsible for controlling administration of all home bomber squadrons, forming the striking force of the metropolitan air force, and the fighter command is charged with defense of the home shores from all forms of hostile air attack. The latter works in close liaison with anti-aircraft, searchlight, balloon barrage and observation units.

The coastal command is responsible for reconnaissance over home waters in conjunction with the Admiralty. It operates in liaison with naval forces and the Fleet Air Arm, even to the extent of spotting for naval guns, as in the bombardment of Stavanger.

The pre-war training command, now divided into a technical training command and a flying training command, controls all flying armament schools and R.A.F. depots.

The maintenance command governs equipment depots, aircraft storage units, ammunition depots and repair depots.

The last, the balloon command, undertakes administration and training of all barrage crews.

In addition to these commands there are four foreign-based air forces in the Near East, Far East, Palestine and India, all of which operate independently, although responsible to the Air Chief Marshal.

At the outbreak of the present war the air force accompanying the British Expeditionary Force overseas was divided into two sections—the air component, attached to Viscount Gort's headquarters for Army cooperation and reconnaissance, and an advanced striking force, tantamount to a bomber command offshoot based in France.

With appointment of Air Vice-Marshal John Francis Barrett as commander-in-chief of the air forces in France, however, the two branches were united under a single command which, though it maintained close liaison with Army headquarters, was directly subordinate to the air staff at home.

The Empire air forces in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Kenya and Rhodesia are independent, although in event of their transfer to the United Kingdom they would come under administration of the air staff for operations.

ORDERS FROM ADMIRALTY

One branch of Britain's air power is not in the Air Ministry's jurisdiction. Although the R.A.F. resisted all attempts to restore a measure of dual military and naval control, the Fleet Air Arm constitutes an independent force taking orders from the Admiralty alone.

Air circles have explained that the fact that fleet aircraft are based on ships—aircraft carriers or cruisers from which they are catapaulted—made their operation entirely dependent upon maneuvers of their floating bases.

Thus, while the Fleet Air Arm command and the R.A.F. cooperate on technical matters as well as in conduct of military operations within the range of the R.A.F.'s shore bases, the former maintains its own regulations and individual uniforms.

Yokohama Yacht Club Swimming Pool Opened on Saturday

Yokohama Yacht Club's fine and large new swimming pool came into operation on Saturday and Sunday for the first time. These were gala days, with two exciting water polo games, the committee versus the rest of the club winning in each case. Of course they were helped by the ladies. Next Saturday there will be a tiffin party and presentation of a memento to John Laffin who is leaving Yokohama September 10. The event was to have been a dinner, but black-out difficulties advised the change.

After tiffin there will be the annual ladies' yacht race, polo afterwards. On Sunday afternoon the race for the Commodore's Cup against the Japanese Yacht Club will provide exciting sport.

1,200 German Citizens Active in Panama

United Press

PANAMA, Aug. 25—Police, who have been conducting an investigation of possible fifth column activity here, revealed yesterday that a total of 1,200 Germans and citizens of countries under German domination are living in Panama at present.

A previous investigation showed that most of them were registered in low type hotels, but since then all have moved to apartment and tenement houses where they are endeavoring to remain as inconspicuous as possible.

The Government of Panama is pushing the quiz with the cooperation of United States intelligence officers in the Canal Zone.

GERMANY SEES SOUTH AMERICA TRADE RETURN

Havana Plan Said Failure; Claim U.S. Trying to Help Along Impractical Lines

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 30—Latin America is looking forward to the end of the year in order to resume her trade relations with Europe. This fact has given the United States a great deal to think about. In Havana the problem of an American cartel was discussed in detail but this plan has been abandoned, according to an official United Press report.

Those who drew up the plan have apparently realized that it will be futile to try to cut the economic ties between Latin America and Europe. The failure of the Havana plan, however, has not had any effect on the paternal feeling of Uncle Sam towards Latin American affairs.

INSIST ON HELPING

Washington is going to help the Latin Americans regardless of whether they desire assistance or not. A new plan has been drawn up in great haste which "will place the Latin American economies on such a sound basis that the government of these countries will be in a position to resist attempts of political penetration which uses trade as an instrument."

The motives behind this formula are all the more mysterious in view of the fact that the attempts of the United States to purchase the production of surpluses of these countries are impracticable. On the other hand, plans are being discussed to raise the capital of the import and export bank to eliminate the transportation difficulties between North and Latin America and to build storage houses in Latin America which would make it possible for these countries to store their agricultural products until they can be disposed of in an "orderly way."

Transportation difficulties, however, between the various countries are purely imaginative. If they exist at all, they are expressed in the fact that too much shipping space is available. Large shipping lines like the Grace Line and the Pan-American Line whose ships ply between North and South American harbors have been operating on a loss for years because of shortage of freight.

FOOD UNLIKE GOLD

The piling up and storage of agricultural products even before the war led to the destruction of Argentine grain and Brazilian coffee because it was impossible to sell the goods. Agricultural products cannot be stored for years like gold in North America. Gold only loses its value but cotton, grain and coffee spoil completely.

It is only a new proof for the capitalistic way of thinking to turn the exchange of goods into a philosophical problem and to deprive one continent of the products of another one because of differences in the way of political meanings. Evidently, the creators of such plans would like to build with North American money storage houses in Latin America in which meat produced in the Democracies is stored until the totalitarian countries of Europe have been transformed into democracies.

Such catchwords may make impression in the United States but they will not be able to retard the process of political and economic healing in the remainder of the world.

Sportsman Killed in Hongkong Air Crash

United Press

HONGKONG, Aug. 25—George Herbert Fowler, 29-year-old sportsman and member of the volunteer air arm, was instantly killed yesterday when his airplane, a two-seater Moth Major, crashed in a roadway skirting Kaitak airdrome.

Mr. Fowler's co-pilot, Brian Maurice Hynes, 22 years of age, was slightly injured.

Mr. Fowler, who was born in Hongkong, had been acting senior assistant superintendent of mails since 1938. He visited Shanghai in 1939 with the Hongkong Rugby interport team.

British Navicert System Enforced in Philippines

Reuter

MANILA, Aug. 28—To facilitate neutral trade the British Government, through the British Consulate-General, has announced that the navicert system has been brought into force.

The Consulate explained that during the first World War the navicert system was introduced. The system, it was further explained, has been in operation in the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay since last December and has proved of value to exporters and shipping firms.

U.S. Industry Giving Complete Cooperation

United Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26—William Knudsen, chairman of the National Defense Advisory Commission, told the press here yesterday that American industry is cooperating "100 per cent" with the national rearmament program.

"We don't find anybody going back on us," Mr. Knudsen said here in the midst of an inspection tour of the huge aviation manufacturing establishments on the Pacific coast.

He disclosed that the Government is negotiating for the purchase of a number of Lockheed interceptor planes of a type reputed to be the fastest fighting craft in the world.

Asked how many heavily armed airplanes have been ordered by the United States, Mr. Knudsen said: "I don't think we ought to tell Hitler that."

GERMAN-RUSSO TRADE MOUNTS

Dr. Schnurre Says Heavy Increase of Shipments Realized in Past Year

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 29—One of the best authorities of the German-Russian trade relations, Dr. Schnurre, recently gave an interesting outline to the press on the economic relations between Germany and Russia.

Dr. Schnurre stated that, when the new German-Russian credit agreement was signed on August 19, 1939, the trade between the two countries was at a low level. The new credit agreement was the prerequisite for the change. The credit of 200 million marks, which had been granted by Germany to the Soviet Union for the purchase of goods from Germany, had an immediate effect on the trade relations.

The Soviet Union placed large orders in Germany for chemical products of all kinds. Russia had to supply Germany with raw materials, such as ores, oil, wood, cotton, phosphates, grain and fodder. Both the Russian and the German orders have increased since the outbreak of the war.

Dr. Schnurre writes that the signing of the German-Soviet trade pact on September 28, 1939, created an improvement of the trade relations. The necessary negotiations for the carrying out of this pact were concluded in February 11, 1940, when a new and more comprehensive agreement was signed.

Germany's supplies to Russia consist mainly of equipment for the oil industry, mining and chemical industry, iron and steel industries, of locomotives, steam boilers and electrical equipment. The shipments of Soviet materials to Germany were made promptly and are being continued.

One of the main reasons for the smooth functioning of this agreement may be traced to the fact that the problem of transportation has been solved in a satisfactory manner. Today grain, oil and other bulk goods are being shipped to Germany via the railway and via the Baltic.

SIMPLIFIED COTTON SPINNING SYSTEM PERFECTED BY GERMANS

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Aug. 29—The new Vistra fiber, displayed at the Leipzig Fair by the I.G. Farben, is the result of experiments conducted to simplify the process of cotton spinning.

They started experiments with this fiber as far back as 1928. Progress had been made in two directions. The I.G. developed the Vistra spinning bank, which could be used in the spinning of wool, silk and flax.

This process is based on the principle of separation of long fibers into fibers of various lengths. It was thus possible to eliminate the combing and to simplify the spinning process as well as to produce an excellant quality of yarn.

A special process was discovered for the cotton spinning, which made preparatory work superfluous. The so-called Vistra fiber is manufactured by this process. This process is interesting for the spinning at the present time, because today it is a question of attaining high production figures with limited labor, material, iron, power, illumination and area.

The advantages of this process are low spinning costs, less space and the possibility of manufacturing short or long fibers. High quality yarns can be turned out, which have a better glaze and greater strength.

N.E.I. INTERNMENT CAMP CLAIMED BEST IN WORLD

U.S. Correspondent Visits Germans Interned in Large Barracks at Ngawi

By B. SLUIMERS

United Press

BATAVIA, Aug. 28—Dutch authorities in this section of the far-flung empire have resisted all agitation by Netherlanders to reciprocate for alleged ill-treatment of Dutch civilians in the homeland by conquering Nazi Germany, and have succeeded in establishing model internment camps—possibly among the best in the world—this correspondent learned today.

Reports from the homeland of alleged atrocities against Dutch civilians failed to swerve the government from its announced course of following regulations laid down in The Hague Convention in 1929, regarding prisoners of war. The convention was designed to humanize war as far as possible for prisoners of war. Interned German civilians have received the benefit of these regulations regarding housing, food and medical treatment.

800 GATHERED

When German authorities in occupied-Amsterdam announced retaliatory measures would be taken against Dutch civilians for alleged mistreatment of Germans in the East Indies, authorities here readily granted correspondents an opportunity to visit one of the largest internment camps at Ngawi, where 800 Germans have been collected together, to see conditions for themselves.

This camp, an old fortress in the hills bordering the Solo river, is probably the most beautifully-situated camp of its kind in the world. Armed guards and barbed wire, however, grimly recalled the fact that Holland is still officially at war with Germany, although the homeland has been conquered.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sierevelt, a retired officer of the Netherlands Indies army, received us in his office and told of his experiences as commander of the camp. He showed little hatred for Germany, although many of his relatives are in occupied Holland. He pointed out that the rules of the camp are of a military character although lacking unnecessary hardship.

"If you want to see the interned men as they really are you had better visit them alone, and not with me," Sierevelt told us. "My position here is such that my presence always arouses some agitation in the rooms I visit. They are Germans, and not Netherlanders, English or Americans . . ."

NOTHING TO DO

The big doors of the old fortress, built about 100 years ago were opened and accompanied by a non-military official we walked into the camp. There we found ourselves among men of all ages, from 17 to 70, whose greatest burden was that their hands had nothing to do.

Hundreds of them take their morning walk over the platform around the big walls of the fortress. Approximately 100 meters long and over 30 meters wide, these walls provide the compulsory guests with an ideal promenade.

While many of the men enjoyed sports, including ball games and ping-pong, others draped themselves leisurely on the wall, looking at far-distant Lawoe Mountain, where many of them had spent happier days in the health resorts of Saragan, one of the most beautiful areas of this part of the world.

Worried about their families, their businesses and their home-land, it was strange that the interned Germans could seem as happy as they did. The interned men, however, showed none of the fear that correspondents here have noticed before when anti-Nazi Germans, released from Adolf Hitler's concentration camps in the Reich, sought new homes in the Far East.

We visited the rooms, which were simply but comfortably furnished. Mattresses on the floor, covered with mosquito nets, served as beds. Suitcases served as dressing-tables. On the wide verandas, long benches and tables had been built where the interned men played chess or cards or read books from the library. Everything was extraordinarily clean.

PREPARED OWN MEALS

The kitchen, however, held our attention, resembling as it did the mess kitchens in military barracks. The interned men prepared their own vegetables and potatoes for the cook. We ate part of the meal—and it greatly resembled food the Dutch army used to serve many of us who have had military training.

Each interned person receives 500 grams of rice daily, and stocks of butter, cheese and milk. There was plenty of coffee, tea, vegetables and fruit. There were no substitutes. The canteen was well supplied with all sorts of cigarettes and non-alcoholic drinks.

We visited the barber-shop, where a well-known painter was being shaved by Ngawi's Figaro, an interned German. An interned German served as doctor for the camp, apparently oblivious of the fact that he was a prisoner.

All of the interned seemed willing to talk. An old philologist, an Austrian, expressed his dislike of Hitlerism but there was no trace of bitterness over the fact he had been interned. Youngsters playing at leap-frog agreed that they did not feel "quite at home," but said that they had no real complaints. A young doctor told us of the excellent health conditions and how well the German prisoners liked the food.

Dutch authorities pointed out that internment of the Germans was a necessary precaution, in line with their intention to defend the country against any internal or external attack.

The experiences of Norway showed the Indies Government that steps had to be taken to guard against fifth columnists and sabotage. No risk was taken and within a few hours after Batavia was informed of the German invasion, all German subjects over 16 years of age were under arrest. Hundreds of Dutch Nazis were also interned later.

The promptness and smoothness of the action proved that the days between the invasion of Norway and of Holland had been put to good use here. No incident occurred, and police and military patrols merely covered these hundreds of islands—over an area of more than 1,900,000 square kilometers—to arrest thousands of Germans.

Internment camps were erected in several parts of the country, the most important being at Onrust, a small island near Batavia, and at Ngawi, in the eastern part of Java.

The housing problem at Onrust was solved by using the big quarantine station there. At Ngawi, the old fortress protecting the fertile Solo river valley, was used.

These measures guarded internal security, while the small but well trained army, a relatively strong air force, and a small but efficient fleet of cruisers, destroyers and submarines were in readiness for use against any attack from the outside.

European Nations To Hold Parley In Swedish Capital

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 2—A conference of various countries will be held in Stockholm during the first two weeks in September in order to discuss the production and distribution of wood and wood products according to a report from the Swedish telegraph office.

The aim of the conference is to draw up measures for the organization of the market in such a way that production and distribution are to be extended as far as possible. The export countries Finland, Sweden and Norway want to find out, to what an extent they can count on the outlets of Germany Holland and Belgium and to what an extent they should reduce their felling of wood during the coming winter.

SASAZAKI WINS OSAKA BATTLE

Nippon Boxing Club's Game Soldier Boy Adds Another Victory to His Long String

OSAKA, Sept. 1—Soldier Sasazaki, the featherweight pride of the Nippon Boxing Club, won a decisive victory over Aisawa, the top ranking leather pusher of Kansai, in the ten-round main even at the Nishinomiya Ball Park Sunday, thus adding another win to his string of brilliant victories over top-notch fighters.

The fight was fast and furious with both veterans readily swapping punches, but Kanto's soldier boy, being the more seasoned, delivered punches of telling effects. Aisawa put up a game fight, and added to his popularity for his fine showing.

The eight-round semi-final was a slugging affair ending in Kushihashi's victory over Sakamoto. Other results were Ohtaka and Masuda fought a six-round draw; Ohhashi scored at T. K. O. over Tsuchihashi in the 4th; Oki and Ishida fought to a draw, and Nishida knocked out Matsumura in the 3rd.

Britain Won't Recognize Red Cross Vessels

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Aug. 31—Acknowledging receipt of the German note presented through the Swiss Government, regarding Germany's intention to employ 64 Red Cross ships to rescue aviators who have fallen into the sea, the Admiralty today announces that while the British Government is willing to accord hospital ships all reasonable immunities under Red Cross conventions, it cannot admit the right of a belligerent government to employ hospital vessels calculated to assist naval operations.

The statement points that the Germans frequently have attacked British vessels when rescuing airmen and recalls repeated and flagrant attacks on British hospital ships, including the actual sinking of three such vessels, namely the Maid of Kent, Brighton and Paris.

In view of such circumstances, the British Government, the Admiralty says, is not unjustified in admitting German pretension with respect to these so-called Red Cross vessels, whose character and functions are open to gravest suspicion.

Britain Said Seeking Loan via Canada

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 2—The Manchester Guardian published a report from Ottawa to the effect that the "cash and carry" system cannot be continued for British purchases in America.

The paper heartily endorses the meeting between America and Canada and hopes that England may be able to avoid the American laws by this way. These remarks show that the British reserves in America have been used up to such an extent that England has to look for new ways to finance her war material purchases.

England also admits that she is going to apply for loans via Canada since the American public is opposed to direct loans to England in view of England's unpaid World War debts.

REICH WAR STATISTICS REVEAL SUCCESS

3,500 Air Attacks Made During First War Year

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 2—A brilliant picture of modern warfare is shown by a compilation of the successes and losses of the German air force during the first war year. Thus German bombers on roughly 220 days made 3,500 attacks dropping almost 5,000,000 bombs weighing over 75,000 tons.

More than 500 warvessels and merchantmen, totaling more than 2,000,000 tons, were sunk by German bombing planes, while almost 700 war and merchant vessels with 3,500,000 tons were damaged.

During the first war year Germany lost 1,050 planes in aerial combat or by anti-aircraft fire. The enemy lost in aerial combats alone 3,100 airplanes while 3,850 enemy airplanes were destroyed either by German anti-aircraft artillery or on the ground so that Germany's enemies in this war so far lost a total of almost 7,000 planes.

In addition, German pursuit and fighting planes shot down over the British Isles 155 barrage balloons. German anti-aircraft artillery destroyed 400 enemy armored cars and tanks, sunk ten war and merchant vessels and inflicted serious damage to 30 more vessels.

Two German pursuit air squadrons shot down each over 300 enemy planes. Ten pilots of German reconnaissance planes in the first war-year each had flown over one million kilometers over enemy territory.

Nanking Finance Minister Confers with General Tada

Domei Tsushin

PEKING, Sept. 2—Chou Fo-hai, Minister of Finance of the Nanking Government, at noon today called on Lt.-General Hayao Tada, supreme commander of the Japanese forces in North China and had talks on various topics.

Passing the night here, Chou Fo-hai this morning made a series of courtesy visits to Japanese Army and Navy authorities as well as the local authorities of the Foreign Office.

He saw Yu Chin-ho, Mayor of Peking; Chi Hsieh-yuan, tupan of the Peace Preservation Board; Wang Shih-huan, tupan of the Financial Affairs Board; Yin Tung, tupan of the Construction Board, and Chu Shen, former director of the Administrative Board of the North China Political Affairs Commission.

U.S. Defense Critics Assailed by Knox

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—The Secretary of the Navy, Colonel Frank Knox, today scored "unintelligent criticism" of the Administration's national defense program and announced that the navy has on order 2,541 planes as of August 15.

Of these, Colonel Knox said, 1,031 are combat planes, 1,489 are trainers and 21 are miscellaneous types.

He branded the singling out of the predominance of training craft as "unintelligent criticism" and said the trainers must be ordered first so "we can have pilots to fly combat craft."

Italian Mining Output Shows Amazing Gain

D.N.B.

ROME, Sept. 2—That the endeavors of the Italian industry to make Italy independant of imports of foreign raw materials have resulted in a large increase of the production of the Italian mining industry, which is evident from the production figures for the first seven months of 1940, published by Italian papers. According to these figures the Italian vituminous coal production of the first seven months of the present year amounted to 1,009,200 tons as compared with 532,600 tons the corresponding period of 1939. The iron production rose from 493,200 tons to 650,000 tons, mercury production 103,500 to 147,900 tons, pyrite production from 561,400 tons to 604,200 tons.

The coal production in the districts of Arsa and Sulcis rose from 1,040,300 tons to 1,210,500 tons. The vituminous coal production was increased by 89 per cent anthracite production by 64, quick-silver production by 43 and the production of iron by 32.

QUEZON FIGHTING

of the President's Nacionalista party.

President Quezon first announced his thesis at the University of the Philippines—and within a few days found himself embroiled, through his political followers, in a bitter fight with professors and many students at the university who openly took issue with Don Manuel's ideas.

PARTIES ARE ESSENTIAL

Dr. Bernabe Africa, professor of political science, publicly declared that he believed political parties were essential in a democracy. And the students, through such mediums as the campus paper, expressed their suspicions as to the "worth and purity" of the "new" democracy.

Promptly one of President Quezon's followers, Assemblyman Guillermo Villanueva of Oriental Negros, suggested that perhaps it would be wise to curtail some of the university's academic freedom. The assemblyman was reported to have said that he would ask the institution's board of regents, of which he is a member, to lay down a policy regarding the freedom of the faculty in expressing opinions on live political issues.

Some quarters opined that the assemblyman was merely waving a club to force some of the academic dissenters into submission or silence. The opposition then bitterly attacked the actual threat to academic liberty for expressing sincerely-felt political opinions.

A former editor of the campus newspaper joined the fracas, asserting, "Dr. Africa was well within his rights as a citizen and professor of the University of the Philippines in expressing his candid opinion on President Quezon's speech. It would be surprising indeed if he did not express his opinion. It would have been, in fact, a dereliction of his duty.

"The question now is whether President Quezon believes in the theory of democracy but is afraid of its practice," he said. "The question is whether the individual is more important than the state, and whether or not Mr. Quezon is the state.

"If the state is more important than the individual, if Mr. Quezon is the state, then Dr. Africa or any other professor daring to express opinions on the problems of our body politic should be muzzled, should be put in concentration camps, should be suspected to the most cruel persecutions—as has been done in Germany and Russia."

STUDENTS INARTICULATE

Many students, less articulate but none the less indignant, also added their voices to the protests. One campus leader declared that the political science professor's statement "was not an unlicensed expression of opinion. It was healthy exercise of his rights. He lived up to his convictions and to the principles he advocates in his class."

Meanwhile, Dr. Bienvenido M. Gonzalez, president of the university, and other officials of the university, kept silent on the controversy, leaving it to rage by itself, and perhaps to die down.

The American High Commissioner, Francis B. Sayre again refused to comment directly on the issues, but asserted that "academic freedom is one of the great strongholds of democracy." A short time previous, Mr. Sayre had stated that "true democracy" needs more than one party to protect minorities and to stimulate more constructive legislation on the part of the majority party. Neither statement was made as a direct comment on the Philippines political issues, but political observers detected more than ordinary criticism of the Quezon political program.

BLOCKADE COSTS

counted for more than $500,000,000 of that amount.

Presumably this normal trade with Britain will not be most, and will, in fact, ultimately increase vastly, should the war continue, because of war orders, especially for airplanes.

American ships now may touch in Europe only in Spain and Portugal, and under the blockade restrictions, henceforth will be required to have navicerts, certificates issued by British authorities at the point of departure, even to visit those countries.

President Roosevelt indicated, however, that the United States would seek to keep its last means of commercial intercourse with Europe open as long as possible.

Britain apparently plans to use the same system of "rationing" imports of neutral countries adjacent of the Axis Powers as was used against Germany and her Allies in the World War. At that time, no imports beyond normal pre-war amounts were allowed.

THE CHOICE OF THE MULTITUDE

ISAGAWA LOSES CLOSE CONTEST TO KID KONGO

Motochi Sauda, Ryushin Boku Take Decisions in Other 8 Round Bouts at Hibiya Hall

Kid Kongo, Motochi Sauda and Ryushin Boku were awarded decisions in the eight-round features of the boxing card held Tuesday evening at the Hibiya Public Hall.

A capacity crowd sat through the three hours boxing card for which proceeds will be turned over to the families of boxers killed in the China front.

KONGO LOOKS GOOD

In a nip and tuck affair, Kid Kongo, 108, by showing up strongly toward the latter part of the bout, took the measure of swinging Saburo Isagawa, 115. Although Kongo made a nice comeback the decision of the judges was none too popular with the fans as Isagawa was a "slugging fool" who could not be stopped for a second.

Both fighters answered the bell for the opening round swinging. Isagawa quickly drove Kongo to a neutral corner were he proceeded to pepper him with punches to the head.

Kongo fought back with stinging jabs which held off Isagawa to a distance from where he attacked with long looping rights. It was clearly Isagawa's round.

LOTS OF SLUGGING

The second and third rounds were featured by some hefty toe to toe fighting in which Isagawa threw more punches but took the harder blows. In the fourth Kongo was making good use of his left which seemed to puzzle Isagawa to such an extent that he tried to box Kongo. This lost him the round.

The seventh round Isagawa threw caution to the wind and attacked with both hands swinging. Each fighter again resorted to close infighting in which Kongo seemed to have the edge. However, at the end of the round Kongo took to clinching.

In the last round Kongo threw fewer punches than Isagawa but again the left slowed Isagawa who was now back to his old system of throwing looping long lefts and rights.

SAUDA POPULAR

In the second eight-rounder Yoichiro Handa, 114 exhibited beautiful boxing technique and footwork plus some hard punches, but failed evidently to meet the judges approval for his defensive work and lost the decision, Although Hanada showed greater skill Motochi Sauda, 117, put up a better offensive battle. He spent most of the evening trying to catch up with bounding Hanada, who when caught still avoided damage by his slick rolling tactics. The crowd was for the chaser and seemed pleased when in the sixth, Hanada was stopped with two lefts followed with a right to the side of the head covered up by clinching.

BOKU-AOKI BOUT DULL

The last of the eight-rounders was a dull slow affair in which both Boku, 133, and Aoki, 125, were too cautious to throw punches. Throughout the bout neither appeared willing to cut loose with a punch. Only late in the sixth and seventh did Boku show enough offensive attack to be awarded the decision. The fight throughout brought the disapproval of the crowd.

The best bout among the five three-round preliminaries was one in which undersized N. Noh, 100 pounds, decisioned S. Misuzu, 112 pounds. Noh, standing only to the shoulders of his opponent, methodically cut down Misuzu with a hammering body attack. In the second round a right hook to the solar plexus doubled up Misuzu but the bell saved him from further damage.

Although Misuzu tried furiously to keep Noh at a distance with long looping swings, the little fellow, throwing punches from a crouch, scored heavily with his body attack. The decision pleased the fans as much as it did little Noh.

The results of the preliminaries follows:

A. Inouye, 105, decisioned T. Sakai, 105.

S. Matsuo, 112, decisioned H. Masuda, 110.

K. Ohba, 118, decisioned T. Watanabe, 118.

Miyejima, 105, decisioned Takahashi, 105.

U.S. CHAMPS

Anti-Jewish Organization Of French Youths Formed

United Press

PARIS (By Courier to Berlin), Aug. 29—An anti-Jewish, anti-Masonic young front organization of French youths dedicated to "making all young Frenchmen strong, firm and disciplined," was publicly inaugurated here yesterday.

The inauguration ceremony was carried out amid a colorful display of banners and flags, including American flags.

Speaking in front of the organization's headquarters on the Champs Elysee, the youthful Fuehrer Robert Hersant said he was directing a fight against Jews and Free Masons "and all who wrote, spoke or incited the French people to war." He said the group planned a broad program of physical and military training.

HAWAII AMATEUR BOXERS COMING HERE FOR BOUTS

Two Nisei, One a National Champion, on Team Arriving On Asama Maru September 20

The Japan Amateur Boxing Federation has announced that a team of amateur boxers from Hawaii has accepted an invitation to participate in four matches here in Japan.

The Hawaiian team is scheduled to leave Honolulu September 11, on the Asama Maru and will arrive in Yokohama September 20. The first match is to be held in Tokyo September 28, followed by matches in Osaka and Nagoya.

SIX FIGHTERS

The personnel of the team as released by the Hawaii Amateur Athletic Union is as follows: Dado Marino, flyweight; Lucus Pasion, bantamweight; Yasushi Yasutake, featherweight; Paul Matsumoto, lightweight; Kenji Nobori, welterweight; Mamoru Hirota, alternate in the bantam and featherweights; Sam Ichinose, manager-coach.

Now that the stage is set for this Japan-America boxing matches, made possible only after approval was given by the International Boxing Federation, the National Amateur Athletic Union of America and finally the Hawaii A.A.U., a look into the events leading to the invitation is in order. Also the status of amateur boxing in Hawaii.

Last fall the Japan Amateur Boxing Federation invited a team from San Jose State College, California. The showing of the collegians was a big disappointment to the Federation as well as the fans.

The fact that the Californians were strictly defensive fighters, instead of aggressive punchers, made the bouts very dull affairs.

HAWAII NOTED

So this year the J.A.B.F. was out to invite a team with color, a team having members with reputations. With that view in mind the Federation set to work to cover outstanding amateur teams. In this work the Federation was greatly aided by Mr. Shimoda of the Yomiuri Shinbun, considered the outstanding boxing authority in Japan.

Aside from the fact that athletic teams in Hawaii always are above the "run-of-the-mill", the Hawaii A A U boxing team this year at the National A.A.U. Boxing Championships in Boston startled sports circles with their dazzling performance. They captured two championships and four boxers reached the semi-finals.

WON TWO TITLES

The two who battled their way to championships were Paul Matsumoto and John Manero, respectively in the lightweight and flyweight divisions.

Such record left no doubt that the boys from the Islands were top-notch amateurs who were able to survive terrific competition at the Nationals to emerge champions and near champions of all America.

No less a famed ringside observer then Bob Edgren Jr. writing in the Ringside magazine sings the praise of the athletic program of the Hawaiian island. The gist of Edgren's article being that, the great sugar and pineapple plantations throughout Hawaii, through their extensive athletic activities, have made it possible to develop fine athletes. He continues such is especially true in boxing as can be witnessed by the success of the Hawaiian boxing team with its Matsumoto and Manero, national titleholders, both of whom received their early training via the plantation boxing program.

MATSUMOTO FAVORITE

Returning to the personnel of the coming team, of great interest will be the showing of the Nisei boys. Of course, the aforementioned Paul Matsumoto will hold the spotlight. His career as a amateur boxer is an interesting one.

Until this year Matsumoto was just another good fighter among scores of others in Hawaii. In fact in the make-up of the Hawaii A.A.U. team this year, he was taken merely as an alternate. Of course his subsequent performance at Boston was one of the big surprises of the American sporting world.

Of the other members, Yasushi Yasutake was a runner-up in the Nationals.

AMERICA'S BEST

Such will be the make-up of the visiting team. Amateurs who have battered down the best of their weights in America and who have had the benefits of a well organized plantation athletic associations.

Even so, if strict adherence to training rules, tremendous fighting spirit and thorough study of technique produce great fighters, then the Japanese boys here will stand a fine chance against the Hawaiian boys. Even a victory for the Japanese will not be too much of a surprise.

At any rate the coming matches should produce some thrilling fights and the fans certainly will be in suspense when the Nisei members square-off against their Japanese opponents.

Byron Nelson Wins U.S. Pro Golfers' Association Championship

Domei Tsushin

HERSHEY, Pennsylvania, Sept. 2—Unleashing a blistering pace over the last three holes, Byron Nelson, winner of the 1939 National Open Golf Championship, yesterday defeated Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, Virginia, one up, in the finals of the Professional Golfers' Association championships.

Nelson, who was one down going into the 34th hole, won two straight holes with birdies and clinched the match with a par on the 36th. Snead lost the 34th hole when his putt, which would have halved the hole, bounced from the cup, thus eliminating all chances of extending the match. He also missed a seven-foot putt for a birdie on the 35th. Nelson finished the last nine holes in 34 strokes, three under par.

GIANTS ADVANCE

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—The New York Giants advanced into a third place tie with the St Louis Cards today by defeating the Cards on their home lot in St. Louis.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox meanwhile edged out Boston 3 to 2 with Bill Dietrich, Giants' pitcher, taking all the honors. Dietrich not only held the Red Sox to five hits, but drove in two of his team's three runs and scored the third one himself.

All other games in the American League were rained out again today, promising economical baseball fans a heavy fare of double-headers for the late season.

The Pittsburgh Pirates took both ends of a double-header from Philadelphia, shutting out the Phillies 5 to 0 in the opener and winning the nightcap 5 to 2. Van Robays, Pirate rookie, starred in the nightcap by collecting a homer and a double to drive in four runs.

The Boston Bees defeated the Chicago Cubs 8 to 3, driving three Chicago twirlers to the showers with fifteen hits.

YANKS WIN AGAIN

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—New York and Chicago supplied the nation's baseball fans with their only fare today in both the American and National Leagues. Rain caused the postponement of all other games in both leagues except for a St. Louis Cardinals-Boston Bees game scheduled for tonight. The Cards won this game 4 to 3.

Babe Dahlgren won the game for the Yankees by lining out a single, with bases loaded and two outs, in the second extra inning.

The Chicago Cubs meanwhile turned back the New York Giants by a count of 3 to 1. The Giants' defeat dropped them into fourth place in the National League standings, breaking their tie with the St. Louis Cards for third place.

BRITISH FLEET SAID STILL MASTER OF SEA

'Britain Going Through Revolution, People Hope New Empire Will Rise'

By KOZO KAIDO

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Sept. 3—A year ago today Great Britain declared war on Nazi Germany. She did so reluctantly but inevitably, knowing well—although no doubt not completely—the state of German preparedness and the preparedness of her own forces.

In that year, Europe has seen changes perhaps more spectacular than in any other single year in its history. Victory after victory has fallen to the Nazi armies, each more dazzling than the last, culminating in the destruction, within the space of six weeks, of an army believed for 20 years to be the most formidable in the world.

GERMAN'S IRRESISTIBLE

It was only natural that Europe should conclude that German arms were irresistible; and to a superficial observer it must have seemed not merely surprising but completely inexplicable that on the shores of the English Channel, Hitler's onslaught should suddenly take on a new phase.

But to the British student of events who was not dazzled by the brilliance of the German victories and had perceived the deeper forces working, this sudden faltering did not come as a surprise. Indeed, it only confirmed his judgment of events as he sees them. From the beginning he had seen that the German blitzkrieg technique was essentially a technique of land warfare; that on the day he reached the Channel, Hitler would be confronted with a new element in which his opponent was vastly superior—seapower. From that day onwards the war must enter a new phase—the struggle between landpower and seapower in which time would be on the side of the masters of the sea.

For, as in the Napoleonic wars and as in 1914, so in 1939 all the initial advantage lay with the great aggressive landpower of continental Europe. The Nazis' strength lay in the years of careful preparation both in war and in propaganda; in the possession of interior lines and the accompanying advantage of the weapon of surprise; and, last but not least, in the devastating speed and destruction of modern land invasion. In contrast, the Allies suffered from every initial disadvantage. They were unprepared both morally and materially. Their governments were not united until it was too late and their forces were dispersed on exterior lines.

SHORT-TERM WEAKNESS

Yet, Britons point out that all of these were short-term weaknesses. Behind them, especially in the island center of the British Empire, lay great reserves of potential strength waiting to be mobilized. This strength was founded in the last resort upon two things: materially, upon seapower and the almost inexhaustible strength which goes with it, and, morally, upon the conviction of the British people that they are fighting a just war and that they stand for civilization against the German drive for subjugation.

These are the long-term advantages of the British Empire now fighting alone. And, now with the passage of a full year since Britain flung her forces into battle, Britons feel that these long-term forces which Hitler reckoned to forestall are coming into play. After a year of fighting of unprecedented dimensions, Britons are not only undefeated, but are warming up to the fight. In spite of the bomber and the U-boat, the British Fleet still rules the Seven Seas.

At the same time there is coming over the British people itself under the leadership of Winston Churchill a great change in ideas and outlook.

"Britain is not only fighting a war," wrote the Boston Herald recently. "She is going through a revolution. British thought is not confined to the military needs of the moment. It is able, with remarkable detachment, to appraise the nation's long-term needs and lay plans to meet them. They give hope that a new Britain will arise which in the practical application of democracy will outdistance the world."

It has been said by a prominent Englishman that "time is on our side—but only if we make use of it." This British revolution ensures that Britain is making the fullest use of it; that the forces which favor her arms are being turned to good account, not merely for self-defense, nor even for victory, but for the building of a stable peace in Europe when that victory has been won.

Germans Helping Many War Victims

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 3—The report of the National Socialist Welfare organization, which has just been published, gives an interesting survey of the activity of the organization for the French and Belgian refugees.

The report proves as false the British statements that German troops plundered areas after their occupation.

In 10 days from July 30, to August 10, approximately six million refugees were taken care of and from June 6, to the present date, a total of 23,357,971 people were assisted.

With the aid of the German army, the N.S.V. distributed eight million meals during the first 10 days of August. The total helped thus far is 36,668,000 people.

VICHY, Sept. 3—The atmosphere of occupied and unoccupied France is vastly different and an unseen barrier stands between the two regions.

Although trains, telephone and telegraph services have been functioning for privileged persons, postal communications have been suspended for the past four weeks. It is especially difficult for journalists to cross the demarcation line.

PAPERS BANNED

Papers appearing in one zone are not permitted in the other area. Frenchmen in the occupied zone know nothing of what is going on in the free area, and the people here, are equally ignorant of events in occupied France.

Paris without the Government and un-occupied France without Paris are like a body without a soul. The Vichy Government is now negotiating with the German authorities on the question of the Government's return to Paris. But as Premier Henri Petain said recently over the radio, there are technical reasons and certain "material" conditions proposed by the Nazis which cannot be easily accepted.

PSYCHOLOGY DIFFERS

The psychology of the French populations of the two zones is running markedly in different directions. With lack of free communications there exist antagonizing opinions in the two areas. The outcome may be disastrous for France.

For example, there are two different Paris-Soirs appearing daily, one in Paris and the other in Clermont Ferrand. Both are under different directors and the Paris-Soir in the old capital attacks the policies of the Vichy Government every day, as every other Parisian paper is doing.

There are other reasons why the two areas are psychologically different. The population of the free zone is composed of people who have not experienced the destructive effects of war or refugees who at one time totalled 10,000,000. Although half of that overwhelming number of refugees already has returned to their homes, the other half is still roaming the free zone awaiting final settlement of their problems.

GERMANS CONTROL

On the other hand, the population of the occupied zone is mostly made up of men and women who stayed on despite their misery. They disdain those who fled as cowards, although such an accusation perhaps is not wholly justified.

German authorities and soldiers everywhere in the occupied zone practically control every branch of life, in contrast to life in the free zone governed by French authorities.

'PHANTOM WAGON'

try was getting a foothold in France. Duvivier joined a studio, acting, then directing. The first picture he directed was a short comedy.

Quiet in manner, and rather retiring, Duvivier stands about six feet, has light hair and kindly gray eyes. He seldom raises his voice while directing, but issues instructions in almost a whisper. He is married to Olga Nochmowsky and they have one son, Christian.

He is one of the most widely read men in pictures, his knowledge of modern literature being enormous. Among his close friends are Jacques Feyder, noted French director who directed "The Kiss", last silent picture starring Garbo, and Maurice Chevalier, whom he has directed in France. His favorite sports are golf and riding. He has lived in London, Paris, and other European cities, and has hundreds of theatrical friends in all parts of Europe.

Hanson Urges Canadians To Retain Citizenship

Domei Tsushin

TORONTO, Sept. 2—Canadians were urged today by Richard B. Hanson, leader of the Opposition Party, to retain their British citizenship regardless of what plans might be made for the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

Speaking in Parliament, he expressed his fear that the Union Jack may be hauled down "for our time" if it should become necessary for the United States to defend Canada. If Canada is sheltered by the United States, he believed that Canadians might be tempted to give up their British citizenship.

GERMAN SCHEME IN SOUTHEAST EUROPE TOLD

Reich Plans Voluntary Economic Cooperation Of All Small Nations

D.N.B.

VIENNA, Sept. 3—The far-reaching German aims for an intensification of the economic life of southeastern European countries were outlined in a lecture by Dr. Max Ilgner, member of the board of directors of I. G. Farben, before the meeting of the Central European Economic Council here. Dr. Ilgner spoke in his capacity as vice-chairman of this organization.

He declared that contrary to the liberalistic conception of economics, which was particularly flourishing in England and which in the last analysis aimed at the exploitation of small nations, Germany is conducting an economic policy based on the voluntary cooperation of each partner granting everyone the greatest possible advantages.

WOULD SUFFER

"The industrialization of even the smallest nations is a characteristic sign of our times," he said. "If those experimenting small nations, however, are left to their own devices they certainly will suffer children's diseases and as a consequence would squander national property and hamper rather than aid their economic development. By a sound organic planning the pessimistic opinions of many exporters can be allayed who believe that by such a development of the agricultural countries their exports would decline in the long run.

"By the training of qualified workers and the development of the traffic and transport systems, which can only be planned for years ahead, all ill-developments can be prevented. Germany will place her experience in this field at the disposal of every small nation, and will thus accelerate a sound development."

CONFIDENCE NEEDED

Dr. Ilgner particularly stressed that confidence is a paramount prerequisite for cooperation. Thus also it will be avoided that any of the partners will have to relinquish their national interests. Dr. Ilgner further emphasized the necessity for increasing the buying power of the southeastern European countries, which as a result of lack of capital must first be developed in branches of production, where labor power is of first importance, while capital plays only a secondary role. The most important task, however, the speaker stressed, were the intensification of agriculture in these countries. No other country has so much natural capacity of acting as mediator as Germany has.

CULTURE SIMILAR

"The great advantage in this respect is the similar cultural development and mutual understanding on behalf of Germany. Germany's position in Europe is clearly defined. Germany, more than any other European country, is in the position to absorb without difficulty the agricultural surplus from southeastern European countries. Germany easily can increase the buying power of these countries being a prerequisite for increased exports of German industrial products to these countries."

Concluding Dr. Ilgner declared that Germany had the greatest interest in the wealth of the southeastern European countries, because Germany's aim,—the complementing of the economics in the European space,—can best and most rapidly be materialized, if all countries are enjoying prosperity and thus are able to buy from each other, consequently promoting their industries.

GERMANS SAY FUEL SUPPLY IS ABUNDANT

Discount World Press Claims That Reich Faces Shortage Of Gasoline; Say Britain Hit

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 3—"From time to time publications appear periodically in the world press claiming that Germany's gasoline and oil stocks not used up during the campaign in France, have been destroyed by British bombing raids and that a shortage of fuel is making itself felt in Germany.

"According to the reports of the high command of the German armed forces, whose veracity after the experiences of the past 12 months will not be doubted by anyone, it is an established fact that the Royal Air Force during its raids neither destroyed any gasoline stocks worth mentioning, nor did they curtail the exceedingly efficient production of synthetic gasoline in Germany. The using up of the German fuel stocks in the campaign in France, as was told by Reich Marshal Goering on July 29, 1940, in the interview with the American newspaperman Karl von Wiegand, was more than compensated by the amounts of gasoline and oil secured in Holland, Belgium and France and which amounted to double the quantity used by the German air force in all operations since May 10.

"Reich's Marshal Goering added that the German fuel stocks actually had not been touched but on the contrary had been increased by the amounts secured in the above mentioned three countries.

"It must also be taken into consideration that since Italy's entrance into the war Germany is getting practically the entire Rumanian oil production including 7 per cent of the Rumanian oil exports, which earlier had gone to England.

"The fuel supply of the German armed forces today is better secured than that of Great Britain, which is totally dependent on imports from overseas. By the latest German blockade measures and the well known successes of the German submarine weapon Britain's imports have considerably been cut."

YANKS STAGING SURPRISE HOME STRETCH DRIVE

Capture Double Header From Washington to Climb Near League Leading Cleveland 9

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—The New York Yankees won a double-header from the Washington Senators yesterday to drive within four and a half games of the Cleveland Indians, present leaders in the American League race.

The Indians meanwhile battled for their ranking position by defeating the Chicago White Sox 7 to 4 to make a clean sweep of the Cleveland-Chicago series.

The second place Detroit Tigers weakened, dropping an 8 to 2 decision to the St. Louis Browns.

REDS WIN TWO

In the National League all teams played doubleheaders. The league-leading Cincinnati Reds won both ends of a double-header with the Chicago Cubs, in each case by a slim one score margin.

Coming back strong after a brief slump, the Brooklyn Dodgers served notice that they were still in the pennant race by trouncing the New York Giants twice. The Dodgers took the opener 4 to 1 and tied up the nightcap 7 to 3. The double defeat dropped the Giants from fourth to fifth place in the National League standings.

Succeeding the Giants in fourth place were the Pittsburgh Pirates who defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 10 to 0 in the opener of their twin bill. The nightcap was called in the eleventh inning with the score tied at 5 to 5.

CLEVELAND'S LEAD SHAVED

United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—The Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees won double-headers today and threatened to oust the Cleveland Indians from the lead in the American League. The Indians were idle because rain forced postponement of a double-header scheduled with Philadelphia.

The Tigers narrowed the Indian lead to only two games by defeating the Washington Senators twice. Detroit took the first game by a narrow 3 to 2 decision. Schoolboy Rowe, who was on the mound for the Tigers, doubled in the eighth inning to score Dick Bartell with the winning run. Thereafter Rowe did not permit a Senator batter to reach first base.

The Yankees were less than three games behind the Tigers tonight after whipping the St. Louis Browns twice. The Yankees walked away with the opener by a score of 10 to 3 but were extended to thirteen innings to win the nightcap.

DIMAGGIO HOMERS

The finish of the nightcap was one of the most thrilling performances of the season. Joe DiMaggio, Yankee home run king, came in as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning with two out, two men on bases and the Yankees trailing 5 to 2. DiMaggio looked the first pitch over carefully and lined out a home run to tie the score.

In the opener, in which the Yankees collected eleven hits, the Yankees had their biggest inning in the fifth inning. Sixteen Yankee batters went to the plate in this inning to collect a double, six singles and five walks. One Washington error aided the rally during which bases were loaded nine times.

JAPAN'S INDUSTRIAL WORKERS PLAN GIGANTIC ATHLETIC MEET

Two million industrial workers belonging to the local Societies for Service to the State through Labor, will hold their own Olympic Games in May of next year.

This move among the industrial workers in Japan toward sports, according to the Asahi, was planned by the Labor Bureau of the Welfare Ministry to inject a healthy spirit into the sports world and giving a fresh atmosphere to the industrial workers at large whose importance as workers behind the firing line should never be overlooked.

The events for workers will be conducted mainly along the lines of mass games, to which other events will be added considering the local conditions and the kinds of the work of the workers.

The details of the projected games will be discussed fully next month by the physical training section to be established in the headquarters of the National Federation of the Societies for Service to the State through Labor.

The mass meeting has been tentatively set for May of next year. Regional meetings probably will be held in various localities prior to the national meeting, predicts the Asahi.

OFFICIALS ACT TO STAMP OUT SKIING EVILS

Winter Sports Enthusiasts Must Change Conduct, Ways In Keeping with The Times

Though the winter sports season is still several months away, Regulations are already being promulgated to see that skiers mend their ways and conduct themselves in keeping with the holiness of the mountains, says the Asahi.

In the past the behavior of some skiers, says the Asahi, has been unbearable, both around railway stations and at the skiing courses:

STAMP OUT EVILS

Members of the Japan Skiing Federation, the Mountaineering Association, the Young Men's Corps and Former Soldiers' Associations have agreed to "stamp out the evil tendency among the skiers."

They will attempt to eliminate the practice of skiers piling their equipment on seats of railway trains.

Authorities also will frown on the practice of skiers taking portable gramophones to the mountains. Some of the skiers are said to spend their time in resorts, dancing with young girls from cafes or houses, neglecting the skiing for which they came to the mountains.

LIST REGULATIONS

The following agreement is said to have been reached by authorities of the Railway Ministry and Physical Improvement Bureau:

1. At each of the railway stations from which many skiers are likely to entrain, will be stationed a few members of the Japan Skiing Federation and the Mountaineering Association, who are to hand the skiers slips saying: "Let's take care not to desecrate the holiness of the mountains in our enjoying skiing."

WILL OFFER ADVICE

2. All major skiing grounds will be watched by the members of the local young men's corps and reservists' associations who will give suitable bits of advice to those skiers who act disgracefully to their ostensible intention of enjoying the mountains. If these delinquents should not accept the advices, the local police will act.

The Asahi adds, that the authorities of the Welfare Ministry will soon impose a control on the variety of skiing outfits so that only those of simple make may be marketed. The new measure will be materialized on the establishment of a skiing equipment controlling company, which is expected to come into being soon under the sponsorship of the Government.

MCNUTT HINTED CABINET CHOICE OF ROOSEVELT

Campaign Trouble Shooter Believed Due for Major Post If New Dealer Wins

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3—The presence of Paul M. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, among the personages accompanying President Roosevelt on his inspection trip in Tennessee Valley renewed political speculation here yesterday as to Mr. McNutt's future, which most informed political quarters believed would be a Cabinet post if Mr. Roosevelt is reelected.

Since the Democratic Convention the former U. S. High Commissioner to the Philippines has remained quiet, except for a speech at the Connecticut State Democratic convention, in which he challenged the Republican Presidential candidate, Wendell Willkie to debate.

Mr. McNutt has agreed to act as "campaign trouble shooter" and his Tennessee trip is expected to include conferences on political strategy.

GOING TO INDIANA

It is believed certain that Mr. McNutt would campaign in Indiana where Mr. Willkie has a strong following. Mr. Roosevelt was also reported to be depending on Mr. McNutt to swing the American Legion vote, since numerous former Legion leaders have announced that they would support Mr. Willkie.

Although it has been rumored that Mr. McNutt is slated to become Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Postmaster-General, or Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. McNutt has maintained strict silence, but told friends that he preferred to remain in his present capacity as Federal Security Administrator, at least until after the campaign. Friends said Mr. McNutt would perfer to be made Secretary of War, Commerce or Navy in that order.

WALLACE STARTS CAMPAIGN

Domei Tsushin

CHICAGO, Sept. 3—The Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, Henry A. Wallace, starting a 2,000-mile, two-week campaign "scouting trip" yesterday, made a bid for the Negro vote by addressing the American Negro Exposition here.

Opening a five-day tour of Illinois, Mr. Wallace said one of the most effective ways to fight Nazi'ism and Fascism in America is to fight class, religious and race discrimination.

FRENCH THINK REICH WILL WIN AERIAL BATTLE

Superior Replacement Power Will Swing Campaign In Favor of Germany

By ISAMU INOUYE

Domei Tsushin

VICHY, Sept. 4—Superior replacement power of German aircraft plants is the factor that will swing the scale of the air campaign over the British Isles in favor of the Third Reich, the majority of French military experts believe.

Reviewing the tactics of Marshal Hermann Goering's air armada during the past few weeks, military experts here generally agree in dividing the German air campaign against Great Britain into three stages.

GAINS ENORMOUS

During the first stage, between August 8 and 18, they say, Nazi strategists sent clouds of black-crossed fighting planes to hammer away at British defenses in mass attacks. They found, however, that losses incurred were out of all proportion to the results gained.

Changing their strategy, they began a week of intensive night bombing, the first carried out by them during the current war, but that plan also failed to get any decisive results.

Today, the experts say, the Germans are combining the two tactics, dispatching formidable squadrons of Messerschmidts to batter away at the best that the R.A.F. has to offer by day, and continuing the pounding with heavy bombardments by night. Such tactics incur maximum sacrifices in order to gain decisive control of the air over the British Isles, and necessarily implies a rate of air production sufficiently high to replace the planes as rapidly as they are being destroyed.

The British Admiralty and Air Ministry claim that over 1,000 Nazi aircraft were brought down in three weeks of fighting. The German High Command, on the other hand, announces with equal positiveness that 1,386 British warplanes were destroyed by their aces during one month of fighting, the experts say. If both claims are accepted at their face value, losses in both camps are about equal. It follows, that the balance of air power must lie with the side best able to replace its losses.

At the best, they say, Britain's aircraft production can be held no better than that of Germany, which ranges in the neighborhood of 800 planes per month. Add to this another 300 planes sent monthly to Britain from U.S. plants, and it would seem that the task of smashing the R.A.F.'s air might can be successfully accomplished only by exhausting its manpower and destroying all its facilities.

800 PER MONTH

Pro-Nazi opinion gives British aircraft plants a productive capacity of 800 planes monthly, augmented by about 200 American aircraft. At this rate, granting the truth of German claims, R.A.F. is losing 300 planes per month, a loss which would soon make it impossible for the British air arm to continue is resistance.

To make the difference in the comparative strength of their air fleets more pronounced daily, German aircraft plants produce from 1,500 to 2,000 planes per month, according to the observers.

But the largest section of the French experts agree with the neutral opinion of the New York Times that the German air armada outnumbers the R.A.F. numerically two to one. Arbitrarily setting the air might of the two nations at 10,000 and 5,000 planes respectively, their monthly losses at 1,500 each and their wartime plane output at 2,000 and 1,500 respectively, the experts hold that the R.A.F. is remaining constant in numbers, while the German air force is adding 50 per cent to its numerical strength every year.

Should the British replacement capacity be estimated lower at 1,000 planes per month as many of them tend to do, the R.A.F., they say, should be completely smashed at the end of another year. The hypothesis is naturally based on the supposition that fighting will continue with the same intensity throughout, a supposition that is hardly justifiable.

CHURCHILL CLAIMED CAUGHT IN STORY

Recall Dunkirk Statement As Chetwoode Tells Losses

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 5—The British Field Marshal Sir Philip Chetwoode is the only Englishman who made an interesting statement on the anniversary of the British declaration of war.

He stated that England had lost 70,000 men in France. The former version, which had been issued by Churchill, stated that "through the victory at Dunkirk" the British expeditionary forces had returned to England "practically intact."

In any event 70,000 men make up the total peacetime strength of the army stationed on the British Isles.

It will also be recalled that Hore Belisha always stated that the elite of the British troops were in France. England's actual losses in this war will probably be published in the memoires of leading men.

After the World War, Churchill and Lloyd George surprised everyone with sensational revelations.

If we measure the difference between his figures on British losses in France and the figure stated by Churchill, we can form an idea of what the losses of the fleet and Royal Air Force must be like.

President Asks Upper House To Confirm Walker Appointment

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—President Roosevelt today asked the Senate to confirm the appointment of Frank C. Walker, New York attorney, as successor of Postmaster General James J. Farley, as Claude R. Wickard formally succeeded Henry A. Wallace as the new Secretary of Agriculture.

In keeping with the national defense program, the Navy Department, meanwhile, approved the establishment of seven new schools to train 4,000 radiomen and signalmen for the naval reserves.

ANGLO-AMERICAN TRADE SCORED; SAY SHIPS POOR

Reuter's News Agency Quoted As Calling Destroyers Old 'Merely for Formal Reasons'

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 5—Historians, who later describe the disruption of the British Empire, will have to differentiate between regions, which were lost as a result of military conquests, through revolts or revolutions and those having been given away.

They will be obliged to put the blame for this upon the incapacity of the military leaders, as well as upon the carelessness and the lack of responsibility of the political leaders. The disintegration of the British possessions in the Western Hemisphere which is now officially announced, is an historical process brought about equally by both factors.

The recklessness of the British statesmen permitted the British Empire to start a war, which went beyond the measure of its strength and thus robbed it of all prerequisites for further existence.

NAVY BLAMED

The failure of the leader of the navy was responsible for reducing the British navy to a state, which makes its further capacity for action after 12 months of warfare dependant on old type vessels of foreign Powers.

The embarassment, with which the deal is represented on both sides of the ocean and the variety of explanations given in England and the United States, reveal all that is necessary concerning its character. The British declare the amputation of important limbs of the Empire as an act of unselfishness.

Churchill speaks of a lease, of which the two parties refrain from mentioning the monetary and trade values of the districts in question. He expressly assures the world that no change of sovereignty has taken place.

The American naval department on the other hand calculates the value of the 50 destroyers given for the traded British possessions only at 85 million dollars, while President Roosevelt carefully avoiding the word "leased" speaks with evident pleasure of the receipt of a gift.

SHIPS OF NO VALUE

In American statements these destroyers in question are declared as being more or less old and unseaworthy vessels and with the words of Admiral Stark are of no more value for the defense of the United States.

Reuter maintains that these destroyers were called "old" merely for formal reasons, which by no means really mean that they are actually old.

Americans explain that the surrender of these war vessels is consistent with America's position as a non-combatant and does not represent any threat against another nation. Reuter, on the other hand states that by the cession of these American warships the U.S. navy now is also engaged in the protection of the trade routes of the North Atlantic. The fear that the American destroyers will probably not remain in British possession for very long is expressed in the statement, which was demanded from the British Ambassador in Washington, Lord Lothian regarding this agreement.

U.S. GETS MORTGAGE

The British Government, according to this statement guarantees in case British territorial waters should be surrendered to any other Power, not to sink nor to surrender the fleet but to transfer it to an overseas port. An American mortgage has thus been taken on each one of the destroyers. On the British part, also, an outlet was being made in this agreement, which, according to Churchill, has been concluded without long consideration.

The handling of special questions connected with the transfer of the bases is to be put into the hands of a commission of experts. Furthermore, the American Government is pledged to compensate British private owners. In this manner the British have secured for themselves the possibility of putting a brake on American demands for the districts promised to them as soon as the destroyers are in British possession. The destroyers are to be handed over immediately, while the British experts are going to handle the various questions arising from the lease of the territories only for some time afterward.

Arrest of Cot, La Chambre Ordered by French Court

SPANIARD REPORTS ON PRISON CAMPS

Says Germans Are Treating French In Humane Manner

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 3—A further proof of the German humanity may be seen in statements of French and British prisoners of war.

The Paris correspondent of the Spanish newspaper ABC visited prison camps in Germany and had the opportunity of convincing himself of the splendid treatment, which is being accorded to the prisoners of war.

The Spanish correspondent stated that the food was good and abundant. He declared that the plan of issuing a list of all prisoners of war had produced great satisfaction in France. The French people realize that the Germans have every understanding for the needs of soldier families, who have had no word from their relatives for months. A radical breakage with all methods of former times of the treatment of prisoners were the dismissal of those prisoners, who were urgently needed for agricultural or industrial works.

These dismissals are being made by German officials despite the fact that from a legal point of view the Reich is still in a state of war with France. It is only possible to measure the significance of such a humane attitude, if one recalls that the French and British detained German world war prisoners for a long time after peace had been concluded, merely out of a feeling of revenge.

POLISH FLIERS LAND IN REICH AIRFIELD

Surrender to Germans After Raiding Berlin

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 4—It is learned that one of the planes that took part in the raid of the British air force last night on Berlin did not veer off in Westerly direction after the raid, but continued to fly in Easterly direction. After encountering violent fire of German anti-aircraft batteries at Frankforton the Oder, the plane established radio contact with German authorities to the latter's greatest surprise and he asked that the airdrome of Okiece near Warsaw should be notified that the plane intended to land there and that all landing facilities should be carried out.

The plane then actually landed at Okiece. Shortly afterward it was found out that it belonged to the air squadron of general Sikorski of the "Polish army," and that members of its crew, former Polish army officers, had volunteered for the raid on Berlin.

The Polish airmen declared that they had come to the conviction that the struggle was hopeless and they furthermore declared that they were willing to give the German authorities any information desired, under the condition that they were given liberty. This assurance has been granted to them.

British Refugee Children On Way to Africa

Reuter

LONDON, Aug. 28—The first batch of children, numbering 315, to go to South Africa under the oversea reception scheme has sailed.

They came from Kent, Surrey, Middlesex, Yorkshire, Hampshire, Essex, Lancashire and London. Some boys are from districts which have been heavily bombed, and two of them had their shelter machine-gunned a week before their departure.

There are two sets of twins on board, and an uncle, aged 11, has his nephew, aged six, with him.

The destination of the children will be Capetown, Pretoria, Johannesburg, Durban and Bloemfontein.

CHINESE REDS

purchase of trucks necessary for the extension of the Northwest China route and improvement of the military preparations of the Eighth Route Army.

As for the railway construction, the dispatch says, it is proposed that work of a railway between Sian and Langchow be completed with part of the loan and that the railway be extended as far as Suchow.

Soviet terms for granting the loan to Chungking are reported to be: (1) Chungking's recognition of a special administrative area in Northwest China, (2) strengthening of the Government for hinterland areas in Northwest China, and (3) enlargement of the Eighth Route Army and execution of an October offensive against Japan.

CONFERENCE HELD

An important conference of Chinese military leaders apparently to study the Yunnan-Indo-China frontier defense problem in view of the tense situation in French Indo-China was convened at Chungking Wednesday night, with Chiang Kai-shek presiding, according to reports from Chungking, an Asahi Hongkong dispatch indicates.

Chiang Kai-shek who had been staying at Omei-shan returned to Chungking by plane Tuesday morning and together with Wang Chung-hui he granted an interview to Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard syndicate, it is reported.

LEADERS MEET

Then, on Wednesday night, General Chiang convened an important conferecne of military leaders including Ho Yin-chin, Feng Yu-hsiang, Hsiung Wu, Chang Chun and Wang Chung-hui possibly to study the Yunnan-Indo-China frontier defense problem in view of the prevailing tense situation in Indo-China, according to the Asahi dispatch.

This can be realized from the fact that Ho Yin-chin has returned to Chungking, specially to attend the conference, from Yunnan-Kwangsi areas where he had been inspecting army conditions, the dispatch says.

The Chungking military conference is reported to be still in session.

FRANK FRISCH, PITT MANAGER, IS SUSPENDED

Yanks Move Into Second Place Tie with Tigers; Cincinnati Holds Lead

United Press

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 3—Ford C. Frick, President of the National League, last night suspended Frankie Frisch, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, because of Frisch's argument with an umpire in the seventh inning of the Pirates-Cardinals nightcap Sunday.

The hotly contested game ended in the eleventh inning with the Pirates and Cards tied at 5-all. Pittsburgh's Sunday Blue Law prevented the game from being played to the finish.

YANKEES ADVANCE

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—The New York Yankees moved up into a second place tie with the Detroit Tigers in the American League standings today, trailing the league-leading Cleveland Indians by only 3½ games at sundown.

The Yankees split a twin bill with the Philadelphia Athletics while the Indians and Tigers were losing both ends of their doubleheaders against the St. Louis Browns and the Chicago White Sox.

The lowly Browns whipped the Indians 2 to 1 in the curtain raiser and turned on more steam in the nightcap to shut the Warriors out by a count of 3 to 0.

The Yankees made the most of seven hits in their opener against the Athletics to mark up a 6 to 3 victory. The Athletics took their revenge in the nightcap, however, by humbling the pennant aspirants 3 to 0. The hard hitting Yankees could collect only five hits off Babich.

Standings in the National League remained unchanged with the Cincinnati Reds maintaining a comfortable lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers who split a doubleheader with Boston.

Reuter

LONDON, Aug. 28—The Duke of Bedford, K.G., K.B.E, F.R.S. one of the four richest dukes and owner of several parts of London, died yesterday, at the age of 82.

He was appointed Aide-de-Camp to Lord Dufferin, Viceroy of India, from 1884 until 1888, and later to King Edward VII and King George V. In 1882, he served in Egypt and rejoined the Regular Army in 1914.

The Duke was a trustee of the British Museum, Lord-Lieutenant of Middlesex (1893-1926), chairman of the Bedfordshire County Council (1895-1928), President of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund and of the Zoological Society of London.

His heir is the Marquess of Tavistock, who is 52 years of age.

Riggs Will Meet Hunt in U.S. Net Semi-Finals

Domei Tsushin

FOREST HILLS, New York, Sept. 7—Bobby Riggs, 1939 national singles tennis champion and top-ranking amateur, and Joe Hunt, Annapolis midshipman, today fought their way to the semi-finals of the 58th annual national championships here on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club.

The victim of Rigg's quest for his second championship in as many years was Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, California, who yielded only after extending the match to four sets, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3 and 6-4. Hunt moved into to semi-finals by defeating Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, California, by a score of 6-4, 6-1 and 6-4.

In the quarter-finals of the women's singles, Miss Mary Hardwick, of England, upsetting Miss Pauline Betz, of Los Angeles, by a score of 5-7, 6-1 and 6-2, won the right to meet Miss Helen Jacobs, who qualified by defeating Miss Virginia Wolfenden, of Berkeley, 3-6, 6-4 and 6-1.

LORD WOOLTON SPEECH HIT

England Cannot Cover Even Territorial Needs, Declares German Agency

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 6—British Food Minister Lord Woolton delivered a speech recently on the occasion of the first anniversary of the war. Lord Woolton declared that England's food situation was sounder than a year ago. He stated that certain rationing measures had been necessary but that he was proud that these rationings were kept within limits. He said that England had made efforts to increase her stocks by making large purchases in the Empire and in neutral countries.

Lord Woolton, however, forgot to mention that these purchases have had no effect on England's supply situation. These supplies are largely stored in overseas countries and cannot be shipped to England. England's system of rationing, moreover, is an illustration for the social injustice in England.

A number of commodities, which have not been rationed, up until now, have risen in price to such an extent that they can only be purchased by the upper and wealthier classes. The new rationing measures, which mean a reduction in the rations of vital foodstuffs for the masses show that the statements of the British Minister Woolton are incorrect.

On the same line are the reports from Reuter according to which preliminary negotiations for the shipment of 300,000 tons of cast iron from British India to England. Furthermore, Reuter stated that the British Government had been informed that India could supply the steel needs of the British possessions in Eastern Africa and in the near Orient.

While London propagandists state that England can easily cover her steel and iron needs and can export, this report shows that England even no longer can cover the needs of her overseas territories and that she is forced to import from India in order to fill in the gaps. In view of England's lack of shipping space and in view of the German and Italian blockade it is a question as to whether these shipments will ever arrive in England.

FOREIGN PRESSMEN INVITED TO SEE BRITISH RAIDS RESULTS ON BERLIN

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 6—The general opinion of foreign press representatives participating again during the night from Wednesday to Thursday in automobile rides through Berlin upon invitation of the propaganda ministry was to what purpose the senseless British bombings in Berlin were serving.

Correspondents visited the places, where the British fliers had dropped several bombs within the city.

A special report was given about the impressions gained on this trip by Werner Kindt, who participated in this trip. "We drove to the Spandau suburbs and climbed on the roof of a factory of electrical plants, where the British explosive bomb had crashed through the roof and had made a hole in the concrete floor below, measuring about 2 meters in diameter and which had exploded on the top floor. Since this had been the only bomb during the entire alarm period lasting two hours, which had found its 'target' while another bomb had fallen into the Tiergarten killing accidentally one policeman and injuring another one, one is asking himself how this more than meager result of considerable efforts with machines and men can be justified.

"Also other damage done by bombs, which had been dropped over a Southeastern suburb, where private dwellings were slightly hit and a huge bomb crater in the sand of an uninhabited section, merely demonstrated the senselessness of those British air attacks on Berlin. This fact, which has been observed for several times by foreign correspondents during the last few nights, did not fail to make a deep impression on them and they, therefore, voiced their opinion that the British had no other purpose but to enable them to comfort their own population with the assurances of the British bombing effects on Berlin, while the great differences in the effectiveness of such bombings could not be controlled by the Londoners."

General Antonescu Out of Prison Cell

Domei Tsushin

BUCHAREST, Sept. 6—It was disclosed today that General Antonescu had stepped from a prison cell to the Premier's office. Until three days ago, he had been imprisoned at Bistrita, about 50 miles north of Chuj, without legal procedure.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS MOOTED AT VIENNA

Western Germany Connected With Black Sea, Russia

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 6—On the occasion of the Vienna fair the "Southeastern European Society for discussions of Southeastern problems" held a meeting in Vienna. The main topic of the discussions was the Danube traffic problem.

The waterways director of the German traffic ministry, Alois Ammer, stated that with the opening of the Rhine-Main-Danube canal the Western parts of Germany will be connected with the Black Sea and Russia. This canal will run straight through Central Europe.

After finishing the Oder-Danube canal there will be a connection from the Baltic to the Adriatic. Ships of 1,500 tons displacement will be able to travel from Vienna to the Mediterranean and then through the Suez Canal to the Persian Gulf.

The use of such ships also has the advantage of a uniform tariff on German ships and in German currency. These ships could also be used to carry passengers. Another task for the post war period will be the creation of a large harbor for Vienna as a link for traffic between the Reich and the Southeastern countries.

The first grain harbor is already under construction. The first basin is finished as well as the silos. The railway and highway networks will also be extended in order to take care of increased demands.

QUEZON BEGINS

discipline.

DANGER POINTED OUT

The credibility of another man, he added, is reduced by at least one-half whenever he speaks as a party man, and it is dangerous to have a public opinion formed by men blinded by prejudice in favor of their party and its selfish interests.

Mr. Quezon claimed that the only valid criticism of his theory was whether it would be practicable, whether it would be possible to run a democratic government without political parties, and how soon such a system could be realized in practice.

He asserted that the system is practiceable, citing as an example George Washington, who was elected first president of the United States and who governed at a time when political parties were non-existent in the United States.

Mr. Quezon pointed out that under Washington's administration, he had in the Cabinet two of the leading personalities of that time, Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, supporting entirely different political ideologies, "and yet the administration of Washington may be regarded as among the best the United States ever had."

The President did not, however, predict when he thought such a program could be instituted, pointing out that realization of the ideal would depend on political education.

American and Filipino political observers, commenting on the President's program, claim that Quezon is too much of a realist to believe that such a political system could work even in a democracy with hundreds of years of tradition and political education behind it. The Filipinos—still in their political infancy and with the people in the great majorty comparatively uneducated—would probably find it virtually an impossibility.

UTOPIAN IDEAL

The Utopian ideal, these observers also pointed out, is belied by Mr. Quezon's personal record as chief executive of the Philippines. For the greatest single criticism leveled at Mr. Quezon in the past few years has been his continued centralization of power in the hands of one man, himself.

The pending grant by the National Assembly of emergency powers provide ample ammunition for the charges. For in addition to the already enormous powers Mr. Quezon now enjoys, he will probably be given the right to suppress espionage and other subversive activities—with no definition of the word subversive—to draft labor for public projects or service, to take over farm lands, industrial establishments, and to control wages and profits, to regulate working hours for everybody, to arbitrarily distribute labor, to commandeer ships, to place under government operation any public service or enterprise, nature not specified, and to regulate prices and rents.

Already possessing the right to control Commonwealth finance through his powers to shift budgeted appropriations from any one department to another, and with his control over legislative matters nearly absolute because of his personal power over the Nacionalistas, the only political party in the Philippines worthy of the name, Mr. Quezon has, according to political observers, finally reached the pinnacle of complete power. Only the veto power of the President of the United States and the review of the U. S. Supreme Court now remain as a check-mate.

PERSONALITY STRESSED

Because of Don Manuel's increasing incorporation of power in his own hands, critics read more than the President probably meant in his statement: "It is not the party but personal leadership that gets things done in a government."

Even more significant, according to these observers, is that the President has made but little effort to outline the actual operations of the "new democracy," how public officials would be selected and how public opinion would be expressed, other than vague references to "education" and the "medium of the press and radio." His espousal of the new cause has been directed more at an attempt to destroy the old, with but little construction planning for what would replace the old political party system, these observers claim.

Some observers claim that President Quezon knows his personal power over the people and fears future rivals in the Nacionalista party. But other observers point out that this does not take into account the fact Mr. Quezon admits his program could not be pushed through within less than a generation.

The result has been complete confusion in the Philippines regarding what their future political system will be, old democratic, new democratic or totalitarian.

U.S. PRESIDENT TELLS NATION TO TOUGHEN UP

Roosevelt Urges Citizens To Harden Themselves Against Coming Danger

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press

NEWFOUND GAP, TENNESSEE, Sept. 3—President Roosevelt warned the United States here yesterday to toughen and harden itself to defend its way of life against the menace of history's greatest attack on free men and called for "absolute national unity for total defense."

The President said that Americans had grown "soft" in many ways and urged that the entire nation rally as one man behind the Administration's giant national defense program.

DEDICATES PARK

The President's appeal for total support of the national defense program was made during the dedication of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park "to the free people of America." The President's address constituted his explanation of the nation's huge defense program.

"We have grown soft in many ways," Mr. Roosevelt said. "If we want to survive, we cannot be soft in a world in which dangers are threatening Americans, dangers far more deadly than those the American frontiersmen had to face....

"There is, moreover, another enemy at home. That enemy is the mean, petty spirit which mocks at ideals and sneers at sacrifice and pretends that the American people can live by bread alone. If the spirit of God is not in us, we will not be prepared to give all that we have, and all that we are, to preserve Christian civilization in our own land. We shall go down to destruction.

"Our vital task of conservation is to preserve the freedom our forefathers won in this land, and the liberties which were proclaimed in our Constitution.

"But there is a second serious danger—danger from without. I hope, for example, that one hundred years from now the Great Smoky Mountain National Park will not be in the hands of some strange kind of government, a puppet regime subject to an overseas landlord.

"We know that in the process of preparing against this danger we shall not have to abandon, and we will not abandon, the great social improvements that have come to the American people in these later years. We need not exchange our gain of better living for the gain of better defense. I propose to retain the one and gain the other.

FOR U.S. PUBLIC

"Here in the Great Smoky Mountains, we meet today to dedicate these mountains, streams and forests to the service of the American people.

"The old frontier that put hard fiber into the American spirit, and long muscles in the American back, still lives and will continue to live in these untamed mountains to give future generations of Americans a sense of the land from which their forefathers hewed their homes.

"Today we no longer face the Indians or hard and lonely struggles with nature—and we have grown soft in many ways. If we want to survive, we cannot be soft in a world in which dangers are threatening Americans—dangers far more deadly than those the American frontiersmen had to face.

"The world has been so shrunk by the airplane and radio that Europe is closer to America today than was one side of these mountains to the other when the pioneers toiled through the primeval forest.

"Threats are as close to us today as was the threat to the frontiersmen when hostile Indians lurked on the other side of this gap.

"Therefore, to meet the threat and ward off these dangers, Congress and I are establishing by law the obligation inherent in our citizenship to serve our forces for defense through training of our people in many capacities.

"It is not in every case easy or pleasant to ask men of our nation to leave their homes, or for the women of our nation to give their men to the nation's service. But men and women of America have never held back even when it meant personal sacrifice on their part, if that sacrifice was for the common good.

ATTACK NEAR

"The greatest attack that has ever been launched against individual freedom is nearer to the Americans than ever before. To meet that attack we must prepare beforehand—our preparing later may be, and probabaly would be, too late.

"We must prepare in a thousand ways. Men are not enough. They must be skilled leaders who must be well trained. New bases must be established to enable our Fleet to defend our shores. Men and women must be taught to create the supplies we need and we must counter the agents of dictators within our country.

"It is good and right that we should conserve these mountain heights of the cold frontier for the benefit of the American people, but in this hour we have a greater thing to preserve—the right of the people of this country to live as free men.

"Our vital task of conservation is to preserve the freedom our forefathers won in this land and the liberties which are proclaimed in our Constitution.

"But there is another serious danger—a danger from without. I hope, for example, that one hundred years from now the Great Smoky Mountains National Park will still belong in practice as well as in theory to the people of a free nation, I hope this park will not belong to our people in theory alone, and that in practice the ownership of this park will not be in the hands of some strange kind of government, a puppet regime subject to an overseas landlord.

"I hope that the use of this park will not be confined to people coming here on days specified by the government and during hours specified by the government.

"I hope the trees here will not be slaughtered by the axe in order that government may conduct wars of aggression against other nations.

"I hope that these roads and paths and trails will still have been built in the cause of liberty and recreation, and will not be confined to the ulterior purposes of a war machine controlled by an individual or an oligarchy.

"That there is a danger from without is at last recognized by most of us Americans. That such a danger can no longer be met with pitchforks and squirrel rifles, or even with the training and weapons of the war of 1917, is equally clear to most of us Americans.

TO PROTECT LIFE

"It is not a change from the American way of life to advocate or legislate greater and more speedy preparedness. It is positive protection of the American way of life.

"We know that in the process of preparing against danger we shall not have to abandon, and we will not abandon, the great social improvements that have come to the American people in these later years. We need not exchange better living for the gain of better defense. I propose to retain the one and gain the other.

"But to conserve our liberties will not be easy. The task will require the united efforts of all of us. It will require sacrifices from us all. In this hour we must have absolute national unity for total defense.

"What shall we be defending? The good earth of this land, our homes, our families and far more. We will all be defending a way of life which has given more freedom to the soul and body of man than has ever been realized in the world before, a way of life that has let men scale whatever heights they could scale without hurting their fellowmen, a way of life that has let men hold up their heads and admit no master but God.

"That way of life is menaced. We can meet that threat. We can meet it in the old frontier way.

"We believe that the only whole man is a free man and we believe that in the face of danger, the old spirit of the frontiersmen, which is in our blood, will give us the courage and unity which we must have.

"We need that spirit in this hour. We need the conviction felt deep in us all that there are no divisions among us. We are all members of the same body. We are all Americans.

"The winds that blow through the wide sky in these mountains—winds that sweep from Canada to Mexico and from the Pacific to the Atlantic—have always blown on free men.

"We are free today. If we join together now—men, women and children—and face the common menace as a united people, we shall be free tomorrow. To the free people of America I dedicate this park."

GERMANS HAVE RADIO BROADCAST FROM BOMBER FLYING OVER LONDON

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 9—For the first time in the history of radio, a report was broadcast over all German stations from aboard a German bomber, which took part in the attack on Sunday London. Accompanied by the thundering noise of the Heinkel bomber's machines the war reporter described the flight from the French airport across the Channel to London.

He was sitting with his microphone close to the pilot and through the glass cockpit he had a clear view in front and on both sides. Half way to London the bombing squadron was met by German chasers and destroyers, which accompanied them to London to protect them against attacks by British chasers.

"Now the water of the Thames is glittering down below," said the commentator. "We see the docks and down went the bombs. Big ones and some of smaller caliber. They are speeding down and immediately afterward huge fires are jetting up. Gigantic smoke is lying over London. The observer is indicating something to me. Looking to the right, and through a hole in the clouds, I observe a jet of fire from a big conflagration. But soon the fire disappears behind a thick veil of smoke. Infernal noise is everywhere over London. We see houses, residential quarters and again we are over Thames. We look down along the river. Our mission is fulfilled. In a short circle we are turning home, while enemy antiaircraft is firing at us. We are climbing and soon we are out of the reach of their bellowing guns. We are able to see the devastating effect of our bombs. There are two docks, which are fully ablaze and fire has broken out also in the neighborhood.

"We quickly reached the coast and our comrades of the chaser and pursuit squadrons are with us to accompany us home. They also have fulfilled their tasks. We are flying straight to our home bases going down to an altitude of 4,000 meters. It is a pleasure to take off the bottle with oxygen. Our supply had run short. Now we see Cape Grisnez below us and soon we are at home."

GERMAN HELP TO REFUGEES FAR REACHING

90 Camps Established to Aid French; Millions of Meals Distributed to Sufferers

D.N.B.

VICHY, Sept. 9—To what an extent the French people and press appreciate the German assistance and relief given to thousands of French refugees, who were able to return from the unoccupied to the occupied territory in France in recent weeks, is expressed by the paper Moniteur du Centre, published in Clermont Ferrand and giving a general survey and detailed figures on the German relief organizations, which assisted French refugees during all these trying weeks.

The paper writes that if hundreds and thousands of French refugees were able to return to the occupied territory from the unoccupied part of France and if a "virtual migration of people" took place on the French railways and if all these thousands were able to find shelter and were supplied with food immediately after their arrival in occupied territories, it would only be just and fair to say that this would not have been achieved in such short time without the generous assistance of the German authorities in occupied France.

PROVIDED CAMPS

The paper then relates that German troops themselves took care of the arriving refugees in 90 camps, providing them with food and medical treatment. It is stressed that the German authorities generously placed tremendous food supplies, which they had captured, at the disposal of those refugees.

From June 6, to August 20, the N. S. Welfare organization alone handed out 42,500,000 meals The paper points out that the same organization distributed 5 million loaves of bread, served 18 million cold meals and gave distressed French mothers and children 7 million liters of milk during the same period.

ASSISTED AILING

During the same period the medical service of the German occupation authorities gave first aid to 93,000 refugees suffering from one ailment or another. In addition 700,000 children and babies were cared for by German medical service and the national socialist welfare organization. This organization made extensive preparations to receive French refugees properly by establishing 160 branch offices and relief stations, 390 refreshment stations, 130 milk distributing centers, 123 medical stations and hospitals and 480 kitchens.

The famous motorized Bavarian field kitchens, Hilfszug Bayern, further assisted refugees after their arrival in their home towns by travelling all over Northern France distributing some 64 million warm meals. To enable these refugees to return to their homes, in their own automobiles in which they had fled, the paper asserts that the German military authorities gave orders to the German troops to supply the refugees with gasoline and food.

Riggs to Meet McNeil in U.S. Tennis Finals

Domei Tsushin

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 8—Bobby Riggs, 1939 national singles tennis champion, will vie with Donald McNeil, national clay court titleholder, in the finals of the 58th annual national championships tomorrow, as both players today successfully weathered their semi-final matches, defeating Joe Hunt and Jack Kramer, respectively.

Playing on the spacious courts of the West Side Tennis Club, Riggs this afternoon won a hard-fought victory over Hunt, in a hectic five set match. He finally managed to win by scores of 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 and 6-4.

McNeil gained the right to enter the finals when he defeated Kramer in a four-set match, winning in 6-1, 5-7, 6-4 and 6-3.

Miss Helen Jacob and Miss Alice Marble, meanwhile, will face each other in the women's finals by virtue of their victories over Miss Mary Hardwicke and Miss Scott, respectively. The former won by scores of 2-6, 6-1, 6-4, while the latter by straight sets, 6-3, 6-3.

ARABIAN CONFLICTS SAID BEING URGED

British Forces Are Claimed Trying to Improve Positions

D.N.B.

BEIRUT, Sept. 4—Since the official visit paid by the British commander of the British garrison in Aden to the court of the Imam of Yemen in order to incite the latter against Saudi Arabia, has been a complete failure. The British are now trying to obtain their objectives by diplomatic methods, according to reports from the capital of Yemen, Hodeida.

They are now offering to Yemen the island Emirates in the Southern Red Sea. The Yemen, however know too well that the British for some month have been endeavoring to incite the sultanates of Hadramaut against the Yemen and Saudi Arabia in order to strengthen their position in Aden by the creation of conflicts among the Arabian princes.

Despite the bribes offered by the British no serious incidents have occurred anywhere on the frontier of Hadramout and the British setback in Somaliland has completely changed the situation to the disadvantage of the British.

The people of Hadramout, who have not forgotten the brutal bombardment of their villages by the British airforce, are now taking their revenge by constant raids on British forts and by other acts of violence.

The people of Hadramout are convinced that the British have neither sufficient troops nor planes for an action of severe punishment,

FULL COLLAPSE OF BRITAIN'S BLOCKADE SEEN

Germans Attribute France's Fall, Italian Participation In War for Failure of Plans

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 10—England's attempt to blockade Germany from the Southeast Europe has collapsed. These efforts, which can be traced back to 1936, were divided into different phases, according to a report of the German institute of business research.

In the first phase they were directed against Italy. They began at the end of 1935 in connection with the sanctions of the League of Nations, carried out from November 1935 to July 1936. The British policy was concentrated in these efforts mainly on Jugoslavia and Turkey.

OFFERED INDUCEMENTS

The second phase of the economic battle in Southeastern Europe extends from the spring 1938 to August 1939. The English methods included grantings of loans, large purchases for war material purposes, special trade agreements, the founding of special government purchasing agencies and the like. England's aim of blockading Germany in the Balkans and in the near East, however, was not realized.

Germany's share in the total exports of Southeastern Europe (Bulgaria, Greece, Jugoslavia, Rumania, Hungary and Turkey,) rose from 1937 to 1939 from 26.1 per cent to 40.2 per cent. Germany's share in the imports of these countries increased from 32.6 per cent in 1937 to 45.6 per cent in 1939 while England's share dropped from 7.8 to 6.2 per cent during the same period. The third phase extended from the outbreak of the war until the collapse of France in June 1940. During this phase England tried to disturb Germany's supplies of vital goods. In autumn 1939 it was soon revealed that Germany's supply from the Southeast was guaranteed. England employed two methods chiefly in her economic warfare.

BOOSTED PRICES

The first "direct" method was to prevent the exports of vital war-goods from the Southeastern countries by jacking up prices and by making large purchases.

The second method was intended to eliminate German goods from the Southeast. At the end of the third period it is now an established fact that all of the attempts of England in this direction have been a hopeless failure. The collapse of England's economic offensive was speeded up by the defeat of France and by Italy's participation in the war. The economic front of the Allies has completely collapsed by now.

Teruzzi Off for Berlin

Domei Tsushin

ROME, Sept. 9—General Attilio Teruzzi, Minister for Italian East Africa, entrained for Berlin tonight to return the visit paid here last May by General Ritter von Epp, head of the German Colonial League.

Observers declared that the two colonial experts will map plans for shaping an Axis policy toward life on the Dark Continent, asserting that his visit is another indication of intensified colonial cooperation between Italy and Germany.

DON McNEILL, ALICE MARBLE CAPTURE U.S. TENNIS TITLES

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 9—Young Don McNeill today fought an uphill battle in the finals of the 58th National tennis championships played here to bowl over Bobby Riggs after dropping the first two sets to the 1939 titleholder.

Miss Alice Marble of San Francisco had an easy time with Miss Helen Jacobs, her home town rival, repeatedly drawing the veteran player out of position with tantalizing drop shots to win the match, 6-2, 6-3, and kept the women's national title for the third consecutive time.

A wobbly backhand bothered McNeill during the first two sets, but he staged a magnificent comeback. Forcing the Davis Cup holder to play his kind of game, McNeill took the match and title after five furious sets, 4-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3 and 7-5.

The outcome of the women's match was never in doubt. Miss Jacobs was obviously not in her best form and her opponent repeatedly forced her into errors.

Mixing teasing drop shots with hard drives, Miss Marble scored nine clean placements during the first set. Miss Jacobs recovered in the second set to score 11 placement to 14 for Miss Marble, but the rally fell far short of the mark.

T.V.A. PROJECT VITAL FACTOR IN U.S. DEFENSE

New Deal Experiment, Now 7 Years Old, Producing Cheap Power

United Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3—The Tennessee Valley—scene of a seven-year-old New Deal experiment in the production and distribution of cheap electrical power—is fast becoming a major source of munitions and materials for the nation's defense forces, Tennessee Valley Authority officials said here yesterday as President Roosevelt was dedicating the nearby Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Sheltered on the east by a chain of mountains and situated hundreds of miles inland from any possible point of attack, the valley with its mineral resources and power facilities meets all the requirements of the National Defense Council for location of key defense industries. The valley in addition has adequate transportation facilities by highways, railroads and water routes.

VITAL TO NATION

"Our huge supply of power," said the TVA director David E. Lilienthal, "now is of great strategic importance to the nation. Without this power supply, production of airplanes on the scale needed would be impossible, for today TVA power is a principal reliance in America's production of aluminum.

"The need for power and more power in this emergency has led us to order our dam construction program to be speeded up by every device. This pressure means completion of one of TVA's dams 10 months ahead of schedule and it will add five new power generators in dams already completed."

In Washington, the House of Representatives Rules Committee approved a bill appropriating $25,000,000 for increasing T.V.A. power facilities in order to expand aluminum production in that area for national defense purposes, after Edward R. Stettinius Jr., of the National Defense Advisory Commission, urged prompt action.

Lilienthal said that in addition, the Muscle Shoals Plant—constructed during the Great War—is ready to be converted to production of ammonium nitrate for high explosives "as soon as the signal is given." This plant under the T.V.A. program has been used in production of phosphatic fertilizer.

Because of the great supply of power generated by T.V.A. dams—constructed originally to make more abundant and fruitful the lives of farmers and urban residents in this area—defense industries are locating in the valley.

An airplane factory recently was built at Nashille and three companies are considering building plants at Memphis. The Dupont Company is building a powder plant near Memphis. Other plants in this area are obtaining contracts for Army and Navy goods.

Gov. Prentice Cooper of Tennessee, meanwhile, has asked the Federal Government to build in this state a naval aviation training base, an $8,000,000 aviation engine research laboratory, and establish an aeronautics school at Vanderbilt University in Nashville.

T. V. A. officials are insistent in pointing out that use of power for defense industries will not curtail its other activities in supplying electric current for farms in the valley. Instead, they say that T.V.A. will generate greater quantities of power to meet demands for defense industries rather than reduce the amount available for individual consumers.

ATTACKS WILLKIE

United Press

CHICKAMAUGA DAM, Tennessee, Sept. 3—President Roosevelt, delivering the first of two Labor Day speeches, paid tribute to labor's seven-year task in constructing the Chickamauga Dam, which he dedicated yesterday to the "total defense of the United States.

The President indirectly directed a broadside against the private utilities background of the Republican Presidential nominee, Mr. Wendell Willkie.

Listing the benefits of the Tennessee Valley Authority, Mr. Roosevelt said: "We see the progress we have made, that we are making, that we propose to continue to make.

"In this valley, as in the nation, we do not propose to abandon the goal that is directly before our eyes, either by sitting down or going back.

"These splendid chances have not come by compulsion. No farmer was forced to join this conservation movement. No workman was compelled to labor here under onerous conditions or for less than a rightful wage. No citizens lost a single one of those human liberties we prize so highly in this Democracy. This is a demonstration of what Democracy can do, of people uniting against waste and insecurity.

"There were and are those who maintain that the development of this enterprise is not proper Government activity. As for me, I glory in it as one of the great social and economic achievements of our time.

"Today we are facing a time of peril unmatched in the history of the nations of all the world and, because we are undertaking the total defense of the nation, the Tennessee Valley region has assumed, in addition to its own domestic betterment, its share of responsibility for national defense.

"The new defense industries are safer from attack in this region behind the mountains than if they were located on more exposed borders. It is therefore good for safety to develop further and use the national resources and manpower of this region.

"We are seeking preparedness in America, not against the threat of war or conquest alone, but in order that preparedness may be built to assure America the peace that rests on the well being of the American people....

"Let us therefore today dedicate this dam and these lakes to the benefit of all the people, the prosperity they have stimulated, the faith they have justified, the hope they have inspired, and the hearts they encourage—to the total defense of the United States of America."

Captain of Columbus To Inspect Camps

United Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3—Captain William Daehne, Commander of the scuttled German liner Columbus, passed through here en route to Texas this week to inspect several camp sites for the internment of the members of his crew, it was learned here yesterday.

The Department of Justice plans to transfer the crew of the Columbus from the Angel Island immigration station, where they have been the United States Government "guests" since last spring.

Rangoon Aims at Increasing Output of Tin, Wolfram

Reuter

RANGOON, Aug. 28—The Commerce and Industries Department of the Government of Burma is examining various proposals for increasing the output of tin and wolfram. With this object in view the Commerce Department is appointing some mining experts as investigators.

WHITE SOX WIN 8TH STRAIGHT FROM DETROIT

Cincinnati Strengthens National League Lead By Nosing Out Cardinals

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 3—The Chicago White Sox won their eighth straight victory over the Detroit Tigers today by a score of 10 to 2.

The Chicago victory was the tenth White Sox triumph in eleven starts and ousted the Tigers from a second place tie with the New York Yankees in the American League standings.

The victory brought the White Sox within easy striking distance of a first division berth in the American League standings.

In the National League Cincinnati reinforced its hold on first place position by turning back the St. Cardinals 4 to 3. The Reds were outhit 12 to 7 but bunched their hits in the pinches.

No other games were scheduled today in either league. Scores:

New York Gets Tall Fire Scare

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 3—New York City got the tallest fire scare in its history yesterday when black billows of smoke, visible for many miles, poured from the 78th floor of the Chrysler Building, the second highest in the world—1,046 feet.

Firemen hastened to the scene with a new pumping unit especially designed for skyscraper work. They found that the building's new engineer had turned on the incinerator at the wrong time—noon instead of midnight.

The fact that the fire alarm occurred on a holiday prevented a critical traffic jam, as the building is on the corner of Lexington Avenue and 42nd Street, one of the most congested districts in the city.

'Hitler Squares' Dedicated in Poland

United Press

BERLIN, Sept. 3—Hitler Squares were dedicated in each of the four general Polish Government districts Sunday, one year after German troops crossed the Polish frontiers, it was learned here yesterday.

The cities in which Hitler squares were dedicated are: Cracow, Warsaw, Radom and Lublin.

The Warschauzer Zeitung hailed the dedications as "symbols of the unqualified German victory . . . and the reintroduction of the Vistula region to the German lebensraum."

REICH MILITARY ATTACHE TELLS ABOUT ATTACKS

Terms London Raids Solely Retaliation for British Bombings of German Capital

The German aerial attacks on the British Isles were discussed by W. Von Gronau, German Military Attache to Japan, at a press conference at the German Embassy, Tuesday morning.

Mr. Gronau stressed that the German onslaught on London is being carried out in "retaliation" to British attacks on Berlin.

He also said that though German attacks aim at destruction of military equipments of Britain, they will not care for damages of peace equipments in their vicinities.

USED 950 PLANES

"According to the official informations from Berlin," he said, "the fiercest attack on London began September 7 at 6 p.m. Three hundred and fifty bombing planes and 600 fighting planes were mobilized. At the beginning, we had considerable strong resistence, but 93 British machines were downed, while 22 German planes were downed. Three hundred and fifty tons of bombs were dropped by us.

"That night 200 bombers dropped 200 tons of bombs. The vibrations of the explosions were felt even 6,000 meters up and London was covered by flames.

"As the weather was unfavorable September 8, German air troops were not so active in the daytime, and bombed only Southern England.

PARTS HEAVILY BOMBED

"But when night came and the weather became favorable, 300 German bombers made onslaught upon the docks and ports in the vicinity of the Thames. West Indian Dock, Victoria Dock, and Commercial Dock were heavily damaged. At that time 12 British machines were downed, while four German planes failed to return."

Mr. Gronau said that coinciding with German attacks, British air troops flew over Germany, but they bombed only citizens' houses and some of the citizens were injured but there was no loss of life. Ten British planes were downed. In the meantime, he said, German onslaughts became more and more fierce.

Pointing out in the map many places where German planes bombed, he continued, "Among these places, most important ones are Birmingham and Liverpool. At the former German machines bombed the plane plants and munition factories.

LIVERPOOL HIT HARD

"At Liverpool, Gas Production works and the cooling warehouse of provisions and a big merchantman at the dock were destroyed and fires started in six places.

"With the many factories thus destroyed, the industrial capacity of Britain at present has decreased 30 per cent, while British air attacks on Germany damaged less than one per cent of our factories."

The military attache denied as British propaganda reports that the Germany fuel supply is running low by saying: "Such propaganda is absurd. Germany has occupied various fuel bases heretofore. Coal can be liquefied. So the quantity of fuel of Germany is, on the contrary, much larger than at the beginning of the war. Moreover, oil from Soviet Russia and Rumania is being imported smoothly."

He added that even if the war extends over a long period that Germany will have no economic difficulties.

TWO JAPANESE EXPERTS PLAN CHINESE ART INVESTIGATION

Professor Yukio Yashiro, director of the Fine Art Research Institute, and Tokuzo Masaki, authority on Chinese fine arts, will make an investigation tour of Chinese fine and industrial arts, leaving Tokyo Thursday, says the Asahi.

After traveling in Korea and Manchoukuo, they will visit Jehol, Peking, Taiyuan, Tientsin, Tsinan, Tsingtao and other places in Shantung Province, Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow in two months.

The two experts will inspect private and public collections of art objects in China and see Chinese experts on the subject to work out measures to promote Sino-Japanese cooperation in art. Conditions of contemporary Chinese industrial art will be investigated from the viewpoints of economy and education.

Messrs. Yashiro and Masaki will endeavor to introduce Chinese industrial art objects, hitherto exported to Europe and America almost exclusively, on the New Asia market.

Prof. Yashiro is one of the ablest disciples of the late Masahiko Masaki, director of the Tokyo Fine Art School and an authority on Chinese fine arts. Mr. Masaki who accompanies Prof. Yashiro is a son of the late Masaki.

Tsuguji Foujita, noted artist, will paint pictures of the battlefields of Nomonhan at the request of the Army. He left Tokyo Sunday for the border battlefield.

U.S. POPULATION STEADY DUE TO LOW BIRTH RATE

Nation Said Approaching Era of Decreasing Trend; Resources Survey Given

By O. H. KNIGHT

United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—The National Resources Board warned that the United States is approaching an era of "stationary or decreasing population," as a result of a declining birth rate and restricted immigration.

The board estimated that the 1940 census would show a population of 131,993,000 as compared with 122,775,046 of a decade ago. It placed the 1980 population at 158,335,000 due chiefly to an increase of 234 per cent in the number of persons over the age of 65, and twice the number of persons between the age of 45-46 as there are today.

NO BAD RESULTS

"The trend toward cessation of natural increase and toward an increase in the population of older persons will not necessarily lead to unhappy results," the agency said.

In an inventory of the human and physical resources upon which the United States can depend for national defense, the board found that the nation's inventive genius is one of its most valuable assets. It states that the country has a large reserve of transportation facilities, communications, energy, inventors, research, and minerals which can be used for defense.

It listed among others:

1. Transportation: 241,404 miles of railroads; 2,960,000 miles of highway; 29,038 miles of inland waterways; 35,492 miles of airways; and 65,292 miles of pipelines carrying petroleum.

2. Communications: 2,216 daily and 11,516 weekly newspapers; 17,097,766 telephones; 571,391 miles of telegraph wires; 8,878 commercial and 55,000 amateur radio stations; 44,000,000 radio receiving sets; and 17,000 theaters.

3. Industrial and fuel minerals: (proven reserves) 4,400,000,000 (B) tons of iron ore; 33,000,000 tons of unrefined copper, 3,000,000 tons of lead; 12,000,000 tons of zinc; 15,000,000,000 (B) net tons of anthracite, 2,500,000,000,000 (T) net tons of bituminous coal, including sub-bituminous and lignite reduced to bituminous coal equivalent.

The board recommended "more effective planning" to meet public demand for better and cheaper transportation.

"Many terminals," it said "need to be better unified. Consolidation of railroads into large, closely knit systems has long been attempted. Coordination of railroads, waterways, highways, airways and pipe lines so that each carries the traffic it can bear most efficiently is one of the major problems facing the transportation industry today."

In communications, the board found several economic effects due to technical developments that need to be settled.

COMPETITION ARISES

"The rapid technical developments which have already taken place in new forms of communication and the remarkable refinements and improvements in the older ones, have created competitive situations that involve economic questions," it pointed out.

"Will television curtail the income of the motion-picture industry by shifting commercial activity within the theater field? Will facsimile transmission—the sending of a newspaper page by radio—seriously disturb the publishing industry, and, thus, the paper industry, and back of that, lumbering and forestry?"

Inasmuch as petroleum, natural gas (and high grade coals) are "distinctly limited" the board declared that a "sound national policy must be concerned with their conservation and prudent utilization," and suggested three possible remedies:—

1. Promotion of "greater efficiency in the production of mineral fuel from the standpoint of recovery."

2. Promotion of greater economy in the use of fuel.

3. Placing a larger share of the energy burden on lower grade fuels and water power.

BRITAIN CLAIMED LACKING IN FOOD

German Sources Hold Grain, Cattle Supply Insufficient

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 11—London boastfully states that England's ha. is extremely favorable this year and that England has large cattle stocks amounting to 6,800,000 head. The British propaganda thus tries to create the impression that England is well supplied with grain and meat.

The actual truth is that England's domestic production never covered more than 20 to 25 per cent of her domestic needs. The fact that England is cut off from the European continent means an annual loss of 97,000 tons of whea., 108,000 tons of maize, 81,000 tons of potatoes, 116,000 tons of onions, 33,000 tons of legumes, 249,000 tons of bacon, 2,000 tons of poultry, 205,000 tons of butter and 2,221,000,000 eggs.

Expressed in percentages this means a loss of potatoes of 36 cent cent., of barley 12 per cent, of bacon 71 per cent, of butter 42 per cent, and of eggs 75 per cent. A small increase, therefore, in England's grain stocks or cattle heads will not have any considerable effect on the food situation.

War Department Sets Air Program in Motion

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10—Setting the gigantic air program in motion, the War Department today authorized 21 plane and aircraft parts manufacturers to go ahead with the $1,251,000,000 aircraft program.

The War Department's orders contemplate the production of 14,394 planes costing $817,000,000, 28,282 airplane engines valued at $377,000,000 and propeller blades totaling $57,000,000.

N.E.I. MILITARY STAND GIVEN IN I.P.R. SURVEY

Has One Battleship, Three Cruisers, 18 Subs, And Eight Destroyers

United Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1—The Dutch East Indies are probably in a much stronger position for self defense from foreign attack and invasion than is generally thought, according to a survey recently completed by the Institute of Pacific Relations.

While official figures on the strength of the Indies' defense have been veiled in secrecy since 1933, unofficial sources place the strength of her naval defense at one battleship, three cruisers, eight destroyers, 18 submarines and 42 torpedo boats, the survey reported.

HAS GOOD SUBS

Naval authorities have long regarded the submarine as the best means of naval defense for small countries which cannot indulge in large navies and the number which the Dutch Indies are now known to posses would undoubtedly play an important role, not only against any naval attack on the islands, but especially against transports trying to land military expeditions. As the islands have only a limited number of ports at which such debarcations could take place, the potential striking power of the Indies submarine fleet is greater than might otherwise be the case.

An unusual feature of the Indies' destroyers and minelayers, the survey found, is that they are equipped to carry planes.

A plentiful supply of aviation fuel has been assured by the construction of two high-octane aviation gasoline plants.

The Dutch Indies are well equipped from the standpoint of aerial defense and for the bombing of attacking ships, the survey reported.

The air force includes Martin bombers, Koolhovens, Fokkers and German Dorniers. Several excellent military bases and numerous secret airfields have been built in the jungles of the archipelago. Ground defense crews are equipped with Vickers anti-aircraft guns.

BUYING FROM U.S.

The survey also found that, while during the early years of the Dutch East Indies' effort to build up her defenses a large part of her airplanes were purchased in European centers, the Indies Government has more recently been making increased purchases from the Unitd States. In 1938, out of a total of 104 planes imported into the Indies, 66 came from the United States.

Prior to the invasion of the mother country, the Dutch Indies Army numbered 50,000. Since then, steady recruiting has been under way.

The survey found that, while the Dutch Indies in the past counted largely on the mother country for defense, it had in recent years followed a policy of being largely self dependent and complete organization has been effected to that end.

Measures taken include the creation of a State Mobilization Council, a Department of Economic Affairs, which will regulate harbors in case of war and insure the safety of certain harbors for both warships and the country's commercial vessels, the installation of coastal look-out posts with two way radio apparatus and an elaborate system for contacting merchant ships at sea should hostilities break out.

Measures have also been taken for the laying of mines, the use of torpedoes, the convoying of merchant ships and gas protection.

"Measures for the mobilization of the country's economic resources and resultant transformation in the country's economy have put the Dutch Indies in a position to put up a stout defense against any invader," the survey concluded.

Bulgaria Thanks Soviets For Their Moral Support

MOSCOW, Sept. 10—The Bulgarian Minister here, Mr. Stamenoff, today called on the Foreign Commissar, Viacheslav M. Molotov, and conveyed the thanks of the Bulgarian Government for the moral support given by the Soviet Union in the satisfactory settlement of the Dobruja problem, the Tass news agency reported tonight.

'Flagrant' Anti-Fascist Prince Jailed in Italy

Domei Tsushin

ROME, Sept. 11—Prince Doria Pamphilia, a "flagrant anti-Fascist for many years," has been taken into political custody, it was officially disclosed today.

Fascist spokesmen dismissed recent American news agency reports on the alleged wholesale arrests of traitors in Italy, including high officials and members of the aristocracy, asserting that the repor's were exaggeration founded on the Doria case.

GERMAN, ITALIAN TENNIS STARS GET INVITATIONS

Asked to Participate in All-Japan Tournament in Tokyo During October

The Japan Tennis Association has announced that invitations have been extended to Germany and Italy to participate in a series of tennis matches here this autumn.

To date, Germany has accepted and will be represented by two of their outstanding players; H. Henkel and G. von Metax. These two stars are scheduled to arrive in Tokyo October 10 via Siberia. While word has not been received from Italy, should they accept the invitation, one of the two to appear here will in all probability be G. De Stefani, Italy's No. 1 ranking player.

The tentative schedule calls for matches to be played in Tokyo and Osaka, and should time permit in Nagoya, Fukuoka, and Dairen.

GERMANS WON

With the acceptance of Germany, the local Tennis Association officials were jubilant. For it is recalled that just three years ago this autumn, Germany sent three players to take part in matches here. The German players were undefeated and marched off with the singles and doubles titles of the All-Japan Tennis Tournament.

The three to represent Germany at that time were H. Henkel, von Klum and Miss M. W. Holum. Von Klum at that time was in superb form and captured the singles championships, easily defeating such Nippon stars as F. Nakano and J. Yamagishi, Davis Cup players.

HENKEL LEADS

Since then, H. Henkel has taken the lead and today is ranked as No. 1 singles player of Germany. Von Klum has taken a less conspicuous place and today is enrolled in the Army. Henkel besides being the mainstay of the German Davis Cup team has been teaming up with Von Metax to form one of the strongest doubles teams of Germany.

G. Von Metax, also a member of the German Davis Cup team was the No. 1 ranking singles player of Austria. Since joining the German team he has shown special brilliance in doubles competition.

Without definite word from Italy, the Japan Tennis Association has not proceeded to make definite plans for the coming matches. However, Japan-German matches will be played and possibly a tournament in which the finest players of Japan will be selected to compete against the foreigners.

Sauda and Kongo Clash in Hibiya Bouts Saturday

A ten round main event between Kid Motomichi Sauda and Iwao Kongo will head the boxing matches Saturday night at the Hibiya Amphitheater.

This will be the first meeting for the two, and while Kid Sauda has had a more successful career, Kid Kongo stands a good chance of scoring an upset. In his last fight Kid Sauda won a close decision from Swinger Saburo Isagawa. Kid Kongo has always put up a scrappy aggressive fight and has been a crowd pleaser.

In other ten-round bout Toshiro Aoki, the pride of the Fujii Boxing Club will square off with Shintaro Yamada.

Other bouts are: Tomiso Nakamura vs. Yoteru Kin; K. Amemiya vs. A. Izumi; K. Ohba vs. M. Hanada; M. Yoshida vs. N. Tomimoto.

Two-Day Cricket Match at Kobe

The annual two-day cricket match between the cricket team of the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club and the Indian Cricket Club of Kobe will be held at the Recreation Club, Kobe, on Saturday and Sunday, September 14 and 15. A dinner will be held for the visitors by the Indian team of Kobe at the Oriental Hotel on Saturday night.

YACHT CLUB PROGRAM CHANGE

The Sailing Committee of the Yokohama Yacht Club has issued the following notice to boat-owners showing rearrangements in the program:

Due to inclement weather many races have had to be postponed and it has been necessary to change the sailing program. The program for the rest of the season has been fixed, tentatively, as follows:

Sept. 15, 5th Points Race and July Cup; Sept. 22, Ladies' Race; Sept. 29, Team Race against Yokohama Sailing Club; Oct. 6, Matsudaira Cup at Yokohama Sailing Club; Oct. 13, 6th Points Race and Ladies' Cup; Oct. 20, Team Race against Nantaisan Y.C. (at Y.Y.C.)

All Sunday races will start at 2 p.m.

The Sailing Committee particularly wants to direct attention to the Ladies' Race on Sept. 22. It is hoped that as many boats as possible will be entered. In order to enable the committee to decide the handicaps, the owners are requested to advise the Commodore of the name of their lady skippers at the latest by Sept. 20.

As regards the Team Race on Sept. 29 against Yokohama Sailing Club, a team will be selected by the Sailing Committee.

The race for the Matsudaira Cup on Oct. 6 is an individual race held by the Yokohama Sailing Club, in which members of Y.Y.C. have been invited to participate.

AUTUMN LEAGUE GAMES WILL START SATURDAY

Keio and Tokyo Imperial Clash at 1:30 p.m. in Meiji Jingu Stadium

Saturday at 1:30 p.m. the siren will call together the teams of Keio and Tokyo Imperial in the autumn season opening game of the Tokyo University Baseball League at Meiji Jingu Stadium.

It will open the shortest autumn League season of recent years with all six teams of the League playing but one game with each of the other five teams. All games will be played on Saturdays and Sundays, with two games on Sunday.

The classic game between Keio and Waseda will be played October 17. Other traditional games such as the Meiji-Waseda tilt and the Keio-Meiji game are scheduled for September 28 and October 12, respectively.

KEIO, MEIJI FAVORED

With attempting to select the probable champion team, fans and newspaper men generally agree that Keio and Meiji stand the best chance to take the title, with Rikkyo given an outside chance. In Keio's favor will be the fact that they will present their past sparkling defensive outfit, which won last spring and has since then compiled an impressive record in Hawaii. Meiji on the other hand was a powerful offensive outfit last spring, and still possesses the hardest hitting trio of outfielders in the League. As such Meiji will be backed by many to end Keio's supremacy this fall.

SCHEDULE LISTED

The scheduled as released by the League officials follows:

Sept. 14—Tokyo Imperial vs Keio.
Sept. 15—Waseda vs Rikkyo and Hosei vs Meiji.
Sept. 21—Hosei vs Waseda.
Sept. 22—Meiji vs Tokyo Imperial and Rikkyo vs Keio.
Sept. 28—Waseda vs Meiji.
Sept. 29—Rikkyo vs Tokyo Imperial and Hosei vs Keio.
Oct. 6—Tokyo Imperial vs Hosei and Meiji vs Rikkyo.
Oct. 12—Meiji vs Keio.
Oct. 13—Hosei vs Rikkyo and Waseda vs Tokyo Imperial.
Oct. 17—Waseda vs Keio.
Note: Play starts at 1:30 p.m. in the case of one game. Noon (September) and 11:30 a.m. (October) Sunday double-headers.

British Parents Permit Children to Sail

United Press

LONDON, Sept 4—Numerous parents of the children whose evacuation liner was torpedoed last week advised the headquarters of the Children's Overseas Reception Board yesterday that they would permit their children to sail again for Canada.

"We would be grateful," said a message from one family in Durham, "if you would arrange transportation on the next available boat for our children who were on the torpedoed boat. At the same time we put forward the name of a third child to go to Canada."

"We are willing to take another chance," said another message received from Manchester. Scores of telegrams in a similar vein were received by the Board from the parents of children rescued from the torpedoed evacuation ship last week.

Kishi Memorial Hall Construction Will Be Started Tuesday

Construction of the ¥130,000 Dr. Kishi Memorial Hall will be started with the ground breaking ceremony at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, September 17 at Ochanomizu. The Japan Amateur Athletic Association Wednesday obtained permission for construction from the authorities concerned, reports Domei.

The Shimizu-gumi Contractors will build the Memorial building, which probably will take about three months.

The Kishi Memorial Hall is to be financed by contributions of the Dr. Kishi family to honor the late Dr. Kishi, who made great contributions to development of Japanese sports.

The building will house sports association offices.

BERLINERS TELL REASONS FOR BOMBING LONDON

One Third of English War Material Made or Passes Through British Capital

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 12—One third of the material important for war is either produced in London or is passing through London at one stage of the production or the other, it is declared by German experts. It is pointed out that in the area of greater London there are not only well known armament plants such as Woolwich and Enfield, big airplane factories such as Weybridge and Kingston but also many other factories engaged in producing material important for warfare.

It is moreover characteristic that these factories are spread over the entire area of London. The majority of these factories are situated behind the Tower along the banks of the river Thames. The German air raids were concentrated particularly in these districts.

It is declared that around docks, harbor installations, power plants and gasworks there are dwelling-houses of many workers. German quarters point out that when just before the war, when the latest English armament program had been adopted, the question was raised whether it would be advisable to leave armament plants within city limits because of possible air raids or whether to take the biggest plants further outside of the inner London area. It is declared in Berlin that nothing was done in this respect. It is emphasized that those, who had declared war on Germany should have known to what danger they thus exposed the British capital. They should have known that by their constant attacks on German nonmilitary objectives they were forcing German retaliatory attacks on Britain on the severest scale.

KNOX MAY GO TO MIDWAY

Inspecting 5-Day Naval Maneuver of U.S. Fleet Somewhere on Pacific

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Sept. 10—Navy Secretary Frank Knox, who is inspecting a five-day naval maneuver of the United States fleet somewhere on the Pacific, is planning to visit Midway island, which is hurriedly being converted by the United States into a strong naval outpost to strengthen the main Pacific defenses at Hawaii, Ansel Talbert, Herald Tribune correspondent, reported today from Honolulu.

Colonel Knox's inspection trip is expected to be made some time before the Navy Secretary returns to San Diego on September 16.

"I have just arrived here from Manila via Guam and Midway aboard a clipper plane and have seen evidence that the United States navy is strenuously making efforts to strengthen Midway and Guam islands as two main advance bases to protect the Hawaiian islands," Mr. Talbert cabled from Honolulu.

"The beach near the harbor at Midway is piled high with steel girders still coated with scarlet weather-proofing paint. Hundreds of workers, imported from Hawaii and the United States' west coast, are making the island a dock and refueling station for submarines, patrol bombers and surface warships. The harbor channel already has been dredged to a depth sufficient to admit naval craft as big as cruisers.

"Guam's rock terrain which is ideal for the installation of anti-aircraft defenses has been thoroughly surveyed for flying field areas which could be served from underground hangars. Scores of excellent sites have been found bordering the foothills. Undergound tanks for the storage of aviation gasoline and fuel are being built carefully isolated from any vital point."

U.S. Destroyers in Canada

United Press

An EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 7—The first three United States destroyers of the 50 to be delivered to Britain under the destroyers-for-bases agreement arrived here from Boston yesterday.

They will be placed into service immediately, informed quarters here said. Other destroyers will arrive in Canada this week, it was believed

CHIANG ISSUES RICE HOARDERS FINAL WARNING

Threatens to Confiscate Supply; Interior Cities Opposing Capital Moving

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11—A strict proclamation has been issued by General Chiang Kai-shek against rice hoarding, voluntarily admitting the shortage of rice in Chungking.

Despite the efforts of the Chungking regime to show off an abundant rice supply based upon an alleged bumper crop of rice last year in Szechwan Province, the price, in reality, is now as much as 140-150 Yuan, even surpassing 70-80 Yuan in Shanghai where it has been showing a continuous rise.

SCARES WEALTHY

General Chiang Kai-shek, in his proclamation, particularly directed his censure against the wealthy classes, the habitual hoarders of rice, denouncing them as the "public enemies" of the people of Szechwan and adding that the government will start an immediate investigation of their rice stocks and confiscate them at half of the official price.

DON'T WANT CAPITAL

Domei Tsushin

HONGKONG, Sept. 11—In fear of going through the same hardships as has been experienced by Chungking, inhabitants of cities in the interior of China are now starting a movement together with military leaders in Szechwan and Sikiang Provinces against removal of the capital of the Chiang Kai-shek's regime to any of those cities in the provinces, according to a message reaching here from Chungking.

Meanwhile, Teng Hsi-hou and Pan Wen-hua, chief and vice-chief of the Peace Preservation Army of Sikiang Province respectively, on Sunday presented a written protest under joint signature of 24 military leaders of Szechwan Province to the Chungking Government, demanding that the Chungking regime should make an outlay of a relief fund as early as possible in order to give relief to about 50,000 victims of Szechwan Province and to save them from starvation.

HALF MILLION ADRIFT

Being attacked successively by Japanese war-birds, leading cities in Szechwan Province including Luhsien, Suchow Tzelihtsing, Kwangan, Shunking and Liangshan were inflicted severe damage, turning 500,000 people adrift.

However, no remedy steps have been taken by Chungking regime and no sufficient air defense facilities have been established to meet the situation.

U.S. MAY NOT APPLY FLAT SCRAP EMBARGO

May Broaden Categories Under Licensing System

By CLARKE KAWAKAMI

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—The National Defense Commission may advise President Roosevelt not to impose a flat embargo on the export of scrap metal outside of the Western Hemisphere but will instead broaden the categories subjected to export licensing as this offers a more flexible means of control.

Hitherto, licensing was applied only to the highest grade of scrap which constituted less than a third of Japan's purchases, but if the categories are broadened, they would include the lower grades of scrap for licensing. This would place a most powerful weapon into the hands of Administration authorities.

Despite threatened tightening of scrap restrictions, it does not mean that exports necessarily will be stopped. The plan, however, will enable authorities to exercise control over individual cases and adopt a more lenient policy toward one country than to another as in the case of gasoline shipments.

Defense Commission officials indicated that the recommendations shortly will be submitted to the President, probably before the end of this week.

Carol Passes Turin On Way to France

Domei Tsushin

ROME, Sept. 11—Escorted by an elite guard of Italian police, former King Carol of Rumania, passed through Turin today with Mrs Magda Lupescu and his personal suite on his way from Lugano, in Switzerland, to France. He is expected to stop over at his palatial home in the Riviera, where he spent most of his years of former exile.

Though reports varied as to the length of stay permitted him in Switzerland, all agreed that Swiss authorities would not have welcomed any extended stay by the former Rumanian ruler. German reports, meanwhile, said that he had been refused admission by Turkey, Bulgaria and Egypt.

Japanese Freighter Rams Barge

United Press

SAN PEDRO, California, Sept. 5—The Japanese freighter Sakito Maru rammed and sank the pleasure fishing barge Olympic off the San Pedro breakwater light yesterday, drowning two men. At least three other men were missing.

A motor launch picked up about 15 others from the water.

DAVIS CUP STAYS IN AUSTRALIA 'FOR DURATION'; NO COMPETITORS

Unlike Australia and New Zealand, who have both abandoned their open golf championships this year because of the war Canada has decided to carry on.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced that the 33rd annual Canadian golf championship would be held over the course of the Scarboro Golf and Country Club, Toronto, from August 15 to 17, and, as usual many famous Americans were expected to compete.

It would be the fourth Canadian Open to be staged at Toronto in the last five years. The 1939 championship, which was won by the American, Harold McSpaden, was staged at Saint John, New Brunswick.
(By Mail)

For reasons that are all too obvious, Great Britain throws down no challenge this year for the Davis Cup, emblematic of the world's team championship for men at lawn tennis. And, as no other country sees its way to take part in what was to have been the 1940 competition for this famous international trophy, the prize remains for at least another 12 months in the possession of the Australians, victors over the United States net-men in the 1939 Challenge Round by 3 matches to 2.

If the Americans had won that contest, writes R. Maillard Stead in the Christian Science Monitor, it would have been their consecutive success in the decisive stage of the tournament.

For they wrested the bowl away from Great Britain on the classic center-court at Wimbledon in 1937 (four victories to one was the score on that occasion) and the following year staved off a determined bid by the Australians, who lost in the Challenge Round by 2-3.

1914 And 1939

I don't know whether you noticed the fact last September, but there was quite an extraordinary resemblance between the Davis Cup situation then and that when the World War broke out in 1914. In each case the men from the Antipodes were playing in the Challenge Round against the United States team in New York and in each case they were successful by 3 matches to 2.

Back in 1914, however, New Zealand did not compete for the Davis Cup as a separate country, the way she does today, and the composite team from down under used to be lebelled "Australasia."

As a matter of fact, New Zealand and Australia played in the game encompassing the Americans' overthrow 26 years ago.

The former was represented by A. F. Wilding, the latter by Norman E. Brookes, and these two celebrated Wimbledon champions between them captured one singles match apiece (beating R. N. Williams) and beat M. E. McLoughlin and T. C. Bundy in the doubles.

Vivid Idea

If you want to give yourself a vivid idea of the stupendous advance by lawn tennis as an internationally popular sport since the World War, you can hardly do better, I think, than compare last year's list of Davis Cup contestants with that of 1914. In 1939, 26 national teams entered, from all quarters of the globe, but in 1914 the competitors numbered precisely seven—the United States, Australasia, Canada, the British Isles (as Great Britain used to be termed), Germany, France, and Belgium.

With the exception of the two matches in which the British defeated the Belgians at Folkestone (England) by five events to nil and the French at Wimbledon (England) by four to one, all the 1914 battles for the trophy put up by Dwight F. Davis, U.S.A. in 1900 were fought out on American soil.

In the first round, for which Germany and France drew byes, Australasia beat Canada, 5—0 at Chicago; in the second round Australasia beat Germany at Pittsburgh by the same score; and in the final round Australasia beat the British Isles at Boston by 3-0 and so qualified to challenge the United States and New York.

Taken Prisoner

Otto Froitzheim and Otto Kreuze were the two German representatives, and they and the British team were having a splendid time, revelling in America's traditional hospitality, as the war clouds gathered over Europe and the shadow of them began to fall upon the United States.

There was indeed, some speculation as to whether the Australasia-Germany match would be able to take place. For, though Britain had not at that time become a belligerent (the contest ended on Sept. 1, three days before the British entered the war), Froitzheim and Kreuzer were both in the German army reserve, the former as an officer, and they felt it their duty to ask their Consul at Pittsburgh for advice as to whether they should remain to play or go home.

One can imagine the relief of the American lawn tennis organiser, who had built big stands around the court and sold hundreds of seats for the game, when the Consul said it was O.K. for the Germans to carry on.

In the sequel, the Italian liner in which the Germans were going home was intercepted by a British warship and Froitzheim and Kreuzer were interned at Gibraltar before being brought as prisoners to England.

On Service

Of the British team, Algernon Kingscote had to leave the United States before the match with Australasia—he was a gunner in the regular army—but J. C. Parke, A. H. Lowe, and T. M. Mavrogordato stayed on to play, returning directly after to England, where they became military officers. All, as you know, figured prominently in lawn tennis after the war ended in 1918.

As to the Australasians in that company of the lawn tennis giants of those days, Norman Brookes (now Sir Norman Brookes, President of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association), became the Australian Red Cross representative at Cairo in 1915 and was subsequently appointed an honorary Lieutenant-Colonel of the Royal Army Medical Corps, stationed in London; but Tony Wilding—beau ideal as an all-round athlete, model of physical fitness and one of the very greatest lawn tennis players the world ever saw—fell in action in France after outstandingly gallant service with the armoured cars.

Such were the circumstances attending the suspension of Davis Cup play from the end of 1914 until the threads of international sport could be picked up again in 1919. In those days, lawn tennis, though growing fast, was relatively a small thing.

Today it has conquered the world. And it is indeed comprehensive international following which deplores the war-occasioned abandonment for an unknown period of a competition that has done an enormous amount to make the game as widely popular as it is.

INDIANS HOLD SCANTY LEAD; TIGERS CLOSE

Yanks Prove Serious Threat In American League Battle; Cubs Down Cincinnati Leaders

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—The battle royal for the leadership in the American League standings waged more furiously than ever today with all three leading teams winning their games to leave the standings unchanged.

The Detroit Tigers, in a theoretical tie with the Cleveland Indians for top berth honors, defeated the St. Louis Browns 5 to 4 in a hard fought game in Detroit.

The Indians meanwhile were disposing of the Chicago White Sox in an eleven inning game by a score of 5 to 4. The Indians scored in the second extra inning to save their grip on the league leadership.

Meanwhile, the New York Yankees remained close at the heels of the two leaders by defeating Boston 9 to 4. Joe Gordon led the Yankee attack with a homer in the first inning, a single in the second, a triple in the fourth, a double in the fifth and two walks.

The Brooklyn Dodgers intensified their pennant drive in the National League by winning two games while the league-leading Cincinnati Reds were dropping a 3 to 1 decision to the Chicago Cubs.

The Dodgers took both ends of a twin bill from their arch rivals, the New York Giants. The New Yorkers dropped the opener 7 to 2 but battled the Dodgers eleven innings in the nightcap before falling behind 4 to 2.

The slugging match of the day was presented in St. Louis where the Pittsburgh Pirates finally crushed the Cardinals 16 to 14. The Pirates collected 21 hits off six St. Louis twirlers while five Pirate pitchers were yielding 15 hits to the Red Birds.

Johnny Mize of the Cardinals set a new major league record by hitting three home runs in one game, boosting his season's total to 41.

Vichy to Pay 50,000,000 Francs for Troop Upkeep

Domei Tsushin

VICHY, Sept. 12—The Petain Government today approved the opening of a special fund of 50,000,000 francs held by the Bank of France as a part payment to Germany for the maintenance of Nazi troops in France since the armistice on June 25.

TOKYO OFFICIALS GIVE APPROVAL TO HUGE RECREATIONAL PROGRAM

A ¥20,000,000 recreation program for Tokyo has been agreed on by Mayor Tomejiro Okubo and other municipality representatives, according to the Nichi Nichi.

They have selected numerous cities for the athletic fields which will be used for not only recreation purposes but physical training and collective drills.

The largest will be at Mizonokuchi, Kawasaki City, Kanagawa Prefecture. The field will contain approximately 1,500,000 square yards.

In Tokyo proper there will be 10 new recreation centers in widely located districts. The fields will contain from 20,000 to 60,000 square yards.

The recreation program also calls for the selection of some sites near the ocean.

The proposed increased recreation facilities were started in the interest of spiritual and physical development of Tokyo.

The large-scale program is expected to be completed by 1947. Tokyo officials decided to start the work this year in commemoration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese Empire.

The program will be financed by national treasury funds, national bonds and donations.

MEIJI DEFEATS HOSEI STUDENTS IN 11TH INNING

Waseda Beats Rikkyo 5-2 in Other College League Game at Stadium Sunday

A capacity crowd witnessed the two favorites, Meiji and Waseda defeat Hosei and Rikkyo, respectively, at the Meiji Jingu Stadium Sunday.

In the Meiji-Hosei game the two teams battled for eleven innings before Meiji showed across a run.

Hikakoshi for Meiji opened the eleventh by drawing a walk Ohki promptly sacrificed. Ito drew a walk and Yasui made the second out lining out to rightfield. Hikakoshi advanced to third after the catch. With two outs and the winning run on third H. Kato tapped weakly to short. Shortstop Ikeda first made a motion to throw to second for a force-out but changing his mind and threw hurriedly to first. The throw was bad and the runner was safe. Thus an error enabled Meiji to rake the ball game.

WEAK IN PINCHES

The game was a keen battle between pitcher Morishita and Fujimoto. While Hosei garned eleven hits, in the pinches they failed miserably as they left twelve teammates on the bases.

In the fifth, with the score tied at one all, Hosei with two hits and a base on balls filled the bases. However, the next two men struck out and the third tapped weakly for a force-out.

In the seventh Fukui of Hosei unloaded a mighty triple in deep center field to score Murakami who had taken first on four balls. Thus the Hosei boys took the lead but only momentarily as Meiji came right back to even the count by shoving across a run on two hits and a base on balls.

MORISHITA STARS

Morishita who pitched the entire game was in beautiful form and held the Meiji nine to but eight hits. Hayashi, the starting Meiji pitcher, was relieved in the fifth inning by Kodama who then proceeded to get out of several tight spots to earn the victory. Fukui, the Hosei catcher, was the batting star of the game by getting four for six while Harada for Meiji was the only Meiji man to garner more then one hit.

In the first game between Waseda and Rikkyo, the defense of the Rikkyo boys cracked wide open and the Waseda boys shoved across five runs to take the game.

RIKKYO LED FIRST

Rikkyo took the lead in the second inning by shoving across two runs on two hits, two walks and an error. For the next three innings neither team made a threat to score and only in the sixth was Meiji able to put together anything that resembled a hit. Until then, Meiji had but three hits. In the sixth two hits and some good base running put across the five runs.

The sixth opened with two base on balls followed by a hit and an error which netted two runs. Another error and a base on balls followed by a hit an error scored three runs.

Pitcher Saigo held the Waseda nine to but five hits while Rikkyo took eight from Ishiguro.

SAUDA GETS NOD OVER KID KONGO IN FAST 10-ROUNDER AT HIBIYA

Motomichi Sauda survived the fury of a closing rally by Kid Iwao Kongo to take the decision in a close hard-fought ten-round bout Saturday night at the Hibiya Amphitheater.

Had Kid Kongo shown more accuracy in his aggressive attack from the start, the decision might have been reversed. As it was, when the fighters elected to slug it out, Kid Sauda was the more accurate puncher and scored the cleaner blows.

From the start, Kid Kongo took the offense but each time he slashed out with his fists, Sauda, counter punching while back-stepping and side-stepping, scored hard, damaging blows. As early as they second round, in the exchange of rights and lefts, Sauda momentarily dazed Kongo with a hard right to the head. Kongo, however, kept boring in and while throwing more punches, missed too often. On the other hand, Sauda rarely wasted his blows and continued piling up points.

STILL TRIES

In the eighth round, Kongo, seemingly still hoping to land one knock-out blow, intensified his rushing, aggressive tactics. While Sauda still continued to counter punch with the same accuracy, Kongo kept after him and landed several hard lefts and rights to the head and face to take the round.

The last round was Kongo's best shot. He rushed Sauda, drove him to a neutral corner and peppered him with a furious two-fisted attack. Sauda, though never in serious trouble, countered poorly and threw but a few punches which were wild, clearly losing the round.

While the closing rush by Kid Kongo brought the crowd to its feet, the early points scored by Sauda gave him a slight lead and the decision.

BLOODY BATTLE

In another ten-round bout, a bloody affair Shintaro Yamada, 124 pounds punched his way to a decision over Toshiro Aoki, 124 pounds.

Entering the ring with a patch over his right eye Yamada presented a target which Aoki immediately attacked and drew blood in the first round. From then on throughout the fight Yamada was a bloody figure, however, his effectiveness to punch seemed to be heightened with the taste of blood and he gave Aoki a beating.

Aoki first tasted Yamada's fast left jab in the closing minute of the first round. This punch jab thrown from a crouch, caught Aoki squarely on the chin and Aoki clearly showed that it hurt. In the second round, evidently spurred by his success in the previous round, Yamada rushed Aoki but a nicely thrown left to the face by Aoki stopped Yamada's attack cold. For the remainder of the round Aoki had the upper hand and easily took the round.

KEEPS DEFENSIVE

For the next three rounds Yamada, his face still showing blood kept lashing out with his rapier-like left. These punches hurt Aoki and seemed to puzzled him that he kept on the defense only counter punching when forced.

In the eighth Aoki started an offensive and by landing with a long right to the head followed by left and rights to the mid-section took the round. In the ninth both fighters slowed down and seemed to be coasting along for the final round.

The tenth opened with both fighters slugging it out toe-to-toe, here again Yamada showed greater speed in the exchange of blows and had the better of it. Particularly his left jabs scored heavily on Aoki's face. In the closing seconds Aoki resorted to long lefts and rights to Yamada's body.

PRELIMINARIES FAST

In the six-round semi-final T. Nakamura, 104 threw the greater number of punches to take the decision over S. Kin, 110. Both fighters, from the opening round, were out to take the offensive. While neither fighter possessed a punch hard enough to do much damage, Nakamura scored oftener with a body attack.

In the preliminaries, over the six-round route, E. Izumi, 128 scored a TKO over Kiyoshi Amemiya in the last round, when the referee stopped the fight.

In the four rounders, M. Yoshida, 103 and N. Tomimoto, 113 fought to a draw, while K. Ohba, 118 took the decision over M. Hanada, 117.

JERRY DAVIS' CHINOOK WINS SUNDAY'S RACE

Season's Best Sailing Breeze Aids Yokohama Yacht Club Skippers; Dinner Dance Held

Described by Commodore Cyril Harden as the best day's sailing this season, Sunday's race for the much-delayed July Cup of the Yokohama Yacht Club produced hard competition in a stiff breeze in which crews received an occasional shower. The cup was won by Mr. Jerry Davis co-owner of Chinook, the victory being acclaimed as most popular, as Miss Vi Woodbridge had sailed continuously and well to bring the Canadian "breeze" into first place. On this day she had surrendered the tiller to her partner and crewed with Mrs. Davis. The race was also the fifth points competition, so Chinook will pile up counters for the season's tally.

Shamrock kept up the Laffin tradition by crossing the line first, with Chinook close behind and the Commodore's sloop Vinga in third place. But Shamrock's skipper, Mr. Frank Harris, carried a time handicap of two per cent, and Mr. Harden was scratch. On corrected time, Mr. Max Pestalozzi was second, Mr. Harden third.

MOONLIGHT DINNER SUCCESS

Another of the monthly moonlight dinners which have proved so attractive to members and their friends was held Saturday evening with more than 100 guests enjoying an abundant spread, with good weather and cheery music. After 11 o'clock fourteen hardy members played water polo to a score of 1-1.

Commodore Harden announced that the Ladies' Race will be held next Sunday. Ten boats are ready to enter, all yearning for the delicate attention of fair skippers. The method of securing their male crews is likely to cause serious and complicated consideration. It is explained this way: Owners will want to act as crews, but the ladies may have other ideas. Most delicate is the diplomacy required to adjust this business. The week will decide the matter. It is to be noted that the club contains a variety of nationalities which brings out the sporting and friendly angles.

KOBE INDIANS DRUB YOKOHAMA CRICKET TEAM

Gosalia and Thakordas Star In Opening Match of Season For Hamilton Holmes Trophy

In a cricket match played on the recreation field in Kobe over the weekend the Indians sports club of Kobe won the first match in this years series for the Hamilton Holmes trophy by defeating a weak Y. C. and A. C. eleven by an innings and 148 runs.

The I. S. C. winning the toss opened the innings at 11:45 p.m. The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club met with an early success when Foggitt held a mishit from Mahtani before a run had been scored. Runs thereafter came slowly and three wickets fell before Gosalia and Thakordas entered into a partnership which proved the decisive phase of the game. These two players added 103 runs to the score by vigorous and scientific cricket before Gosalia was sent back by a good ball from Foggitt. Thakordas continued his innings until his score reached 102 not out, his last fifty runs being scored in thirty five minutes. The I.S.C. then declared, leaving the Y.C. and A.C. one and three quarters of an hour to bat before stumps were drawn.

BOWLING WEAK

The losers were handicapped by insufficient bowling strength since only three of their regular bowlers were able to make the journey. Lysons came out with the best average with three wickets for 46 while Stephens and Foggitt worked hard under adverse conditions. The fielding was patchy, a number of catches being missed which might have been held. Devin, however, showed a good standard of fielding throughout, his work on the leg side evoking applause from a considerable crowd on a number of occasions.

The Y.C. and A.C. opened their innings at 3.30 p.m. and were soon in difficulties against the skillful bowling of Gosalia and Yusuf. Bull was caught by Gosalia in the slips with only two runs scored, and Grosfils followed almost immediately, stepping across to a straight one from Gosalia. Wickets continued to fall quickly and when stumps were drawn, nine wickets had fallen for 34 runs, Lysons alone reaching double figures. All the later batsmen were in trouble with Ali Akbar, who maintained a fine turn of speed from the K.R. and A.C. pavilion end.

TRAILED 194 RUNS

The innings ended, directly play commenced the next morning, Tomlinson being bowled by Ali Akbar's first ball. The Y.C. followed on 194 runs behind and fared little better in their second venture. Gosalia and Ali Akbar continued to bowl well and none of the batsmen appeared to be comfortable against them. Hopes were raised for a short time when Stephens and Bird became associated but Stephens was run out when the audacious Bird called for a short run. Seven wickets had then fallen for 18 runs and the end was almost in sight. Then Bird by steady play and Harriss by less conventional methods raised the score to 44 when the latter was well held at mid-on and the innings closed shortly afterwards. For the Indian Sports Club Gosalia had the best bowling average taking nine wickets for 29 runs in the two innings. Ali Akbar also bowled well accounting for eight wickets for thirty runs.

KAYO SASAZAKI AND LOJNIKOFF MEET THURSDAY

Slam-Bang Battle Looms When Favorites Tangle At Hibiya Amphitheater

One of the best fight cards in recent weeks looms Thursday night at the Hibiya Amphitheater when Paul Lojnikoff, the Russian light weight from Shanghai faces Ko Sasazaki in the ten-round main event.

Lojnikoff in his first fight here a month ago made a fine showing by drawing with Ryushin Boku, a veteran fighter. He also made a hit with the fans with his clean aggressive style of fighting.

In meeting with Sasazaki, the pride of the Nippon Boxing Club, the Russian will be meeting a tough and clever fighter. Sasazaki is known for his whirlwind attack and has a long string of victories over top-notch fighters.

In the semi-final six-round, Soichi Maruyama will square off with Kazuo Ishida, the up-and-coming young fighter from the Fujii Boxing Club.

Five six-rounders and one four-rounder are slated for the preliminary bouts. They are Kin Shak-kin vs. H. Umee, T. Hoshino vs. J. Ohtaka, H. Asano vs. H. Oki and C. Futaba vs. M. Wakahara. In a four-rounder A. Takashima will meet T. Kanazawa.

Destroyers To Be Used in War on Subs

United Press

HALIFAX, Sept. 8—The 50 over-age destroyers obtained from the United States in return for naval and air bases in British territories in the Western Hemisphere will be used in an intensive drive against German submarines. Rear-Admiral Steward Bonham-Carter, Commander of British north Atlantic operations, revealed here yesterday.

He said he did not know when the transfer of the destroyers would take place, but said it would be done without ceremony. British captains will board the ships and take over command of them in American ports and their flags will be changed, he said.

"The ships will be used almost exclusively to hunt submarines," he declared. "The British Navy is short of destroyers and these ships will remedy that shortness. They are magnificent ships and in perfect condition. They are equal to our VNW's and to any ships we are getting."

GERMANS SEE GOOD HARVEST

Reich Expects to Have Good Surplus; Potato, Grain, Beet Supply Up

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 16—The prospects of the German grain and potato and sugarbeet harvest will allow Germany to put aside larger quantities for stock purposes than during the last year.

With a total output of butter estimated at more than 700,000 tons Germany's requirements may be regarded as absolutely secured against any blockade attempt.

The progress of Germany's maize cultivation further improved Germany's fodder situation so that the government program of fattening an additional number of pigs will not meet any difficulties. The tobacco harvest is going on in all tobacco growing parts of Germany and is promising good results with regards to quantity as well as to quality.

Reports coming in during the past weeks from the brown coal districts also reveal an increase in the production of briquets of which not only German but also foreign concumers will benefit.

During the past week the academy for graphic arts opened in Leipzig an institute for colored photography, which apart from its importance in general also will serve for the training of expert photographers.

A report issued on the number of subscribers of radios shows an increase in the month of June of 61,000 new subscribers, while this month was generally marked by a drop of subscribers in other countries. Since the outbreak of this war the number of German radio subscribers went up enormously and has now reached nearly 50 million.

The favorable development of the German capital market during the last week was proved by the exchange transaction of bonds of 4½ per cent into bonds of 4 per cent for a period of 20 years, which action proved very successfully.

INDIANS SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER WITH YANKEES

Tigers Best Boston to Take League Lead; Dizzy Dean In Six Hit Game Comeback

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—A crowd of 34,000 baseball fans went wild here yesterday when the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians split a twin bill to enable the Detroit Tigers to take the American loop lead by a half game margin over the Tribe.

During the opener, irate Indian fans directed a barrage of lemons, tomatoes, bananas and pop bottles at the Yankees.

In the National League, Dizzy Dean, Chicago Cubs hurlet, made an impressive big league comeback in the nightcap, by holding the second place Brooklyn Dodgers to six hits, while his cronies brought in two runs. In the opener, Claude Passeau pitched his 18th win, walking off the field with the board recording a tally of 8-5.

INTO LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 9—The Detroit Tigers moved into top position in the American League today without raising a finger.

The Tigers were thanking the Chicago White Sox last night for administering a 2-1 defeat to the erstwhile league leaders, the Cleveland Indians. The defeat toppled the Indians down into second position and enabled the Tigers, who were not scheduled to play today, to move into the honor berth without playing an inning.

The Brooklyn Dodgers meanwhile saw their pennant drive in the National League suffer a setback at the hands of their ancient rivals, the New York Giants. The Giants whipped the aggressive Dodgers 7-4 after a bad first inning. Mel Ott drove in three of the Giant runs and Gee Walker added punching power with five hits in five trips to the plate.

No other games were scheduled in either league today.

LONDON CLAIMED SERIOUSLY HIT BY REICH RAIDS

German News Service Tells Why Capital Bombings Are Stressed; Trade Disappears

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 16—The German attacks are especially directed against London, because London is not only important for Britain's war armaments but because it is the center of the British industry.

A very high percentage of all working people of the country are employed there. One quarter of all British supply industries are situated in London as well as half of all the establishments for provisioning England like storage houses for food.

One third of all British imports and exports pass through London's port, one quarter of the British engineering industry is domiciled in London and the metropolis is of the greatest importance for the armament industry, particularly for the production of balloons, airplane accessories and tank motors. In addition within the London area there are gun factories largest powder and explosive works.

HARBOR IS LARGEST

With its 55 kilometers of quays London is the biggest harbor in the world. London's share in the imports of England is very high. London petrol depots, which comprise about one fourth of all depots in England, are of particular importance for Britain's armaments and the biggest petrol depots are situated in Thameshaven and Shellhaven. Also oil refineries are within London's industrial area.

As a traffic center London is also of the greatest importance. All important railway lines and highways start from London as well as the telegraph and telephone lines.

This brief review may show the great effect which the German bombing raids will have on England. The German army bulletins speak only of bombardments, which have taken place but whoever knows the power of the German attacks and the destructive effect of the German fighting means can imagine the effect of the German bombings for Britain's economic life. The decay has also the most serious consequences for the whole empire.

LOSING TRADE

The possibilities of selling goods are growing smaller. While prices in England are rising constantly. Wholesale prices have risen by 37 per cent from the end of August 1939, to the end of August 1940. The prices for export goods in the countries of the empire are dropping incessantly.

In Canada, for instance, sale difficulties with regards to wheat of the last year's harvest are existing. Canada still has 285,000,000 bushels of wheat of the last year's crop. The crop of this year is estimated at 561,000,000 bushels, which is 71,500,000 bushels more than in the preceding year. Canada will thus have on hand 864,000,000 bushels of wheat, export possibilities of which are estimated at 175,000,000 bushels only. This not only shows the difficulty of the empire countries with regard to the selling possibilities but also throws some light on the situation of the farmers.

FOUR AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAMS STILL IN RACE

Cleveland Has Scant Lead; Cincinnati Nearly Certain National Pennant Winners

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—With only two weeks remaining of the major league baseball season, the league-leading Cincinnati Reds looked almost certain to clinch their second consecutive National League pennant as they held a nine game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers today.

The New York Giants, who have been slipping continually since mid-season, today dropped another notch into sixth place when the Chicago Cubs replaced them.

An entirely different picture is presented in the American League where the Cleveland Indians, braced by the youthful pitching star, Bob Feller, and the new keystone combination of Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau, held a scant one-game margin over Detroit Tigers.

The rest of the first division teams are bunched closely together with the third place Yankee fighting desperately to overcome a three and a half game difference for first place, while the Chicago White Sox climbed out the second division to within a half game of the Yankees at the expense of the Boston Red Sox.

DEFEND MARGIN
United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 12—The Detroit Tigers defended their slim hold on first place in the American League standing today by turning back the third-place New York Yankees by a score of 6 to 3.

The second place Cleveland Indians continued to snap at the heels of the Tigers by defeating Boston 8 to 1.

The Yankees brought their heavy guns into action against the Tigers, but failed to click in the pinches. Out-hit 11 to 9, the Tigers bunched their hits for twice as many runs as the erstwhile world champions were able to collect.

The best performance of the day in the National League was turned in by the Brooklyn Dodgers who won a doubleheader from the Pittsburgh Pirates. The hero of the day was Bill Casey of the Dodgers who shut out the Pirates in the opener, 7 to 0, and yielded only three hits. Casey also came in as relief pitcher late in the nightcap to win that game 7 to 4.

Japanese Name Taken By Russo Baseball Star

While the new national structure wave is hitting everywhere, professional baseball circles today actually experienced a new structure when Victor Stalphin, 23-year pitcher for the Giants announced the adoption of the Japanese name, says Domei.

The Hokkaido-born Russian baseball player hereafter will be known as "Hiroshi Suda," and the familiar katakana-written Russian name will disappear from the score board.

Tides Are Favorable For German Invasion

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Weather Bureau records indicate that the tides off the south-east coast of England would favor Germany if she attempts an invasion of the British Isles in the next few days.

High water is on the beaches early in the morning and the moon, increasing in brightness, will be full Monday. Yesterday morning's high tide reached its peak at London Bridge at 12:16 a.m. G.M.T. and about a half hour earlier on the coast. In the next few days, high tide will come about an hour later daily until 5:24 a.m., September 21.

STERLING HAILS U.S. ACCORD WITH CANADA

Intelligent Advance Planning For Unseen Developments Urged by Retired Admiral

By REAR-ADM. YATES STIRLING, JR., U.S.N., (Retired)
United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 10—The agreement between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada for a joint defense board would seem to open the way for an eventual defensive alliance with Canada if the two nations should wish to enter into such a pact.

The President and the Prime Minister for the present apparently intend to limit their military cooperation to exchanges of information and the formulation of joint defense plans by representatives of the armed forces of each country.

ADVANCING PLANNING

There is a great deal of work to be done and in my judgement it is of first importance that we have recognized the fact and at last are on the way to substitute intelligent advance planning for precipitate and unplanned action which has caused us many difficulties in the past.

To envisage what the joint board already is facing in its study of mutual sea, land and air defense problems, one has only to look at the map. Georgaphically Canada is a part of the United States so far as matters of defense are concerned, and our military leaders have long recognized that fact.

The matter, however, is more than geographical, and if the joint board is to render the greatest service, it will have to consider industrial cooperation, joint planning in such matters as transportation and the placing of air fields, the development of electric power and kindred matters.

Fortunately, American relations with Canada have always been extremely close and friendly. The two countries have a common political viewpoint on many questions and in many ways their interests are reciprocal and non-competitive.

Germany's attacks on Britain are increasing in intensity and it is entirely within the realm of possibility that Canada may find her world position affected by the present terrific Teutonis attacks on the British Isles.

It may be significant that the Roosevelt-Mackenzie King agreement followed the declaration by Germany of a total blockade of the British Isles and unlimited sea and air warfare all about Britain with the exception of Irish territorial waters.

This declaration one would judge, is designed to put Germany within the rules of international law by warning neutrals that mines will be strewn in certain steamship lanes and that the Germans will attack every ship that enters the blockade zone.

In point of fact, the German announcement merely regularizes a situation which has prevailed for some time, for the Germans began sinking neutral ships in British waters soon after the war started. It may be that Adolf Hitler now wishes to convey the idea that he has the upper hand and that his siege will soon subdue the British.

Nothing in the struggle between the two great belligerents, however, has been altered by the declaration for both have been conducting total war in which the rights of neutrals got little consideration.

HASTEN SHIP TRANSFER

One effect of the German declaration, however, was to hasten the transfer of 50 overage United States destroyers to Britain in return for naval and air bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere. These craft were badly needed by the British to fight the intensified German submarine and air attacks.

It is just possible that Hitler's blockade move was influenced in some measure by the difficulties he has been encountering in his air siege of Britain. That the German air force has suffered large losses cannot be questioned. So far, despite its supremacy, it has not been able to drive British planes from the skies or to clear a way for a "bridgehead" which would enable German troops to be landed for a general invasion of the British Isles.

Hitler may foresee a long siege and one in which submarine and surface craft will play a role similar to that now being played by planes.

Philippines Will Bolster Defenses

United Press

MANILA, Sept. 13—President Manuel Quezon today ordered the strengthening of military defenses at Mindanao following unprecedented conferences with the U.S. High Commissioner to the Philippines, Francis B. Sayre, and the Commander of the Philippine Department of the U.S. Army, Major General George Grunert, yesterday.

Unconfirmed reports said Philippine Army forces at Mindanao would be increased substantially and higher ranking Philippine Army officers will be placed in command of southern island's defenses.

Reliable quarters said President Quezon and General Grunert have formulated a program for dealing with alleged fifth columnists, chiefly in Mindanao, which is the second largest island in the Philippine group.

SPEAKER TELLS GERMANY'S ROLE

Reichsmark Will Be Chief Currency in Economic Setup, Thinks Secretary

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 17—In his opening at the Cologne fall fair the Secretary of State, Dr. Landfried, spoke about Germany's leading role in the post war period of Europe. The German Reichsmark, he stated would be the leading currency. The new order in Europe, Dr. Landfried declared, would be directed by the Axis Powers.

Not only the internal European exchange of goods from the East to the West were passing through Germany, but Berlin also would be the center for European clearings. Today ten countries were using the advantages of multilateral trade via Berlin. Via the German Italian clearing all payments were being made between Italy on the one hand and Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway and Luxemburg on the other hand. The clearing of the Netherlands with Jugoslavia is taking place via Berlin. Negotiations with Hungary and Greece on the one side and the Northern countries on the other side are in progress. A number of other countries are considering participating in this multilateral clearing system. With this system of payments, in the words of Dr. Landfried, the way will be free for a happy and peaceful Europe that can open its doors to the trade of the world and toward the benefit of all peoples of the world.

ROME STATES RELATIONS WITH EGYPT NORMAL

Italian Spokesman Says British Forced Egyptians To Enter Present War

D.N.B.

ROME, Sept. 17—The opening of the offensive by Italy against British troops in Egypt and the crossing of the Egyptian frontier by Italian troops has not brought about any change in the relations between Italy and Egypt, in the opinion of competent Italian quarters.

At the press conference here on Monday the official spokesman read a statement expressing this view. The statement declares that Italy still realizes that the Government of Egypt were powerless and the friendly feeling of the Italian people toward the Egyptians remained unchanged.

The statement then once more refers to the declaration of the Duce of June 10, in which Italy's attitude toward Egypt was defined and stresses that this attitude still remains the same as was defined at that time by the Duce. The statement then enumerates the British attacks from Egypt on Italian territory from June 11 up to the present time. The fact that England used Egyptian territory for attacks on Italy justified the Italian offensive against Egyptian territory.

The statement then points out that, while according to the terms of the Anglo-Egyptian military alliance pact of 1936, Egypt had the right to demand British assistance in the event of attacks on her territory, Egypt was not committed by that pact to place her entire territory at England's disposal as a base for attacks.

The fact that England had converted the whole of Egypt into a base for aggressive military operations had anulled the Anglo-Egyptian military pact. Egypt's note to Italy announcing the rupture of diplomatic relations between the two countries as well as the statements of Egyptian statesmen on the rupture of the diplomatic relations between the two countries had stressed that Egypt had been compelled to take such a step.

These queer conditions practically without precedent in the international law, which had arisen from this situation, since the Egyptian Government had been powerless to prevent the highhanded British actions on Egyptian territory, had brought about the necessity for Italy to start an offensive against Egyptian territory.

BRITAIN SEEKS S.A. COMMERCE

German Authorities Claim Outlook Is Poor; Recall Argentina Suffered Heavy

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 13—The British overseas trade ministry has made an official statement that two representatives of the United Kingdom Commercial Corporation will go to South America for the purpose of promoting mutual trade relations.

Almost simultaneously with this news comes the report from South America that England's trade with these countries declined considerably and is confronted by new difficulties.

The press of Argentina states that the decline in British imports is due to England's lack of raw materials and to her shipping difficulties. Furthermore, the purchasing power of Argentina for foreign goods has also declined, since large quantities of the domestic production of agriculture like maize, wheat etc. cannot be sold.

England's dropping out as a purchaser of Argentine agricultural products has led the Argentine Government to the destruction of 7,000,000 tons of maize, which could not be sold. England's loss as a supplier may also be seen in the coal market. England cannot supply Argentina with coal because of lack of shipping space. Today Argentina finds it much cheaper to import coal from the U.S.A.

Reports in the British press about the woolen and textile markets of Manchester and Bradford show that British textile exports to South American markets have declined and will continue to decline. It is thus quite obvious that the representatives of the Commercial Corporation, who are being sent to South America, will not be able to eliminate the difficulties, which stand in the way of the trade between England and the South American countries.

ENGLISH-SPEAKING COLLABORATION SEEN

Pennsylvania Congressman Predicts Time Near for All to Band Together

United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—Charles I. Faddis, Pennsylvania Democratic Representative and high ranking member of the House Military Affairs Committee, told the United Press yesterday that "the time is not far distant when all English-speaking peoples must band together militarily to meet the threat of Totalitarian Powers."

Mr. Faddis, a Lieutenant Colonel in the infantry during the Great War, recommended the United States to undertake military discussions with Australia like the current United States-Canadian defense talks. Any threat to Australia, he declared, would constitute a menace to the United States and the Western Hemisphere.

"We must actively oppose any aggressive move against Australia or other areas of the Pacific, including the Dutch East Indies," Mr. Faddis said. "We should oppose any move by Japan while she is still involved in other regions."

He said he believed greater economic cooperation with the British Empire would logically follow military understandings. He said it might be advisable to obtain bases on islands stretching across the south Pacific to Australia as stepping stones for United States aircraft, including bases on the French Society groups, which is nearest the Western Hemisphere, with Tahiti the administrative center. Tahiti recently adhered to the leader of the French National Committee in London, General Charles de Gaulle, according to reports from London.

The most important lesson the present European war has taught the United States, Mr. Faddis said, is the necessity for obtaining numerous strong off-shore bases.

UNKNOWN MAN HEADS NATIONAL LEAGUE HITTERS

Gleeson of Cubs Advances From 11th Place: Newsom, Fitzsimmons Top Pitchers

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Staging a spectacular climb from the 11th place he held a week ago, Jimmy Gleeson, star outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, plummeted into the lead of the National League batting averages as of Thursday.

He thus overtook Walker, the erstwhile leader, who registered a heavy slump last week. Gleeson now is hitting along at a .331 clip.

Johnny Mize, home run king of the Major League, continued to pace his section. His addition of three 4-baggers—which sent his total to 41—was brought about by a spectacular performance last week when he clouted out three homers in one game.

Both leaders in the hurling statistics won an additional game each, and lost none. Fred Fitzsimmons now heads National League pitching with 14 games won and two lost, while Buch Newsom's victory list now adds up to 18.

Explosion in U.S. Laid to Sun Spots

Domei Tsushin

ROME, Sept. 15—The noted Italian seismologist, Dr. Raffaelo Bandandi, announced today that the recent explosion in Kenvil, New Jersey, plant of the Hercules Powder Company was caused by sun spots.

Dr. Bandandi, who recently predicted that sun spots would disrupt international communications this week, said that sun spots generate ultra-violet rays which cause explosives with which to come into contact to "warm up."

He said there had been numerous explosions throughout the world recently, most of them caused by sun spots.

More than 50 persons were killed and several hundred others injured in the Kenvil explosion last week. American secret agents have suspected sabotage rather than sun spots.

Dick Chapman Wins U.S. Amateur Golf Championship

United Press

MAMARONECK, New York, Sept. 14—In one of the most smashing triumphs in the 44-year history of the classic, Dick Chapman, local golfer, won the National Amateur Golf Championship here yesterday.

Chapmen swept Duff McCullough from the final to win 11 up and nine to go.

Not since the tournament was inaugurated in 1895 had such a wide margin of victory been registered.

Chapman, who was a hot favorite, principally because he was playing on his home course, ended the morning round four up. In the afternoon he did the first nine holes in 33—three under par—halved the 23rd and won the remaining eight.

Chapman was in brilliant form, his putting being devastating. He sunk 20-footers regularly.

The team is composed of Manager Kiyoshi Inouye, and six athletes, Jiro Shimada, S. Mine, Kiyoshi Tamaki, Koichiro Oda, Noboru Ishida and Munetaka Matsubara.

BRITISH TAKE ITALIAN OFF PHILIPPINES SHIP

Engineer Was Training Filipino Crew on Vessel

Domei Tsushin

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14—A British warship today halted the Philippines freighter Dona Aurora, 115 miles west of San Francisco and removed an Italian engineer, Angelo Gottardes.

The Italian will be interned somewhere in Canada for the duration of the European war, a British officer told the captain of the Dona Aurora.

The Italian engineer was reported to have been employed by an Italian shipbuilding firm which sold the Dona Aurora to a Manila company. He was said to have been aboard the ship as an instructor to the Filipino crew.

The Dona Aurora was boarded by a British naval party, which located the Italian after a thorough search of the ship.

CHINESE YOUTH ADOPT PLATFORM

Peking Ground Clarifies Stand on Both Foreign And Domestic Questions

Domei Tsushin

PEKING, Sept. 17—The Chinese Young Men's Party, powerful youth organization in North China, this afternoon published a declaration, clarifying its attitude toward both foreign and domestic questions.

Regarding the relation with Japan, the Party stressed the perfection of "a sphere of mutual prosperity among East Asiatic races" and collaboration with Japan in the political, economic, military and cultural fields for the accomplishment of that objective.

Expressing full support of the recent statement of the Konoye Cabinet, the Party, in its declaration, advocated closer collaboration between the Japanese and Chinese people.

As to relations with third Powers, it resolved to cooperate with "anti-Comintern" nations and strengthen the anti-Red front with those Powers.

The Party also decided to direct efforts for the denunciation of all unequal treaties between China and foreign Powers, abolishment of the consular jurisdiction, withdrawal of foreign concessions and complete restoration of territorial integrity of China.

With the purpose of strengthening the anti-Comintern front in East Asia, the Party advocated early recognition of Manchoukuo and cooperation with that country.

Other points clarified in the declaration included closer cooperation in the future with the Hsinmin Hui (New People's Association), complete destruction of the Communist Party, and struggle against the Kuomintang in Chungking which has been obstinately continuing the anti-Japanese hostilities.

The Party also decided to keep its eyes on the newly formed National Government in Nanking and its future policies.

Mongolia to Help Traders

When in Hollywood Porter lives in a beach house on the ocean but does most of his creative work in a penthouse atop the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. Born in Peru, Indiana, he is a graduate of Yale and has spent almost as much of his life abroad as he has in this country.

Cattle Smuggling Causes Mongol Government Grief

Domei Tsushin

KALGAN, Sept 17—With a view to preventing the smuggling of cattle out of Mongolia, the Mongolian Government has decided to strengthen the penal regulations of the existing cattle exoprt law.

Violators of the forthcoming penal regulations will be met by a penal servitude of less than one year or a fine of less than 3,000 yuan.

MANCHOUKUO HONORS INCIDENT WAR DEAD

Prince Kitashirakawa Rites Are Also Observed by Nation

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, Sept. 18—The ninth anniversary of the outbreak of the Manchuria Incident was observed today throughout Manchoukuo.

On the occasion grand regular rites in autumn were solemnized to propiliate the 105,751 loyal dead who have been enshrined in the nine war monuments in Manchoukuo.

Since the funeral services were also held today for the late H.I.H. Prince Nagahisa Kitashirakawa who was killed in Inner Mongolia, all the nation of Manchoukuo expressed its condolence, hoisting black-draped flags

The East Asiatic National Meet which was originally scheduled under the auspices of the 26th centenary anniversary of founding the Japanese Empire, have been postponed to Thursday.

The enshrining rites of the "Kenkoku Churei" Shrine which was established at Nanling by His Majesty the Emperor of Manchoukuo in honor of spirits of those who sacrificed their lives to the founding of the Empire, was also put off until September 19.

Fascist Party Spokesman Says Germans Preparing

Domei Tsushin

ROME, Sept. 17—Germany will not launch its final attack against Britain until spring and will spend the winter preparing for it, Roberto Farinacci, semi-official spokesman for the Fascist Party, predicts in his newspaper, the Regime Fascista.

The writer emphasizes that Germany is following a plan similar to that employed against France, recalling that it took Germany nine months to prepare for its crushing attack against the French.

"Germany will attack only when she is sure of obtaining victory with the least bloodshed," the article states.

"In the war against France, Germany calmly let the winter pass for the purpose of preparing herself as might be necessary to attack and win in the spring. This will be repeated also in the war against England. Germany will unleash a decisive attack when the time is opportune and, above all, when she is able to win with the least possible sacrifice of human lives."

U.S. WAR OFFICE ASKS $300,000,000

To Speed up Plane Construction Program; Roosevelt Asks ¥1½ Billion

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—The War Department today asked Congress to appropriate an additional $300,000,000 to speed up the aircraft building program while the House of Representatives was considering the latest request by President Roosevelt for $1,602,000,000 for the War Department to set the military conscription machinery in motion.

More funds have been requested by the War Department in order to realize plans giving the Army Air Corps 25,000 planes and the Naval Air Force 10,000 aircraft before 1942.

The new appropriations, if available, will be used to provide additional facilities for 25 aircraft companies and to establish 24-hour shifts in all American aircraft factories.

Meanwhile, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Robert Hinckley, today described a recent request by President Roosevelt for $80,000,000 for the construction and improvement of U.S. airports as the first phase in a longrange plan designed to give the United States approximately 4,000 airports.

The program, he added, will include developments in Alaska, Hawaii and islands in the south Pacific as well as on the mainland. The construction work would be carried out in the next three years, he said.

Danish Trade Mission and others in the superb cast are Douglas Fowley, Lorna Gray, Bruce Bennett, John Tyrrell, Eddie Laughton, James Craig, Linda Winters, Beatrice Blinn and Don Beddoe.

For seven years Miss Dvorak has divided her time between domesticity and professional work. As the wife of Leslie Fenton, former film star and now a prominent director, she presides over a large estate in the San Fernando Valley on which walnuts, apricots, peaches and other products are grown with scientific attention.

In addition to her interest in "back to the soil" activities, Miss Dvorak includes music and dancing among her hobbies. She plays the piano and also writes music.

Ann Dvorak was born in New York City, coming to Hollywood when she was nine years old. She is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 110 pounds and has green eyes and brown hair.

BERLIN PRESS RIDICULES REPORTS OF TEMPELHOF AIRDROME BOMBING

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 18—Everyone of the four and one half million Berliners is called by the press of Berlin as a witness to the British claim to have destroyed Tempelhof airport in the course of bombing attacks Monday night. The Berliner newspapers declare that although the inhabitants of Berlin had to stay in the air raid shelters for a short while that night, not a single British plane reached Berlin. Not a single bomb explosion was heard that night in Berlin.

The paper "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" points out that all British reports about events that did not occur are usually meant to encourage the minds of the British reader saying, "The British Government obviously is of the opinion that the general decline of the morale of the British people on account of the devastating German bombardment of London can only be met by publishing false reports from time to time."

The paper "Berliner Boersenzeitung" asks whether there are people in England, who are able to see the gap, which actually exists between the reports published by the War Ministry about the British victory and the reports being delivered by those who were actually present at these "victories". The paper explains these English reports of such a character by the fact that Churchill wants to postpone as long as possible the moment, when "no one in the world will give a penny for England's future any more."

LAWN BOWLS TOURNAMENT PROGRESSING

Finalists Are Decided; Confinental Team Successful In International Matches

The annual lawn bowls tournament at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club has made much progress recently, two of the seven events having been concluded and most semi-finalists and some finalists in the other five being decided.

Miss T. Planas won the ladies' handicap singles, beating Miss W. Dunning in the final. The latter was also runner-up in the mixed doubles handicap with D. Dentici, this combination losing a close hard fought 22-19 match in the final round to Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici.

MEN'S SINGLES

In the men's championship singles K. F. Wiersum is one of the finalists, and will meet the winner of the W. A. Tomlinson versus G. E. Beatty semi-final match for the title.

P. H. Lord and Beatty have reached the finals in the men's championship doubles. M. L. Russell and F. R. Harriss will play D. E. Ross and B. Deveson to decide which pair will obtain the other position in the final bracket.

Wiersum is also a finalist in another event, the men's handicap singles, having beaten Lord on Sunday in one of the semi-final matches. The other finalist is Beatty, who beat H. S. G. Batter in the other semi-final.

R. A. Roberts and H. P. Kay will meet Lord and Beatty in one of the semi-final matches in the men's doubles handicap event, while R. E. Grosfils and D. Harvey will play R. G. Crane and S. R. Balden for the other place in the final bracket.

CONTINENTALS SUCCESSFUL

In the international tourney the Continental team has been most successful so far, having won all five matches they have played to date. This four, consisting of Miss Planas, D. Dentici, E. Dentici and Wiersum, has beaten the English, American, Scottish, Canadian and Portuguese quarters. The only team they have not yet met is the Born-in-Japan squad, one of the strongest contenders, which with the Scottish combination are the only two groups that still have a chance to win this event.

Results of matches played recently are as follows:

Men's Championship Singles

Men's Championship Doubles
(Semi-final): G. E. Beatty and P. H. Lord beat E. Dentici and K. F. Wiersum by 21 to 16.

Mixed Doubles Handicap
(Semi-final): Miss W. Dunning and D. Dentici (—2) beat Mrs. E. F. Walker and W. A. Tomlinson (scr.) by 21 to 20.
(Semi-final): Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici (—4) beat Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Crane (scr.) by 21 to 10.
Final): Miss Gabaretta and E. Dentici (—4) beat Miss W. Dunning and D. Dentici (—2) by 22 to 19.

Ladies' Handicap Singles
(Semi-final): Miss T. Planas (—4) beat Mrs. J. F. Helm (+5) by 22 to 20.
(Semi-final): Miss W. Dunning (—14) beat Miss B. Clark (scr.) by 21 to 13.
(Final): Miss T. Planas (—4) beat Miss W. Dunning (—14) by 21 to —1.

Men's Handicap Singles
(Semi-final): K. F. Wiersum (—11) beat P. H. Lord (—8) by 22 to 12.
(Semi-final): G. E. Beatty (—8) beat H. S. G. Batter (—8) by 21 to 8.

International Tournament
(Semi-final): Continental beat America by 20 to 12.

LADIES TENNIS INTERPORT SET AT YOKOHAMA

Softball Game Scheduled Between 2 Bay City Teams; Cricket Match Planned

The annual tennis and ladies' softball interport contests between the Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club and the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club will be held this weekend at the latter's grounds.

The tennis matches, which will include men's, ladies' and mixed events, will be played on both Saturday and Sunday. The ladies' softball fixture is scheduled to commence at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Y. C. and A. C. line-up for the softball game has been announced as follows:

M. Prohaska, 2b.; V. Albeck, p.; M. Crane, rf.; I. Brigel, 3b.; H. Lord, c.; M. Stevens, 1b.; M. Ely, ss.; T. Planas, lf.; J. Clark, cf., and J. Dorbier, outfielder. The scorer will be Miss H. Darbier.

A mixed interport dinner will be held in the Y.C. and A.C. clubhouse on Saturday evening, with cocktails being served from 7:30 and dinner commencing at 8:30.

A tea dance on Sunday afternoon will also be held in honor of the visitors, with the Toho Swing Band playing from 6 to 9.

An intra-club cricket match will be held at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club on Saturday afternoon from 2 p.m., with the captain's eleven playing the vice-captain's side.

This will be the last game to be played at the club before the annual interport contest against the Kobe Cricket Club to be held at the Y.C. and A.C. on Saturday, September 28, and Sunday, September 29.

New Financial Structure Of Manchoukuo Planned

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, Sept. 18—With the object of establishing a new financial structure of Manchoukuo in line with the development of a new national structure in Japan, the Central Bank of Manchoukuo has set up a special banking affairs inquiry commission.

The commission will study urgent matters centering on financial and currency questions.

In this connection, Shin Abe, director of the Central Bank of Manchoukuo, was appointed chairman of the commission and other members of the committee were selected from among sectional chiefs of the same bank.

TOKYO COLLEGE FOOTBALL PLAY OPENS THURSDAY

Waseda, Rikkyo Universities Clash in Opener; Yokohama Athletic Club Plans No Team

The Tokyo Intercollegiate Football League got under way Thursday, at the Korakuen Stadium with Waseda University, last year's champions, meeting Rikkyo University.

The League officials announced that Nichidai College has been admitted to the League, increasing membership to six colleges. They are Waseda, Keio, Meiji, Rikkyo Hosei and Nichidai.

With the addition of another college, the schedule will extend to December 8, when the annual Big Game is played between Meiji and Waseda, traditional rivals.

NO YOKOHAMA TEAM

The League officials also disclosed that the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club will not form a team this fall, due to lack of players. In the past the Y.C. and A.C. played a major part in the development of the American game of football in Japan.

October 20, at the invitation of the Hanshin Electrical Railway Company of Osaka, Waseda and Keio will journey to Osaka to play against Kansai College and Doshisha University of Kyoto. These games are being scheduled for the purpose of further increasing the popularity of football in the Kansai district. In November Doshisha and Kansai College will play here against the Tokyo O. B.

FEATURE GAME NEW YEAR'S

The annual New Year's game between the All-Stars of Kanto and Kansai will be played this year in Tokyo. Also, in conjunction with this year's celebration of the 2600th year of the founding of the Japanese Empire and the Meiji Shrine Games, Tokyo League is planning a demonstration and a game between the outstanding teams.

The coaches and captains as listed by the managers are: Waseda, Coach Takeo Nomura and Captain Tatsuki Yamada; Meiji, Seiji Machida and Chikao Hamasaki; Keio, Chuji Shimamoto and Mitsuo Yamagata; Rikkyo, Hiroshi Ogura and Morimasa Uyeda; Hosei, Senichi Nasagami and Kauyoshi Nakajima, and Nichidai, Tsunehiko Kasahara and Toshichika Umezawa.

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

The schedule follows:

Sept. 28	Waseda vs. Rikkyo
Oct. 3	Nichidai vs. Keio
Oct. 10	Keio vs. Rikkyo
Oct. 15	Hosei vs. Meiji
Oct. 20	Waseda and Keio to Kansai

Bulgarian Parliament Holds Extra Session

Domei Tsushin

SOFIA, Sept. 17—An extraordinary session of the Sobranye, Bulgarian parliament, will assemble here on Saturday to ratify the Craiova agreement and to approve a special outlay of approximately 1,000,000 levas to be used in the reconstruction of southern Dobruja which has been ceded to Bulgaria.

The formal occupation of southern Dobruja by Bulgarian troops provided by the Craiova agreement, will begin at 9 p.m. Saturday. Active preparations are being made throughout Bulgaria to celebrate the historic event, as troops are being concentrated in readiness for the entry along the frontiers of southern Dobruja.

The press is urging the population to bedeck their homes and streets with flags on the day when Bulgarian troops will march into southern Dobruja. Preparations, meanwhile, reportedly are being made to welcome the Bulgarian troops.

New Currency Scheme Of Chungking Fading

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Sept. 19—Materialization of the rumored scheme of the Chungking regime to issue new paper money seems to have become very doubtful as financiers are opposed to the project.

According to the "Ping Pao", a Chinese language newspaper here, the Chungking Government is attempting to issue the paper currency next January. The paper claims that this report is based on information obtained from authentic financial quarters. The Chungking Government, the paper adds has adopted the reported irregular currency policy to issue the new paper money after the previously planned issuance of the "Treasury notes" proved a theoretical failure.

The Chinese language newspaper further says that influential financial leaders are strongly opposed to Chungking's monetary scheme on the ground that paper currency purely for internal settlement of trade accounts would spur the already accentuated rising trend of commodity prices, and that it is highly doubtful whether the scheme of the Chiang Kai-shek administration will be realized.

Food Shortage Acute In Szechwan Sector

Domei Tsushin

HONGKONG, Sept. 18—Despite desperate efforts by Chungking authorities, the food shortage in Szechwan Province has become seriously acute lately, according to reliable information reaching here from Chungking.

Although the price of rice doubled between June and August 19, just before the commencement to continual bombings by the Japanese air force, it has been steadily soaring together with general commodity prices.

Issuing an urgent message on September 10 in his capacity as chairman of the Szechwan provincial government, Chiang Kai-shek warned the people against black marketing and holding back sales of foodstuff. Owing to the increasing political unrest as well as to relentless Japanese bombings on Chungking, despite food rationing measures by the Government, the shortage of foodstuffs is believed to become much acuter in the future.

HSINKING ADOPTS

necessary measures will also be adopted.

2. IMPROVEMENT OF STRUCTURE

(a) The Japan-Manchoukuo Trading Company and other existing control organs will carry on the task of maintaining exports of iron, non-ferrous metals, coal and chemicals to Japan.

(b) Special control organs will be set up to maintain exports to Japan of such items as soya bean, bean cake, seasame, buckwheat, perilla oil, flax seed, cotton seed, castor bean and oil, peanuts, peanut oil, red beans, green peas, mixed fodders, magnesite, talc, hog bristles horse hair, sheep wool, wild silk yarn, etc.

(c) For the purpose of improving the system for collection of goods, arrangements will be made for broader application of the system of the control and monopoly companies, establishment of gathering associations and designation of gathering organs.

3. IMPROVEMENT OF IMPORT

(a) To increase the number of articles under control and also to strengthen the existing import control organs—the Japan-Manchoukuo Trading Company, Manchou Joint Cement Company, Showa Motor Car Company, Manchou Rubber Industry Company, Manchou Forestry Company, Manchou Daily Necessities Company, Manchou Federation of Daily Necessities Import Associations, Manchou Cotton Industry Association, Manchou Tobacco Company and Manchou Book Distribution Company.

(b) New control organs will be established for important commodities other than those under the control at present. For the time being, importation of these goods will be placed under the control of the customs officials.

(c) A system will be set up to allocate quotas of import value to different control organs, and at the same time necessary measures will be taken to control prices and to adjust the distribution system.

4. TO PROHIBIT IMPORTATION

(a) In order to ensure supply of essential goods, importation of luxurious goods, non-urgent and unnecessary goods will be prohibited.

(b) Manufacture and sales of luxuries, non-urgent and unnecessary goods within the country will be prohibited.

5. ADJUSTMENT OF PRICES

Organs will be set up for adjustment of export and import commodity prices with a view to keep prices in Manchoukuo on the price levels in Japan.

VICHY REGIME TO STREAMLINE FRENCH SPORTS

Borotra, Athletic Chief, To Reorganize Program Along German Lines

Domei Tsushin

VICHY, Sept. 18—In an attempt to lift sports in France to a higher level as well as to develop national consciousness in athletics, Jean Borotra, General Commissar of Sports, today outlined plans for the nationalization of the French sports world, similar to the program carried out by Germany.

Included in the program designed to strengthen France's youth and raise the general health of the civilian population were measures to suppress professionalism and to divide France into sports zones under general inspectors.

The complete six-point program which was suggested by the Chief of State, Marshal Henri Petain, includes the following measures:

1. Suppression of professionalism in sports. Maintenance of professionals may be permitted in some sections but only under the control of the amateur sports federations.
2. Diminishment in the number of clubs to avoid harmful rivalry.
3. Nomination of the presidents of the various sports federations by the Government, instead of their selection by open election.
4. The division of France into sports zones with a general inspector over each zone, charged with the physical education of youth and supervision of sports organizations in his district.
5. Creation of a special status for outstanding champions whose training preparations will be paid for by the State.
6. Compulsory organization of sports associations by schools.

KO SASAZAKI STOPS RUSSIAN IN 8TH ROUND

Shanghai Scrapper Proves No Match for Tokyo Star Despite Weight Advantage

Paul Lojnikov proved to be no match for Ko Sasazaki, and the popular Japanese fighter scored a technical knockout over the Russian last night in the main event of the fight card held at the Hibiya Amphitheater.

One-minute and fifty seconds after the start of the eighth round, the referee stepped in between the fighters to end the one-sided bout. While the Russian fighter was not completely a beaten man, his refusal to fight brought about the action of the referee.

Outside of the first two rounds, it was Sasazaki, who threw thrice as many punches, peppering the Shanghai fighter with a head and body attack. Time and time again the Japanese drove Lojnikov against the ropes and showered him with punches thrown from every direction. The only defense the Russian put up was to crouch and tie himself up in a knot.

SUFFERED PUNISHMENT

Only the fact that Lojnikov carried a 14 pound weight advantage kept him from taking a more punishing defeat. As it was Sasazaki scored heavily and by the end of the sixth round, Lojnikov was a tired fighter.

Lojnikov started out in good fashion by taking the first round by a good margin. With the bell, Sasazaki took the offensive but a couple of long lefts followed by a right cross thrown by the Shanghai fighter slowed down the Japanese. Toward the end of the round Sasazaki again took the worst of the exchange of rights and lefts.

In the second round both fighters kept at a distance and while Sasazaki tried to land a two-fisted attack, the Russian countering nicely again took the round. From the third round Sasazaki's attack took the play away from Lojnikov and time and time again the Russian fighter was forced to clinch and go into a crouch.

CARRIED NO PUNCH

After that it was all Sasazaki. The only punches thrown by the Russian were occasional long lefts or rights which carried no power. Lojnikov weighed in at 140 pounds while Sasazaki tipped the scale at 126 pounds.

ISHIDA VICTOR

The semi-final between Kazuo Ishida, 126 lbs and Soichi Maruyama, 119 also ended up with the referee stepping in to stop the fight in favor of Ishida in the fifth round.

The T.K.O. was scored after two minutes had elapsed in the fifth round. From the second round on Maruyama was being mauled by Ishida and while no knockdown took place Maruyama was not able to protect himself.

In the second round a sharp fast straight right thrown by Ishida connected against Maruyama's chin and the latter almost went down. Immediately Ishida rushed in for the kill but Maruyama covered up nicely to last out the round.

In the third and fourth, Ishida now anxious to put an end to the bout, kept continually on the offense throwing wild swinging punches from everywhere. Maruyama stood up well against these punches but was forced to take cover.

UMEI RALLIES

In the other fights S. Umei 109 pounds came back strong in the fifth and sixth round to take the decision over Kin Shak-kin 113 pounds in a six-rounder. Both fighters from the start went at it hammer and tongs, with Kin scoring the cleaner blows to take the first two rounds. From then on Kin tired fast and Umei built up a lead and continued to take the last two rounds by a good margin.

In another six-rounder, T. Hoshino, 120 pounds fought a smart aggressive fight to take the decision over Y. Ohtake 117 pounds. This was one of the best bouts of the card with both fighters showing good fighting ability and willingness to exchange punches. The first two rounds were fairly even but in the later rounds Hoshino scored more often with a nice attack to the head which slowed down Ohtake. In the fourth an fifth Hoshino did heavy damage to score a clean cut decision.

The results of the other bouts were: M. Wakahara 130, took the decision over A. Futaba, 128, in a six-rounder; H. Oki, 129, and S. Asano, 123, fought to a draw in another six-rounder. In a four-round opening bout A. Takashima took the decision over K. Enami.

Chungking-Turkestan Airline Improvement Sought By Officials

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20—Owing to a suspension of the Hanoi-Chungking aerial route, the Chungking regime has recently decided to strengthen the new air service route linking Chungking with Alma Mata on the Turkestan-Siberian Railway line via Hami.

The negotiations for the opening of the new route have been conducted between the Aeronautical Board of the Communications Ministry of the Chiang regime and the Sino-Soviet Aviation Corporation authorities.

A Chinese passenger plane will hop off regularly from Chungking for Alma Mata via Lanchow, Suchow, Hami and Urumchi, the charge being 1,750 Yuan between Chungking and Hami and 276 Yuan between Hami and Alma Mata.

At Alma Mata it will be connected with Soviet aerial routes.

U.S. SILENT ON BRITISH ACT

Washington Won't Comment On Seizure of Italian From Philippines Freighter

United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 — The State Department declined to comment last night on the action of a British warship in seizing an Italian engineer from a Philippines freighter within the Western Hemisphere neutrality zone last Saturday.

Officials said they were awaiting receipt of official reports concerning the incident.

The initial impression received by observers here was that the incident was not of sufficient international consequence to occasion any multilateral Pan-American action, although a joint protest to Britain would be possible under the Declaration of Panama.

The United States it is believed, would first have to determine whether the seizure of the Italian engineer constituted a "hostile act," and whether a seizure from a Philippines ship was primarily a matter for United States action or action by all nations of the Western Hemisphere.

If the seizure is regarded as a hostile act, some observers said, then it could concern all the American nations. On the other hand, some quarters regarded the seizure as directly affecting the national interest of the United States, since Washington is responsible for the foreign affairs of the Philippines Commonwealth.

The American nations in the past have sent several protests against the violation of the neutrality zone, including the Graf Spee incident and the scuttling of the Wakama off the Brazilian coast.

Religious Cultist Found with Stomach and Throat Cut

United Press

DEL RIO, Texas, Sept. 14—Authorities yesterday found Eleutrio Gonzalez, 28-year-old Mexican leader of a religious cult, with his stomach slashed hari kari fashion and his throat slit, but still alive.

Gonzalez was to have been questioned regarding the fatal shooting of Antonia Gomez, 34-year-old graduate nurse, and her sister, Margarita, 23-year-old teacher, whose bodies were found Wednesday in an automobile. Authorities said the two women belonged to Gonzalez's cult. The sisters 18 months ago aided Gonzalez to defend himself against a rape charge upon which he was convicted.

German Exhibit Held at Sofia

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 19—A German industrial technical exhibit has been opened in Sofia with a display of the latest German television and radio sets. In addition, new synthetic materials, household machines as well as tools have attracted the attention of the visitors.

The main purpose of this exhibition is to show how German and Bulgarian economy can supplement each other. The export capacity of the German radio industry is shown by the fact that Bulgaria increased orders for radio sets in 1939, 87.2 per cent in comparison with 1938. During the same time exports to Jugoslavia increased by 101.1 per cent, to Greece 74.7 per cent, to Rumania 150.9 per cent and in the following year this export was maintained.

ITALY CLAIMED HELPING EGYPT GAIN FREEDOM

German News Service Says Marching Columns Meeting Little British Opposition

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 19—The British headquarters in Cairo claim that the Italians lost a great number of men and trucks during the capture of Sollum at the Northwestern Egyptian border. This is the typical manner, in which the British usually turn a defeat into a victory. In the same manner the British made a triumphal march from Kutno via Narvik to Dunkerk.

The fact, however, is that Marshal Graziani on this first Italian advance into Egyptian territory reached the first important objective in a short time despite difficult territory.

Sollum is not, as the English say, an unimportant spot at the edge of the Libyan desert, but the key point of the first line of British fortifications against Cyrenaika.

STRATEGICAL BASE

Its strategical importance is based on the fact that it lies at the junction of the highways from Cairo and the oasis of Siwa and Dscharrabub. In addition the bay of Sollum is the only navigable natural harbor in a wide area.

The Italians have thus taken possession of an advanced position of great importance. Last night the official British communique admitted further advances of the Italians on the highways to Alexandria.

Sidi Barrani, the key position of the second British line of defense from the coast to the interior, was said occupied by two motorized Italian columns. It is a fact that the British planned an offensive at this place. Since 1939 motorized British units have been stationed at the Egyptian-Libyan border behind a forest of barbed wire and mine fields, ready to attack. According to Italian estimates this army consisted of 70,000 men in the beginning of the war.

This army possesses barracks and landing fields all over Egypt and Egypt has thus been transformed into an open military field and basis for military actions of important nature. Thus the Italians did not take any action but the English started to attack on the land and on the sea in the first days of the Italian declaration of war. Egypt, it will be recalled, was raised to the rank of an independant power by the treaty with England in 1936. Therefore it was not affected in any way by the Italian declaration of war.

SEVERED RELATIONS

Not until England exerted pressure did Egypt decide on June 14, to break off diplomatic relations with Italy. A paradoxical situation thus was the result. Italy being at war with England, was attacked by the latter from the Egyptian border while Egypt wished to maintain friendly relations with Italy.

The government in Cairo declared that it did not plan to go beyond the breaking off of diplomatic relations.

Italy has begun her triumphant advance because she is fully aware of the way in which Egypt is suppressed by the British. Italy's advance is not directed against the independence of Egypt. On the other hand, it will help one of the oldest civilized nations of the world to build up a new future when the British domination has collapsed. Egypt means to the bankers of London nothing more and nothing less than cotton.

At the same time Egypt is one of the strategic keystones which helps keep the British Empire together. England tries to disguise this condition in an unscrupulous exploitation with a socalled treaty of alliances. The true facts, however, are now coming into light. The British communiques try to conceal that the Egyptians see freedom approaching with the Italian tricolor. We, however, know that this is the case.

CORRESPONDENT WATCHES REICH 'BIG BERTHAS'

Sees Long-Range Guns Let Loose Their Volleys Across Dover Channel

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 18—A special correspondent, the only newspaperman permitted to witness the bombardment of the English coast by German long-range guns, Adolf Meyer Christian, gives the following reports:

"In a car we drove along on an excellent highway and after some ime swerved into the romantic scenery of the dunes. In former times, a man, who would have been allowed to penetrate this region of artillery action probably would have been blindfolded to prevent him from noticing any details. But today this actually was not necessary. I am peering intently to the right as well as to the left and all I can detect is sand, until I finally reach the living quarters of one of those long-range guns, which are camouflaged.

WELL CAMOUFLAGED

"At the fixed hour I stand next to the gigantic gun, whose tapering barrel is pointing high up into the air. I also flew over the position of this gun by plane but the gun was as well camouflaged from above as from the ground. The sky was filled with machines flying toward the British coast and not a single vessels was to be seen on the wide waters of the Channel, which we inspected with a periscope.

"At the appointed moment the first shot was fired. The diameter of the shell, fired is surprisingly large for the projectile, which has to be fired up into the statosphere. The censorship prohibited me from finding out the exact spot on which the gun was firing at this moment. I was, however, permitted to report, that Dover had been shelled repeatedly. Each time after the firing of the shot a wireless telegraphist arrived handing the artillery commander a piece of paper.

"I read over his shoulder: 1 degree to the left, 2 strokes higher. Upon this orders were given and three men manipulated the levers of the gun.

"It is remarkable how quickly and easily the gigantic barrel responded to the gunner's expert handling. Soon afterwards the second shot was loosened and the earth shook beneath my feet. The artillery officer explained to me that, while the gun was fired, German bombers simultaneously were dropping their deadly bombloads in order to prevent that the enemy from establishing the position of the gun by sound.

FIRE MANY SHOTS

"The censorship did not allow me to write how many shots could be fired from this gun, but I can assure that from one barrel more shots can be fired than I ever thought possible. On leaving the gun's emplacement I noticed to my surprise that there was not only this one gun, but that there were a whole battery of guns, all well camouflaged, and of which only one had been fired.

"I also saw how German pursuit planes pounced on British Spitfires, which had got dangerously close to the position of these guns. But so far not a single British plane had been able to penetrate the defense of these best fighters. I could not help thinking that with these guns Germany has a weapon that will prevent any ship from crossing through the Channel.

"If the censorship allows this to pass I would like to state that these guns are independent from weather, wind or the time of the day and that they are a menace to England certainly as big as that of the German airforce."

BRITISH BOMBING NON-MILITARY SPOTS IN HAMBURG, SAY GERMANS

D.N.B.

HAMBURG, Sept. 19—On Wednesday night Hamburg again was attacked by British planes, which as usual dropped their bombs on purely non-military objectives, causing victims among the civilian population, and destroying their homes.

Following is a report by an eyewitness: "We visited the hardest hit section on Justus Strandes Street. For miles in the vicinity there are no military objectives. Four hundred meters away there is the Ohlsdorf cemetery, the largest and most famous burial place of Europe, where already a week ago British bombers wrought havoc by their bombs. The houses in Justus Strandes Street present a picture of destruction. Long low brick buildings divided into seven houses before the British attack, were the home of simple Hamburg citizens.

"Four of these seven houses were destroyed by high explosive bombs. The debris is scatterred everywhere. Between smashed wooden beams and the remnants of furniture there stands as a last remnant a bookshelf with works of German poets.

"In one kitchen, into which one can see from outside, the alarm clock at the wall is the only thing, which was still left intact. In the other room there is on the table an open book placed between smashed coffee cups, cans and plates. Cautiously we pass through the demolished lodgings. Seven German civilians were injured here. But also three less damaged houses had been evacuated, because a time fuse bomb is lying on one of the staircases.

"Of the five high explosive bombs, which were dropped on this street, one fell in front of one house, which now shows many gaps rendering it uninhabitable. Our car drives farther out to a place, where these small citizens have their kitchen gardens. Also here the enemy dropped series of bombs,—seven of which with time fuse,—so that also these gardens, where humble people raised their cabbage and potatoes, has now become a danger zone, while the houses in the vicinity had to be evacuated. But everywhere the work is progressing to save as much of the property of the comrades as can be saved."

MEIJI AND KEIO OUTFITS BLANK COLLEGE FOES

Feature Contest Looms At Stadium Next Week; Three Clubs Are Tied

Shutout pitching in double doses was served to the fans Sunday at the Meiji Jingu stadium, as Fujimoto of Meiji whitewashed Tokyo Imperial, and Takatsuka of Keio blanked Rikkyo, by the identical score of 4-0.

Thus at the end of the second week of intercollegiate play, Keio, Meiji, and Waseda are tied for honors with two victories and no defeat. This Saturday Meiji and Waseda will clash in one of the big games of the Fall season, while on Sunday Keio is to face Hosei.

FUJIMOTO IN FORM

In the Meiji-Imperial game the Teidai nine ran up against pitcher Fujimoto's speed ball and the net result was a total of four hits. Fujimoto was definitely enjoying one of his good days. He was the complete master throughout the nine innings and his teammates came through with errorless ball.

In the seventh Meiji scored two runs on no hits. Pitcher Sato brought about his own downfall with a wild throw. S. Kato opened the inning by getting a walk. Shima was sent to run for Kato. Ase promptly sacrificed. Then followed Imperial's first miscue as Mizutani fumbled Mikoshima's roller. With runners on first and second Sato's attempt to pick off Mikoshima resulted in a wild throw and Shima scored while Mikoshima took third. Then followed a squeeze play which successfully scored Mikoshima from third.

MADE FOUR ERRORS

The Imperial nine which had been playing errorless ball for six innings cracked in the following innings and committed four errors. In the eighth Meiji again scored as a result of an error.

After two outs Yasui singled to center and took third when the center fielder let the ball threw him, and scored when Tomita failed to handle H. Kato's slow roller for the second error of the inning.

The final run was scored by some hefty hitting when Kodama opened the ninth with a triple to left-center and walked in as Ase immediately followed with a double to left.

Imperial made its lone threat in the sixth when a walk followed by a hit placed men on third and first but the next two batters failed to come through with a hit.

HELD TO TWO HITS

In the Keio-Rikkyo game a shaky start by Saigo aided by an error enabled Keio to take the lead from which they coasted to victory behind Takatsuka's masterful pitching. Rikkyo ran afoul Takatsuka on one of his good days, with the result that they were artistically whitewashed, getting but two hits.

Keio took the lead from the first, shoving across a run on two hits aided by an error. In the second, pitcher Saigo still shaky allowed a base on balls. There followed a hit, an error and another walk to score three runs to practically settle the game. Following this initial bad moment, Saigo blanked the Keio boys for the next seven innings, but the damage had been done.

Rikkyo was helpless before Takatsuka's curves and fast ones. The only hits being that of singles by Yamashita and pitcher Saigo. For Keio Uno, Inouye and Nezu had two hits apiece.

India Coal Said Supplied Egypt

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 20—According to British reports India is now shipping coal to Egypt. British reports state that these shipments will replace the former British supplies. The freight rates from England have become excessive since the coal would have to be shipped via the Cape of Good Hope. Despite the fact that thousands of British miners in South Wales and Durham are unemployed England is no longer in the position to supply Egypt with coal.

The Australian economic distress, moreover, is shown by the fact that the Australian Government is granting a two-years credit to grain purchases in an effort to avoid the piling up of grain stocks. As was the case in Canada, South Africa and other overseas possessions, England during the first year of the war has not been able to ship the large quantities of foodstuffs and raw materials being piled up in Australia. In all these countries tremendous supplies were stored up and as a result of this the farmers suffered great losses.

Y.C.A.C. BEATS KOBE TEAMS OVER WEEKEND

Visiting Kansai Netters Defeated, 14 to 12 in Interport at Yokohama

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club defeated the Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club in both interport contests played over the weekend on the former's grounds, winning the tennis competition which extended over Saturday and Sunday by 14 to 12 and the ladies' softball game on Sunday afternoon by 25 to 0.

The visiting tennis players led by 7 to 6 on Saturday's play, but the home squad won eight of the 13 matches played the following day to retain interport honors. The Kobe men had a slight edge in their matches with nine victories against seven defeats, but the Yokohama ladies took five of their six contests. The mixed doubles matches were evenly divided, each side winning two.

DECIDED AT THIRD

The ladies' softball result was practically decided by the end of the third inning, the home team scoring 14 runs in that canto to lead by a 20 to 0. The major reason for Kobe's defeat was a weak pitching staff, their three hurlers issuing 21 walks in the first three stanzas. After Eleanor Obata took the mound for the visitors, her teammates settled down and held the winners to three runs from the fourth inning. Teresita Planas pitched the entire game for Yokohama to score a shut-out with good support.

The Kobe squad started well, filling the bases in the first inning with only one out but a double play prevented them from scoring. The visitors almost gained a run in the ninth when they advanced a runner to third with two out, but the next batter flied out to end the game.

For Yokohama all nine players did well. Especially good performances were turned in by Teresita Planas who pitched a fine game and Irene Brigel who made four hits in five times at bat. Outstanding for Kobe was May Wertheimber whose fielding was the best on either side.

MIXED DINNER

On Saturday night a mixed interport dinner was held in the Y. C. and A. C. clubhouse with Mr. R. A. Roberts, president of the club, acting as chairman. On Saturday afternoon a tea dance was also held in honor of the visitors with the Toho Swing Band supplying the music.

The tennis results, with the Kobe players mentioned first, were as follows:

Ladies' Singles

Miss R. Cox lost to Mrs. G. R. Fachtmann by 6-1 and 6-2.

Miss M. Mehta beat Mrs. M. Brigel by 4-6, 7-5 and 6-2.

GUERRILLAS ATTACKED

Domei Tsushin

TSINGTAO, Sept. 21—Detecting presence of guerrilla troops under leadership of Liu Liang in a village east of Shatzekow, near Tsingtao, Shantung Province, Japanese naval landing forces early Wednesday morning surrounded and cleaned out the guerrillas, capturing 7 prisoners and much booty in the battle.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the Japanese forces began operating against about 100 bandits, after learning that they were infesting the district of Hsifu, north of Chanchan, and surrounded and cleaned them out.

There were no losses on the part of the Japanese.

CHINESE DEAD LEFT

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Sept. 21—Approximately 1,003 Chinese dead were left behind and 63 prisoners were taken by the Japanese since September 9 in engagements against the new 4th Army in the district north of the Yangtze River.

Booty gained in the battles included 391 rifles and 3 automatic rifles and other material.

Mr. Ellerton—Officer of the Day.

Mrs. Harden, wife of Commodore Cyril Harden won the Ladies' Race at the Yokohama Yacht Club on Sunday in a light and tricky breeze with adverse tide conditions. Her crew was Mr. Harden. Continuous experience with Mr. Harden on the Vinga, stood her in good stead and easily prevailed over the rest of the fleet. She won despite a false start, gradually working back her distance She was scratch.

Mrs. Charles Decker skippering the Blue Wanderer with a handicap of three per cent was second. In her first race she made a very commendable showing.

Miss Kitty Gorman piloting Dr Weidemann and Mr. Parson's Joan was third on a four per cent handicap. These three boats won their positions largely by taking advantage of the tide after rounding the red buoy. They stood well out to sea while the rest tacked in shore and were headed by the current.

Miss Oku Laffin coming in fourth, did a fine piece of starting by squeezing between the Blue Wanderer and the buoy without touching either. She was sailing Mr. Longy's La Belle Foule. She held a good position until she, too, fell a victim to that unhappy combination of weak wind and strong current.

Miss Kitty White had the bad turn of the tide skippering the Chinook for Miss Vi Woodbridge and Mr. J. Davis. She had the start of the fleet and was very far ahead of all, looking like an easy winner, with a scratch handicap. She is a very capable skipper, but the tricky tide defeated her, and she came in fifth.

Miss Louise Stilwell skippered Mr. Max Pestalozzi's Dahpne with which she made a gallant fight, but without wind, what can a boat do?

Miss Monique Thiebaut was captain of Mr. Vignes' Ailsa. She held a very good place at the start, until the drifting went against her.

AQUATIC MEET EASILY TAKEN BY KAWASAKI

Keio Captures Polo Play; Nichidai Team Wins Diving; Olympic Star Sets Record

The Kawasaki Heavy Industry team, by scoring 58 points, emerged victorious in the four-day aquatic meet held at the Meiji Shrine Pool for the summer games of the 11th Meiji Shrine National Athletic Meet.

The meet was brought to a close yesterday when finals were held in the principal swimming events. Also the invitational mens' races were held, besides the finals in the diving and water-polo matches.

YAHATA STEEL SECOND

The swimmers of Yahata Steel Co., were second with a 33 points, followed by the Showa Company with 21. The Kawasaki Heavy Industry presented a well-balanced team, especially in the 400-meter freestyle event and the 200-meter breaststroke from which events they scored a total of 22 points.

The outstanding individual competitor was Shoji Taguchi, who hung up a new Japan record for the year by negotiating the 50-meter freestyle in 26.2. This record was established in the semi-finals for that event. Taguchi can be remembered as a member of the Olympic team to the Berlin Games in 1936.

ARAI SHOWS SPEED

The feature events of the day, the men's invitational races got under way late in the afternoon. In the 100-meter freestyle, Shigeo Arai, of Rikkyo leading all the way came in first in 59.6.

In the 400-meter freestyle, Shigeru Miyamoto, who established the world's highest record for the year in the Intercollegiate meet last week, breezed in at 4:49.4. Swimming easily he led at the 100-meter mark by two meters and was clocked in 1:6.8. At the half way mark he increased his lead to 10 meters and finished ahead of Goto of Meiji by a good 15 meters.

The diving team of Nichidai amassed a total of 77.08 points to take the event. Keio and Waseda followed.

KEIO WINS POLO

In the finals of the Water-polo event Keio University by scoring twice in the second extra period downed Waseda. At the end of the regulation time, neither team was able to put over a score, although Waseda had the greater chances to score. The first score for Keio resulted directly from a foul in which a Waseda man was penalized in front of his own goal. The free throw was good and just before the end of the period Keio scored their second and final goal.

100-meter freestyle—won by Shigeo Arai (Rikkyo), 59.6; 2nd, Sasaki (Nichidai), 60.9.6; 3rd, Honda (Rikkyo), 60.2.2; 4th, Makino (Nichidai); 5th, Koyanagi (Nagoya Chugaku); 6th, Sugita, (Waseda).

400-meter freestyle—Won by Shigeru Miyamoto (Waseda), 4:49.4; 2nd, Goto (Meiji), 4:59.8; 3rd, Matsuyama (Meiji), 5:36; 4th, Koshido (Nichidai); 5th, Shirayama (Rikkyo).

800-meter freestyle—Won by T. Homma (Rikkyo), 10:28; 2nd, Sakai (Unattched), 10:38.3; 3rd, Uda (Waseda), 10:42.8; 4th, Takeuchi (Toho Commercial); 5th, Katayama (Keio).

200-meter breaststroke—Won by Seiichiro Oura (Rikkyo), 2:45.2; 2nd, Yoshimura (Nichidai), 2:32.8; 3rd, Fugigaki (Tochiki Chuo), 2:54.4; 4th, Furukawa (Waseda); 5th, Tabata (Waseda).

100-meter backstroke—Won by Kojima (Keio), 1:9.4; 2nd, Yoshida (Waseda) 1:9.6; 3rd, Taniguchi (Nichidai), 1:11.8; 4th, Hiragi (Rikkyo); 5th, Nakano (Waseda); 6th Kono (Nichidai).

Diving—Won by Nichidai team composed of Mori, Negi and Takahama; 77.08; 2nd, Keio, 68.97; 3rd, Waseda 63:20; 4th, Meiji 43:58.

Finals Water Polo:
Keio 2 and Waseda 0.

Keio—FW. S. Matsumoto, T. Matsumoto and Natori; HB, Ishihara; FB, Nishitani, and Kawaharada; Goal Keeper, Okada.

Waseda—FW, Toyoshima, Ono and Ida; HB, Yamamoto; FB, Okuda and Tsuboda; Goal Keeper, Yoshida.

KAIDO KAYOED BY HORIGUCHI

Featherweight Champion Easily Retains Title

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

NISHINOMIYA, Sept. 21—"Piston" Horiguchi tonight successfuly retained his featherweight title by knocking out Takeshi Kaido in the fifth round of the scheduled 10-round main event at the Hankyu Nishinomiya ball park.

"Piston" just plugged along in his usual manner, taking plenty and giving as much, but after all he was too tough a hombre for Kaido, who simply quit when the going got rough in the fifth round.

In the double semi-finals, Saburo Isagawa of Kobe and Kenichi Kanemitsu of Fuji Club fought to a furious draw, while Yoichiro Hanada of Teiken Club decisioned Hideo Fujiwara of Kyowa Club.

The results of other matches follow: 6-rounders-Shiratori (Fuji) won on points over Nakajima (Chugai), Masuda (Fuji) beat Ishikawa (Teikoku) on points, and Kaneko (Kansai) knocked out Yoshida (Toa) in the 5th round.

The smoker was sponsored by the Fuji Boxing Club.

REICH ECONOMIC PROGRESS OUTLINED

European Business Is Put On Big Territorial Basis

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 23—Apart from the favorable development of the European trade, the incorporation of the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia into the German customs was the most conspicuous event of the week ending September 22.

The latter is regarded by competent economic circles as a further step toward the way of realizing that the European trade and industry would only flourish on a big territorial basis. It is of special interest that after October 1 the financial transactions between the protectorate and the Reich can be carried out in German as well as in Czech currency at the rate of 1 Reichsmark to 10 Czech crowns.

Another item of this week was the article on the occasion of the opening of the Utrecht fair. It said that the prospects of the Dutch trade and industry were so particularly promising because the Dutch ports were situated at the outlets of the big German waterways system, which after having been linked up with the entire industrial region of central Europe with Dutch ports.

Dutch and Belgian economic circles are beginning to recognize more and more the importance of these big German waterways for their own economic life. The good progress of the German flax harvest is being watched with much interest especially in view of the fact that the acreage under cultivation has been doubled this year. That Germany's industry is not exclusively working for war purposes was shown in the past week by a report issued by the states secretary in the ministry of communications, Major General von Schell saying that during the first war year the German trade and industry has aquired 37,000 new motor lorries as well as 31,000 new tractors.

A report of the statistical office of the Reich reveals the extraordinary stability of the German prices. While in the first year of the World War prices in Germany had risen by 50 per cent it was just opposite in this war. The average increase of prices was 3.9 per cent owing to the strong increase of the world market prices.

FUTABAYAMA WINS KANSAI SUMO TOURNEY

Says Anxious to Tackle Champion Itsutsushima In Tokyo Spring Meet

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

OSAKA, Sept. 22—The Kansai Tournament of the Nippon Professional Wrestlers' Association, which had been in progress the last 12 days, was brought to a close today, with Futabayama, the grand champion, emerging undefeated.

Futabayama, it will be recalled, suffered so many flops during the Summer Tournament in Tokyo that he quit the sand lot before the tournament was over, and creating a sensation. Subsequent to the Summer Tournament, he kept much to himself, reportedly for spiritual training, and did not appear until the Kansai Tournament. There were rumors that he had retired from the sand lot for good.

Futabayama came back strong and has regained his old confidence. He defeated everyone who had made him suffer so much displeasure last summer, with the exception of Itsutsushima, who was absent in this tourney on account of illness.

Futabayama is looking forward to meeting Itsutsushima at the Spring Tournament in Tokyo, and he declares that it will then be Itsutsushima's turn to flop.

Japanese Cultural History Exhibit Planned in Shanghai

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Sept. 21—A "Modern Japanese Cultural History Exhibition" will be held in Shanghai from the end of November to December under the auspices of the Shanghai Modern Science Library and with the support of the China Affairs Board.

The exhibition is intended for showing the characteristic cultural aspects of Japan in literature and drama since the beginning of Taisho Era to third Power nationals in Shanghai.

Among the exhibits there are the masterpieces of famous literary men and poets of Japan with explanations in Japanese, Chinese and English, and much attention is now being attracted to the event in view of the recent efforts for the Japan China cultural collaboration.

Vichy Acknowledging Troubles in Africa

Domei Tsushin

VICHY, Sept. 22—Acknowledging that numerous anti-Vichy incidents have occurred practically everywhere in French Africa, a spokesman of the French Foreign Office tonight revealed that General Charles de Gaulle's propaganda gradually is succeeding in Morocco, Syria, Dahomey and Togoland.

"The situation at Dahomey and Togoland is not clear; however, other French territories in Africa are still under our control," he said. The first revolt against the Vichy Government occurred in Equitorial Africa last month.

RAIDS STRESSED ON LIVERPOOL

Reich News Agency Tells Importance of Terminal In Supplying Britain Food

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 20—German air attacks, in addition to being concentrated on London have been directed at Liverpool. The dock of Liverpool and the airplane factories of Vickers Armstrong have been the objectives of repeated attacks.

The importance of Liverpool as a harbor is shown by the fact that in 1935, 22 per cent of England's maritime trade passed through this port. Incoming shipping for this year amounted to 14,000,000 tons and outgoing shipping to 12,500,000 tons. In 1935 goods valued at 14,000,000 pounds were imported via Liverpool.

Liverpool had a turnover of 272,000,000 pounds and thus controlled one-fifth of England's shipping. Import goods included wheat from Canada and Argentina, rice from India, sugar from the West Indies, frozen meat from South America, livestock, cheese and fruit from Canada, butter from New Zealand and Australia. Nearly one-third of England's total exports were shipped via Liverpool.

No further proof is required to show Liverpool's importance. England's economic life, therefore, suffers new setbacks by these attacks on Liverpool. Eyewitness reports from neutral observers state that great losses in production have taken place in this area.

FUEHRER HONORS REICH AIR ACE

Major Moelders Downs 40 Enemy Machines

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 23—On Saturday the Fuehrer conferred the oak leaves to the knight cross of the iron cross to the German ace, Major Moelders, who today shot down his 40th opponent in an aerial combat. This is the second time the oak leaves have ever been conferred. The first to receive this merit for paramount distinction was General Dietl, the defender of Narvik.

Major Moelders actually scored 54 victories in aerial combats, namely 14 in the Spanish civil war. With this number he can almost compete with General Ernst Udet, the German ace during the World War, who during a career of almost four years, as combat flier scored 62 victories.

The Fuehrer sent Major Moelders the following telegram: "In grateful appreciation of your heroic attitude in the fight for the future of our people I confer to you for your 40th air victory as the second officer of the German armed forces the oak leaves to the knights cross of the iron cross. Adolf Hitler."

Major Moelders was born in March 18, 1913, in Gelsenkirchen in Westfalia. When he was 2 years old his father was killed in action as a reserve officer in the World War. In 1931 the young Moelders joined the German Army and in 1935 was transferred to the air force. In 1938 he participated in the Spanish civil war in the famous Condor Legion.

He was the most successful ace of the Legion by shooting down within a short period 14 enemies. He returned from Spain decorated with the golden Spanish cross of diamonds and the medalla de la campagna.

In March 1939 he was appointed commander of a pursuit flier unit and in the campaigns against Poland, France and now against England he scored so many victories as to make him the most successful German ace of the air force.

Cairo Police Force Increased by 500

D.N.B.

BEIRUTH, Sept. 23—According to reports here from Cairo the police force of Cairo has been strengthened by 500 men. Double sentries have been posted at the Nile bridges. The Semiramis Hotel, the seat of British headquarters, is closely guarded and protected by barricades of barbed wire entanglements. A large number of streets has been closed and the number of parking spaces for motorcars has been drastically reduced.

Big Paper Mill to Begin Operation in Kilin

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, Sept. 23—A huge paper mill, which had been under construction at the cost of ¥2,500,000 in Kilin as a new addition to the Manchuria Special Paper Manufacfacturing Company, is now readv and the operation will begin from November. This mill is intended for the production of paper for cement bags. Its productive capacity is 4,500 tons annually.

BAUDOIN URGES COOPERATION OF AMERICANS

Foreign Minister Stresses Traditional Friendship At Journalists' Meeting

D.N.B.

VICHY, Sept. 21—The French Foreign Minister Baudoin delivered a speech on the occasion of a luncheon given in his honor by American journalists.

He spoke of the traditional friendship between France and the U.S.A. but said he regretted that numerous Americans had no understanding for France and her present policy. Since, years, he declared, France had offered a spectacle of internal controversies. France in the last years had been a caricature of democracy. The present France is in a position of a sick man, who had been the victim of long years of poisoning.

If Marshal Petain's Government at the present were more authoritarian than any other government in France in the past, Baudoin, believes that in spite of everything the Government of France was more democratic than any other French Government of former times, because it is standing on the ground of realities and not on illusions and empty phrases.

The principle of the new France are work for all and the duty for everyone to work.

Baudoin requested the journalists to tell their countrymen that France is placing all her hopes for a happy future in Petain and that under his leadership it might be possible to save the unity of France.

Referring to the foreign politics, Baudoin remarked that France at the present had only few possibilities. The armistice had left the French Government the protection of her Empire and the French Government is doing all in its power to safeguard this Empire.

Baudoin concluded: "France has withdrawn from war, but she could therefore not be disinterested in all the destructions which might still occur after the armistice as a consequence of the prolongation of this war between Germany and Italy on the one side and England on the other side."

Spain Uneasy Over Anglo-U.S. Moves

Domei Tsushin

MADRID, Sept. 21—Spanish newspapers today reflected some uneasiness over the recent signs of close collaboration between Great Britain and the United States.

The general view was, however, that the greatly increased American aid to Great Britain has come too late and that Britain faces certain defeat.

Asserting that Spain will never renounce its claims to leadership in South America, the press generally exulted over the share Spain is about to receive from Germany and Italy in the task of "reorganization of the world."

VANCOUVER, Sept. 21—The Japanese Minister to Canada, Baron Shu Tomii, accompanied by his family, sailed from here today aboard the N.Y.K. liner Yawata Maru en route to Japan.

Also returning home on the Yawata Maru was the Japanese consul-general in Chicago, Hiroshi Ashino.

Both Baron Tomii and Mr. Ashino were recently recalled by the Japanese Foreign Office in the shake-up of diplomatic and consular personnel introduced by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka.

GERMANY AND ITALY TO JOIN ASIA MEET

Welfare Conference Will Open October 16, at Osaka

Domei Tsushin

OSAKA, Sept. 23—The office of the Asia Welfare Meet, has announced that Italy and Germany have formally accepted the invitation to participate in the conference which will be held here for five days beginning October 16.

Dr. Selzner, director of the labor front headquarters and Mr. Goldes, training director of the labor front will be present at the meeting to represent Germany, and Mr. Grossi, managing director of the Opera Nazionale Dopolavora, and Mr. Tagliavia, financial director of the opera, will represent Italy. Other participants will include 60 from Manchoukuo and 50 students from East Asiatic Countries studying in Japan.

The program includes speeches, a welfare labor service meet at the Koshien Grounds and the open arena of the Kashiwara Shrine, welfare parade in Osaka in which 10,000 are expected to participate, and an International Welfare Night at the Takarazuka Opera House where performances by the representatives of Germany, Italy, Manchoukua and China will be shown.

HAWAIIAN BOXING TEAM PLEASES SPORTS WRITERS DURING WORKOUT

5-Man All-Star Team in Good Shape For Initial Bouts Friday at Korakuen

The visiting Hawaiian all-star boxing team went through their business of training yesterday at the Meiji University gymnasium, for the benefit of the press and photographers.

The five man team, led by Paul Matsumoto, holder of the national A.A.U. lightweight championship, impressed the sports writers with their display of fighting prowess as they worked out against local professional talent.

TEAM LOOKS GOOD

All of the boys sparred for a couple of rounds with Paul Matsumoto taking the longest work out by sparring a round with Masuda of the local Fujii club and winding up against Kenji Nobori his teammate. Matsumoto who is a southpaw fights from an unorthodox crouch from which position he lashes out with lefts and rights, cuffed Masuda considerably. Dado Marino the Filipino-American suffering from a slight bruise on his right leg worked out lightly, while the other boys were sparring at top speed. Yasutake, the feather-weight, displayed considerable speed as he mixed it up with Aoki of the Fujii club.

Manager Sam Ichnose declared that all of his boys were in fine shape, but bemoaned the fact that lack of sparring partners had cut down his training plans, however he figured the boys would be in top shape for the bouts this Friday night at the Korakuen stadium.

ICHNOSE MANAGER

Questioned as to the status of amateur boxing in Hawaii, manager Ichnose declared that boxing is one of the most popular sports on the island. He himself is the founder of the Japan-American Athletic Association, which has been sending teams to the National A.A.U. since 1935. Four of the visiting boxers are members of his club.

The members of the Hawaiian all-stars are: Dado Marino, Tommy Yasui, Yasushi Yasutake, Paul Muneo Matsumoto and Kenji Nobori.

In the evening manager Ichnose was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Japan Amateur Athletic Union at the Koraku restaurant. Following a brief summary of the events leading to the acceptance of the invitation to appear in Japan, manager Ichnose expressed hope for better relation between the athletic teams of America and Japan. While here he declared he hoped to further plans to invite a group of amateur boxers to Hawaii next year.

Lightweight Mitsuyama To Meet Boku In 10-Round Bout

Ichiro Mitsuyama, lightweight, will meet Ryushin Boku in the feature 10-round bout of a fight card scheduled for Thursday at the Hibiya amphitheater.

In another 10-round bout, Toshiro Aoki of the Fuji Club will face Shiro Yanagi. Four other bouts will round out the card for the evening. They are: over six-rounds, Yugen Ohtake vs. Suigi Suzuki and Toru Masuda vs. Eijiro Yajima. Four-rounders: M. Kikuchi vs. M. Yoshida and S. Akiyama vs.

Prices in Germany Go Up Very Little

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 24—Prices in Germany were scarcely raised during the first year of the war, due to an official price control policy. Germany's present price policy differs from that of other European nations and also differs from the developments in Germany during the first year of the World War. At that time wholesale prices for agricultural products went up 57 per cent. Industrial raw materials went up 4 per cent and prices for foodstuffs about 52 per cent.

The average increase in prices for the first year of the World War was 50 per cent compared with the 3.9 per cent of the present first war year. Today's price control system which is carried out by the German commissioner for price fixing forbids any price raising. Wherever prices have been raised this was the result of an increase of prices on the world market.

Germany's supply situation as well as the price regulations in force are a guarantee that the German price structure will remain firm. England's price development, however, took a very different course during the first year of the war. According to British statements prices for foodstuffs increased by nearly 60 per cent.

Antonescu Gets New Title; He's Now 'Conductior'

Domei Tsushin

BUCHAREST, Sept. 20—The Rumanian State Leader, General Ion Antonescu will henceforth bear the title "Conductior" (leader).

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs informed the accredited diplomatic representatives that this title would be employed also in international relations. This measure was taken with the permission of the Legionary movement, which has thus recognized General Antonescu as belonging to it.

Jenkins Seeking Clash With Al Nettlow

United Press

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19—Lew Jenkins, world lightweight champion, and his manager today started negotiations for another non-title appearance here late this month, probably with Al Nettlow, a Detroit welterweight.

Earlier this week, Jenkins narrowly gained a decision on points from Bob Montgomery, negro fighter, after almost suffering a knockout in the third round when he was forced to take a count of nine.

Philadelphia	47	99	.322

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—The Cincinnati Reds today won the National League pennant for the second straight year and qualified to meet the winners of the American League in this year's World Series opening on October 2.

The Reds' 13-inning triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies, combined with the victory of the St. Louis Cardinals over the Brooklyn Dodgers made the pennant a mathematical certainty.

With 13 games only left to play, the Reds can afford to lose all of them while the Dodgers can sweep all their remaining ten clashes and the Reds will still win the National League championship by half-a-game.

MEER LEADS TEAM

Johnny Vander Meer, the pitcher who made history in 1938 when he hurled two successive no-hit no-run games in a week, led the Reds to victory.

He twirled the Reds to their ninth straight triumph, revealing great form in the pinches. He bore on the Phillie batters and fanned ten of them, allowing eight hits in the gruelling 13-inning duel.

Vander Meer not only hurled his team to victory, but he crossed the plate for the winning run.

He doubled in the thirteenth and took third base on a sacrifice and then scored when Ival Goodman banged out a fly. The Reds thus won, 4-3.

Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds, said that his team would "take it easy for a day or two. Then we will start getting ready."

The Cards had an easy time with the Dodgers, piling up 14 runs against 7. They put the game on ice in the eighth inning when they collected four hits and three walks.

TIGERS REGAIN LEAD

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—The Detroit Tigers returned to first place position in the hectic American League pennant race today by defeating the Washington Senators 6 to 3 while the erstwhile loop leaders, the Cleveland Indians, were dropping a 4 to 3 decision to Philadelphia.

The New York Yankees returned the winning column today by blanking the St. Louis Browns 9 to 0.

The Cincinnati Reds strengthened their hold on first place in the National League standings by nosing out Philadelphia 2 to 1 while the St. Louis Cardinals were white-washing the second place Brooklyn Dodgers 5 to 0.

BUDAPEST PAPER REFUTES LONDON RADIO STORIES

Italy, Germany Not Faced With Difficulties Over Vienna Talks, Says D.N.B.

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 24—The London radio regards the Rome talks as the expression of complete perplexity of the Axis Powers. One of the newest factors in this respect, according to London, is that Italy and Germany are faced by difficulties in the Balkans as a result of the Vienna conversations.

The Budapest newspaper "Pester Lloyd," however, refutes this idea with a brilliant editorial. The paper states that after the liquidation of the status, which has been created in Paris, the source of power, which is embodied in the German-Italian pact, is the only directive factor that can group those nations together, which on account of their geographical situation gravitate toward the Axis.

Every nation, the paper declares, having this fact can only gain from this situation. The Vienna conference clearly showed that this statement was correct. "Germany and Italy, the paper concluded," are carrying a wise policy in Southern Europe, which has its main objective in the maintenance of peace, but which is also prepared to make sacrifices as was shown by the guarantees given to Rumania."

This statement from Budapest gives the basic tone of the resonance, with which all creative forces of the whole continent experience the constructive power of the Axis partners. The Spanish press recently expressed Spain's indebtedness to those powers, which helped her gain her independence. The Spanish press stressed this fact since England is trying to strengthen her position in Spain by threatening to use economic reprisals. Evidently, the British Government has not understood how ineffective such methods are. Nothing is more characteristic of the hopelessness of the British position than this optimism. Like a spider, England still believes herself to be in the position of an economic web of power and exploitation. The new Europe, however, is on its way. It will be a Europe that is no longer united merely by financial credits and industrial trusts, but that is bound to stand together by the vital streams of free nations.

services, asserting that they are worthy partners of the armed forces and the police who are alert, eager and ready to repel any invader. No less honor is due to all those who night after night uncomplainingly endure discomfort, hardship and peril in their homes and shelters.

His Majesty then went on to announce that he has decided to create immediately a new mark of honor for men and women in all walks of civilian life for deeds of gallantry done during these perilous days. "I propose to give my name to this new distinction, which will consist of the George Cross, ranking next to the Victoria Cross and the George Medal for wider distribution."

LONDONERS RESOLUTE

"In the hour of her trial the Mother City of the British Commonwealth is proving herself to be built as a city that is a unity in itself. It is not the walls that makes a city but the people that live within. The walls of Lonodn "may be flattened but the spirit of the Londoner stands resolute and undismayed.

"As in London so throughout Great Britain, buildings rich in beauty and historic interest may be wantonly attacked, humbler houses no less dear and familiar may be destroyed, but there'll always be an England to stand before the world as the symbol of freedom and to be our dear home.

OFFERS SYMPATHY

"And here I would like to tell the sorrowing parents how deeply we grieve for them in the loss of their young ones in a ship that was torpedoed without warning in the mid-Atlantic. Surely the world could have no clearer proof of the wickedness against which we fight than this foul deed. We live in grim times and it may be that the future will be grimmer yet. Winter lies before us cold and dark."

Concluding, the King appealed to the people to keep up their spirits. "But let us be of good cheer. After winter comes spring and after our present trials will assuredly come victory and a release from those evil things. Let us then put our trust, as I do, in God, and in the unconquerable spirit of the British people."

HAWAII BOXERS MEET JAPANESE STARS FRIDAY

Fast Bouts Are Promised At Korakuen Stadium; American Club Has Champs

The first of the Japan-American amateur boxing bouts will take place Friday night at the Korakuen stadium, Suidobashi. The all-star Hawaii A.A.U. team boasting of a national champion and several finalists has created great interest, and the fights promises to attract a large crowd.

The local Japanese amateurs have a fine reputation, and only last fall easily defeated the boxing team from San Jose State College, California. However, intercollegiate boxing is considered a grade below the A.A.U. status, as such, the Japanese boys will be meeting up with classy fighters Friday evening.

SLATE 5 BOUTS

The bouts as announced by the Japan Amateur Boxing Federation are:

Fly—Mizumatsu (Japan) vs. Dado Marino (Hawaii)
Bantam—Moto Horiguchi (Japan) vs. Tommy Yasui (Hawaii)
Feather—M. Mori (Japan) vs. Yasushi Yasutake (Hawaii)
Light—Tei Ho-gen (Japan) vs. Paul Matsumoto (Hawaii)
Welter—Bun Shin-sei (Japan) vs. Kenji Nobori (Hawaii)

Paul Matsumoto the U.S. light weight champion will hold much interest in his fight against Tei. Matsumoto's best shot is his left. In his [illegible] his left thrown from a crouch showed power, while an uppercut and a right cross thrown as his body drew back scored. Tei is also sure to be puzzled by the weaving and bobbing manner of the champion.

Japan's best bet will be Moto Horiguchi. This lad, the younger brother of Piston Horiguchi of professional fame, was the sensation of the try-outs held to select the Japan team. In meeting with Tommy Yasui, Horiguchi will carry a weight advantage which should count heavily against little Yasui. Yasui has a straight left which is a beauty. His foot-work is good, and before the bout is over Horiguchi may take many punches.

FEATHERS LOOK GOOD

The bout of the feather-weights should prove highly exciting. Japan's Mori is a puncher who last year against the San Jose boys took his bouts with knockouts. Taylor and Kerwin, the collegians, both kissed the canvas after meeting up with Mori's straight right. Yasutake was a finalist in the national A.A.U tournament. He is principally a boxer who has scored heavily with his counter-punching. His past record shows, that of the twenty-nine bouts he won, twenty were via K.O.'s A Boxer with a punch and ring experience may be too much for him to handle.

FILIPINO MEETS MIZUMATSU

The fly-weight bout should go to the Filipino-American Dado Marino. This fighter has too much experience for Mizumatsu, besides he has fought the best of them advancing as far as to be the finals in the A.A.U. tournament. The bout between Kenji Nobori and Bun Shin-sei should be close. Bun is an aggressive fighter who always likes to be in there punching away. Nobori to meet the rush of the Japanese has a fast jab and hooks to the body which may stop Bun. Here a slight edge may be given to Nobori.

Whichever way the battles may go, the fights are sure to be exciting affairs and for three rounds the boys of both nations will be punching, swinging and exchanging blows.

Preliminary bouts between the Japanese boys will get under way at 6:00 p.m.

Dado Marino (fly weight)—Age 24; ring experience 4 years; number of fights 70; lost 12 fight decisions; won 58; won by knockout 10 bouts; 1940 Territorial (Hawaii) flyweight champion; 1940 runnerup (finalist) National A.A.U.; flyweight championship; Japanese-American Athletic Club member.

Tommy Yasui (bantam weight)—Waipahu Athletic Club; age 20; ring experience 2 years; number of fights 17; lost by decision 3 bouts; won by decision 12; won by knockout 2; 1940 runnerup Territorial Flyweight Championship.

Yasushi Yasutake (feather weight)—Age 21; ring experience 3 years; number of fights 36; won by decision 9 bouts; won by knockout 20; Lost 7 bouts; 1940 Hawaiian Feather Weight Champion; 1940 finalist National A.A.U. Championship; Japanese-American Athletic Club member.

Paul Muneo Matsumoto (light weight)—Age 21; ring experience 3 years; number of fights 40; won by decision 26; won by knockout 8; lost by decision 6 bouts; 1940 National Lightweight Champion A.A.U.; 1940 runnerup (finalist) Hawaii Lightweight Division; Japanese-American Athletic Club member.

Kenji Nobori (welter weight)—Age 23; ring experience 5 years; number of fights 50; won by decision 30; lost by decision 8; won by knockout 11; lost by knockout 1; 1938 finalist Hawaii Middleweight Championship; 1939 finalist Hawaii Middleweight Championship; 1940 Hawaii Middleweight Championship.

JAPAN'S ACTION HAILED IN KYOTO

French Professor, German Culture Leader Laud Pact Of Nippon with Indo-China

By Staff Correspondent

KYOTO, Sept. 24—With regard to the peaceful advance of Japanese forces into French Indo-China, Professor J. P. Hauchecorne of the Franco-Japonais du Kansai at Higashi-Ichijo, Yoshida, here, said Monday afternoon:

"That a peaceful agreement has been reached between Japan and France is a matter for sincere congratulation. Japan and France have been very friendly for a number of years, particularly through art and culture. At this time of international turmoil, friendly relations of the two countries are more necessary than any other time. Closer intercourse of the two countries should be improved not only through art, music and literature but also through politics and economy.

CLIMATE SEVERE

"About 10 years ago I used to visit Haiphong. Though it is a good place to live in, the climate in and around the city is not moderate. People suffer from unbearable heat even at midnight. The colony has many natural resources, and almost all rice needed in France Proper is supplied from there. Beside rice, there are coffee, India rubber, iron and other things.

"Almost all of the natives are engaged in agriculture, the commerce and trade being carried on by Chinese residents all over the country. Generally speaking, they are not civilized people, but they are good-natured and innocent people. They love music very much. On the frontier district toward Thailand there still live a number of native savages even today, which has long been a cause of worry to the French Government authorities."

MATTER OF COURSE

Dr. Hans Eckartz, director of the German Culture Research Institute of this city, said:

"As an individual, I am of the opinion that the advance of Japanese troops into French Indo-China with a view of settling the China Affair and thereby facilitating the establishment of a new order in the Far East, is a matter of course. Japan must keep careful watch against the unreasonable interference of a certain third country toward the problem. Japan and Germany should cooperate out and out for the establishment of the new order in Europe and Asia. Again, as an individual, I should like to declare the present action taken by the Japanese was the proper thing to do."

Y.C.A.C. TEAM BEATS Y CLUB BALL PLAYERS

Home Team Pitcher Hits Home Run to Win; 'Old Crocks' Victorious Too

A ninth inning rally by the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball team resulted in their scoring a 6 to 5 victory over the Y Club on the Y.C. and A.C. diamond Monday afternoon. Pete Kipp, home team hurler, won his own game by hitting a home run which brought in the tying and winning runs.

In the opening game of the afternoon's twin bill, the "Old Crocks," composed in the main of elderly male Y.C. and A.C. members, defeated a girls' squad made up of the home team's and Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club's softball players by 11 to 5.

CLOSE GAME

The baseball game was a nip and tuck affair with never more than two runs difference in the scores. The visitors scored a point in the first inning but the home squad tied the count in the second. Both teams scored twice in the third frame but the Y Club made one run in the fourth and another in the sixth. In their half of the latter canto the Y.C. and A.C. also made a point to reduce the margin to one. Both sides were held scoreless until the latter half of the ninth when Kipp's homer broke up the ball game.

In the softball clash the girls started off well, scoring one run in the first and another two in the third to lead by 3 to 0. The men were held scoreless until the fifth when they made two runs to reduce their deficit to one. A four-run barrage in the sixth gave the "Old Crocks" the lead in the sixth, and another in the seventh resulted in their leading by 10 to 3. The girls obtained a brace in the eighth, but this ended the scoring in the contest.

SOFTBALL MEMBERS

Those participating in the softball game, (with "K" denoting K. R. and A.C. members and "Y" those of the Y.C. and A.C.) were as follows:

Girls: M. Crane (Y), M. Ely (Y), H. Lord (Y), M. Prohaska (Y), M. Oxford (K), M. Stevens (Y), S. Rodriguez (K), M. Kawasjee (K), T. Kosloff (K), V. Albeck (Y) and J. Clark (Y).

"Old Crocks": O. Baer (K), W. Salter (Y), C. Heseltine (Y), H. Bird (Y), R. G. Crane (Y), E. Dentici (Y), E. da Silva (Y), Mogra (K) and M. L. Russell (Y).

LONDON SHELTERS TO PROVIDE BEDS FOR NIGHT AIR RAIDS

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Sept. 23—Measures are being adopted by the Ministry of Home Security and local authorities to lessen the inconvenience caused by random German bombings.

Beginning today, post offices will remain open after public sirens are sounded until a second warning, indicating imminent danger is received.

It is generally anticipated that compensation for essential clothing and furniture lost by raid victims will now be paid in full, previous limits of 30 pounds sterling for clothing and 50 pounds for furniture being removed.

The chief measure, however, is understood to concern the adaptation of sanitary and possible sleeping facilities.

Plans for transporting people from more vulnerable areas, where shelter provision is insufficient, are understood to include the division of night evacuation areas into group of streets, each group having allotted shelters in another area. From each group, private buses will leave at a fixed time in the evening and return people to their homes in the morning.

Experiments, however, will first have to be made.

Good-humored philosophy, states the Daily Mail, is the rule everywhere in tube stations, where many people now take their food and bedding in the evenings.

"Don't forget to put your shoes outside the door," a porter told a woman making elaborate preparations for the night.

HOWARD DESIRES FAR EAST STAND CLARIFICATION

More Realistic Attitude By U. S. Held Necessary By Leading Newspaperman

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—Events taking shape steadily in the Far East may more vitally affect the United States' national future than any development of the present Battle of Britain, Roy Howard editor of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, declared today on his arrival from a 13,000-mile inspection tour of the western Pacific.

On the basis of cold reason and simple logic the possibility of a Japanese-American clash appears too fantastic for serious consideration; however, close students of Japanese-American relations, who have ridiculed the possibility of serious trouble, today are revising their judgments, he said.

Mr. Howard said that Far Eastern experts believe such a break can and still be avoided if the United States publicly clarifies its national policy regarding the Far East and if the United States Press and public adopt an understanding and a more realistic attitude toward the United States' inescapable role in the Pacific.

Appeasement toward Asia is likely to be interpreted as indication of the weakness of the United States which is an invitation to disaster, he warned, adding that peace of the Pacific is no longer for the peaceful, instead it is guaranteed only to those able to command peace.

Europeans in the Orient, the former publisher said, say that Japan could be stopped by firmness with a minimum show of force and predict that an inevitable compounding of the present world trouble unless Japan's threatened southward march against European-controlled territories is firmly dealt with now. There are developments in the Far East where the United States can't, in self interest, turn back or close its mind, he declared.

The Dutch and British, Mr. Howard said, believe that the Americans are slightly unimaginative regarding Japan. The Dutch hope that a peaceful arrangement with Japan can be secured and they rest their belief that Japan can better afford to negotiate peacefully for some part of the Dutch resources that to risk complete loss for the duration of the war.

The general belief, he concluded, is that Japan in its southward march may seize Thailand from where it would be able to establish bases to launch possible aerial attacks on Singapore. Every Britisher in the Orient is anxious to forestall such a possibility and hopes to see the Anglo-American mutual defense pact be extended to the Pacific.

Mr. Howard recently, in company with 12 other American newspapermen, visited the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and the Dutch East Indies to study the growing importance of the western Pacific in world affairs. He returned to the United States late last week.

N. CHINA NEWS PRAISES PACT

Japanese-French Agreement Called Realistic, Wise From Practical Viewpoint

Domei Tsushin

SHANGHAI, Sept. 24—While all anti-Japanese vernaculars published in the International Settlement editorially attacked the peaceful Japanese advance in French Indo-China as "virtual occupation of that country by Japan", the North China Daily News, leading English paper, lauded the Japanese-French agreement as a most wise step from practical viewpoints. The summary of main points of the paper's argument is as follows:

"Japan formally recognized the territorial integrity and sovereignty of French Indo-China and the latter, in turn, allowed certain military measures to the former. This agreement should be argued from practical viewpoints. That the hostilities should not be expanded further more in the Far East is sincere desire of not only France but of Britain and America. It is quite natural for both Britain and America that they do not like to see the European War spread all over the world. From this standpoint, the Japanese-Franco agreement was the best solution the two authorities could actually take in coping with the prevailing international situation.

"Some third Powers' nationals, disapproving the agreement, argue that the Indo-China authorities should have flatly refused the Japanese demand, but such must be said to be quite thoughtless arguments.

"The fact that Japan made clear that she would fully respect Indo-China's territorial integrity and sovereignty indicates that the present measures are taken temporarily for the disposal of the China Affair and, from the standpoint of international faith, it is wise for us to accept Japan's promise to respect France's sovereignty in Indo-China. Since Japan has promised to respect Indo-China's status quo, there is nothing for Britain and America to object. The agreement, indeed, must be said a wise one."

SOVIET ARMY GAMES REVEAL WEAKNESSES

Tactical Defects Listed By Regimental Commissar

Domei Tsushin

MOSCOW, Sept. 23—Commenting on the large-scale Red Army maneuvers held recently near Kiev, Alexander Amelin, regimental commissar of the army and special field correspondent of the Red Star, Soviet army journal, today indicated that a number of tactical weaknesses were detected in the course of the war games.

Mr. Amelin summarized the chief faults of the Red Army as follows:

1. Avoidable casualties were sustained when attempts were made to storm imaginary enemy positions while underestimating their fire.
2. Troops failed to take cover quickly when under aerial bombardment.
3. Artillery preparations were inadequate to cover offensive moves.
4. Machine-gunners were grouped too closely together and machine-gun units advanced too rapidly.
5. The infantry intelligence service failed to utilize information received from aerial reconnaissance units, resulting in loss in coordination.

World Cruises Suspended By O.S.K. Line Officials

Domei Tsushin

OSAKA, Sept. 24—Osaka Shosen Kaisha officials today announced the suspension of the around-the-world cruise.

The Argentina Maru, which is scheduled to leave Kobe October 15, is expected to change its course to the Panama Canal route. The Brasil Maru and Hokoku Maru have already been shifted from the African route.

It is said that the shift of the O.S.K. liners will supply stiff competition to the N.Y.K. liners of the Pacific.

WASEDA DRUBS RIKKYO IN GRID PLAY OPENER

Intercollegiate League Champs Amass 56-0 Football Victory

Scoring in every period but the second, the Waseda eleven pushed across eight touchdowns to defeat Rikkyo, 56-0, at the Korakuen stadium Thursday.

The game, ushering in the 1940 football season of the Tokyo Intercollegiate Football League, got under way following opening ceremonies in which the elevens of the League marched past in review in the following order; Waseda, Meiji, Keio, Hosei, Nichidai and Rikkyo.

HAVE GOOD BACKS

The Waseda champions, with a set of nice running backs, carried too much punch on the ground for the Rikkyo eleven. They scored seven of their touchdowns on running plays while the other was scored via the air.

Waseda scored twice in the first period, four times in the third and added two more in the final quarter. Naguwa with two touchdowns and four conversions led the scoring, while Tosaya and Yasuda scored twice and Tsumoto and Fujimoto, each went over for one touchdown.

Waseda opened the scoring following five minutes of play, after taking the kick-off to the mid-field. Two first downs and a 15-yard jaunt by Fujimoto around his own right end placed the ball in scoring territory. Two plays later Yasuda smashed over right guard to score. Naguwa went over center for the conversion.

Following the kick-off, Rikkyo unable to make headway, punted to the mid-field, from where the Waseda backs alternated in reaching the 18-yard line, where Tosaya, behind good blocking of his teammates scored standing up. Naguwa again splint center for the extra point.

SHOW PASSING ATTACK

The second period Rikkyo behind the pitching arms of Suzuki completed passes to their ends Yoshida and Takasaki to work the ball to Waseda five yard line. Three smashes over center netted Rikkyo half a yard and on fourth down, Suzuki, finding no receivers attempted to circle his right end, and was promptly dumped on the four yard line. This was Rikkyo's first and only threat. While no touchdown resulted, the Waseda backs had their hands full trying to stop Suzuki's passes to the flat zone.

The third period, the Waseda backs, behind effective blocking, pounded the center of the Rikkyo line to shreds. An occasional end run and reverses and laterals completely disorganized the Rikkyo eleven and Waseda shoved across four touchdowns, converting each one.

The touchdowns in order ran; Naguwa over right tackle for eight yards, Fujimoto over the same hole for twelve yards, Naguwa again from the four and finally Tosaya taking a pass from the thirty-five yard line to score standing up.

Rikkyo without Suzuki's passing arm lost its main threat and in the fourth quarter, a prayer pass and nicely executed reverse brought them two first downs, but again the Waseda team took the offensive and scored twice. A end round found Tsumoto the right-end over the goal line from thirty yards out, while Yasuda again scored over right tackle from the five.

AMASSED 431 YARDS

A glance at the figures reveal the champions superiority. Waseda gained from running plays a total of 431 yards as against Rikkyo's 177. In first downs Waseda piled up 23 against 9. Rikkyo however gained 96 yards from passes to Waseda's 92, completing seven and five respectively. In penalties Waseda was guilty of four while Rikkyo had none.

Waseda this year again showed that in potential power she leads the League, for although Coach Nomura cleared the bench, offensive power didn't seem to suffer. It remains to be seen, however, if Waseda, without the all-around playing and field generalship, of last year's star Richard Fukuda, can repeat taking the Championship.

Rikkyo on the other showed lack of practice and used only a pass, a prayer and smashes over center as their offensive weapon.

KEIO-NICHIDAI NEXT

Next Thursday Keio will meet Nichidai, and another big score is in prospect as Nichidai will be playing their first game of football in their school's history.

Technological Art Group Plans Society, Exhibit

With the object of preventing technological art works from being considered luxurious things as well as of getting foreign currency by producing works to the taste of foreigners, a "Gendai Kogei-Sakka Kyokai" or Modern Technologists' Society will be organized, says Domei.

The society will be organized with about 90 members, with Katsu Kawasaki as chairman and Ginjiro Fujihara, Baron Kihichiro Okura and Baron Ino Dan as counsilors. The first exhibition of the society will be held at the Takashimaya Department Store at Nihonbashi from November 18 to the end of the month.

RYUSHIN BOKU WINS ON POINTS

Easily Beats Mitsuyama In Hibiya Boxing Card Ten-Round Main Event

Ryushin Boku, 134 pounds who is being trained for a match against Piston Horiguchi early next month, took the decision over Ichiro Mitsuyama, 147 pounds last night in the ten-round feature of the boxing card held at the Hibiya amphitheater.

Mitsuyama, a slightly portly boxer with a left hand as his main weapon was no threat for Boku, who scored time and time again with jabs to the face. As early as the second round Mitsuyama was taking the worst of it in the exchange of blows and scored only occasionally with long looping lefts. Boku, never taking the offensive, built up points merely by stepping back and countering with lefts and rights.

From the standpoint of competition, another ten-rounder between Toshiro Aoki, 124 and Shiro Yanagi, 127 was the better bout. In this fight Aoki scored a T.K.O. in the two-minutes and 58 seconds of the sixth round.

Aoki another counter-puncher up to the fifth round was being held even by Yanagi's long rights. In the latter part of the fifth and in the sixth Aoki displayed a hard right to slow up Yanagi considerable. The punch which did the damage was a straight right to the face which stopped Yanagi, who refused to fight. After taking a couple of counts Yanagi's seconds threw in the towel.

The results of the preliminaries were: In the six-rounders S. Suzuki decisioned Y. Ohtake, while M. Masuda won by a decision over J. Yokoyama. The two four-rounders ended with Akiyama taking the decision over Sakae, and Watanabe scoring a T.K.O. over Kikuchi in the third round.

U.S.-Style Football Gets New Name, 'Kaikyu,' in Japan

American football, introduced here five years ago by American teachers and American-born Japanese college students, will hereafter be known in Japan as "Kaikyu"—literally "Armor football"—instead of "Beishiki shukyu"—"American style football."

Directors of the Tokyo Intercollegiate American Football League adopted the new name to fall in line with the government-sponsored movement for establishment of a "new national structure," which is interpreted by some Japanese as elimination of foreign influences. The selection is attributed to the interest shown by Japanese spectators in the headgear and shoulderpads worn by a player.

The league is composed of teams from Waseda, Meiji, Rikkyo, Keio, Hosei and Nihon Universities.

times and place or places and in such manner and in such age group or groups as shall be determined by rules and regulations, prescribed hereunder.

'Section 5(A). Commissioned officers, warrant officers, pay clerks, and enlisted men of the regular Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Public Health Service, the federally recognized active National Guard, Officers Reserve Corps, the Regular Army Reserve, the Enlisted Reserve Corps, the Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps Reserve; cadets United States Military Academy; midshipmen United States Naval Academy; men who have been accepted for admittance (commencing with the academic year next succeeding such acceptance) to the United States Military Academy as cadets, but only during the continuance of such acceptance; cadets of the advanced course, senior division, Reserve Officers Training Corps or Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps; and diplomatic representatives, technical attaches of foreign embassies and legations, consuls-general, consuls, vice-consuls and consular agents of foreign countries residing in the United States who are not citizens of the United States and who have not declared their intention to become citizens of the United States shall not be required to be registered under Section 2 and shall be relieved from liability for training and service under Section 2(B).

'Section 10(A). The President is authorized—

DETAILS GIVEN

(1) To prescribe the necessary rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this Act;'

'(4) To utilize the services of any or all departments and any and all officers or agents of the United States and to accept the services of all officers and agents of the several states, territories and the District of Columbia and subdivisions thereof in the execution of this act;'

'Section 14(A). Every person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of this act upon publication by the President of a proclamation of other public notice fixing a time for any registration under Section 2'

"Now therefore I. Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the aforesaid Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 do proclaim the following:

"1. The first registration under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 shall take place on Wednesday the 16th day of October, 1940 between the hours of 7 a.m. and 9 p.m.

"2. Every male person (other than persons excepted by Section 5 (a) of the aforesaid Act) who is a citizen of the United States or an alien residing in the United States and who on the registration date fixed herein has attained the twenty-first anniversary of the day of his birth and has not attained the thirty-sixth anniversary of the day of his birth is required to present himself for and submit to registration. Every such person who is within the continental United States on the registration date fixed herein shall on that date present himself for and submit to registration at the duly designated place of registration within the precinct district or registration area in which he had his permanent home or in which he may happen to be on that date. Every such person who is not within the continental United States on the registration date fixed herein shall within five days after his return to the continental United States present himself for and submit to registration. Regulations will be prescribed hereafter providing for special registration of those who on account of sickness or other causes beyond their control are unable to present themselves for registration at the designated places of registration on the registration date fixed herein.

"3. Every person subject to registration is required to familiarize himself with the rules and regulations governing registration and to comply therewith.

FOR OTHER SPOTS

"4. The times and places for registration in Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico will be fixed in a subsequent proclamation.

"5. I call upon the Governors of the several states and the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia to provide suitable and sufficient places of registration within their respective jurisdictions and to provide suitable and necessary registration boards to effect such registration.

"6. I further call upon all officers and agents of the United States and all officers and agents of the several States and the District of Columbia and sub-divisions thereof to do and perform all acts and services necessary to accomplish effective and complete registration; and I especially call upon all local election officials and other patriotic citizens to offer their services as members of the boards of registration.

"7. In order that there may be full cooperation in carrying into effect the purposes of said act I urge all employers and government agencies of all kinds—Federal, State and local—to give those under their charge sufficient time off in which to fulfill the obligation of registration incumbent on them under the said Act.

"America stands at the cross roads of its destiny. Time and distance have been shortened. A few weeks have seen great nations fall. We cannot remain indifferent to the philosophy of force now rampant in the world. The terrible fate of nations whose weakness invited attack is too well known to us all. We must and will marshal our great potential strength to fend off war from our shores. We must and will prevent our land from becoming a victim of aggression.

"Our decision has been made. It is in that spirit that the people of our country are assuming the burdens that now become necessary. Offers of service have flooded in from patriotic citizens in every part of the nation who ask only what they can do to help. Now there is both the opportunity and the need for many thousands to assist in listing the names and addresses of millions who will enroll on registration day at school houses, polling places and town halls.

"The Congress has debated without partisanship and has now enacted a law establishing a selective method of augmenting our armed forces. The method is fair, it is sure, it is democratic—it is the will of our people.

"After thoughtful deliberation and as the first step our young men will come from the factories and the fields, the cities and the towns, to enroll their names on registration day.

"On that eventful day my generation will salute their generation. May we all renew within our hearts that conception of liberty and that way of life which we have all inherited. May we all strengthen our resolve to hold high the torch of freedom in this darkened world so that our children and their children may not be robbed of their rightful inheritance.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, etc. Franklin D. Roosevelt."

STATEMENT ISSUED

The White House later issued the following statement:

"Colored citizens constitute approximately 9 per cent of the total population of the United States and the men selected for military service will be in about the same ratio. Of the first increment of 400,000 men to be called into the service about 36,000 will be colored.

"With the enactment of the Selective Service Act the War Department plans to organize several new colored regiments for the Army and to expand existing organizations to full war strength. The expansion will affect both combat and service organizations of the regular Army and the National Guard such as infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers and quartermaster corps.

"The Civil Aeronautic Commission in cooperation with the Army is making a start in the development of colored personnel for the aviation service. Pilots, mechanics and other specialists must first be trained as a nucleus for the formation of colored aviation units."

Stephen Early, the President's secretary, said that in addition to this phase of the conscription program three negro National Guard regiments "soon" would be called for active training of one year and would be recruited to full war strength. He said that these would be the 369th Coast Artillery of New York, the 184th Field Artillery of Illinois and the 372nd Infantry of the District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, Ohio, and Massachusetts.

ANNUAL CRICKET INTERPORT SET

Rivalry Started in 1884 And of 50 Games Played Yokohama Has Won 25

The annual interport cricket match between the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club and the Kobe Cricket Club will be held on the former's grounds on Saturday and Sunday. Play on both days will commence at 10:30 a.m.

Although the Y.C. and A.C. eleven was badly beaten by the Indian Sport Club in Kobe a fortnight ago, the losers were handicapped at that time by the absence of some of their strongest players who were unable to make the trip to the Kansai. However, it is expected that the Y.C. and A.C. cricketers will make a much better showing this week-end in their home game against the K.C.C.

Last year in Kobe the Y.C. and A.C. defeated the K.C.C. by 22 runs in a two-inning game to win the Hamilton Holmes Trophy, while the Kobe eleven won in Yokohama in 1938 by five wickets. A close and interesting game is expected between these traditional rivals in Yokohama this week-end.

The first cricket interport was held in 1884. Of the 50 games played to date, Yokohama has won 25, Kobe has been the victor in 18, and the other seven have ended in draws.

On Saturday evening an interport cricket dinner will be held at the Y.C. and A.C. club house, with cocktails being served from 7:30 and the dinner scheduled to start at 8. A tea dance will also be held in honor of the visitors on Sunday afternoon, with the Toho Swing Band playing from 6 to 9.

The teams and officials for the interport match will be as follows:

Y.C. and A.C.: S. R. Balden, H. J. Bird, W. D. Brown, W. R. Bull, R. Divers, W. L. Foggitt, R. E. Grosfils, F. R. Harriss, D. Lysons (captain), R. A. Roberts and S. Stephens.

K.C.C.: N. C. Cullen, P. C Gibbon, N. S. Gosalia, E. R. Hill, R. T. Holder, A. Hudson (captain), E. B. Kawasjee, H. C. D. Knight, A. Mendonca, O. Skinner and P. J. Swales.

Umpires: B. Devoson (Yokohama) and S. G. Stanford (Kobe).

Scorer: H. P. Kay (Yokohama).

RIKKYO UPSET BY IMPERIAL'S RALLY IN 9TH

Hosei Defeats Keio 1-0 In Other Game of College League Play at Stadium

Two favorites went down to defeat yesterday at the Meiji Jingu stadium when Tokyo Imperial beat Rikkyo, 4-0 and Hosei handed Keio a 1-0 shut-out.

In the Imperial-Rikkyo tilt, pitcher Yoshimura lost a three-hitter, when a momentary wildness in the ninth inning, plus a timely double by Kita, added up to defeat.

Going into the ninth inning, Yoshimura seemed reasonably secure having held the Imperial nine to but two hits. He had the bottom of the batting order with which to contend.

FILLED BASES

Then after retiring the first batter, Yoshimura filled the bases when he hit Goto and issued two base on balls. Kita who had been hitless then came through with a timely double to left-center, scoring two runs. That was practically the ball game, but just for good measure, the Imperial boys continued to put across two more runs on two successive squeeze plays, The side was finally retired when Kitano hit into a double-play.

Neither team threatened to score in the earlier innings, with both Yoshimura and Sato pitching excellent ball. Imperial up to the eighth was being checked on one hit, with not a man reaching third, while Rikkyo, although garnering seven hits, placed a runner on third but once.

Fukumura and Tabe were the only batters to connect for two hits.

KEIO TASTES DEFEAT

In the second tilt of the afternoon, Keio tasted their first defeat of the season when they ran up against the four-hit pitching of Morishita.

Yet for opposition, the Keio pitcher Takatsuka, was just as stingy with hits, giving up but an equal amount. In the third the Hosei nine played heads-up ball to push across a run on two hits, aided by an error.

Ikeda opened the inning with a single to center. Takino promptly sacrificed him to second. Tagawa then shot a single just inside the right field foul line. Ikeda stopped at third, but then continued home when Inouye failed to handle right fielder Kusumoto's throw.

Keio threatened early in the second inning but a nice peg by Matsushita stopped the runner at home. After two outs, Takatsuka and Nezu both received free passes. Then Miyezaki singled sharply to left, and when Takatsuka attempted to score he was thrown out on a close play.

MISSED OPPORTUNITY

Keio's last attempt to score came in the fifth inning when a hit, a base on balls, and an infield error filled the bases after two outs. However, Uno, the next man, lifted a lazy fly to right to end the threat.

Following the third inning, the Hosei nine was held to two scattered singles, while Morishita never allowed two hits to be bunched in one inning.

DETROIT TIGERS CINCH PENNANT BY BLANKING CLEVELAND CLUB

Hold Four-Game Lead in Hectic American League Play; Meet Reds in World Series

United Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27—The Detroit Tigers shut out the Cleveland Indians 2 to 0 here today to win the American League pennant and the right to meet the Cincinnati Reds, National League pennant winners, in the classic World Series.

Rudy York of the Tigers won the game for the Tigers with a home run in the fourth inning which scored the only runs of the game. The homer was a heartbreaker for young Bob Feller who twirled a three-hit game in a supreme effort to cop the pennant for the Indians.

YORK HOMERS

York's home run, sailing just beyond the reach of Bill Chapman, Indian left fielder, brought in Charlie Gehringer whom Feller had walked.

A single by Bill Sullivan and a double by Hank Greenberg were the only other safeties the Tigers collected off Feller.

A rowdy Cleveland crowd of 45,553 persons showered vegetables on the Tiger dugout in the second inning. Police required ten minutes to restore order.

GIEBELL STARS

Floyd Giebell, Tiger pitcher recently recalled from Buffalo, was superb in the pinches. He yielded only six hits and fanned Bill Chapman, one of the spark plugs of the Indian offensive, three times with two men aboard base each time.

The victory gave the Tigers their first pennant in five years and the sixth in the history of the club.

The New York Yankees lost their first game in nine starts today and with it went their hopes of winning the pennant.

The Philadelphia Athletics shattered the Yankee pennant dreams with a 6 to 2 victory which saw the Yankee powerhouse held to only five hits.

Reich Oil Supply Sufficient, Says N.Y. Times Writer

D.N.B.

NEW YORK, Sept.—J. H. Carmichael, writes in the New York Times, that the oil supply of the Axis Powers for the duration of the war has been assured, as they can depend on Germany's production of synthetic oil coupled with Rumania's production of natural oil.

"The normal Rumanian output of 100,000 barrels a day," the writer adds," will be enormously increased within the near future. Additional resources will be tapped and the Rumanian Government has assumed control of the foreign companies. The increase in output will exclusively benefit the Axis Powers."

Balkan Trade Progress Told

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 26—The German secretary of state, Dr. Landfried, gave an interview to the correspondent of the Belgrade paper "Vreme" on the further development of the exchange of goods between Germany and Jugoslavia as head of a German government delegation, which meets in Belgrade every year.

He declared that it was the aim of both countries to increase their exchange of goods as much as possible and therefore the present negotiation between the two governments have to take into account the economic needs of both countries. Dr. Landfried concluded that the recent developments of the German trade policy with the South Eastern countries of Europe had proved, how big Germany's interest actually is.

KOBE CRICKET TEAM BEATS LOCAL PLAYERS

Hamilton Holmes Trophy Going to Winner of Next Week's Game

The Kobe Cricket Club defeated the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club in the annual interport cricket match by 140 runs at the latter's grounds over the weekend. The winners scored 80 runs in their first innings and declared after making 217 for 8 wickets in their second stand, while the losers' totals were 75 and 80.

When the first innings was concluded midway through Saturday afternoon, the outcome was still very much in doubt, the difference in the scores being only five runs. After the K.C.C. had lost three wickets for 42 runs in their second time at bat, the outlook became mor favorable for them with Holder and Gosalia making a fine stand. These two batsmen were still at bat when stumps were drawn at 5 o'clock. On Sunday morning they boosted their team's score to 133 before Holder was retired after making 33.

GOSALIA SCORES 46

Gosalia scored 46 before being dismissed, and the next two batters, Knight and Cullen also did well, contributing 35 and 41, respectively, before losing their wickets.

When play was stopped for the luncheon interval, the Kobe team declared, sending their opponents into bat when play was resumed in the afternoon.

The Y.C. and A.C. lost its first wicket for 13 runs, and for some time after the home team batsmen fell rapidly, six wickets being lost for 28 runs. Then Bird and Divers put up a fine stand, these two players boosting the score to 60 before the latter was bowled by Cullen. Devin then went in, and he made 17 before one of Holder's deliveries proved too deceptive for him. The last two wickets then fell for two runs.

PLAYING NEXT WEEK

With both the Indian Sport Club, of Kobe, and the Kobe Cricket Club having defeated the Y.C. and A.C., the Hamilton Holmes Trophy will be won by the winner of the match to be played between the two Kansai teams next week-end at the Kobe Recreation Grounds.

The K.C.C. players and officials were guests of the Y.C. and A.C. at an interport dinner held Saturday night in the home team's clubhouse, with Mr. R. A. Roberts, the club president, acting as chairman. On Sunday afternoon, the visitors were also entertained at a tea dance at which the Toho Swing Band supplied the music.

FRENCH DAMAGE BRITISH SHIPS IN DAKAR FIGHT

Germans Term Withdrawal Wise Move; 'Resolution' And Other Men of War Hit

D.N.B.

VICHY, Sept. 27—The French Government stated officially Thursday morning the British units had abandoned Dakar. The battle of Dakar was a British defeat. They steamed off with several badly damaged battleships and cruisers.

French West Africa remains under the control of the Petain Government. Regarding the last fighting actions, the French communique states that French chasers on Wednesday morning at 6:15 a.m. succeeded in shooting down British planes. At 7:30 a.m. 2 British torpedo boats, 2 battleships and 2 cruisers appeared off Dakar. Shortly before 9 a.m. the "Richelieu" and the coastal batteries opened fire on the British units with the result that the British battleship "Resolution" had to withdraw from the firing line after having been hit by the French submarine "Bevezjers." Another British battleship is also said to have been hit and the catapault plane was destroyed.

The town of Dakar was again hit by shells, and shells were also fired into the harbor. The "Richelieu" was hit by one shell which, however, caused neither damages to the ship nor casualties among the crew.

BRITISH EXPLAIN

On Thursday afternoon the French Government published the final communique on the Dakar fighting reading as follows:

"The British broadcast announced the withdrawal of the British naval squadron from Dakar and the discontinuation of the British attempts to take possession of the capital of French West Africa, because the British Government has no intention of attacking French possessions if they are defended by the French."

This British statement is not in complete accord with the facts. The real reason for the decision of the British Government is the resistance encountered by the British naval squadron at Dakar, the bad blows dealt by the French to some of the finest British units of the fleet as well as the reprisals taken by the French airforce by bombing Gibraltar.

HELD WISE MOVE

The British Government has come to a wise decision. In fact, it is hard to understand that the British admiralty allowed itself to become entangled into such an adventure by former General de Gaulle. The latter bears the real responsibility for the defeat of the British navy off Dakar, because he made the British Government believe that the French colonies were ready to desert their home country.

The communique at the same time lauds the attitude shown by the French forces at Dakar and emphasized that the governor himself went to the barracks of the French marines and airforce. It is added that the governor was going from battery to battery speaking to the French soldiers and sailors who had victoriously defended Dakar.

'VICTORIOUS WITHDRAWAL'

The German press commented on the events at Dakar as being another proof of the incapability shown again by the British. In articles headlined by "Latest victorious Withdrawal of the British" the German papers declare that the British attempt to make Ex-General de Gaulle a scapegoat for the British defeat was typical of the British mentality. It is pointed out that in reality de Gaulle was a prisoner of the British and that he had been used in the whole adventure as a mere puppet in the hands of the British war politicians.

It is added in these comments that England by now really should have had time enough to realize that France was no longer willing to fight in this war for the British. It is furthermore declared in Berlin political quarters that the whole action of Dakar was very similar to that of Oran, which had been undertaken under the same explanation that Germany was about to stretch her hands to the French ships in Dakar and, in fact, that Dakar should become a base for German attacks against the Western Hemisphere.

This, of course, is an intentionally false assertion as is emphasized in Berlin. The real purpose of these reports had been shown in the course of the Dakar action, which now completely failed.

U.S. FLEET SAID READY FOR ANY WORLD CRISIS

Wartime Secrecy Covers Movements Of Ships; Army Prepared Too

By WENDEL BURCH

United Press

HONOLULU, Sept. 16—Whipped into shape by four months of the most intensive maneuvers in its history, ordered in the face of steadily deteriorating world relations, the United States Fleet has girded itself in an unprecedented manner to guard America's first line of defense in the Pacific.

Since April 3 what amounts to wartime secrecy has covered the exact movements of the armada, but it is no secret that the fleet is prepared for instant action in the Pacific area.

"Ship for ship, our navy is the equal of any in the world," naval authorities assert confidently. They hope that the naval construction program will make it the equal of any combination of navies which the fortunes of history might turn against it.

TROOPS ALERT

Ashore in Hawaii, where the United States maintains its greatest single concentration of army power, troops are equally on the alert. Unobstrusively, but continuously, sentries patrol all important communication and transport lines.

Large appropriations have been made to construct underground storage facilities on Oahu, but as yet no public announcement has been made of plans for underground plane hangars. In view of the flexible state of defense preparations, however, it may be assumed that plane storage will be provided underground if the Army and Navy command agree that such facilities are advisable.

Bombers maintain unbroken neutrality patrols for hundreds of miles off the Hawaiian coasts. Battleships, cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carries put into the Pearl Harbor naval base on Oahu, near Honolulu, for maintenance and repairs, then depart immediately on further "maneuvers". This has been the order of activity for the fleet since May 16, when Admiral James O. Richardson, commander-in-chief of the fleet, announced that it would remain in Hawaiian waters indefinitely.

GUNNERY PRACTICE

Gunnery practice has been intensive. One gunnery school was conducted despite the fact that a considerable amount of overhaul work was under way at the time, and required much overtime labor by mechanics to keep participating planes and ships in operation.

A fundamental in U.S. Fleet operations is to keep gunnery at a peak. Officers believe that no other naval gunners in the world—with possible exception of the British—can approach the accuracy of American crews. The efficacy of American naval bombing long has been established.

One maneuver which has contributed to the efficiency of American naval gunnery has been adoption of "offset firing" practice. Ships fire broadsides apparently directly at each other, under fully simulated war time conditions. Crews appear to aim their weapons straight at designated friendly ships. The secret is that the gun sights are corrected, so that the shots actually clear the target by entirely safe margins.

The island of Oahu now is stocked with more war materials than at any time in recent history. Unofficial sources say that adequate ammunition is on hand at the vast Lualualei depot and other storage centers to last the fleet through any conceivable operation. The navy supply system has been taxed to the utmost to keep oil and other necessary supplies flowing into Pearl Harbor for the 100 or more ships operating in the Hawaiian region.

NEVER REVEALED

Where the fleet units go while on active duty never is revealed—but they are absent two and three weeks at a time on occasion, indicating the scope of their activity. Carriers are reported unofficially to be establishing an "outer patrol," well beyond the range of patrol bombers flying from the air base at Pearl Harbor.

Screening the Hawaiian Islands proper are Midway, Johnston, and Palmira Islands. Millions are being poured into development of air and naval bases there, and preliminary work has been started on a base at Wake Island—which lies west of the international date line. Far south of Honolulu is the Samoan Base of Pago Pago—also strengthened to face any eventuality.

At Hickman Field, huge army air base adjoining Pearl Harbor, millions of dollars are being spent. Across the Koolau Range from Honolulu and Pearl Harbor, at Kaneohe Bay, the navy is completing work on another air base.

The picture thus presented is one of definite war time activity. It bears the significant distinction, however, that its directors consider the existing establishment efficient and fairly complete in itself. America is ready for anything at its strongest bastion in the Pacific.

U.S. NOW HAS

which will be usable against the United States, the article concluded.

WASHINGTON STAR WARNS

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—Discussing consequences of the Administrations embargo on scrap iron, the Washington Star in an editorial today warned that the United States cannot afford to assume that Japan will permit a gradual undermining of its military strength, which a long-term application of the embargo will involve, without making an effort to combat it.

Japan, the journal said, faces the choice of two courses, namely to come to terms with the United States, which is highly improbable as it would involve abandonment of Japan's ambitions of the Greater East Asia, or to pursue a more vigorous policy either alone or in collaboration with totalitarian Powers of Europe.

Expressing belief that it is the latter course the United States must anticipate, the Washington Star said the American people must be prepared to face the fact that mere embargo on scrap iron will not deter Japan, who may decide to strike now while it is relatively stronger than it will be a year or two hence.

First Air Raid Shelter Baby Born in Germany

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Sept. 26—During the night from September 25 to 26 the first air raid shelter baby was born in Berlin.

While British planes flew over Berlin a 21-year-old woman gave birth to a boy in an air raid shelter at Charlottenburg, a western district of Berlin.

Another young woman, who had been trained by the Red Cross, was able to assist her.

N.E.I. DEFENSE EFFICIENT, SAYS I.P.R. SURVEY

Has Many Submarines Effective in Preventing Naval Attack on Isles

United Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17—The Netherlands East Indies is probably in a much stronger position for self-defense from foreign attack and invasion than is generally thought, according to a survey by the Institute of Pacific Relations.

While official figures on the strength of the Indies defenses have been veiled in secrecy since 1933, unofficial sources place the strength of her naval defenses at one battleship, three cruisers, eight destroyers, 18 submarines and 42 torpedo boats, the survey reported.

SUBS EFFECTIVE

Naval authorities have long regarded the submarine as the best means of naval defense for small countries which cannot indulge in large navies and the number which the Netherlands Indies is now known to possess would undoubtedly play an important role not only against any naval attack on the islands but especially against transports trying to land military expeditions. As the islands have only a limited number of ports at which such debarkations could take place, the potential striking power of the Indies submarine fleet is greater than might otherwise be the case.

An unusual feature of the Indies destroyers and minelayers, the survey found, is that they are equipped to carry planes.

A plentiful supply of aviation fuel has been assured by the construction of two high-octane aviation gasoline plants.

The Netherlands Indies are well equipped from the standpoint of aerial defense and for the bombing of attacking ships, the survey reported. The airforce includes Martin bombers, Koolhovens, Fokkers, and German Dorniers. Several excellent military bases and numerous secret airfields have been built in the jungles of the archipelago. Ground defense crews are equipped with Vickers anti-aircraft guns.

The survey also found, that while during the early years of the Dutch East Indies' effort to build up her defenses, a large part of her airplanes were purchased in European centers, the Indies Government has more recently been making increased purchases from the United States. In 1938, out of a total of 104 planes imported into the Indies, 66 came from the United States.

TO BUY 250 MORE

Prior to the invasion of the mother country, the Dutch Indies army numbered 50,000. Since then, steady recruiting has been underway.

The survey found that while the Dutch Indies in the past counted largely on the mother country for defense, it had in recent years followed a policy of being largely self-dependent, and complete organization has been effected to that end.

Measures taken include the creation of a State Mobilization Council; a Department of Economic Affairs which will regulate shipping in case of war and insure the safety of certain harbors for both warships and the country's commercial vessels; the installation of coastal lookout posts with two-way radio apparatus; and an elaborate system for contacting merchant ships at sea should hostilities break out.

Measures have also been taken for the laying of mines, the use of torpedoes, the convoying of merchant ships and gas protection.

"Measures for the mobilization of the country's economic resources and the resultant transformation in the country's economy, have put the Dutch Indies in a position to put up a stout defense against any invader," the survey concluded.

U.S. EXPERT SEES TRANSFER

British Government Removal At Early Date Inevitable Due to Severe Air Raids

By MAJOR ALEXANDER P. DE SEVERSKY

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's aerial blitzkrieg against London has by no means reached its maximum fury.

Marshal Hermann Goering, chief of the German air force, and his general staff, undoubtedly will apply the lessons learned in the early stages of the aerial offensive against Britain for the surpose of making future raids more devastating.

NUMERICALLY SUPERIOR

It is said that aviation experts are becoming convinced that huge, sprawling cities possess no truly effective defense against night bombings, and Germany's wide numerical superiority in planes enables the Germans to induce 3 to 1 losses as admitted by Britain's Prime Minister, Winston Churchill.

Hence, it seems reasonable to expect the withdrawal of the British Government from London at an early date to a more defensible, if not impregnable spot in interior England.

Preparations presumably are under way already for the transfer of extensive technical equipment to a new state center. The possibility of a German invasion of the British Isles makes this move all the more imperative, as a glance at the map will show. The very geographical factors that made London a world metropolis will make it an easier mark for invading forces.

The English population themselves are combatants rather than civilian onlookers in this war. Consequently they are likely to appreciate whatever action the Government may take. If the Government moves from London, that metropolis will merely become another large city in the same class as Liverpool and Manchester.

PALACE BOMBING NEGLIGIBLE

German bomb hits on Buckingham Palace were of negligible importance when compared with damage admittedly inflicted on London's water supply, gas, light and other public utilities.

The moral for America in this terrifying story of the rain of death on London is an old one—that the best defense is offensive.

The only satisfactory defense against night bombings such as are now in progress is to strike at the enemy's home bases where the bombers are kept.

The battle of London should be fought, and in a considerable measure is being fought, over Leipzig, Hamburg and Berlin.

Petain Confiscates Reds Funds

United Press

VICHY, Sept. 15—Six months after the suppression of the Communist Party in France, and confiscation of all its possessions, Marshal Henri Petain issued last night turning over the entire receipts to relief funds in Paris and other cities of France where Communist property was seized.

Communist property seized by the Government was said to have been valued at millions of francs.

Ambassador Togo to Return In October, Says Imai

Domei Tsushin

MANCHULI, Sept. 30—Ambassador Shigenori Togo is expected to leave Moscow for Tokyo on October 14, according to Kazuo Imai, Secretary to the Japanese Embassy in Moscow, who left here for Tokyo via Dairen on the 10:30 a.m. train Sunday. Also on the same train were Embassy Counselor Motoharu Hichida, who had been in Soviet Russia for the past six years and seven Japanese doctors of the Medical Mission to Germany headed by Dr. Ishibashi.

41 BODIES FOUND IN U.S. ARMS PLANT BLAST

Government Agencies Push Investigations in Effort To Determine Real Couse

United Press

KENVIL, New Jersey, Sept. 14—Forty-one bodies had been recovered from the smouldering ruins of the Hercules Powder Company here last night as eight separate Government agencies pushed investigations in an effort to determine whether sabotage was responsible for the nation's biggest munitions explosion since the historic Black Tom case of July 30, 1916.

Eighty-three persons were removed to hospitals yesterday following the explosion in which the total dead may reach more than 100.

200 WORKERS DIG

Two hundred rescue workers continued to dig in the smouldering ruins of the munitions plant last night in search of other bodies.

Twenty thousand tons of smokeless powder were blown up in the explosion which caused property damaged estimated last night at more than $1,000,000.

The blasts caused further incalculable damage by indefinitely detaining the progress of national defense contracts totaling almost $17,000,000.

At least nine powder houses, in which British and American Government orders were being filled, were blown up. Damage was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Ambulance and fire apparatuses from dozens of communities in the area were rushed to the scene of the explosions, which were heard for 50 miles. Smoke and flames were visible for many miles more and windows throughout the area were shattered. Residents in Duchess and Westchester Counties believed there was an earthquake.

Experts thought it possible that a can of dry powder had detonated as a result of spontaneous combustion, starting the chain of explosions. Nevertheless, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced at its Newark field office that it would investigate the blast

SABOTAGE SAID FALSE

United Press

BATH, Maine, Sept. 14—The report that gasoline had been found in 91 fire extinguishers at the iron works here, where several U.S. destroyers are under construction, was branded as "absolutely false" yesterday by William S. Newell, president of the iron work.

Mr. Newell said five months ago an employe had mistakenly filled two extinguishers with lubricating oil. The worker had immediately reported the accident, however, after emptying the extinguishers, he said.

Lieutenant Leon Shepard, U.S.N., yesterday told the press a possible plot to blow up American warships under construction had been nipped in the bud when 91 fire extinguishers were found filled with gasoline.

KYOTO DOCTORS PRAISE ACCORD

German Culture Director, Society President, Happy Tripartite Pact Signed

KYOTO, Sept. 28—"I think this treaty assumes important significance not only on political, economic or military affairs but also on cultural matters, and the mission of our institute becomes more important in the future." declared Dr. Hans Eckartz, director of the German Culture Research Institute at Higashi-Ichijo, Yoshida, here, concerning the Japan-Germany-Italy Tripartite Pact.

"About 15 years ago," continued Dr. Eckartz "When I was still a university student I made up my mind to devote my life to the study of Japanese culture, and since that time I have been an earnest advocate for the Japan-Germany Past.

ASKED TO STUDY

"While studying in the Berlin University I asked Dr. Kazunobu Kanokogi, then professor of the university, to allow me to study the unique Japanese culture under his leadership. With this ideal in mind, our fellow students and I studied with ardent enthusiasm and painstaking efforts. On arriving in Japan to realize our ideal and to make acquaintance with the Japanese people, I resolved to do my utmost for achievement of my goal.

"When I returned to Germany, I had the honor of being received in audience by Herr Hitler and had the pleasure of delivering a talk on Japanese culture before him for about an hour. The ruler was very glad to hear about Japan and things Japanese, and since then he appeared to have much interest in Japanese culture.

"Words fail to express my hearty gratitude on this happy occasion of the signing of the Japan-Germany-Italy Agreement."

HAPPY OVER TREATY

Dr. Aihiko Sata, president of the Japan-Germany Society of Kansai said:

"Our Japan-Germany Society of the Kansai has been endeavoring for improvement of goodwill and fraternity between the two nations. We are very glad to see this treaty has been concluded among three brother countries in Europe and Asia. It is a matter of course that these three totalitarian countries, which are going to work together for a new and better world in the future, should be united by a political or military agreement, now that Japan is exerting her utmost for the establishment of a new order in the Far East, while Germany and Italy are endeavoring to bring about the same in Europe.

"We deem it a matter of profound awe that our Imperial Majesty the Emperor was gracious enough to grant an Imperial rescript on this memorable occasion. We should be firmly impressed that Japan, Germany and Italy now stand against the plutocrats and the old order of the world. We are firmly convinced that the new pact will bear its best fruits in Far East and Europe very soon."

French, British Groups Split Into 4 Factions

Domei Tsushin

KOBE, Sept. 29—Complicated aspects are again being brought to the fore in Shanghai, reflecting a swift changing European situation, said Consul-General Yoshiaki Miura, who arrived here this morning from Shanghai en route to Tokyo, with his family, aboard the Taiyo Maru. He has been recalled by the Government. Interviewed by the press on board the ship, he said:

"Since outbreak of the China Affair, third powers such as Britain, America and France have been backing the Chungking Regime by every possible method, with the international concessions in Shanghai as their headquarters. As a result of a sudden collapse of their home Government, French residents there are divided into two groups, those favoring the Vichy Government and those against it.

"In the International Settlement, efforts are being continued, though in a negative manner, by British authorities for guarding their rights and interests in China in concert with the United States. They are, however, trying to avoid conflicts with Japan since the recent evacuation of their garrison from the city. British circles also are divided into two factions, pro-Nanking and pro-Chungking groups."

U.S. ANSWERS NATION'S CALL

60,500 National Guardsmen From 26 States Report At Various Armories

United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Sixty thousand five hundred National Guardsmen from 26 states began reporting at armories throughout the country yesterday under the National Guard Mobilization Act for a year of training with the regular army.

The Guardsmen will begin receiving full equipment after a medical examination and after taking the oath of allegiance to the United States Government.

16,500,000 CLASSIFIED

Under the Burke-Wadsworth Conscription Bill, which President Roosevelt signed yesterday, 16,500,000 registrants will be classified expeditiously with approximately 5,000,000 men placed in class "A", meaning that they are physically fit, possess no dependents and hold no important industrial jobs. These men will be the first to be trained under the act that is designed to create a reservoir of 5,000,000 trained civilians for national defense.

Four hundred thousand registrants will probably be called up next April. Another 55,000 National Guardsmen probably will be called up about October 15, 65,000 about November 15 and an additional 40,000 December 1.

Section 15 of the Conscription Bill explains that "the term 'United States,' when used in the geographical sense, shall be deemed to mean the several states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico."

The War Department explained that the Panama Canal Zone was omitted as it is not an integral part of the United States, but a special zone on alien soil.

P.I. NOT INCLUDED

The Philippines are not included because the Filipinos are not United States citizens, but nationals. Furthermore, Filipinos enjoy a special status as a commonwealth on the road to independence.

Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, which are integral parts of the United States, are affected by the bill the same as the District of Columbia.

Under both the conscription and National Guard bills, however, men called up may receive their training anywhere in the Western Hemisphere or United States territories or possessions, including the Philippines.

BRITAIN SUFFERS ECONOMICALLY FROM AIR RAIDS

D.N.B. Asserts British Ministry Trade Report Wrong; Trade is Passive

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Sept. 30—The daily increased deterioration of British economics are assuming even more widening proportions. German air-raids causing destruction of British industry and trade further accelerate the decline of Britain's economic capacity. London's endeavors to camouflage this becomes also apparent from the report of foreign trade in August issued by the British ministry of commerce.

An increase of imports by 5 million pounds to 92 million pounds in August is merely the result of higher prices and freight and insurance rates. These trade figures, however, do not mention that the passive character of the trade increased from 55.6 million pounds in July to 52.4 million pounds in August. Also the wholesale price index increased in August by 1 per cent, while the grain prices were increasing by 6 per cent.

SITUATION WORSE

Also the situation in the dominions is growing worse. The Canadian and Australian wheat export is facing an especially bad situation. Canada must reckon with the possibility that its crop remains unsold. The situation in Australia is similar. The increasing passiveness of British foreign trade is inducing the British Government to take desperate measures.

Following the failure of the war loan the provisional confiscation of the gold deposits of the foreign subjects is decreed. Foreign subjects must surrender gold deposited in British banks, of which they will receive back 9 per cent at the end of the war while the remaining 5 per cent will have to cover the freight and insurance to the United States. This gold must be used for purchases abroad. This also indicates that the British gold reserves are completely exhausted. It is more important, still that Britain by this step proved that it failed as an international gold center.

STOCKS EXHAUSTED

The available British gold stocks have been sold for armament purchases from the U.S.A. and now Britain resorts to the last means to get gold, the gold of foreign subjects, work for its belligerent purposes. Concerning the delivery of American war material to Britain figures from the American trade periodical are of interest.

While the orders booked by the American aircraft industry increased from 96.4 million dollars in 1937 to 712,2 million dollars in 1940, deliveries increased from 81,6 million to 129,6 million dollars. Very interesting is the American admission that the magnesia production in the U.S.A. is not sufficient for the aircraft industry and that they are now trying to float another 20 million dollar loan for the building of a new magnesia plant. From this it may be taken for granted that Britain cannot reckon with an essential increase of American aircraft deliveries in the near future.

MARSHALL WELCOMES AMERICAN MISSIONS

Will Not Conduct In Formal Conference

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Military missions representing 20 Latin American Republics arrived here today to attend a series of conferences with Administration officials and military authorities beginning tomorrow. The visitors also will tour defense establishments throughout the United States.

Formally welcoming the military groups, General George Catlett Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, declared: "The United States Army is highly honored with the visit of the distinguished officers of our neighboring republics. We all hope they will enjoy being here as much as we enjoy having them and that they will familiarize themselves with the United States Army."

General Marshall expressed confidence that their visit will result in better understanding of common defense problems affecting the Western Hemisphere and in closer cooperation toward security of both Americas.

Later, General Marshall told the American press that the United States Army and Navy high command and the visiting missions will not engage in formal staff conferences regarding Western Hemisphere defense; however, he said that informal discussions centering upon certain specific points might be held.

INTER-AMERICAN

American trade is expected to receive considerable attention. One method of accomplishing this which will be discussed is through the polling of freights.

The effect of the European war on shipping in the New World and the dislocations in service resulting from the war will receive special attention. Delegates will report on how the war has affected shipping used in the commerce of their countries.

Another problem closely associated with this is that of inter-American travel. Studies will be made of passenger fares and service which might be helpful in promoting tourism among the Americas.

Other questions on the agenda are the desirability of uniformity in port dues, charges, taxes and other imports on shipping and the possibility of reductions in certain cases to facilitate commerce; uniformity of shipping statistics to facilitate their interchange among the nations of the Western Hemisphere; and the feasibility of the establishment of a permanent inter-American body to deal with maritime matters.

Officials of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee stress that although the conference is being held in Washington, discussions will not be confined only to questions of shipping between the United States and the other American republics. It will embrace the maritime problems of all the Americas, and will include questions of shipping between the Latin American countries themselves, they state.

The conference was called upon the request of Cuba and Venezuela, but all the American republics are represented.

FOOTBALL STEALS SPORTS LIMELIGHT

U.S. SEES BANNER GRID SEASON

CONSCRIPTION LOOMS NEW WORRY OF COACHES; PROS ARE POPULAR

By LEWIS BURTON
Special to The Japan Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 1—Followers of both college and professional football, are rubbing their hands gleefully in anticipation of the biggest season in the history of the sport.

With the most brilliant array of stars now at the top of their form and with a schedule starting earlier than usual, fans have a right to be happy.

Both college and professional divisions of the pigskin fraternity are dripping with talent. In the amateur category, for instance, are those two super-stars: Tom Harmon of the University of Michigan, and John Kimbrough of Texas A. and M.

PRO OUTLOOK GOOD

Pro football, constantly gaining in popularity, is eyeing with anticipatory relish, the forthcoming performances of the "sophomore" backfield of the Chicago Bears: MacLeod, Tom Harmon, University of Michigan's elusive ball carrier.

Luckman, Osmanski and Patterson.

Because football is a major sports industry, with consequent scrupulous attention to profit and loss, there has been a tendency of late to get going earlier than as of old. This itch is the more compelling this year because of the wealth of stellar material.

An unusually large number of games will be placed as early Saturday, September 28. On that day Pittsburgh will lock horns with Ohio State, the defending Big Ten champion, at Columbus, Ohio. Also, Boston College and Tulane, two of the best teams in their respective sections, will meet in New Orleans. The strong Washington eleven will battle Minnesota at Minneapolis, and the Harmon-led Michigan cohorts will be in the Far West engaging California at Berkeley.

Athletic directors' acumen in estimating the box office value of important contests is demonstrated by the scheduling of the Tennessee-Duke game for October 5 at Knoxville, Tenn. It has been a complete sellout for weeks.

HAVE NEW WORRY

This year, with prospects for the sport brighter than ever, the question of conscription rises. In college circles the belief is expressed that selective service would have little if any adverse effect.

It is pointed out that if the experience of the World War is repeated, the draft may indirectly help college coaches with an abundance of unexpected material. In 1917-18 the campuses were used for the drilling of Students Army Training Corps, as a result of which several universities' grid teams included men of extraordinarily advanced years.

This season starts with two ready-made stars of such magnitude that they are expected to win national acclaim, when December rolls around, as the outstanding men of the campaign. They are Tom Harmon, the elusive ball-carrier at Michigan, and John Kimbrough, pulverizing line-crasher at Texas A. and M.

Fortunately there will be room for both these men on the "All" team. Kimbrough, a 220-pound giant, is a fullback whose specialty is to play straight through, under or over the line ahead of him. Harmon's strength is his shiftiness. Both made most all-America teams as juniors last year.

They were overshadowed by only one man nationally. That was Nile Ninnick, the Iowa halfback who almost-single-handed lifted his team to second place in the Western Conference. Kinnick was voted all the individual awards that counted, starting with the Heisman Memorial Award whose past winners have included Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian, Clint Frank of Yale, Larry Kelley of Yale, and Jay Berwanger of Chicago.

TEXAS CLUB FAVORED

Largely because of Kimbrough's presence, Texas A. and M. is expected to have another great team this year. No college has ever won the Southwestern Conference championship two years in succession, but the tradition is due for a fall. Texas A. and M. was one of three topnotch teams which hung up their clothes at the end of the last regular season without a defeat on their record. The other two were Tennessee and Cornell. Tennessee went on to the Rose Bowl, where it suffered defeat by Southern California.

Texas A. and M. already is considered a likely participant in the 1941 Rose Bowl game, which for all practical purposes is the grand finale of the season. The Pacific Coast representative, it is believed by many, will be decided by the Southern California-Washington game.

Cornell doesn't go to Bowls. It is against policy of the Ivy League. The Big Red, however, has a reasonably good chance of going through another great season. Of last year's great team, it has lost only Whit Baker. All the rest are candidates for All-America, particularly Walter Matuszcak, the brilliant blocking quarterback; Nick Drahos, tackle; and Kirk Hershey and Alvah Kelly, ends. All four of them had their share of mention in 1939, and if Cornell can come through sensationally once more they may be heard of with more resonance this Fall.

In the Metropolitan areas, the competition of professional football has been of particular importance. Fordham University in New York City has what it considers a triumvirate of All-America players in Len Eshmont, an eely halfback; Jim Blumenstock, a triple-threat fullback; and John Kuzman, a powerful tackle, but the Metropolitan fan also has his choice of stars among the pro teams that play on Sundays.

The professional game can no longer be brushed aside by colleges. It is already big, but it is still growing, thriving on the reputations players have made in college and on their further development in the "post-graduate" course of the game.

BEARS LOOK GOOD

Two years ago, three of the most celebrated backs in the country were Sid Luckman of Columbia, Bill Osmanski of Holy Cross and Bob MacLeod of Dartmouth. Last year they were broken in as "freshmen" with the Chicago Bears and toward the end of the season they were sensational. This Fall, as three parts of a "sophomore backfield", they seem destined to become the most famous groundgaining unit in or out of college. "Bullet Billy" Patterson, formerly of Baylor University, completes the backfield.

They symbolize the relation of the college and pro games. As undergraduates, they were individually the star attractions of separate teams. As pros, the football following can see them exhibiting their skill and artistry together in the same backfield.

The National Football League drew 1,312,611 spectators for its 55 league games and one playoff in 1939.

Fordham's slippery halfback Len Eshmont, who looms a "cinch" for All-American selection.

That represented a 12.63 per cent gain over 1938. This year the league confidently looks forward to a similar growth.

Incidentally, the pro game is the pot of gold that awaits the college man. Red Grange reaped a fortune 15 years ago in an exhibition tour after his big season at Illinois was completed. Since then, the league was formed. Whizzer White, a Colorado boy, received the top salary in organized football two years ago when Pittsburgh paid him $15,000 for a single season.

Davey O'Brien, T.C.U.'s star passer, signed a very lucrative contract with the Philadelphia Eagles last year. It runs to the end of this season and may average a five-figure salary. Nile Kinnick, last year's hero, was selected by the Brooklyn Dodgers in the draft, but he knew his value as an attraction and has been dealing stubbornly.

Big money rewards await only the super-stars of college. Kimbrough and Harmon are the best bets in the Football Follies of '40, but many a dark horse has thundered home in front in other years. There are millions ready to raise a new hero on their shoulders in 1940.

ROY HOWARD URGES SURVEY BODY FOR U.S.

To Adjust Japanese-American Relations; Must Understand Asia Psychology

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Immediate appointment of a survey body to make a sweeping study of the Far Eastern problem so as to clear the uncertain atmosphere clouding Japanese-American relations, was urged today by Roy Howard, head of the Scripps-Howard news syndicate who recently returned from an extensive visit of the Far East.

"The commission," he said, "should be composed of Americans with an understanding and respect for Oriental psychology and should be appointed immediately with instructions to survey and report to Congress, and to the President on the fundamental aspects of the entire Oriental situation.

TOLERANCE URGED

"With little more tolerance in our psychological approach to Japan and with recognition that the Japanese are a proud and sensitive people with culture, the current unnecessary antagonism could be dispelled with ease," he said.

Mr. Howard thought that the mere appointment of such a survey body, if Japan were to prove agreeable to receiving the commission, would temporarily ease the mounting tension, "setting an example of appeal to reason which might conceivably be the first step in the direction of the restoration of world sanity."

"After all the tri-power alliance has never changed Japan's position with regard to the United States materially," he added. "Japan is more likely to stabilize its relationships with the United States than anywhere else in the world."

Mr. Howard asserted that the weakness of the United States' position lies in not making an official statement before Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' speech last Saturday in Cleveland, leaving Japan in much doubt of the American attitude.

MOSTLY PAN-AMERICAN

Another weakness in his estimation was that United States' plans and objectives mostly have concerned the Pan-American countries.

"The Japanese Government would not be willing to attempt a rapprochement with the United States until it had something more than United States' day to day program," he said.

"The Roosevelt administration's policy of much talk and little action is certainly edging the United States closer to a wholly unnecessary break with Japan.

"Continuance of half-way measures by the State Department certainly will lead to trouble," he declared.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" -by Ripley

One Year of War Reveals:

DEADLY EFFICIENCY OF GERMANS

REICH TROOPS HOLD ENTIRE COAST OF WESTERN EUROPE

By EDWARD BEATTIE

United Press

LONDON, Sept. 21—The first year of the Second World War was a complete war in itself, a series of smashing blows which put the Axis powers into position for the attack on Britain around the world, military experts said here today.

Germany bore the entire burden of attack, but Italy and possibly Japan and Spain, were prepared to profit by Britain's concentration on the defense of her own long island sea coast.

At the end of the first year, Nazi troops hold the entire coast of Europe from North Cape to the heel of Biscay, with friendly Spain beyond. It took Hitler just under ten months to seize it. Philip of Spain, and later Napoleon, needed years of campaigning and diplomacy before they were in a position for thrusts which failed.

BIG GUNS USED

In the two months since the collapse of France, big guns have been brought into position. Some of them can shoot into England. New air bases give the German air force fighter protection for its thousands of bombing planes. Men and weapons have been assembled and boats concentrated in the lowland rivers, all for the frontal assault on England which Hitler swore to the Reichstag would come.

In the Mediterranean and Africa, Italy can strike at the wheat of Egypt or the barren oil fields back of Palestine. In Spain, the campaign for an attack on Gibraltar has reopened.

British garrisons along the line of Empire are prepared for attacks which may come in overwhelming numbers. At home, Britain is better prepared for defense than she ever has been in a history studded with war.

The story of the one year which put Hitler on the Channel coast, and the flanking wings of his army in Brittany and the Norwegian fjord, is one of quick, deadly efficient strokes by the modernest of all armies, matched against semi-preparedness or outmoded theories of war in the case of every foe they struck.

POLAND STARTED

The invasion of Poland set the general keynote for the year. When the German armies struck from three sides on September 1, 1939, they caught the best of the Polish armies too far forward toward a frontier very hard to defend, and the bulk of the army too far from full mobilization.

Poland, like every small or new country in Europe, could not afford the masses of guns and planes needed in modern war to take on a major opponent. The German air force in its first test reduced transport and communications to a shambles, making further mobilization next to impossible and producing such chaos that within a few days of the start the Polish army was a series of independent forces, fighting with no idea of general plan.

Great German pincer movements enveloped whole army corps, then armies. Panzerdivisionen, the armored spearheads led by 500 tanks which later proved decisive in France, played havoc with the Polish supply organization and reserves. The Polish air force was virtually immobilized after three or four days. Bone-dry weather hardened the Polish mud, which might have bogged down the advance.

By September 10, it was obvious that resistance beyond a couple of months was impossible. September 17, Russia moved into eastern Poland, and the situation was hopeless. Warsaw held out under a blistering barrage until September 27; the army scraped together in the far south by General Sosnkowski lasted even longer; scattered resistance in the woods continued for weeks. But the decision had been forced in the first week of the campaign.

WEST WAS STATIC

The western front was static, as French strategy dictated it should be. No one was quite ready in the west. The Germans threw up new forts along the still-unfinished Siegfried Line, and built up their striking force, the armored divisions, until there could be no doubt of their crushing superiority. The British were sending a new army across the Channel as fast as a late start in conscription and a painfully slow rearmament campaign would permit. The French manned the Maginot Line, and kept a mobile force in readiness to move into Belgium if Hitler resurrected the Schlieffen Plan.

War flared up in the north November 30, when Russia invaded Finland. It was not the Axis war but it would not have occurred without the war in the west. It reemphasized the lessons taught in Poland. The small but rugged Finnish army won victory after victory at—Tolvajaervi, Salla, Suomussalmi, Syskyjaervi and Kuhmo. It held out for over two months on the Carelian Isthmus against the most terrific artillery barrages since Verdun in the last war. One point in the isthmus line, Summa, finally gave, and a month later Finland sued for peace because she did not have the guns, the tanks, the planes and the men to prevent her countryside being laid flat.

Finland got some aid from abroad, planes, guns and ammunition, but it did not get enough of them, or the men it needed. If Scandinavia had stood solid with Finland, the entire course of the war might have been change. Scandinavia was afraid of Germany, and sent only volunteers, money and clothes.

SWEDEN BACKED OUT

Solidarity might have helped again when Germany swept over Denmark and into Norway April 9, but Sweden, with the only army of consequence in the north, remained neutral.

The German stroke, aided by both "Trojan Horse" and fifth column work, took every major port in Norway the first day—Oslo, Stavanger, Bergen, Trondheim, Egersund and Narvik. In some cases the occupying forces were so tiny that the population might have disarmed them if it had not been stunned, and in some cases betrayed.

What forces Norway could muster held out until British and other allied troops began to arrive April 15. The Allies had no port capable of handling heavy weapons and the huge transport train required by a modern army. Meanwhile, German transports, regardless of heavy losses, were pouring troops and equipment into south Norway under a blanketing escort of bombers.

German bombers and fighters slashed at the allied bases without opposition save from inadequate anti-aircraft, machine guns and a few heavier weapons. There were no landing fields for British fighters in Norway, and their bases in England were too far away. At Andalsnes and Dombaas planes were decisive.

ODDS IN TANKS

The R.A.F. carried the attack to the Germans, but the allied land forces, faced with overwhelming odds in tanks and planes, abandoned the attempt to encircle Trondheim on May 2 and 3, limiting the campaign to Narvik in the north. They captured it on May 28 and evacuated June 10, leaving Narvik useless for the shipment of iron ore, but all of Norway in German hands. Their energies were needed elsewhere.

The drive which began May 10 with the invasion of Holland and Belgium and ended 38 days later when France sued for peace, was in its essence the classic Schlieffen Plan with variations dictated by modern weapons and by the fortunes of a campaign which must have developed faster than even Hitler dreamt.

It was carried out in perfect coordination of air force, army and air-borne troops aided at the start by a fifth column which probably was Hitler's secret weapon. Holland and Belgium had only a fraction of the necessary weapons to meet the first three threats, and nothing but improvised precautions to throw against the third. The British and French armies which marched north to meet the Germans were in slightly better case.

The details of the route from Louvain, the Meuse and Sedan through to the armistice of Compiegne are still the secret of the general staffs. The reasons for it, and the general outlines, are clear.

The British Expeditionary Force threw nine divisions, with complete train, the best army Britain had ever fielded, into the Low Countries. The French force, somewhat larger, was also a picked body. Some strategists say the two armies should never have left the "little Maginot Line" on the Franco-Belgian border, a weak affair compared with the main Maginot but one which might have been stubbornly defended. At any rate, the heavy force moved northward.

HOLLAND RESISTED 4 DAYS

Holland resisted four days, which was all military experts had expected. What they had not looked for, was the crushing weight the German armored divisions, screened by aircraft and aided by the chaos parachutists and the fifth column raised in the hinterland, threw against the Belgian strong points.

Liege began to crumble. The Meuse and the densely wooded Ardennes, which had been "considered impracticable" for attack and were therefore weakly defended, showed soft at the first armored thrust and the Germans shifted their weight to the left of the line.

By May 14 they were along the Meuse from Liege to Sedan. The next day a bulge was driven in the French line north of Sedan. Bridges, unexplainedly, were not blown up. One entire division of the Corap army crumpled.

The armies in Belgium began to sense danger, began retiring. On the 17th, the Germans entered Brussels, the British retiring west. Two days later they took St. Quentin and le Cateau, in northern France, and turned their drive toward the coast. Next day they were on the Cambrai-Peronne road, and motorized troops were pouring through the gap.

May 25, the Allied armies retired behind the Lys in Belgium. The Germans intensified their pressure on the Belgian forces, on the allies left. Next day the unstoppable panzer divisions reached the coast at Boulogne, the day after at Calais, where a bitter lastditch garrison of British held out. May 28 Leopold of the Belgians surrendered and with its left wing in the air, and the Germans pressing from three sides, the allied force faced annihilation.

If the gap to the Somme could have been closed by counterattack, the army might have withdrawn with some heavy equipment.

But the troops did not possess the proper anti-tank weapons for the heavy German spearhead, did not have the mobility under all conditions and did not have the planes to stem the incessant bombings from all corners of the sky.

The rear-guard action to Dunkirk, one of the most brilliant retreats in history, the 10 to one forlorn hope battles of the gallant R.A.F., and the effort of the British and French navies in the Channel saved 335,000 men from the Dunkirk beaches, 224,318 of them British. But virtually every heavy weapon, every transport vehicle, and thousands of machine guns, rifles and other equipment were lost. British losses were over 30,000 dead, wounded or missing and over 1,000 guns.

The drive turned on Paris by June 5 with the attack on the improvised Somme-Aisne line. It was the same story. There was nothing on hand to stop the armored divisions, with their 500 tanks ranging from fast light vehicles to monsters of a reported 70 to 80 tons mounting 300-yard flame-throwers and heavy guns.

They infiltrated everywhere, and turned the behind-the-lines area into chaos. The "New B.E.F.," three divisions plus some auxiliaries, and many French units resisted bitterly. But the Germans breached the line in the coast area June 6, and infiltrated to the Bresle river. Two days later they were at Forges les Eaux, on the Dieppe-Paris road. June 10, when Mussolini declared war, they were across the lower Seine.

There was no time to turn the weight of the French attack on Italy, as had always been hoped. The Germans were close on Paris. They were across the Marne on the 12th. Paris was given up, undefended, and the first columns entered June 14. Verdun fell the next day. Some French divisions were throwing down their rifles and strolling home. Others resisted gallantly. Refugees clogged all roads, making military movement almost impossible.

The B.E.F. began evacuating, from Cherbourg, St. Malo and Brest, with next to nothing between them and the German advance. Again the evacuation came off. Its garrisons weakened, the Maginot Line began to give way.

On June 17, Marshal Petain asked for an armistice, despite pleas from England to remember France's promise. June 22 France signed at Compiegne giving up her Atlantic coast. The stage was set for the attack on England.

U.S. CONGRESS PASSES EXCESS PROFIT BILL

Designed to Facilitate Defense Industries

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—With differences over the Excess Profits Tax Bill ironed out, the Senate and the House of Representatives today both unanimously approved the measure and sent it to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

The compromise measure, which is designed to facilitate expansion of the defense industries, is expected to raise about $1,000,000,000 additional annual revenue for the Government.

The chief provisions of the Excess Profits Tax Bill include:

1. The imposition of an excess profits tax ranging from 25 per cent on profits above $20,000 to 50 per cent on profits above $500,000.

2. The granting to defense industries of amortization to write off over a five-year period the cost for new plant facilities constructed since June 10, 1940.

3. Suspension of the Vinson-Trammell profit limitations act concerning the construction of warships and airplanes.

4. Imposition of a tax from 3.1 per cent to the normal corporate tax rate on corporations whose net income exceeds $25,000 per year.

5. Establishment of low rate government life insurance for soldiers and sailors, including conscripts and National Guardsmen, with policies raging up to $10,000.

Rumania Promises Probe Into Britons Under Arrest

Domei Tsushin

BUCHAREST, Oct. 1—The British Legation here announced today that it had received from the Rumanian Government a written promise for a full investigation into the recent arrest of Britons by police in the Polesti oil district on charges of plotting sabotage.

The arrests, involving four Englishmen and one English woman who were taken into custody on September 26, were considered significant here as a sign of general tightening up of precautions to protect Rumanian oil supplies for Germany.

Warlime Marriages High in England During Last Year

United Press

LONDON, Sept. 17—Wartime brides and bridegrooms in Britain have set up a new record for weddings. Last year there were 437,406 marriages, the highest number ever recorded in this country in a single year.

During July, August, and September 1939, according to the Registrar-General, 304,716 men and women were married, and in the following three months 272,510, which is 90,990 more than in the last quarter of 1938.

In January, February and March last year there were 46,549 marriages, but for April, May and June, always the most popular time for weddings, the figure had jumped to 102,244.

DENY PACT MOVE AGAINST RUSSIA

Merely 'New Invention' By British Information Ministry, Claims DNB

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 2—The new invention of the British information ministry with regard to the relations between the Axis powers and Soviet Russia, is the allegation that the Three Power Pact was hostile against the Soviet Union.

In this connection Reuters already stated that the British ambassador to Moscow, Sir Stafford Cripps, would undertake the necessary steps in the course of the next few days, but the statements of the Russian paper "Pravda" have shown that there will be no hope for Mr. Cripps to undermine the existing friendly relations.

The paper gave such a clear declaration of the attitude of the Soviet Union toward the Three Power Pact that all British speculations for a change in the Russian policy will be unfounded.

The Pravda said that the pact did not come as a surprise to Russia since the Soviet Government had been informed in advance of its planned conclusion. This was a natural thing to do in view of the relations between Germany and the Soviet Union.

London, however, did not count on this fact. England has again shown how ill informed she is with regard to the relations between Berlin and Moscow.

The Pravda, moreover, points out that Soviet Russia's relations to Germany and Italy have not changed. The paper underlines article 5 of this pact, which guarantees the respect of the treaty partners with regard to the neutrality of the Soviet Union. The paper thus emphasizes and recognizes the principles of the pact, which endorse the rights of the Soviet Union in its living space and also defines the rights of the treaty partners in their own sphere of interests.

In the same sense the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs Molotoff on August 1, characterized the friendly relations between the Soviet Union and Germany as well as Japan.

In view of these facts it is out of the question for Great Britain to disturb these relations or that the Soviet Union will allow to be misused for the plutocratic British interests.

SWEDISH PAPER CARRIES VIVID STORY OF REICH AIR RAIDS ON LONDON

D.N.B.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 30—A vivid picture of large scale German weekend attacks on England were published in the paper "Stockholm Tidningen" by its London correspondent:

"All day long the German air squadrons battered London and its environments concentrating their attacks on industrial plants and communication centers. Again and again German planes launched their attacks on the city.

"They were the largest scale attacks so far undertaken since September 15. Still these attacks differed from the previous ones. On previous occasions German bombers had visited London in bright daylight but today they arrived plane after plane and wave after wave in bright sunshine and their main aim was the center of London, which was badly struck. Red hot shell splinters dropped everywhere around us in the center of the city.

"Again and again air battles were fought over the city. The sky was filled with long white chalk lines left by the smoke from the fighting machines.

PENETRATED CITY

"Twice during the forenoon and once during the afternoon German planes penetrated the city with one wave following the other. Also Bristol was the target of furious German attacks. London received the German machines with a terrific hail storm of anti-aircraft shells, which exploded unceasingly and their echo together with that of the exploding German bombs sounded as if an earthquake were shaking the city. Then British pursuit planes started to attack, and at times the whole sky seemed to be filled with fighting machines with speedy pursuit planes darting in all directions. Two large German formations consisting of 160 planes each succeeded in entering the British air domain almost unmolested. The heaviest attacks were launched against south and southwest of London, where German airmen most obviously had special targets to be reached and they seemed to be very willing to sacrifice their lives and their machines for reaching these targets.

"The attacks, however, were not exclusively directed against the city of London, for many devilish air fights were fought over the Thames estuary and all along the Thames banks. German machines, which had entered England via the Dorset coast to attack Bristol met with some stiff resistance. Nevertheless a good number of planes pierced the British air defense and succeeded in bombing the most important industrial center. This stormy day was followed by a night in a most classical style.

CANNONS SHAKE CITY

"For hours attack after attack had been launched against London with cannons shaking the city and bombs being dropped on a wide area. Especially the London suburbs suffered widely from these attacks at night. During Saturday afternoon the air-battles were also intermingled with a long range artillery duel, between Dover and the French coast.

"Along the Channel there prevailed the so-called invasion weather,—little wind from southwest with bright sun and a slight fog layer,—but nothing to this respect happened. In concluding his report the correspondent made a rather noteworthy remark; although Berlin enjoyed a calm night, London papers were filled with reports on British bomb attacks against Berlin, demanding at the same time that Berlin should be attacked by even far more large scale formations and that more uptodate and even more effective machines were to be employed in these raids on the German capital."

JUGOSLAVIA, RUMANIA QUIT BALKAN ENTENTE

Bulgarian Papers Widely Comment on Withdrawal; Urge Others to Follow

D.N.B.

BELGRADE, Oct. 1—On Monday Jugoslavia resigned from the Balkan Entente. Simultaneously it stated its aloofness from the policy of its hitherto allied partner Turkey, because of the latter's alliance with England.

It will be recalled in this connection that Rumania also no longer belongs to the Balkan Entente. Well-informed quarters from Belgrade declared with regard to the Turkish reports about an economic conference of the Balkan Entente in Athens in October that the Balkan Entente no longer exists.

The statement of the Rumanian Foreign Minister that Rumania is considering all regional agreements as non-existent is declared as only a formal statement about the situation, which is already existing for months namely since Turkey dropped its neutrality policy by concluding a pact with England. It is declared also that Jugoslavia can no longer cooperate with Turkey, as it is sharing the points of view of the Rumanian Foreign Minister. So there actually cannot be any economic conference of the Balkan Entente.

BUCHAREST QUITS

D.N.B.

SOFIA, Oct. 1—Rumania's resignation from the Balkan Entente was officially notified to the remaining partners: Turkey, Greece and Jugoslavia, as was reported by the Bulgarian press.

The resignation greatly attracted the Bulgarian public opinion and the Bulgarian newspapers published extensive comments upon this fact. They for instance wrote that the Balkan Entente already for some time had practically ceased to exist so that this break now is only a formality.

The papers express their hope that it is a good thing for other states to follow the example of Rumania in order to clean the atmosphere which had poisoned the relations between the Balkan states. The paper unanimously state that Turkey's proposal of forming a new Balkan Entente can only be of interest if all Balkan states were joining this bloc, willing to find a solution to the remaining pending questions between states.

S.M.R. Slates Test Of 'Bullet Train'

Domei Tsushin

MUKDEN, Oct. 1—A test run for a newly-designed "bullet" train with a top speed of 130 kilometers per hour will be made late this month by the South Manchuria Railway Company, it was announced here today.

The new train is reported to be faster than Super-express, "Asia," in which the S.M.R. authorities take great pride.

The locomotive of the Super-express, "Asia," is presently using super-heavy oil and its top speed is limited to 110 kilometers per hour on the S.M.R.'s present railway line.

The new locomotive is designed to use lighter oil, and it is capable of a top speed as high as 130 kilometers per hour on the present roadbed.

South Shansi Rail Linking Luan, Tungkwanchen Opened

Domei Tsushin

TAIYUAN, Oct. 1—An inaugural ceremony of the opening of the new railway linking Tungkwanchen on the southern part of the Tatung-Puchow Railway and Luan-fu, southeastern Shansi Province, was held yesterday and the new line will be opened to public from today.

The new railway covers a distance of 200 kilometers and was constructed by the Japanese Takasaki unit, the work having been commenced last year.

The opening of this new railway line will be a boon to the Chinese residents in the Luan district and and will greatly facilitate transportation of agricultural products to markets. It will also greatly contribute toward development of natural resources in southern Shansi Province.

3-Year Old Boy Kidnapped in U.S.

United Press

HILLSBOROUGH, California, Sept. 21—Marc de Tristan, three-year-old son of Count Marc de Tristan, prominent socialite, was kidnapped from his nurse near his family home here yesterday.

An automobile believed to have been used by the kidnapper was found later on the Bayshore Highway. The kidnapper overpowered the child's nurse, threatened her with two revolvers and then handed her a ransom note before escaping with the boy.

The local police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were notified of the kidnapping immediately, although the ransom note demanded "absolute silence and privacy."

Police believed the abductor was an amateur because he wore no mask and made no attempt to conceal the license plate on his car.

SOUTH SEA ISLE

proceedings, Miss Dietrich was on the upper deck of the freighter, sailing bravely into port. Strictly speaking, neither she nor the ship was sailing. A segment of the deck on which she stood with Albert Dekker was moved a few feet to provide the illusion. The camera was behind her on the same platform, shooting over her shoulder at the gaping natives on the wharf. Watched from a respectful distance on shore, the scene looked real.

"Seven Sinners" will bring Miss Dietrich back to the screen in the kind of role which signalized her rise to fame. She is the befeathered flim-flam type of "The Blue Angel," with a dash of Sadie Thompson. Garnett disclaims any intention of making his picture a study of feminine errantry. It will be a torrid action story, with Marlene furnishing the motivations for several chair-throwing brawls. Garnett has furnished the cast with male physical specimens calculated to make a noise with their fists when they get going. Broderick Crawford, John Wayne and the others have put in a preliminary course at the public library studying the technique of barroom brawls. In rehearsing one of these scenes privately, Crawford wrecked his own apartment. He believes acting should be carried into the home.

Though the picture makes no pretense of social significance, Garnett has injected a stunt which he hopes (but doubts) will be spotted by audiences and critics. He won't say what it is, but it is repeated with variations in almost every scene. All he will divulge is that it has to do with international relations. It is a pictorial comment on a phenomenon which travelers in the East are so accustomed to that they take it for granted, but which is definitely a menace to our military standing.

TWO U.S. POLITICAL PARTIES AGREE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

United Press Explains Platforms, Stands Taken by Roosevelt, Willkie

United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Here are the major points at issue in the current United States presidential campaign, as outlined in the acceptance speeches of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie and in the Democratic and Republican platforms:

CONSCRIPTION

Roosevelt—"Because of the millions of citizens involved in the conduct of defense, most right thinking persons are agreed that some form of selection by draft is as necessary and as fair today as it was in 1917 and 1918."

Willkie—"I cannot ask the American people to put their faith in me, without recording my conviction that some form of selective service is the only democratic way in which to secure the trained and competent manpower we need for national defense."

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Democratic Platform—"We propose to provide America with an invincible air force, a navy strong enough to protect all our seacoasts and our national interests, and a fully equipped and mechanized army."

Republican Platform—"By the President's own admission we are still wholly unprepared to defend our country....We declare for the prompt, orderly and realistic building of our national defense."

Roosevelt—"During the past few months, with due congressional approval, we ...have been taking steps to implement the total defense of America."

Willkie—"We must regain prosperity, restore the independence of our people, and protect our defensive forces."

THIRD TERM

Democrats—Silent

Republicans—"To insure against the overthrow of our American system of government, we favor an amendment to the Constitution providing that no person shall be president for more than two terms."

Roosevelt—"No call of party alone would prevail upon me to accept reelection to the presidency. Today all private plans, all private lives have been repealed in a sense by an over-riding public danger."

Willkie—"I would like to debate the question of the assumption by this president, in seeking a third term, of a greater public confidence than was accorded to our presidental giants, Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, and Woodrow Wilson."

AID TO DEMOCRACIES

Democrats—Pledged to "peoples wantonly attacked by ruthless aggressors" all the "Material aid at our command, consistent with law and not inconsistent with the interests of our own national self-defense."

Republicans—"We favor the extension to all peoples fighting for liberty, or whose liberty is threatened, of such aid as shall not be in violation of international law or inconsistent with the requirements of our own national defense."

Roosevelt—"It was my obvious duty to maintain to the utmost the influence of this mighty nation in our effort to prevent the spread of war, and to sustain by all legal means, those governments which had rejected the principles of democracy."

Willkie—Quoted Roosevelt's statement that the United States would extend aid to the opponents of force, and harness its own resources for national defense and said: "I should like to state that I am in agreement with these two principles, as I understand them—and I don't understand them as implying military involvement in the present hostilities."

PEACE AND WAR

Democrats—"We will not participate in foreign wars, and we will not send our army, naval or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside the Americas except in case of attack. We shall rigorously enforce and defend the Monroe Doctrine."

Republicans—"The Republican Party is firmly opposed to involving this nation in foreign war. We deplore explosive utterances by the President directed at other governments which serve to imperil our peace."

Roosevelt—"I would not undo, if I could, the efforts I made to prevent war and to restrict the area of carnage. I do not regret my consistent endeavor to awaken this country to the menace facing us. I have pursued these efforts in the face of appeaser fifth columnists who charged me with hysteria and warmongering."

Willkie—"No man can guarantee to maintain peace. Peace is not something that a nation can achieve by itself. I trust that I have made it plain that in the defense of America, and of our liberties, I should not hesitate to stand for war. He (Mr. Roosevelt) has dabbled in inflammatory statements and manufactured panics. He has secretly meddled in the affairs of Europe, and he has even unscrupulously encouraged other countries to hope for more help than we are able to give."

RELIEF

Democrats—"We are opposed to vesting in the states and local authorities the control of federally-financed world relief."

Republicans—"We shall remove waste, discrimination and politics from relief—through administration by the states with federal grants-in-aid."

Roosevelt—Silent.

Willkie—"We still hold firmly to the principle that those whom private industry cannot support must be supported by government agency, whether federal or state."

LABOR

Democrats—"We pledge to continue to enforce fair labor standards; to maintain the principles of the National Labor Relations Act; to expand employment training and opportunity."

Republicans—"We shall maintain labor's right of free organization and collective bargaining. Recent disclosures respecting the administration of the National Labor Relations Act require that this act be amended so as to provide true freedom."

Roosevelt—No direct statement.

Willkie—"I believe in collective bargaining, by representatives of labor's own free choice, without any interference and in full protection of those obvious rights. I believe in the maintenance of minimum standard for wages and of maximum standards for hours."

FARM AID

Democrats — "The Republican Party merely gives its promises to the farmer and its allegiance to those who exploit him. We pledge to make parity as well as soil conservation payments until the goal of parity income for agriculture is realized."

Republicans — "The Republican Party will put into effect such governmental policies as will establish and maintain an equitable balance between labor, industry and agriculture. Until this balance has been attained, we propose to provide benefit payments."

Roosevelt—No direct statement.

Willkie—"I believe that the Federal Government has a responsibility to equalize the lot of the farmer with that of the manufacturer."

BUSINESS

Democrats—"We have defended and will continue to defend all legitimate business. We have attacked and will continue to attack unbridled concentration of economic power and the exploitation of the consumer and investor."

Republicans—"We shall encourage a healthy, confident and growing private enterprise, confine government activity to essential public services, and regulate business only so as to protect consumer, employe and investor."

Roosevelt—"It (the New Deal) has included among its aims, to liberalize and broaden the control of vast industries—lodged today in the hands of a relatively small group of individuals of very great financial power."

Willkie—"I believe that the forces of free enterprise must be regulated. I am opposed to business monopolies."

ELECTRIC POWER

Democrats—"Nomination of utility executive by the Republican Party as its candidate raises squarely the issue, whether the nation's water power shall be used for all the people or for the selfish interests of a few."

Republicans—No direct mention.

Roosevelt—No reference.

Willkie—"I believe in the federal regulation of interstate utilities, of securities markets, and of banking."

NEW DEAL POLICIES GENERALLY

Democrats—"We are proud of our record."

Republicans—"The New Deal Administration has for seven long years whirled in a turmoil of shifting, contradictory and overlapping administrations and policies."

Roosevelt—"I do not think they (the voters) want the gains in these directions to be repealed or even to be placed in charge of those who would give them lip-service with no heart service."

Willkie—"I charge that the course this administration is following will lead us, like France, to the end of the road. I say that this course will lead up to economic disintegration and dictatorship."

England Facing Decrease in Tax

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 2—A few days ago the Financial News admitted that the income of England from taxes would decrease because of the destruction of tax paying industrial concerns and because of a slack in business. The paper states that despite the fact the industrial destruction was relatively insignificant compared with England's total industrial status the drop in tax receipts was noticeable.

Many workers will be thrown out of work because of the destruction of their factories and therefore drop out as taxpayers. The paper believes that the decrease in business will be temporary and hopes that the public will become accustomed to the new conditions and make just as extensive purchases as during the period when there were no raids.

The paper also stated that these losses were negligible and had to be checked up as war costs and that no unusual measures were being considered. This shows that some day England will have to make further economic sacrifices as a result of the German air attacks.

LONDON GETTING MORE SHELTERS

German Press Service Tells All About Plans; Expresses Hope Materials Are Found

D.N.B.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3—London has assigned the new post of "air raid dictator" to Admiral Sir Edward Evans. This post is considered one of the most important at the home front. For this reason an admiral was appointed, who possessed certain popularity among the British public and it was hoped that he would handle the urgent matters more efficiently than the Minister of Interior Anderson, who failed in this respect.

According to the results of investigations by the British newspapers the conditions in the improvized air raid shelters, particularly in the subway stations, were unbearable since the beginning of the big German air offensive four weeks ago. The quick improvement of the sanitary conditions was therefore demanded at the first occasion since these generally had been stated horrible and repugnant. The so-called Anderson shelters, which give room for four or five persons in sitting position, have proven useless. For this reason Sir Evans' plan provides for the immediate construction of big and deep air raid shelters to give the London population protection during the coming long winter-nights, which without doubt will be used by the German air formations for long and extended attacks.

Unfortunately the construction is greatly hampered by a shortage of building material, but it is hoped that the new general prohibition of building construction will free sufficient material.

The present air raid shelters are to be enlarged and kept open day and night. The heating question also caused a great problem since the bad ventilation of many shelters rendered the heating by coal or woodstoves impossible. It is believed that electric and hot water heating will solve this problem.

ENGLISH GIRL DESCRIBES REACTION TO CONSTANT GERMAN AIR RAIDS

Editor's Note:—Aimee Crowhurst, 16, lives at Folkestone, one of the most exposed cities in England, only 22 miles across the Channel from the German-occupied French Coast. In the following article, she describes the reaction of a typical English girl to air raids.

By AIMEE CROWHURST

United Press

FOLKESTONE, England, Sept. 27—My first thought when the siren goes off is where are the planes, and will I see the dog-fight?

If I hear our planes, I am fairly hopeful of seeing a dog-fight. As we usually have more than one raid a day, I often get my wish in one of them. Unfortunately, we have more alarms than dog-fights.

Directly bombers are sighted over the land, I have a slightly different feeling than when I see only fighters. The sound of anti-aircraft guns, however, restores my confidence, and I look to see whether the puffs are anywhere near the planes, although I know you should not.

HAPPENING ALL AROUND

In a fight, one wants more than one pair of eyes as things are usually happening all around. I run upstairs to get a better view and then run down into the garden, hoping to be rewarded for my energy, although it may be foolhardy.

One thing I do not like, and that is the sound of a bomber coming over at night. You cannot see it, and the feeling that it may drop something suddenly is not a pleasant one, but the sight of searchlights lighting the sky as they search for the raiders is magnificent.

One day we had a most spectacular raid in which over 100 planes took part. I could see from my window our fighters and the Nazi Messerschmidts flying about. At one time they seemed to be playing "Follow my Leader," as they chased each other round and round. The sound of the machine-guns near to you is like thunder, and when you hear them it is a signal for taking cover.

In this raid, I saw at least three German machines fall toward the sea, as well as others diving down half out of control. I always hope that ours are safe, and that I am not watching one of ours being shot down.

Many people in other parts of England seem to think that the South-east Coast is "no-more," and that we have been bombed to bits.

NO WARNING GIVEN

This is not so, as comparatively few bombs have dropped where I live, although there are many air-fights. A typical "show" happened on a Saturday morning, and we had no warning given. It was five o'clock in the morning, and the sound of an engine had awakened me.

When I found it, I identified it as a Heinkel III. Daddy has a chart of German planes on which you can tell what they are. It was not very high and I was hoping any second for our fighters to come along and intercept it.

This did not happen at once, and a few minutes later I heard the whistle of what I thought was a bomb. Neither my father nor my mother heard it, and it was not until they saw a column of black smoke appear that they realized that "eggs" were being dropped.

When they did, did they run downstairs! I have never seen people run faster, and I certainly slid down the banisters as quickly as I could. But within a minute, we were upstairs again because we heard our fighters. Later, when I went to look at the damage, I heard that Spitfires had brought the bomber down. I also found a piece of the bomb as a souvenir.

WINDOWS BROKEN

One person, who was in bed, said to me, "I heard the tinkle of glass, and remarked, 'There goes my conservatory.'" When he got up, he found all his windows blown in. He lived 70 yards from where the bomb was dropped. I thought what a luckly escape.

On one occasion during term-time when we went down in the trenches at school (only because we had to) we passed the time by singing songs.

People here are becoming really "blood-thirsty," for they are always wanting to see a fight, and a few more put down by our pilots, who are grand fellows, so fearless and daring.

In another fight, bombers attacked some of our destroyers and ships. While bombers were trying to hit the ships, some of the Messerschmidts got over the land and were engaged by our fighters. It was not until I heard some machine-gun fire that I discovered they were Germans. Then, I did not stay to look twice, as I was on the hills and had a good way to go home. I just "scrammed" at the double.

In a way, I think air raids are jolly good fun, and as long as our pilots return safely, and we shoot down plenty of 'planes, the sight of a dog-fight is a wonderful experience, and a sight well-worth seeing. But when bombers are about, I keep under cover and especially away from windows. We are finding out that these raids are all part of a day's work, and take them as such. It certainly breaks the monotony of a boring day, especially when you have five alarms in a few hours.

GERMAN HITS U.S. ATTITUDE

Dr. Karl Megerle Says America Unwilling to Grant Others Its Own Principle

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 2—The critics of the Three-Power Pact in the Western Hemisphere reminded the correspondent of the "Berliner Boersenzeitung," Dr. Karl Megerle, of a statement made by the secretary of President Roosevelt, Stephen Early, on July 11 this year.

In this statement Mr. Early declared that America had not the slightest intention to interfere with the territorial problems of Europe and Asia. The United States would welcome the Monroe Doctrine of other continents. They, however, held the view that the people of Asia should meet at the roundtable to consider what would be the best solution. The same system should also be applied to Europe.

After recalling Mr. Early's statement, Dr. Megerle, who is known to have closest relations to the Wilhelmstrasse, says: "Actually, however, the policy of the Roosevelt administration intended to prevent the nations of Asia and other continents from discussing the establishment of a new order at a roundtable conference. On the contrary, some nations have been encouraged to remain on the battlefield and to wait for American intervention."

If the present administration of the United States were really observing the Monroe Doctrine, and not only the rights but also the obligations arising from this doctrine, and if they really would cede to other continents the right of their own doctrine, then the United States really would not have any reason to suspect that the Three-Power Pact was directed against them."

GERMANY PERFECTS DURABLE TEXTILE FROM FLAX STRAW

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 3—Germany's textile industry has been enriched by a new plant fiber, the so-called flock-bast, which is based on an invention of Adolf Horak, assistant head of a large textile plant in Litzmannstadt.

In contrast to linen, this new material is not being made from fiber flax but from oil flax. It was planted in the new German Eastern areas as the name indicates already in order to get oil seed and lin-seed oil.

After experimenting for years Horak at last has succeeded in manufacturing a high quality textile raw material from the straw of the green oil flax, which was formerly regarded as waste. He had great success by applying a German license in connection with this new process.

The straw of the green oil flax had been burned after it had been thrashed or it had been used for upholstery. The straw is now being manufactured into raw flock.

A second mechanical and chemical process converts the raw flock into new fibers the so-called flock bast, which can be manufactured together with cotton and cellulose into a cloth that possesses both the qualities of linen and of cotton. The manufacturing of flock bast has made such progress that it is quite easy to produce this new textile with machines which formerly were used for cotton textiles. The national economic advantage lies in the fact that two crops can be harvested on one farm namely a flax and a flock bast crop.

machine gun bullets. When a bullet hits the tank, the leaking petrol sets the rubber swelling almost immediately and seals up the bullet hole. These self-sealing petrol tanks not only enable the machine-gunned plane to stay in the air, but also reduces the risk of fire.

Other wartime uses of rubber include de-icing devices on planes, rubber dinghies for aircraft barrage ballons, gas masks and hospital appliances.

With rubber production from the Netherlands East Indies subject to control similar to that in British countries, the world's supplies of plantation rubber are in Allied hands with the exception of the Firestone and Ford plantations in Liberia and Brazil.

Synthetic rubber is being produced on a comparatively large scale in Germany, but experts believe that the cost makes it prohibitive except for very essential purposes, and even then it is not always suitable.

REQUIREMENTS HIGHER

In a normal year, without attention to war reserves, Germany and Italy between them needed nearly 100,000 tons of rubber. Wartime requirements are probably considerably higher. Germany's production of synthetic rubber at the outbreak of war was only about 30,000 tons a year, leaving a deficit of 70,000 tons at least. A second plant is believed to have begun operation, but to build sufficient synthetic rubber plants to turn out 70,000 tons would cost millions of pounds sterling and take several years.

Malayan rubber experts follow closely all experiments in various parts of the world with synthetic rubber. They believe that by the end of the war, the real value of the synthetic product will be known and all doubts as to its ability to compete with the natural rubber in price and utility will have been settled. They declare that natural rubber will win in the long run because it can be produced so much more cheaply.

OSAKA SCENE OF ATHLETIC MEET SUNDAY

Many Events Scheduled For Y. M. C. A. Tournament; Leading Teams Invited

OSAKA, Oct. 4—An All Japan Y M. C. A. Athletic Tournament will be held at the outer compound of the Kashihara Shrine on Sunday, October 6, in commemoration of the 26th centenary of the founding of the Japanese Empire, under the auspices of the Osaka Y. M. C. A. and the joint sponsorship of the Welfare Ministry, Osaka Municipal Welfare Society and Nara Prefectural Office.

A complete program has been mapped out by the committee in charge, and it is expected that thousands of people will turn out to witness the various contests that will in every sense of the word be national. There will not only be events suitable for young men only but many others in which young ladies and the mass, young and old, can participate.

A 30 piece brass band will furnish the marshal music needful on such an occasion. For events requiring more mellow music there will be a 30 piece symphony orchestra. There also will be a chorus of 50 mixed voices and a male quartet.

A few of the events are basketball games, boxing and wrestling matches, fencing, judo and kendo matches, weightlifting, volleyball games, mass drills, calisthenics, and various other field and track events. Some of the nationally known teams and performers are expected to participate, coming from Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Kyoto, Keijo and Kobe.

SOVIETS COMMENT ON U.S. FLEET

Navy Organ Expresses Doubt That Huge Program Will Be Finished in Scheduled Time

D.N.B.

MOSCOW, Oct. 3—The naval construction program of the United States, which provides for a so-called "Two Ocean Fleet" is discussed by the organ of the Soviet Navy "Krasny Flot" in its latest issue.

The organ of the Soviet Russian navy doubts whether the U.S.A. will be able to carry out their naval program within the specified time. It, moreover, points out that the providing of such a huge fleet is an extremely difficult problem and it is declared that the naval authorities of the U.S.A. were unable to deny that this problem were giving considerable anxiety to them. The time factor was a most important point in this case, too, since the problem could not be solved in a short time.

The Soviet naval organ then continues as follows: Americans are following the developments of the European war with closest attention. At the maneuvers of the American navy in the Pacific this summer the methods of the naval departments of the belligerents employed in the present war were already taken into account, when the strategic tasks were assigned to them."

With regard to the Japanese naval construction program the organ of the Soviet navy declares that it was practically impossible to obtain any information with regard to this program. It was merely certain that Japan were pushing forward the execution of a naval construction program of "unlimited extent." American naval experts had attempted to describe the Japanese naval armament program, but their articles showed that they had been based mostly on speculation since no authentic information was available.

GERMAN AIR ACE EXPLAINS BOMBER

New Ju 88 Type Plane Good for All Around Use

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 4—Captain Krueger, German air ace, who was decorated with the knight's cross of the iron cross, spoke to press representatives about his experiences, which he had made with the new German combined fighter and bomber type Ju 88.

He declared that the latest type of German warplane is just as efficient as a horizontal as well as a dive bomber and that this model furnishes an excellant solution to this combination of aircraft problem. He described the Ju 88 as a plane, which gives the pilot absolute freedom of action allowing him to choose how he wants to attack according to the tactical requirements, the conditions of defense and the weather conditions.

With regard to the stability of this plane Captain Krueger declared:" I have seen planes of this type, which have been seriously shelled and damaged and which still reached their home ports safely flying long distances of 800 to 1,000 kilometers despite the heavy damage. On one occasion the Ju 88 while starting for a diving attack got tangled up in the wire of a British balloon and the wire was torn while the plane remained intact."

The German airman also pointed to the great defensive act and high speed as additional features of this new German plane. Both these characteristic features enable the crew of four men occupying these machines to attack successfully even enemy pursuit planes.

3 Baseball Games Scheduled At Y.C.A.C. Over Weekend

Three baseball games are scheduled to be played at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club over the weekend.

On Saturday a nine consisting of first and second team members of the Y. C. and A. C. will play the St. Joseph's College squad from 3 p.m. On Sunday the Y. C. and A. C. seconds are scheduled to meet the S. K. F. team from Tokyo at 10 a.m.

The Y. C. and A. C. baseball season will end on Sunday afternoon with the club's baseball players meeting the club cricketers. The baseballers are expected to have plenty of opposition as some members who play both games will bolster the cricketers' line-up among them being Ray Devin "Bucky" and "Reggie" Roberts. This final game is scheduled for 3 p.m.

BRITISH CABINET CHANGE SHOWS LABOR STRENGTH

Exit of Conservatives, Entrance of Socialists Most Significant Aspects

D.N.B.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4—The first British press comments on reorganization of the Churchill Cabinet are marked by a conspicuous absence of the traditional reserve, as the significance of the Chamberlain retirement from the political stage is frankly admitted by the papers. The papers declare that not only Chamberlain but also men around him who also were responsible for the present disastrous situation were leaving the Cabinet. Chamberlain is held responsible for Munich, Narvik, Dunkirk and even for Dakar and the papers point out that the road is now clear for the Churchillists.

CHAMBERLAIN DISASTROUS

According to the London correspondent of the Aftonbladet it is now declared in London that the influence of the Chamberlain family has been disastrous for the British Empire and reference is being made in this connection to the Boer war of Joseph Chamberlain and the Locarno politics of Sir Austen Chamberlain. Locarno and Munich have led to new wars. The British propaganda apparently is anxious to blame the three Chamberlains for the disastrous situation in which the British Empire now finds herself.

Political quarters in London, generally speaking, hold the view that the Cabinet has been strengthened by the "exit of men responsible for Munich". That above all the influence of the labor party has been strengthened considerably by the reorganization of the Cabinet, is of course not admitted.

CONSERVATIVES FEW

The Conservative party is now represented in the Cabinet only by men, who after Eden's resignation from the Cabinet constantly criticized ad opposed the official party policy. One of the chief leaders of this Conservative party opposition was Churchill himself. Churchill evidently attempted to offset the increased labor influence in the inner war Cabinet by increasing the number of members from 6 to 7, in order to ensure the majority in the inner war Cabinet to the Conservative party members. Besides Churchill the members of the inner war Cabinet are Sir Kingsley Wood, Lord Halifax and Lord Beaverbrook, while the labor opposition in the inner war Cabinet is represented by Bevin, Greenwood and Attlee.

In case Lord Halifax should also resign from the Cabinet, and rumors are prevalent with regard to an imminent resignation, the Conservative party also would lose its present predominent influence in the inner war Cabinet. The exit of the Conservative Chamberlain and the increased influence of the Socialist Bevin must be regarded as the outstanding features of the reorganization of the Churchill Cabinet.

Legion Resolves To Deport Bridges

United Press

BOSTON, Sept. 26—The American Legion annual National Convention here yesterday adopted a resolution calling for the deportation of Harry Bridges, alien West Coast labor leader alleged to be a Communist.

The Legion also adopted resolutions demanding that the use of the mails be prohibited to un-American organizations. All groups whose names include the names of foreign countries should also be barred from using the mails, the resolution stated.

The Legion resolution also urged the Government to ban foreign language radio programs in the United States and called for the registration of all subversive groups which should then be denied the use of public buildings.

WALLACE URGES IOWANS TO BACK ROOSEVELT

Unofficial Polls Show Majority of Farmers Behind G. O. P. Candidate

United Press

SHENANDOAH, IOWA Sept. 26—Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, told a farm audience in a campaign speech here yesterday that if the Republican Party wins the forthcoming elections, "the death knell of fair play for the farmer will have sounded."

Mr. Wallace addressed several thousand farmers here in his home state—which in recent unofficial polls has returned a majority of votes for the Republican Presidential candidate, Wendell Willkie.

ASKS SUPPORT

Mr. Wallace, a soft-spoken man, urged his fellow Iowans to support him and President Roosevelt so that policies he inaugurated as Secretary of Agriculture in Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet might be continued.

As Secretary of Agriculture in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, a post he resigned to campaign for the Vice-Presidency, Mr. Wallace held the same position which his father, Henry C. Wallace, occupied in the Cabinet of the late Republican President, Warren G. Harding.

It was about the time of his father's ascendancy to the Republican cabinet that young Henry broke from the Republican faith because he was impatient with the farm policies and the tariff tenets of the party higher-ups. He transferred his politics to the Democratic Party, supporting Alfred E. Smith in 1928 and Mr. Roosevelt in 1932.

Mr. Wallace was born on a farm in Adair County, Ia., on Oct. 7, 1888. Following the usual farm boyhood and graduation from Iowa State College, where he studied agricultural economics, he eventually succeeded to the editorship of the "Wallace Farmer," widely-read farm journal founded by his grandfather, Henry Cantwell Wallace.

Young Wallace became famous for his diligence in figuring out any number of problems which his readers sent in—and he was known among farm people for his large-scale experiments in cattle and planned program of soil conservation.

INVENTS SLOGAN

"Less corn, more clover, more money," was the slogan he framed.

His ability to concentrate on any problem has shown itself in his private as well as his public life. One of his least publicized accomplishments is throwing a boomerang—the deadly weapon of the Australian bushman. Mr. Wallace's mastery of Spanish. Completely sold on the idea of close United States-Latin American cooperation, Mr. Wallace applied himself to learning Spanish. Within a year he spoke it so fluently that he was able to make a speech in Spanish to a meeting of American scientists—much to their surprise and that of many of his close friends.

He is one of the key figures in the present Administration attempt to unify the Western Hemisphere for an economic offensive against Totalitarian gains in Europe. He is credited to a large degree for authorship of the so-called cartel plan for a buying and selling monopoly of New World surpluses.

Stocky and of medium height, Mr. Wallace has dark hair, slightly flecked with gray. He has a slow, infectious smile that sometimes breaks through his basic seriousness. He prides himself on his voice, and likes to sing old tunes.

His wife, the former Ilo Browne of Indianola, Ia., often accompanies him on the piano as he sends forth his clear baritone. The Wallaces have three children, Henry B., Robert B., and Jean B., whose ages are 24, 21 and 19 respectively.

Despite his patience and his innate good nature, Mr. Wallace can be unforgiving about certain things. A case in point is the Supreme Court's outlawing of the original Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Mr. Wallace never forgot it, and in the Kansas City Livestock case last year he carried on the feud in a stinging letter of rebuke to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

At one time or another Mr. Wallace has feuded with Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Interior, Harold L. Ickes, and various members of the so-called original New Deal "brain trust." Nevertheless, he consistently has carried and defended the Administration banner.

BLACK EAGLE SAYS FIGHT STILL ON; DUEL TO TAKE PLACE OCT. 12

By MILES W. VAUGHN

United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—Colonel Hubert Fontleroy Julian, Harlem's "Black Eagle," announced last night that he would engage Marshal Hermann Goering, chief of the German Air Force, in an air duel over the English Channel on October 12.

The negro airman, who once was Ethiopia's one man air force, reiterated his announcement that Marshal Goering had accepted his challenge despite the claim of the German Embassy in Washington that the whole matter was "absurd."

"I am going to fight and die for my race to avenge the insult from the Nazis," the Black Eagle said last night. "We will see who is a baboon."

Colonel Julian said yesterday that he decided to challenge Marshal Goering o an air duel over the English Channel after reading Chancellor Adolf Hitler's book, "Mein Kampf." He said Chancellor Hitler had insulted the negro race by calling them "baboons."

Colonel Julian claimed yesterday that he spent $13 sending his challenge to Marshal Goering. He said the German Embassy informed him last Saturday that Marshal Goering had accepted the challenge.

Colonel Julian, whose New York to Europe non-stop airplane flight a few years ago ended abruptly in New York's East River, is a tall, 200-pound negro who wears elaborate uniforms and prefers to ride a white charger.

Colonel Julian is a man without a country because he failed to obtain Italian citizenship after giving up his American citizenship to become an Ethiopian when he formed ex-Emperor Haile Selassie's one-man air force.

"No government is involved in this duel," Colonel Julian declared last night. "The die is cast."

Colonel Julian said he would buy one of two Messerschmidt fighter planes captured by the British government. He said he would fight Marshal Goering in a German plane so that the German air chief could not claim that the negro had fought in a superior plane.

Angel Elizaldes Are Divorced

United Press

RENO, Nevada, Sept. 27—Mrs. Marie Spreckles Elizalde yesterday was granted a divorce from Angel Elizalde of Manila. The decree requires that Mr. Elizalde pay his former wife $60,000.00 alimony in the next three years.

Mrs. Elizalde, member of the prominent Spreckles family of California, in her complaint charged her husband with mental cruelty toward her and alleged that he was habitually morose. She was granted the custody of their three children.

As result of a property settlement reached out of court, Mrs. Elizalde dismissed a suit for $600,000.00 which she had earlier brought against her husband in Monterey County, California.

Producer Shouldn't Act, Sparks Finds Out

Robert Sparks is nursing a broken toe and the growing conviction that movie producers shouldn't attempt acting.

Sparks, who produces the "Blondie" series at Columbia, was an expert tumbler and gymnast during his school days. During the filming of a scene in "Blondie Plays Cupid", the producer was showing Arthur Lake just how he wanted a back flip performed.

As a result, Sparks has a broken toe and Lake had the last laugh. Sparks admitted recently that he will attend to producing in the future and leave acting to actors.

Pact Won't Change Australia's Policy

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—The Prime Minister of Australia, Robert C. Menzies, has declared that the Three-Power pact between Japan and the Axis Powers will not affect the Commonwealth's predetermined policy toward Japan, the New York Times reported today from Melbourne.

In spite of the Prime Minister's reassurance, some doubt is being aroused by the delay in the sailing of the new Minister to Japan, Sir John Grieg Latham, who, observers believe, is awaiting the formal announcement tomorrow, of the general election held September 21, which may place the opposition Labor Party in power.

DERRINGER TWIRLS REDS TO 5-2 WIN OVER TIGERS

Cincinnati Evens 1940 World Series At Two-All at Detroit Field

Domei Tsushin

DETROIT, Oct. 5—Limiting the Detroit Tigers to five scattered blows, Paul Derringer, veteran Cincinnati Reds twirler, today pitched the Reds to a 5-2 victory to even the 1940 World Series at two-all.

Derringer, who was blasted from the mound in the second inning of the initial encounter, today pitched with effective control, checking the Bengal's hitting attack by mincing high fast balls with sharp breaking curves just cutting the corners of the plate.

The Reds, coming to bat first, immediately opened up with a two-run lead. Dizzy Trout, sophomore member of the Tigers' pitching staff, started the game by walking Bill Werber, the Reds' lead-off man. Mike McCormick forced Werber and tallied the first run on Ival Goodman's double into the corner of left field, the latter pulling up at third on a fielder's choice.

GOODMAN SCORES

Goodman scored the second run on the next play, when Jimmy Ripple's fast grounder to third was fumbled by Pinky Higgins.

In the Tigers' half of the second, Derringer, after allowing a base on balls and a single, made a strategic move to work himself out of a tight spot. With two outs, he filled the bases with a pitch out to Billy Sullivan and retired the side by getting Trout to ground out.

The Reds bunched three hits to put across another tally in the third. Goodman opened with a single to right, advanced to second on another single to right by Frank McCormick and scored on Jimmy Ripple's long double along the left field foul line. Clay Smith, right hander, relieved Trout and retired the side without further damage.

The Tigers also scored in the third canto. Barney McCosky walked and scored on Hank Greenberg's double which bounced against the left field wall near the foul line.

On his second trip to the plate, Werber drew another walk, but this time scored when he advanced to third on Mike McCormick's double into right and crossed the plate on Goodman's fly into deep left.

The Tigers pushed across their second run in the sixth. After two outs had been registered, Bruce Campbell pounded out a single into right and went all the way home on Higgin's long triple into the field screem on the roof of the double-decked bleachers, 325 feet away from home plate.

PINCH HITTER

When Sullivan was again walked by Derringer with the intention of working on Smith, the Tigers' pitcher, Manager Del Baker called on Earl Averill, former Cleveland outfielder, to pinch hit. The Tigers, however, were retired as Averill flied out to Goodman for the third out.

When the Tigers took the field, relief hurler Hap Mckain took over the mound duty to finish the game.

The Reds scored once more in the eighth. With two outs, Werber singled, advanced to second on a wild pitch by McKain and scored when Mike McCormick connected for his second hit of the game.

Although gusts of warm cross wind blew across the field from time to time throughout the game, another clear day greeted an overflowing crowd of more than 54,000, approximately 1,000 more than yesterday, jammed Briggs Stadium for the fourth game.

With the Tigers and the Reds slated to lay their fifth game tomorrow, sport critics tonight picked Buck Newsom of Detroit to face Buck Walters. A few picked Gene Thompson as the Reds' probable starter instead of Walters.

Hostak-Garcia Bout Looming

United Press

SEATTLE, Sept. 19—Negotiations were afoot world middleweight champions, Al Hostak and Ceferino Garcia.

Hostak was world champion in the eyes of the National Boxing Association but this recognition was denied him by the New York Boxing Commission which ruled at that time that Garcia was champion.

Garcia lost his title to Ken Overlin, present champion, who is to defend his championship November 1 against Steve Belloise. Belloise on September 12 defeated Garcia for the right to meet Overlin. Garcia's clash with Belloise was an extremely dull affair without a single knockdown.

Zivic Defeats Armstrong for Welterweight Title

Domei Tsushin

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—Rocking his Negro opponent back on his heels with repeated straight left jabs and solid right punches, Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, last night boxed his way to the welterweight title in Madison Square Garden, outpointing Henry Armstrong in a 15-round championship bout.

Armstrong was on the floor at the final bell which saved him from losing his last championship title by a knockout. The former Negro holder of three championships lost the featherweight and lightweight titles by being unable to make weight.

Zivic had Armstrong in a bad way from the start of the fight as he virtually closed the Negro boxer's eyes with accurate left jabs, finally flooring the "human buzzsaw" with a terrific right punch as the fight ended.

Armstrong weighed in at 142 pounds while the new title holder came into the ring at 145 pounds.

Armstrong will be given a chance to win back the welterweight title. Promoter Mike Jacobs announced today that Zivic will meet the Negro boxer in a return match in Madison Square Garden on January 17.

U.S. JOURNALS LAUD COURAGE OF R.A.F. AIRMEN

Recent Churchill's Speech Telling True Situation Hailed by American Press

Reuter

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13—Commenting on the British situation in the face of mass air raids, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, leading liberal newspaper of the Middle West, says: "The triumph of Nazism's creed, so completely antagonistic to all the fundamentals of freedom, peace and individual rights, would be a spectacle sickening for our people to contemplate.

"Our cultural ties with Britain, our traditions and long-standing friendship will lead American citizens to pray that the people of this 'precious stone set in a silver sea' may survive their cruellest test. It is the fervent hope of Americans that the tough fiber of the British people may prevail against the murderous attacks of the hour and the even more furious onslaught being prepared against them.

"Now that the R.A.F. has demonstrated its striking power on Berlin itself Hitler has certainly been roused anew and vengeance no less than greed for conquest will henceforth direct the Nazi raiders."

CONCEAL R.A.F. DAMAGE

Reuter

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Rigidly censored reports fail to reveal the extent of damage wrought in Berlin by the Royal Air Force, while reports from London indicate that, in spite of the widespread destruction and suffering, there is no thought of surrender in the minds of the British people, writes the San Diego "Union."

"Reports from Nazi military headquarters," the newspaper adds, "betray more excitement and fear than the brief communiques actually say.

"The silly excuse that London is being bombed in retaliation for the British raids over Berlin and other German cities looks ever sillier than Nazi reports which say that the British are causing little or no damage."

CHURCHILL LAUDED

Reuter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—The broadcast speech of Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister, on Wednesday evening is the object of much comment.

The Washington Post says that throughout his career Mr. Churchill has never hesitated to tell the public the truth, no matter how unpalatable and bitter. That is why the note of dogged confidence which he sounded rings true.

The Baltimore Sun, recalling the brilliance which Mr. Churchill has often shown, states that it was not brilliance which spoke to England and the world on Wednesday through Mr. Churchill's lips. It was character.

In an epic hour, the paper adds, self-ambition and love of place and power have disappeared. Devotion rules this man—devotion to the ashes of his fathers and the temple of his gods.

MEIJI DEFEATS RIKKYO; HOSEI BESTS IMPERIAL

Fujimoto Gets Fine Help And Registers 5-1 Victory In Sunday's College Play

The Meiji University boys gave pitcher Fujimoto a three-run edge to work on in Meiji Jingu stadium yesterday afternoon, and the ace pitcher breezed home with a 5-1 victory over Rikkyo. In the second game of the day Hosei eked out a 3-1 victory over a fighting Imperial nine.

In the first tilt, the Meiji nine put across two runs on one hit in the fourth inning. After two outs, Ase unleashed a sizzling drive down the left field foul line to take second standing up. Ito was given life when right-fielder Tsunashima failed to handle a Texas Leaguer back of first. Here the Meiji nine worked a double steal and when Mayekawa cut loose with a wild throw to home, Ito followed Ase in to score.

Meiji added another run in the sixth inning with a walk, a hit, sacrifice and a well executed squeeze play.

RALLIED IN SIXTH

Rikkyo, held to but one hit, finally came to life in the sixth inning and bounced four hits off the offerings of Fujimoto. However, poor base running accounted for but one run.

Fukumura opened this inning by doubling to deep right center. Tsunashima followed suit, duplicating the hit and scoring Fukumura. Tabe drew the cheers of the Rikkyoities by slapping the second ball pitched for a single to center. Here Tsunashima in trying to score was called out on a close play. However, Rikkyo was now staging a belated rally and filled the bases on a walk and an infield hit.

Here was a grand chance to get back in the ball game as a hit might mean two runs to even the count. It was a moment that called for drastic action. The Rikkyo manager called on a pinch-hitter, Ito.

FANS PINCH HITTER

Ito faced Fujimoto with the cheers of the Rikkyo stands ringing, this was the crucial point of the game. Calmly Fujimoto pitched and on four pitches struck-out Ito to end rally.

Meiji tallied twice more in the eighth inning on Matsui's single following a base on balls and a hit. Following the sixth, Fujimoto once more regained his form and proceeded to pitch shut-out ball for the remainder of the game, giving out but one hit.

In the Imperial-Hosei tilt, the combined pitching of Morishita and Yuki proved too much for the Imperial boys as they went down to a 3-1 defeat. Sato and Okamoto the Imperial pitchers offered plenty of opposition but some sloopy fielding enabled Hosei to score once in the second inning and twice in the third inning to clinch the game.

German proper is fairly well off, according to German quarters. The German sugar beet and potato crop is excellent, they say, and it will be possible to expand livestock production. Farmers already have been told to increase the number of sows because fodder for them is assured.

The German farm labor problem is not as serious as it was, despite the fact that there are 4,000,000 men under arms, because about 1,000,000 foreign workers are now laboring on German farms. These include Polish civilians, French and Polish prisoners of war and several thousand Italian peasants engaged by the Reich.

German agricultural authorities say that they are "not the least worried about this year's crop."

"In fact," they add, "we have ever begun to work out plans for the year 1941-42."

There are no observable signs of any impending shortages. Rations have not been and are not believed likely to be reduced. Neutral sources estimate that Germany's grain and bread reserves are about 7,000,000 tons—enough for about a year—and, German sources say, the Reich's meat, eggs and butter reserves will be greater this September than they were last.

SAILING PLAN AT YACHT CLUB IS CHANGED

Minor Typhoons, Air Raid Maneuvers Alter Program; Ladies Race Is Held

Due to minor typhoons the sailing program of the Yokohama Yacht Club this season has had to be changed on several occasions. The sailing committee thought their troubles were over with the advent of calm autumn weather, but the air raid maneuvers have made a further change in the sailing program necessary, both the races scheduled for September 29 and October 6 having to be postponed.

Since the last issue of "The Log" two races have been held. On Sunday, September 15 the much postponed race for the July Cup was sailed, combined with the 5th Points Race.

"Chinook," skippered by Jerry Davis, was mainly concerned on this occasion with the points phase of the race, particularly as it appeared early in the race that she was not in the running for the prize. It was therefore a great surprise to the skipper and crew of the "Chinook" upon returning to the clubhouse after putting the boat to bed to learn that "Chinook" had won the July Cup. This was a very popular win as Mr. Davis is racing his first season at the Club. The July Cup will be presented to Mr. Davis at the annual dinner.

LADIES RACE

The Ladies' Race was held on Sunday, September 22, seven lady skippers participating with the following handicaps:

Mrs. Harden	—	Scratch
Miss White	—	"
Mrs. Decker	—	3%
Miss Laffin	—	3%
Miss Stillwell	—	3%
Miss Thibault	—	3%
Miss Gorman	—	4%

Despite the fact that immediately before the race all skippers confessed to nervousness, the start was very close, Miss Laffin hitting the line with the signal to cross in first place. Miss White, who crossed just behind and a little to leeward, sailed free in the light wind and soon established a lead which she maintained over the shortened course until approaching the home mark.

Upon rounding Red Buoy on the homeward leg Miss White covered the boats immediately behind her on the inshore tack, while three other skippers elected to take the outside course, this maneuver bringing them in ahead of the rest of the fleet. Mrs. Harden crossed the finishing line first with sufficient lead to cover her handicap time, thereby winning the Ladies' Race.

Although the filter is not working as effectively as expected it has been possible to keep the pool filled with clear water and a few hardy swimmers are still using the pool, particularly at weekends. During the coming winter further experiments will be made with the filter to ensure a constant supply of clear water for next season.

U.S. PROFESSORS WANT ACTION AGAINST JAPAN

Eleven Harvard Faculty Members Urge Government To Take Immediate Steps

United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1—Eleven distinguished members of the Harvard University faculty, in a letter to the Washington Star, yesterday urged the United States to take immediate steps to prevent Japanese conquest of China and Japanese naval dominance in the Pacific.

The eleven educators, including the dean of the Harvard Law School, Prof. James M. Landis, demanded that the United States immediately take three definite steps to curb Japan. These were:

1. Deprive Japan of raw materials with which she can wage effective war.

2. Extend additional American aid to China.

3. Arrange for the United States Fleet to share with Britain the use of the Singapore naval base.

"Japan, nourished by imports of raw materials from the United States, is on the point of establishing herself as the dominant Power in the Far East,' the letter said.

"Japan may seize and absorb French Indo-China, Siam, and the Netherlands East Indies. Then there would be no further effective obstacle to Japanese conquest of all British possessions in the Far East, including Australia.

"With the Axis Powers dominating Europe and Japan dominating the Far East economic control of South America by Germany, Italy and Japan would seem a probability.

"In a world where the foregoing had taken place, the position of the United States would not be an enviable one.

"Enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine would become an impossibility because of the pressure which could be exerted upon South America by the Axis Powers and because of our preoccupation with our own defense."

The letter said the United States can prevent Japanese conquest of China and shatter Japan's hopes of assuming naval dominance in the south Pacific "only by immediate and vigorous taking of the initiative."

Hawaii Team Wins 4-1 from Western Japan All-Stars

Domei Tsushin

OSAKA, Oct. 7—The Hawaiian boxing team yesterday defeated the Japanese team composed of Western Japan Champions, winning four events to one in the matches held at the Koshien ring.

In the flyweight class, Masao Yasui (Hawaii) decisioned Teruo Ogata (Japan). In the bantamweight class, Dato Marino (Hawaii) won with a technical knockout over Isamu Ito (Japan). In the featherweight class, Tetsuo Kanemoto (Japan) decisioned Yasu Yasutake (Hawaii) who entered the ring with an injured hand. In the lightweight class, Paul Munco Matsumoto (Hawaii) decisioned Shigeo Kikumoto (Japan), and in the welterweight class, Kenji Nobori (Hawaii) decisioned Tadanori Amano (Japan).

MCNUTT VOICES OPPOSITION TO APPEASEMENT

U.S. Must Give Aid In Asia and Europe, Legion Convention Told

By GEORGE MACK JOHNSON

United Press

BOSTON, Sept. 26—The United States must combat aggression in Asia as well as in Europe by active aid to the victims of aggression, Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator and former U.S. High Commissioner for the Philippines, told the American Legion Convention here last night.

Mr. McNutt directed a sharp attack against proposals that the United States should "appease" Japan.

Because Mr. McNutt often expresses the Administration's viewpoint, his views on the Far Eastern situation were regarded highly significant by informed observers last night.

MUST GIVE AID

"It is the inclination of the people of the United States," Mr. McNutt declared, "and it is the inclination of the Government in setting the policy of this country, to give aid to those who resist aggression.

"This holds not alone in regard to Europe. It holds also in regard to the Far East."

Mr. McNutt said that a conciliatory attitude toward Japan would not increase the security of the United States. Referring to Japan, Mr. McNutt said, "How could it be to our interest to cooperate with any country which shows itself determined to cast its lot with those countries whose practices and policies obviously are destructive to stability in international relations?"

"The United States," Mr. McNutt declared, "has consistently sought to maintain friendly relations with Japan, as with all countries in the Far East, Latin America and Europe, on a basis of sound principles and fair principles.

"It has become increasingly difficult to maintain such relationships with Japan on that basis."

Mr. McNutt said the United States must make a fateful decision as to whether to retire completely as a Far Eastern Power, or remain one to consciously and carefully shoulder the burden which such a policy implies.

TO MAINTAIN STATUS

Without referring directly to the question of reexamining the question of Philippine independence, which he advocated two years ago, Mr. McNutt indicated that the wise course for the United States would be to maintain its status as a Far Eastern Power.

Mr. McNutt said that the adoption of a militant foreign policy in the Far East does not necessarily imply the establishment of new American frontiers in the Pacific.

"Our possessions in that mighty ocean," Mr. McNutt said, "extend from the Aleutian Islands through Hawaii to Samoa and from the mainland on the east through Hawaii to Wake, Guam and the Philippines.

"The great cross formed by these islands is our mark upon the Pacific."

Mr. McNutt rejected proposals that the United States should withdraw into an isolated defense area east of Hawaii.

"The resources of this Hemisphere," Mr. McNutt said, "particularly in South America, are an integral part of the economic life of the Old World.

"For a solid century designs and intrigues to absorb part of the New World into Asiatic or European political systems have been attempted.

"If we wish for hemispheric isolation, we must recognize what it really means. It means maintaining a military establishment capable of putting a protective force in any part of the New World at any time. It means abandoning many markets for our agricultural products.

"Any attempt to build a wall around the New World means an upheaval in the United States almost as great as war itself. We must remember that wars some day end, whereas this process of isolation would wreck us for generations."

LONDON'S FALL APPEARS NEAR, NEUTRAL CLAIMS

German Attacks Are Taking Heavy Toll, Unidentified Man Tells D.N.B. News Agency

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 7—A former member of the permanent League of Nation's delegation in London, representing a neutral state, and who left London on September 23, told our special correspondent Karl Schmidt the following most interesting details:

"In a few weeks' time it will be of no further use to continue the bombing of London, if until then the German air attacks are being kept on as intensely as during the last days of my stay in London. The destruction of London will by then go down into history like the destruction of Carthago."

During the last days of the stay of this neutral, whose name for obvious reasons cannot be disclosed, he became aware that the biggest economic center of the world was doomed. In London and its surroundings there is not a single industrial district spared by German bombs. No reasonable being could anymore speak of a normal continuation of the economic life in London, which is of such importance for the whole empire.

SUFFERED HEAVILY

Stocks of raw materials as well as important industrial establishments had to be transported into quieter districts, causing disorganizations in the traffic systems, which already had suffered greatly from the German bombings. The supply of the London population with the necessary foodstuffs has become the ticklish question for the authorities, because thousands of additional workless people and poor families are to depend on additional food supplies of the public kitchen of London.

The London population so far has been very courageous, but it would be false to ascribe them as superhuman. The moral of the bravest people could not be maintained in view of the bad preparations made in London for the big German air offensive. Only those who have spent one night in London's underground tunnels, could imagine to what a strain the nerves of the Londoners were daily exposed by these incessant raids.

DESCRIBES SHELTER

"I shall never forget the scenes of panic, which I personally witnessed during a forced stay for several hours in an underground station near Picadilly," the delegate stated. "From this moment I was convinced that I would never again take an underground station as an air aid shelter."

"Londoners themselves could hardly estimate the extent of damage done by the German bombs for industrial and harbor district, which were the most inflicted, are forbidden areas so that European journalists only get their information from American colleagues.

"The official communiques contain the news of damage of a week before and also only that which becomes known among the population. During the day it was most difficult and generally impossible to travel outside the London area and people had recognized the fact already that the German bombers were only aiming at industrial and war important establishments in London and therefore, although it was forbidden, fled during daytime into the parks of London, where they were far more safe than in any air raid shelters of the city."

The neutral delegate concluded durig his stay the postal service had been very much disturbed and that it was believed that the main post office building had been destroyed. Many of the population had spent their time inside their houses for weeks without daring to move.

TOUGH OPPONENT SEEN THURSDAY FOR HORIGUCHI

Featherweight Champion Faces Ryushin Boku Upon Return to Korakuen Ring

Piston Horiguchi, Nippon's much publicized featherweight champion, and Ryushin Boku, a leading contender for the title, will meet in the ten-round main event Thursday night at the Korakuen stadium. The first preliminary boys will enter the ring at six.

In the event of rain, the fight will be carried over to Monday night. A large crowd is expected as Horiguchi will be making his initial appearance after an absence of several months from the local ring.

WON AT KANSAI

Although in his last fight in Kansai, Horiguchi scored a quick K.O., his local fights have been only fair. Twice against the Filipino, Young Dundee, Horiguchi merely took the bouts on decision. However, his late knockout victory may mean that the Piston has regained his old time form and will be out to score a quick K.O.

Boku will be facing his big test, a chance for fame and fortune and should put up a good fight. Of late, Boku's record show, a draw against Paul Lojinikov, the Shanghai Russian, and ten-round decisions over Toshiro Aoki, the pride of the Fujii Club and Ichiro Mitsuyama.

Two other ten rounders will support the card. In these the principals will be Taro Aizawa vs. Toshiro Aoki, and Iwao Kongo vs. Toshimitsu Kushihashi. Three preliminaries of four rounds each will bring together K. Ishida vs. K. Isoyama; M. Kaneda vs. A. Shiratori and Ishida vs. Sakairi.

Riggs, Wolfenden Annex Pacific Coast Net Crowns

Domei Tsushin

BERKELEY, California, Oct. 6—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, runner-up in the National tennis finals at Forest Hills last month, today annexed the Pacific Coast Championships single's title, when he defeated Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, California, at the Berkeley Tennis Club.

Kovacs, who defeated Riggs this year for the first time in three years at the Southampton Invitational, fell an easy prey to the Chicagoan's strategy, losing the match by a score of 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 and 6-2.

In the finals of the women's single, Miss Virginia Wolfenden, 9th ranking youthful tennis star from San Francisco, upset the veteran Miss Helen Jacobs by a score of 6-4 and 6-2.

U.S. Aids Chungking With Buildings

Domei Tsushin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Nelson T. Johnson, the United States Ambassador to China, today laid the cornerstone of a new block of building in Chungking to be used by China's war victims, it was reported here.

The building project has been financed to the extent of $10,000 by the American Red Cross. The block will consist of 10 one-story houses, a station for sedan chairs and a public dining hall. It will accommodate 40 families.

The new quarters will be constructed in the Wan Lung Men district of Chungking, near the ferry cossing to the South Bank of the Yangtze, at a cost of $280,000 and will be completed by January.

The block will be the first of a series of new residential quarters planned for Chungking under the reconstruction program.

TRIPARTITE PACT SAID AGAINST WARMONGERS

Magazine Says Agreement Not Against Nations Or States But Plutocrats

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 5—The periodical "Berlin-Rome-Tokyo", founded 18 months ago on initiative of the German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop characterizes the tripartite pact as "a military alliance against the warmongers, not against nations and states; against the international wirepullers and their satellites".

The question, who these wirepullers really are, is answered by the periodical as follows: "Jews, capitalists, freemasons, corrupt politicians, in brief that international class, which is generalled the plutocrats" the periodical declares that these wirepullers live "in the big cities of the democracies, namely in the palaces and skyscrapers of the new as well as the old world."

GOES INTO DETAILS

The publication deals in detail with the echo which conclusion of the tripartite pact has found throughout the world and particularly with the foreign interpretation that this pact had prompted disharmony between Germany and Soviet Russia. "Statesmen, who believe this interpretation, cannot be great statesmen," it says. "People in the U.S.A. and elsewhere in the old world ought to be now aware that the agreements, which Ribbentrop concluded, are more stable than those concluded by the envoys of the democracies. The tripartite pact was preceded by the agreement between Germany and Soviet Russia. This agreement is not only not affecting the pact, but on the other hand actually emphasises that this agreement is another part of the ingenious anti-plutocratic policy. We were not in the dark about the Soviet Russian reaction as those gentlemen in Washington, London and Ankara supposed we were.

PRAVDA EMPHASIZES

"Soviet Russia today by a well-known article in the 'Pravda' placed further emphasis to this fact".

The periodical then recalls Ribbentrop's statement on the occasion of the conclusion of the German-Soviet Russian friendship pact:

"I am convinced that this pact will have favorable effects on the Russo-Japanese relations as well as on the German-Japanese friendship".

Concluding the periodical recalls the sentence from the German Government declaration in connection with conclusion of the tripartite pact to the effect that the new agreement between Germany, Italy and Japan "does not affect the existing nor the future relations between themselves and Soviet Russia."

WIERSUM PROVES TO BE NUMBER 1 BOWLER OF YCAC

Sets Record, Winning Both Men's Championship and Handicap Singles Events

The lawn bowls tournament at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club is rapidly drawing to a close with all events except the international contest having been concluded.

K. F. Wiersum proved conclusively that he is the club's No. 1 bowler this season by winning both the men's championship and handicap singles events, and being the first player to win both contests in one year in the club's history. He defeated G. E. Beatty in the finals of both events, in the championship singles by 21 to 4 and in the handicap tourney by 21 to 12.

P. H. Lord and Beatty won the doubles championship, this comparatively young pair beating D. E. Ross and B. Deveson by 21 to 14 in the finals.

R. E. Grosfils and D. Harvey were the winners of the men's handicap doubles event, defeating Lord and Beatty by 22 to 18 in the last bracket.

Miss T. Planas won the ladies' singles handicap, beating Miss W. Dunning in the final by 21 to 1.

Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici took the mixed doubles handicap event by taking the measure of Miss Dunning and D. Dentici by 22 to 19 in the last round.

INTERNATIONAL TOURNEY

In the international tourney, the Born-in-Japan quartet defeated the Scottish team by 27 to 13. The B.I.J. squad will now meet the Continentals in the semi-final. In this event a new system was inaugurated this year, all seven competing teams being given places in both the upper and lower halves of the draw, so that each squad had two chances to win. The Continentals have already advanced to the finals in the upper bracket, as well as having the right to meet the B.I.J. squad in the lower semi-final round. This means that the Continentals have to beat the B.I.J.s once in two matches with them to win, while the latter must beat their opponents twice to capture the event.

There will not be any tournament matches played at the club this weekend, as the Y.C. and A.C. lawn bowls team will be in Kobe to play the annual interport match against the Shioya Country Club.

Results of the finals of the tournament, and the handicaps if any, were as follows:

Men's Championship Singles
K. F. Wiersum beat G. E. Beatty by 21 to 4.

Men's Championship Doubles
P. H. Lord and G. E. Beatty defeated D. E. Ross and B. Deveson by 21 to 14.

Men's Handicap Singles
K. F. Wiersum (—11) beat G. E. Beatty (—8) by 21 to 12.

Men's Handicap Doubles
R. E. Grosfils and D. Harvey (—3) beat P. H. Lord and G. E. Beatty (—8) by 22 to 18.

Ladies' Handicap Singles
Miss T. Planas (—4) defeated Miss W. Dunning (—14) by 21 to —1.

Mixed Doubles Handicap
Miss F. Gabaretta and E. Dentici (—4) beat Miss W. Dunning and D. Dentici (—2) by 22 to 19.

Steel Output High In United States

United Press

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2—The magazine Iron Age estimated today that the steel industry this week is operating at 93 per cent of mill capacity, unchanged from last week, but up three per cent from the corresponding week of last year.

The magazine said that on account of the embargo on scrap iron and scrap steel, which becomes effective October 15, the Japanese were rushing to close pending purchases.

The embargo has not affected scrap prices, except by halting advances at export points, the magazine added.

The magazine noted that August iron and steel exports were over 1,000,000 tons, breaking all monthly records.

JAPANESE BROCADES MAY GARB AMERICAN WOMEN THIS SEASON

Domei Tsushin

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6—If Miss Mary Miller, prominent Hollywood designer, catches on with her 1940 version of Miss America, garbed in brocade and heavy silk from Japanese looms, the American fashion world may turn to Japan to satisfy the fickle whims of its feminine society.

If her campaign succeeds, it will prove a boon to Japanese manufacturers of the luxurious weaves, who promise to be hard hit by the anti-luxury decree going into effect in Japan on October 7.

Miss Miller, whose dresses are worn by many Hollywood stars, was casting about for some novelty to catch the faminine eye when Miss Chieko Yamano, head of the Japan Dress Designers' Federation, approached here recently with samples of Japanese weaves.

Seizing upon them as the solution to her problem it is said, Miss Miller quickly made plans to introduce the cloths to Miss America. If she succeeds American women this season will be attending concerts, first nights and nightclubs garbed in Japanese luxury cloth which cannot be bought in Japan.

KANTO TEAM WINS MEET

Eastern Players Beat West for Third Time At S. Koshien Stadium

KOSHIEN, Oct. 7—Piling up a score of 226 to 123 points, the East (Kanto) team decisively beat the West (Kansai) team, and thus for the third time won the annual intercollegiate track and field meet held at the South Koshien Stadium yesterday.

Favored by excellent weather and capacity crowd, white heat competition was developed from the very start, and all told five new meet records were hung up, four of them being by the Kanto aces.

The Kanto team yielded the first place to the Kansai only in the hop-step-jump, in which Masahiko Omori of Kandai emerged victorious with the distance of 15.33 meters, a new meet record.

U.S. Oil Output Up

United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The American Petroleum Institute announced today that oil production last week averaged 3,799,950 barrels daily.

The total was 178,900 barrels more than the preceding week production and 141,750 barrels more than production for the corresponding week in 1939.

3 GAMES BRING SEASON TO END

Played Over Weekend, Big Crowd Watches Baseballers Of Club Defeat Cricketers

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club baseball players concluded their season over the weekend by playing three games, one on Saturday afternoon, another on Sunday morning, and the last on Sunday afternoon, all contests being played on the club grounds.

Before a large crowd, the club baseballers beat the club cricketers on Sunday afternoon by 6 to 2. The latter, with the services of F. R. Harriss, R. A. Roberts, R. Devin, S. Stephens, P. H. Lord and G. E. Beatty, who play both games, gave the baseballers strong competition. A four-run lead which the winners obtained in the first inning proved too much of a handicap for the cricketers to overcome.

On Sunday morning the club's second nine lost to the S. K. F. squad from Tokyo by 9 to 6. The losers held a 6 to 1 lead until the eighth inning, at which stage the winners made an eight-run rally.

On Saturday afternoon a club nine made up of first and second team players defeated the St. Joseph's College team by 13 to 7. A six-run barrage in the fifth canto by the students reduced the club's lead to one run, but the winners staged a rally to win by a good margin.

REICH REPORTS LIVING COSTS HAVE DECLINED

Plenty of Eggs and Wine Seen; Coal Mines Opened; Norway Gets Power Plant

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 8—The decrease in the index figure for the cost of living in the Reich, which was announced for the month of September during the past week gives a new proof for the stability of prices in the German economic system, which so far has not in the least been shaken by the effects of this war. At 131.6 index figure the German cost of living has dropped by 1.1 per cent below that of the last month. Thus the general price level in Germany had not increased by 4 per cent during the entire course of the present war.

A favorable harvest has substantially contributed to this development. The prespects for a record sugar beet crop, which has not yet been harvested, likewise contributed to this stability in the German prices. This sugar beet crop is also of particular significance for the German fodder and fat supply on which the raising of hogs is largely dependent. Considerable attention was also attracted by a report revealing an increase in the egg consumption during the first year of the war.

NO EGG SHORTAGE

The report shows that German households increased their egg consumption from 76 to 85 eggs per head during the year. Another important factor in the German food situation is the rapidly expansion of refrigeration schemes being employed in Germany for the preservation of food supplies. During the first war year 25,000 tons of refrigerated goods were produced while in the coming year this production will be increased to 125,000 tons. An important development in the German system of refrigeration is the fact that the refrigerated goods are always kept under a temperature of 20 degrees below freezing point from the producer to the consumer so that the refrigerated goods reach the consumer's households with the full nutrition value of fresh foodstuffs.

The successes scored in the wine growing districts of the Rhine by the Neuenahr system of hot-house wine-yards has led to a great expansion of this method of cultivating grapes under glass cover, which greatly accelerates the ripening process. Along the Ahr river the grapes ripened under the glass covers so early that it was no longer necessary to import foreign grapes in order to carry through the grape cures.

During the week under report a further important progress was recorded in the expansion of the European continental economic system. All Belgian coal mines are now in full operation again. To put the Lorraine coal mines into work again is rather difficult on account of the water that entered them since the French closed down these mines at the beginning of the war. In the Belgian industrial district of Charleroi not only mines but also factories have assumed production again.

DUTCH COOPERATE

During the last week important talks have been held between German and Dutch delegates with regard to closest cooperation and full utilization of the Dutch industrial production capacity, which has not been fully exploited in the recent years.

The Norwegian agriculture has likewise been placed on a new foundation by introducing an agricultural market planning and assuring thus future agricultural prosperity. The building project of a huge power plant at the Aura river has been resumed in Norway. This plant not only will be able to supply many Norwegian provinces with power but also will furnish Danish territory with electric power. The production of German Cellwool has been increased to such an extent that even Denmark can be supplied now without any difficulty, which country is showing greatest interest in this material. Also the trade with Spain has been promoted and negotiations are under way for further expansion. So, for instance, the town of Barcelona has contracted 200 electric busses with the Berlin Siemens plant.

GERMANS INCREASE TEXTILES RATIONING BY 50 PER CENT

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 8—Many a German women must have felt greatly relieved, when the official regulations with regard to the new rationing cards for textiles, were made known.

There had been rumors that no such cards should be issued this time and that clothing articles in the future would be supplied in accordance with a scheme registration. These expectations, however, have now been dispelled. It is evident, moreover that the new card compares very favorable with its predecessor, which was issued last year. The number of points to which an adult is being entitled, has been raised from 100 to 150. Although more points now can be spent for certain articles than before, the card as a whole represents a marked improvement. On an average, one point is the equivalent of ½ ounce of textile fiber.

One of the innovations, introduced this time is the difference made between articles equal in kind but consisting of different materials. This means that the number of points, which must be spent at the time of buying for example of underwear, varies with regard to the material employed in the article such as wool, staple fiber, artificial silk etc.—a method ensuring a better market for the cheap articles, of which the demand had been relatively small up to now.

The new card is generally admitted to be model of organization, even more than the old one. It satisfies the needs of the consuming public and those of the manufacturing industries. To a certain extent, it may be said to be a barometer of the state of Germany's textile industry. The fact that the number of points, to which each person is entitled, has gone up by 50 per cent is showing that the available stocks of textile materials have increased since last autumn. This is also proved by the fact that the new card commenced to be valid on September 1, although the validity of the old one (which was originally to expire on October 30) has been extended even beyond that date so that two cards are now available for a considerable time.

INDIAN CLUB WINS CRICKET CUP AT KOBE

Hamilton-Holmes Trophy Goes to Winner of Two Kansai Teams

KOBE, Oct. 8—The Indian Sports Club yesterday won the Hamilton-Holmes Cricket Cup for the first time by beating the Kobe Cricket Club by an inning and 10 runs. This was the decisive match for the Cup, both teams having beaten Yokohama by handsome margins some weeks ago.

The Kobe Cricket Club was the first to bat, making 134 runs. The Indians followed and ran up 211 runs for nine wickets, when the stakes were drawn on Sunday.

Resuming play in the afternoon, the Indians scored 222 for all out while the Kobe Cricket Club managed to amass only 78 for all out in the second inning.

Captain Thakordas of the Indians in his usual form displayed fine playing, both as the high score man, batting 97 runs, and as a bowler taking most of the wickets.

RIKKYO ELEVEN TACKLES KEIO CLUB THURSDAY

Two Evenly Balanced Teams Matched for Second Game Of Intercollegiate League

The elevens of Keio and Rikkyo universities are scheduled to meet this Thursday at Korakuen stadium in the second game of the 1940 schedule of the Tokyo Intercollegiate Football League. The kick-off will be at 3 p.m.

The League officials announced that due to the Air Raid drills, the game between Keio and Nichidai which was to be played on October 3, has been advanced to a later date.

Keio University will be making its 1940 debut. Last fall Keio ended up behind Waseda and Meiji in the League standing, although they scored a brilliant upset when they held the Waseda champions to a scoreless tie.

Gone from that team will be seven regulars, the entire backfield, plus two tackles and the center. However should this year's starting backfield of Tomii quarterback, Sato and Kondo halfbacks, and fullback Tazawa escaped injuries, the Mita eleven can be termed the "dark horse" of the League scramble.

Rikkyo already has suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of Waseda. In that game, however, Rikkyo revealed a passer of good promise in halfback Suzuki.

This, combined with two weeks more of practice and the addition to the squad of Richard Fukuda, star of last year's Waseda team, should see a greatly improved eleven from Rikkyo.

CUT TO BE MADE IN PRICES OF SPORTS GOODS

Commission Decides on 20 Per Cent Reduction for Many Lines; Cheaper Pipes

Sports goods and paraphernalia used for smoking, and writing will soon be purchasable for lower prices than the prevailing ones, it was agreed at Monday's session of the Central Price Formation Commission.

The outline of the official price-list to be shortly announced, as reported by the Chugai Shogyo, runs substantially as follows:

(1) Baseball outfit: Prices are pulled down 20 per cent on an average from the current locally agreed prices. The price of balls made of horsehide shall be ¥3 apiece as was obtaining in pre-China Affair days. Of the gloves, the common brand for players' use, made of cowhide, will be priced at ¥15, a ¥3 decrease from the current rate. Those for amateurs will be ¥12.20 for horsehide of fine quality, ¥8.50 for the same make but a little inferior in quality, ¥10 for fine pigskin, and ¥6 for inferior pigskin. Gloves for juvenile use, so far sold for ¥5.50 and upward, will be sold for less than ¥4.80.

The prices of bats will be lowered about 20 per cent on an average. Bats for hard balls and made of ash wood will be sold for ¥5, and those for soft balls and of the same material will be sold for ¥1.80. Bats for juvenile use will be priced lower than 90 sen.

(2) Tennis gear: The price of soft balls will be 23 sen apiece, and that of ordinary rackets with gut net will be ¥6. Rackets of inferior material will be sold for less than ¥3.50. These prices are roughly 20 per cent cheaper compared with those prevalent up to now.

(3) Track and field equipment: The prices of javelins made of wood or bamboo, of disks and shots will all be kept on the pre-China Affair level. The price of the rope used for youngsters' skipping is fixed at 30 sen.

(4) The balls used for football, Rugby, and basketball, which have so far been supplied through the Welfare Ministry, will be sold 5 per cent cheaper than the prevailing prices.

(5) Mountaineering gear: The prices of rucksacks for adult use will be varied according to their length and whether lined or not. Lined ones approximately 18 inches in length will be priced at ¥10 and the same kind of 16 inches at ¥8.80. Unlined ones 18 inches in length will be sold for ¥8.10, and those 16 inches in length for ¥7.20. The highest price of juvenile rucksacks, 13 inches long and with no lining, will be ¥3.60. Alpenstocks, thus far priced around ¥15, will be sold for ¥12.24 apiece.

(6) Skiing gear: A pair of hickory skis, now selling at ¥40, will be sold for ¥35. Those made of "itaya" wood will be priced at ¥16.50 per pair of best quality, and ¥15 per pair of common grade. Skiing stocks shall be priced at ¥4.50 a pair for the best and ¥2.50 for common quality.

(7) Shoes for sports use: The highest price for shoes for general sports purposes will be ¥22 per pair, for skiing ¥31.80 and for mountaineering ¥31.80.

(8) Smoking utensils: The new prices are about 10 per cent cheaper average compared with those prevailing before September 18 last year. The Japanese tobacco pipe (Kiseru) made in Tokyo, thus far marketed at as high as ¥4.50 apiece will be priced at less than ¥1.80. Those made in Osaka will be sold at 20 per cent cheaper than those made in Tokyo.

(9) Ink for fountain pen use was officially priced in March this year according to brands. Through the present fixing, this is altered to pricing by weight regardless of brand, and set at 30 sen an ounce. Ink for common writing use will be sold at about 20 per cent higher than last year.

(10) Some other stationery prices are, 10 sen for a bamboo pen-holder, 20 sen for a holder of celluloid and 35 sen for a biscoloid pen-holder. The prices of glass pens, rubber pens and ink erasers were also fixed at around the prices for similar articles pegged on September 18, last year.

(11) The prices fixed for common toilet papers are about 13 per cent higher compared with the prices obtaining around August last year.

Spain Believed Seeking Gibraltar

Domei Tsushin

LYONS, Oct. 6—A formal demand for the return of Gibraltar to Spain may be made by Madrid shortly, Le Temps stated in an editorial today, commenting on Spain's position in the European war and the visit recently made to Berlin and Rome by General Ramon Suner, the Spanish Home Minister:

"Although no details can be obtained at present on the demands Spain will submit to Great Britain when the time comes for her to do so, it was indicated in Madrid that Spain would not ask for any territories which are not clearly Spanish," Le Temps added.

"This, of course, means Gibraltar," the paper continued, "It was also indicated that Spain would not give up her historical role in Africa and the Mediterranean."

On conclusion, Le Temps said that as far as is known no German-Spanish or Italian-Spanish agreement was signed during General Suner's visits to the axis capitals.

Hsinking-Mongolia Plan Barter System

Domei Tsushin

HSINKING, Oct. 8—Negotiations are now under way between the Manchoukuoan Government and the Federation of Autonomy Governments of Mongolia to launch a barter system between the two countries.

As the first step toward the inauguration of the barter system both Governments decided that Manchoukuo send 10,000 sacks of wheat flour to the Federation of Autonomy Governments of Mongolia who in return will send 10,000 sheep to Manchoukuo.

In order to discuss concrete measures for the barter, officials of Manchoukuo and Mongolia met at the Manchoukuoan Pasturage Company here yesterday.

JAPAN-SOVIET ACCORD WORRIES CHIANG REGIME

See Little Help From U.S. Because Nation Is Busy With Presidential Election

Domei Tsushin

HONGKONG, Oct. 8—The Chungking authorities are worried over the friendly attitude of the Soviet Union toward the three Power axis and a possibility of rapprochement between Japan and the Soviet Union through good offices of Germany, according to various information available here from Chungking.

Moreover, despite strenuous efforts on the part of Chungking's European and American faction, movement in connection with pro-American policy has not yet been progressed on account of the political struggles in the United States between the Democratic and Republican Parties for the forthcoming Presidential election.

WORRIED ABOUT BURMA

Under these circumstances, the Chungking authorities who are expecting the reopening of the Yunnan-Burma Route under the American assistance toward Britain, are extremely worried about the reopening of the route.

Above all the Chungking authorities are worried over the fact that Premier Churchill during the recent interview in London with the Chinese Ambassador to Washington refrained from expressing his definite opinion for the reopening of the Yunnan-Burma Route despite the Chinese Ambassador's solicitation.

Some of the leaders in Chungking are advocating strong resistance toward Japan, while others are in favor of inducing Britain and America to strengthen their assistance toward China and to reopen the Yunnan-Burma Route, by tactfully feigning to accept Germany's mediation for peace with Japan.

U. S. AID DOUBTFUL

Political circles in Chungking are believing that the United States, in view of her present domestic situation and her armaments, would avoid the frontal clash with Japan for the time being.

Chungking political leaders regard Roy Howard's advocacy that a joint commission be established for the solution of disputes between Japan and the United States, as representative of American public opinion.

Chungking leaders further believe that even if the American assistance toward China be continued, it is doubtful whether her assistance should be as strong as the Chiang Kai-shek regime expects.

AXIS LEADERS SENT TO SPAIN

Right Hand Men of Hitler And Mussolini Plan Visit; Important Moves Hinted

D.N.B.

MADRID, Oct 9—Commenting upon the already pending arrival of the Italian Marshal de Bono and Heinrich Himmler, who is the head of the German police, the paper "Arriba," an official organ of the government writes on Tuesday that the politics of Spain were gaining contact again with the continent and would take their place within the framework of the coming new order.

This was started, the paper continues, by the pending visit of two such important personalities, one of whom is the founder of the Fascist party, while the other one is the chief of the German police and an old member of the National Social Party.

These two men are among the oldest and most famous collaborators of the Duce and the Fuehrer. They were leading politicians connected with the establishment of a new order in Europe. The hour of the fulfillment of the demands of Spain had now arrived in connection with her historic tradition being revived by the Falange. The Falange knew and understood the Spanish victory, which had been prepared by it and which would also be carried through accordingly.

RENEWED RAIDS BLAST GERMAN SHAKEUP CLAIM

Reich News Agency Says Churchill Is Opposed For Taking Offensive

D.N.B.

MADRID, Oct. 9—The London correspondent of the Spanish paper "ABC" reports that three outstanding hypotheses were presently engaging British military circles.

Firstly, that Germany was regrouping her air bombing forces; secondly, that there is the general conviction that the air war of the German air force so far has been unable to destroy the moral of the British people and thirdly, that the shifting over to other theaters of war was imminent and that Germany was subsequently regrouping and enlarging her air force for this purpose, simultaneously by drawing on new and reserve forces and training these for the continuation of the attacks on London.

These thoughts had only arisen, the correspondent continues, by the temporary slackening of the German bombardment during the last week and were still discussed on Sunday while suddenly on Monday, the German attacks were resumed with almost unbelievable ferocity so that the hopes for this new assumption were disappearing again.

The correspondent writes that there have been greatly conflicting differences and breaches of confidence within the scope of the British conduct of air war. This impression is also now fastly gaining ground in political circles of London and the appointment of Marshal Portal as the new chief of the general staff of the British air force is generally regarded as the outbearing of this impression.

It is no secret, the correspondent concluded, that this appointment were tracing directly toward Churchill and his small circle of advisers who are determined to develop an air offensive against Germany in a most drastic form. Posters recently have been put up on walls and buildings of London stating that the city could be liberated—if the air raids against Germany are carried out in a most rigorous manner and with the greatest persistency. The Archbishop of Canterbury, however, severely criticized this policy of unrelenting reprisals.

N. China Imports From Japan Drop

Domei Tsushin

PEKING, Oct. 8—North China's imports from Japan have shown a surprising decline since September owing to the export adjustment in Japan proper toward North China, the total amount of import from Japan at Tientsin being said only about four million yen during last month.

The cause of this decline is that the importers in North China are refraining from sending orders to Japan because the difficulty of business from the excessive adjustment rate in Japan and the fixing of the local selling prices at the September 18 level. If this condition drags on into winter and the port of Tangku becomes frozen, the import from Japan will remain at a deadlock until next February, causing a very serious shortage of materials meanwhile.

Accordingly, the North China authorities have decided to send its officials to Tokyo to discuss urgent measures, which is now attracting wide attention.

KEIO RALLIES TO OVERCOME RIKKYO 26-6

Register Four Touchdowns In Second Half; Victors Produce Good Air Attack

STATISTICS OF GAME

	Keio	Rikkyo
First downs	8	11
Yards gained rushing	157	102
Forward passes	11	20
Passes completed	6	7
Yards gained, passes	47	115
Passes intercepted	6	0
Fumbles recovered	1	1
Yards lost, penalties	50	5

Scoring all 26 points in a second half rally the Keio eleven overcame a one touchdown lead to defeat Rikkyo 26-6, yesterday at the Korakuen stadium.

For two periods the Rikkyo team was impressive, as it ran and passed their way for yardage and a second period touchdown. In the second half, however, the defense of the Rikkyo eleven crumbled, and in quick order the Keio eleven chalked up four touchdowns and two conversions.

Paced by Suzuki and Fukuda, erstwhile Waseda star, the Rikkyoites climaxed a sustained 45-yard drive with Fukuda scoring on a 4 yard, plunge over his right guard.

GET GIFT SCORE

Keio scored two touchdowns and a conversion in each of the last two sessions. Early in the third period, tackle Orikasa pounced on a Rikkyo fumble in the end-zone for a gift score. Halfback Sato added another, splitting guard for 4-yard, and Tomii brought the score 13-6, taking a pass for the conversion as the third quarter ended.

Sato, a consistent ground gainer all day, intercepted a Suzuki pass on Rikkyo's 30-yard line which led to the next touchdown. On the second play, Nakano, from the 15 scored on a nicely executed spinner, and Sato hit center for the extra point. The final tally of the day came as Tazawa rambled 8-yard over his right tackle.

Following the opening kick-off by Rikkyo, neither team made much headway, with Rikkyo registering one first down in mid-field as a result of a Fukuda to Suzuki pass. After an exchange of punts, Rikkyo took possession of the ball on Keio's 45-yard line late in the second quarter.

A Suzuki to Ando pass ate up 20 yards. Two smashes by Fukuda gained a first down on the 13-yard line. The same Suzuki to Ando combination, on a fourth down pass clicked for a first down on the three, from way Fukuda scored for Rikkyo's aforementioned tally.

COSTLY FUMBLE

Soon after the half-time, the Rikkyo eleven started in the wrong direction which resulted in the gift touchdown. Fukuda poised to punt failed to handle the center's pass and the ball kept rolling toward his goal line. A mad scramble resulted and after heads were parted, Orikasa was found with the ball in the end-zone.

Given this break the Keio team picked up speed and power and from then on the attack rolled. Bullet passes form Sato connected. Off-tackle smashes and spinners bewildered the Rikkyo eleven. Defensively the Keio line was now charging and nailing runners behind the line of scrimmage. While the backs were doing yeomen work intercepting the long and short passes of Suzuki and Fukuda.

The Rikkyo eleven appeared to have developed some teamwork, and is a much improved team over the squad that finished at the bottom in the League standing last season. It appears this Rikkyo eleven will make it highly interesting for the other members of the League.

LONDON SUSPENDS EVACUATION PLANS

Cannot Take Responsibility During Windy Winter Season

United Press

LONDON, Oct. 3—The British Government last night suspended the Children's Overseas Evacuation scheme until further notice.

Authoritative quarters said the Government had "reluctantly come to the conclusion that during the winter gales and heavy seas, it cannot take the responsibility for sending children overseas."

The Government, it was understood, will not interfere with private evacuation arrangements such as those being arranged by American committees. These may continue independently, it was indicated. Government officials emphasized that the Government had merely suspended action on its own scheme, and had not abandoned it.

The increase in German submarine activity in the North Atlantic was believed to have been partially responsible for the Government's decision.

About 2,650 children so far have gone overseas under the Government's evacuation scheme. The Government will continue to look after their welfare, it was announced.

Y.C.A.C. Lawn Bowls Team to Play Shioya Club Boys

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club lawn bowls team will meet the Shioya Country Club's two fours in the annual interport match on Sunday at the Kansai club's rinks.

There will be four rink matches, two being played Sunday morning and the others that afternoon. Both teams will be comprised of two squads of four, and each quartet will meet the two groups of the opposing club in the competition. The winner will be decided by the total number of points.

The Y.C. and A.C. team won the interport last year in Yokohama, while the Shioya Country Club took the honors two years ago on their own rinks.

The Y.C. and A.C. team has been announced as follows: W. T. Craigie, B. Deveson, F. R. Harris, H. P. Kay, G. H. Kerbey, D. E. Ross, J. W. Rust and W. A. Tomlinson.

SOVIETS CLOSE IN SLOWLY ON BALTIC STATES

Three New Parliaments Reach Unanimous Decision To Join Red Russia

United Press

TALLINN, Estonia, Sept. 30—The incorporation of the three Baltic States into the Soviet Union has closed, at least for the time being a chapter which was opened not quite a year ago when Joachim von Ribbentrop and Josef Stalin marked off the "spheres of interest" of their countries.

Soviet Russia then was allotted a free hand in all Baltic countries—a term which incidentally according to German and Russian interpretation also includes Finland. For reasons which are probably known to Stalin and his advisers alone, Russia did not at once make full use of this free hand, but the grip around the three Baltic countries was gradually tightened until the ultimate aim, the incorporation into the U.S.S.R., was achieved.

MOVE CAME SLOWLY

Many observers, conversant with the Baltic situation, are wondering why Russia waited so long before taking full possession of its Baltic share of the German-Russian agreement. For nearly a year after the conclusion of the understanding, the Baltic countries enjoyed an almost unimpaired independence. No attempt was made during this period to Sovietize any one of the three countries.

The picture suddenly changed when it became clear that France was hopelessly defeated by the German armies. From that moment on, Russia appeared just as impatient in its policy toward the Baltic states as it formerly had been patient. Acting on the charge that the governments in Tallinn, Riga and Kaunas had not been loyal to the Soviet Union and their treaties, the Soviet sent thousands of troops into each country. Russia also demanded that the governments in all three capitals be changed. After this had been done, elections were arranged.

The first act of the new Parliaments in the three countries was an unanimous decision to apply for membership in the U.S.S.R.

Meanwhile, more troops had been sent from Russia, presumably partly to insure the smooth functioning of the program of internal changes and partly to be better prepared for any eventuality which might arise from the course of events in the west. The forces sent to Lithuania were the most numerous, a fact which gave rise to rumors of an imminent clash between Germany and Russia. These rumors were unfounded.

LOCAL ELEMENTS

Once the Russians had established themselves in the Baltic states and had enough troops at their disposal to insure complete control of the situation they remembered the existence of the local Communist element which they had hitherto completely ignored or rebuked.

In Riga this change from diplomatic and military to revolutionary methods was so sudden that it surprised even most unsuspecting observers. When the Red Army marched into Riga on the evening of June 17, some thousand Communists thought it their duty to cheer them. The Russians, however, far from being pleased, called for the Latvian police and complained about the "disorderly conduct" of the population. They even assisted the police in dispersing the crowds. A communique issued by the official Latvian news agency that night said "the demonstrations had made a very bad impression" upon Russian military authorities.

Next morning the Tass Agency assured them that their behavior had made "a very good impression."

That incident seemed to mark a complete change in the Russian attitude toward local Communists, not only in Latvia, but also in the two other Baltic countries.

In the years following the World War, Communists made several attempts to overthrow the democratic governments in the Baltic states, partly by propaganda, partly by force. These efforts failed as the majority of the population was against Communism. In the Estonian parliament of 1920 the Communists had five seats out of 100. In 1923 they were joined by five left Socialists, but in 1926-1929 they were down again to 6 seats (at that time calling themselves Estonian Workers Party). In the other two countries the leftist influence was considered slightly stronger but never strong enough to give the Communists any chance to seize power by legal means.

In the past 10 years all three countries changed their constitutions and reshaped them along totalitarian lines. The parliaments during this period presented no clear picture of the strength of the different parties.

G.O.P. SUPPORTS STRONG STAND IN FAR EAST

Spokesmen of Major Parties Reject Proposals Of U. S. Appeasement

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 2—Prominent Republican and Democraic party spokesmen last night issued statements calling for a firm stand by the United States in the Far East.

In an unusual display of interparty unity, spokesmen for the two major parties rejected proposals that the United States follow a policy of retrenchment in the Orient.

The Republican Leader in the House, James Wadsworth, of New York, said the United States must steadfastly adhere to its present status in the Far East. He said he would even favor retaining the Philippines under the United States flag if the Filipino Legislature made such a request of Washington. The initiative for such a move, however, must come from the Filipinos, he said.

MAY SHOW WEAKNESS

Mr. Wadsworth said the Japanese might misunderstand the motives of the United States in granting freedom to the Philippines and interest such action as a sign of American weakness.

The New York Republican pointed out that the United States Congress voted to give the Philippines their freedom long before the Japanese invasion of China and French Indo-China.

Simultaneously, a foreign affairs spokesman for the Democratic Party, Thomas Hennings of Missouri, said the United States must "hold its lines in the Far East."

"We must emphasize our increasing aid to Britain as our answer to the Jananese alliance with the Rome-Berlin Axis," he said. "Even the Far Eastern situation is being decided not in the Orient but on the Atlantic."

Mr. Hennings, who recalled that he had favored withdrawing American interests from the Orient a few years ago, said this could no longer be done. He said Japanese extremist elements would regard such action as American cowardice and that the misinterpretation might lead to further involvements.

Some Congressional quarters yesterday were discussing the possibility of a Russo-American rapproachement to meet the Far Eastern situation, but most Congressmen agree that such a move would not be feasible for political reasons in the United States, even if the move is opportune from a diplomatic viewpoint.

Most well informed quarters said that the United States would benefit little from a pact with Soviet Russia because the United States now is not in a very favorable bargaining position to enter into negotiations with Moscow.

ATTACKS NEW DEAL

United Press

GRAND RAPIDS, Michigan, Oct. 2—Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, last night charged that the New Deal had "cut the jugular vein of America" by discouraging production and creating unemployment in the United States.

Mr. Willkie, in a campaign speech delivered before 30 000 cheering supporters here, promised that if he were elected next month, he would obtain jobs for America's 9,600,000 unemployed.

A Republican Administration in the United States, he said, would allow maximum unrestricted farm production.

"The consuming power of the nation has not been touched," he said, "and with jobs restored, this consuming power will be released."

Earlier yesterday, during a visit to Pontiac, Mich., eggs were thrown at Mr. Willkie's automobile on the Pontiac streets. Mrs. Willkie's clothes were spattered by the eggs and cameramen in another car were hit.

Mr. Willkie said here that the Republicans would "cut out the red tape, that is paralyzing the country."

In a speech at Lansing, Mich., Monday night Mr. Willkie promised that if elected he would appoint as Secretary of Labor in his Cabinet a man "from the ranks of labor."

Mr. Willkie is scheduled to make his major foreign policy speech of his campaign in Cleveland tonight.

Bulgaria Honors Axis Heads in Ceremonies

Domei Tsushin

SOFIA, Oct. 7—At a ceremonious inaugural session of the city council of Dobritch yesterday honorary citizenship was conferred on the German Minister to Bulgaria, Herbert von Richthofen, and the Italian Minister to Bulgaria, Count Massimo Magistrali.

The town's council simultaneously decided to name a number of streets after German and Italian statesmen and political leaders in appreciation for the axis' role in the settlement of the Dobruja question.

It is recalled that the Japanese Minister to Bulgaria, Teruo Hachiya, also received an honorary citizenship recently from the Mayor of Sofia.

HOSPITALS SAID R.A.F. VICTIMS

German Organ Claims Reich Directing Attacks Against Only Strategic Localities

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 10—"The helpless rage of the British rulers, who from the outset had counted on an aerial warfare chiefly directed against the civilian population, had to realize how the German air force on its part day and night long is attacking and smashing the centers of the British power of resistance," it is declared by the Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Correspondenz, which is close to the Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

"This helpless rage is prompting the British," the Correspondenz declares, "to carry their corresponding raids during the nights in a form which is contradictoty to the most elementary axioms of morale and civilization."

The Correspondenz pointed out that on Monday in Berlin 20 per cent of the British bombs were dropped on hospitals, and states that this "certainly did not happen by accident."

The paper is deducing from Churchill's remarks in his speech on Tuesday that the main thing in aerial warfare for the British were the number of people killed or injured during these air raids, while the German air force were directing its raids against the important centers of the armament industries, the traffic system, and store houses. The difference of opinion about "successful" air raids and "targets worthy of attack," according to the Correspondenz must be shown up clearly, because they reveal the "sinister purpose" of the British.

ECONOMIC PLANS BEING OUTLINED

Spanish Press Says Meeting Of Outstanding Importance

D.N.B.

MADRID, Oct. 10—The impending meeting of the Reich Minister of Economics, Walther Funk, and the Italian Minister of Foreign Trade and Currency, Rafaella Ricard is described as follows by the paper "ABC" of "unparalleled importance."

In the middle of the war, and convinced of the final victory, the Axis Powers already are examining the economic bases for the future of Europe and are making preparations accordingly. Some time ago they spoke of creating big economic regions in Europe aiming at some kind of economic self-sufficiency.

"In a new Europe, built up on such a basis of reasonable reflection every country will have its special place and tasks. The time is near when artificial industries and fictive frontiers were erected in order to maintain non-economic privileges. Now an economic solidarity is developing allowing the abolition of the predominance of gold which enslaved every labor and all legitimate property. One cannot help admiring the work of those who even before the complete achievement of victory are tackling the tasks for saving Europe and for the prevention of a chaos, which as history has taught, has always been sequel to war.

The capacity of the Axis Powers has not only proved during wartime but it also allows to have confidence in the economic future, which is to be built up on the basis of reason, unanimity and aimful cooperation.

RYUSHIN BOKU POUNDS PISTON IN UPSET WIN

Horiguchi Proves No Match For Scrappy Korean Lad Who Easily Took 8 Rounds

Ryushin Boku was the complete master last night, as he scored an impressive ten-round decision over the favored Piston Horiguchi at the Korakuen stadium.

Meeting every punch that Piston threw, the Korean fought back and scored continually with both fists to easily take eight of the rounds, with one even. Only in the earlier rounds did Horiguchi display his old-time form. Even then his punches lacked the steam to do any damage.

LAST ROUND THRILLER

In the last round, Piston seemingly realizing that he was behind, started with the bell to score a K.O. The Korean fighter, never flinching, fought and brought the crowd to it's feet, with the excitement.

Boku scored his best shots by keeping Horiguchi away with a long left, followed with a fast two-fisted attack which had the champion backing up. Even when Piston took the offensive, he found Boku willing to mix it up and exchange blow for blow.

In another ten-rounder, Kid Kongo, 116, scored a close decision over Toshimitsu Kushihashi, 106. Both fighters threw punches from the start with Kushihashi having the advantage in the earlier rounds. However, Kongo began to land hard straight lefts and rights, followed by uppercuts, to take a slight lead from the fifth. For the next two rounds Kushihashi played a waiting game and held off the rushes of Kongo by counter-punching nicely.

The last three rounds Kushihashi appeared tired, although his punches still carried power, and in the final round, Kongo kid scored with hard lefts and rights to win by a close margin.

AOKI BESTS AIZAWA

In the third ten-rounder of the night, Toshiro Aoki, 125, and Taro Aizawa, 140, fought listlessly with Aoki getting the decision. Throughout the fight neither landed a blow of any magnitude, although to Aizawa's credit he was trying to catch up the back-peddling Aoki, who did score a few blows counter-punching.

The preliminaries were limited to two bouts due to a delay in the set-up of the ring.

Lloyd George Hinted for Aircraft Ministry Post

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Oct. 11—The possibility of David Lloyd George returning to office is being debated by political circles. Now that British aircraft production is on its upward way, speculation is based upon the fact that for a number of years past, Lord Beaverbrook, Minister for Aircraft Production, has not found it possible to spend a winter in Great Britain owing to asthma.

It is noted that only a short time ago, one of Lord Beaverbrook's newspapers contained a pointed reference to this annual affliction. Still greater speculation is aroused by any attempt to nominate a successor to so dynamic an organizer should Lord Beaverbrook decide not merely to take a holiday but to leave office.

SAVED AFTER SEVEN-HOUR BOMB BURIAL

Air raid precautions workers are shown carrying survivors from a bombed building in London after hours of ceaseless digging in the ruins. The rescued had been entombed in the wreckage for seven hours before workers succeeded in reaching them. At another part of London 500 persons who took refuge in a school were buried alive. Of the first hundred dug out of the ruins, only one was alive.

Dutch East Indies Want U.S. Planes

Domei Tsushin

MANILA, Oct. 10—Reiterating the Netherlands East Indies readiness to fight if attacked, Major Van Haselen, flight commander of the East Indian air force, tonight arrived here by special plane en route to the United States on an official mission in connection with the defense of the islands.

The Batavian Government, he declared, is interested in obtaining American planes for defense and wants to buy as many as the Unites States will sell. The East Indies Government has during the past four years taken tremendous quantities of American arms and aircraft, but shipments of warplanes assertedly have slowed up because of increased home demands.

Meanwhile, it was learned that ten American-made light dive-bombers, consigned to Thailand, have been unloaded from a freighter and held on orders from Washington. It was unofficially understood negotiations are in progress with Washington to turn the bombers over to the United States Army for use locally, thus increasing the air defense of the Philippines.

HENRY HORNER, ILLINOIS 'LONE WOLF,' IS DEAD

Colorful Career of State Governor and Liberalist Leader Comes to an End

United Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 7—Henry Horner, Governor of Illinois, died yesterday at his Winnetka home at the age of 61.

Mr. Horner was known as the "lone wolf" of Illinois Democratic politics and was unexcelled in state history as a personal vote-getter because of his ability to appeal to individuals.

He was the son of Solomon A. Levy and Dilah Horner, whose parents were Chicago pioneers. Mr. Horner, a bachelor, once explained that as a boy he grew up with an invalid mother, devoting so much of his time to her that he did not have an opportunity to mingle in social parties and affairs with other young people.

He twice was elected governor of Illinois, serving two consecutive terms, being the first Democrat to do so since 1870.

RAISED BY MOTHER

His parents separated by mutual agreement when he was 4 years old, and he and his brother, Sidney, were taken by the mother and James, another brother, by the father. His grandfather was Henry Horner, who founded a wholesale grocery in Chicago.

The firm, originally known as Henry Horner & Company, later changed names at various times. Mr. Horner always retained an interest in the company.

After his mother's death Mr. Horner devoted virtually all his life to the study of law and to public office. He became a lawyer in 1889, served 17 years as Cook county probate judge and took office as governor in January, 1933.

GRANTED CLEMENCY

He was a liberal, and rarely ever turned a deaf ear to a mercy plea. He granted clemency to the first woman sentenced to death in the electric chair in Illinois, commuting her sentence to life imprisonment. Later he refused to interfere with the execution of another condemned woman and she died in the electric chair.

He was a friend of Clarence Darrow, who staked his reputation as a lawyer who never lost a death case, on a plea to Horner for commutation of a death sentence against a 17-year-old boy who pleaded guilty to a murder charge. Mr. Horner commuted the sentence.

His education was obtained in the public schools of Chicago and at the Kent College of Law in the same city. He obtained his degrees at the college and began the practice of law in partnership with another young lawyer, Frank Whitney.

Mr. Whitney's father was a prominent lawyer in the Civil War period and had been associated with Abraham Lincoln in practice. Mr. Horner gained access to many of the Lincoln letters and manuscripts which came into his partner's possession.

HAD VAST LINCOLN LIBRARY

They proved the basis for one of the most extensive collections of Lincolniana in the world. Mr. Horner's library on Lincoln contained more than 6,000 volumes and was said to surpass even that of the Library of Congress.

In addition to the many Lincoln volumes, Mr. Horner's collection also contained a number of manuscripts and letters written by the Emancipator as well as a life mask of Lincoln made in 1855 by Leonard W. Volk, a Chicago sculptor.

During the 17 years Mr. Horner served as probate judge of Cook county he was credited with having handled approximately $3,000,000,000 worth of cash and property in settling estates for widows and ophans, without a loss.

During his long tenure of office in the probate court Mr. Horner introduced many changes in procedure that were followed in other states, including the "Horner Plan" for handling the estates of war veterans without legal costs, expenses or attorney's fees being paid by the beneficiaries.

Mr. Horner's refusal to permit guardians and conservators to invest in speculative stocks brought him high praise when the stock market crash occurred in October, 1929. Prior to that some of them had looked upon his policy as being "too conservative."

POLLED RECORD VOTE

When Mr. Horner first was elected in 1932 he polled 1,930,330 votes, up to that time the highest ever received by a gubernatorial candidate in Illinois. At the same election President Roosevelt received 1,882,304 votes.

In the November, 1936, election, Mr. Horner went on to win re-election over C. Wayland Brooks, Chicago, by a plurality of 38,176. He received a total vote of 2,067,861 to set another record vote for governor, but ran behind President Roosevelt, who had 2,282,999 votes.

Mr. Horner was elected governor mostly through the efforts of A. J. Cermak, then mayor of Chicago, and later victim of an assassin's bullet in Florida—a bullet that was intended for President-Elect Roosevelt, whom Mr. Cermak had been visiting.

With Mr. Cermak dead, Mr. Horner more or less became a "lone wolf" in politics. He disagreed with the Chicago leaders, support by whom was necessary to insure political success as a Democrat. He voted legislation even though it was sponsored by them.

KNOX'S SPEECH SEEN WARNING TO TRI-POWERS

U.S. Congressmen Agree Moves by Navy Secretary Were Intended for Axis

United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—Leading United States Congressmen agreed last night that Saturday's speech by the Secretary of Navy, Col. Frank Knox, and the mobilization of the United States Navy's Organized Reserves were intended as a warning to Berlin, Rome and Tokyo that the United States is prepared to meet any challenge from the Axis Powers.

Col. Knox's speech, it was said, served notice on the entire world that the United States will resist by force if necessary any further moves by the Axis Powers which directly or indirectly threaten the security of the United States.

APPEASEMENT PASSES

The Navy Secretary's speech, it was said, removed all possibility of further appeasement by the Roosevelt Administration at the expense of American interests. Several prominent Senators said that the United States may desire peace, but not "at any price".

Most Congressmen here indicated that American aid to other democratic nations and China would continue unabated despite the threats voiced by the signatories of the new Triple Alliance. Several Senators confidentially predicted closer Anglo-American collaboration with China against Japan.

"Col. Knox stated the position of this country," said Senator Claude Pepper, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations committee. "'We want peace, but we do not expect to be kicked around. We won't be told whether we can send aid to the other Democracies and we do not propose to change the course we have chosen.

"'If Britain and the United States want to exchange bases in the Far East or anywhere else, we will do it and pay no attention to what anyone else may have to say about it.'"

BACKED BY GREEN

Senator Theodore F. Green, another member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that Col. Knox "stated the feelings of the American people and of Congress."

"The speech should make the dictatorships pause," he added. "We are telling them that the people of the United States do not intend to undertake any appeasement. We are telling them that we want peace, but that we will not yield vital rights to avoid war."

"The Secretary's speech," said Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, another member of the committee, "was a perfectly straight-forward declaration of United States policy."

'DELIBERATE ATTEMPT'

Senator Rush Holt, a member of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, an ardent isolationist and critic of the Roosevelt Administration's foreign policy, said the United States does not want to indulge in appeasement. He contended, however, that Col. Knox's speech was a deliberate attempt to offend Germany, Italy and Japan.

"I have felt for a long time," he said, "that we are going to be involved in war and this brings it nearer."

TEIDAI NINE BEATS WASEDA IN BIG UPSET

Rikkyo Defeats Hosei In First Game at Meiji Shrine Field

The "impossible" took place Sunday at the Meiji Shrine stadium, when those cellar champions, Tokyo Imperial set down, the unbeaten Waseda nine, by the score of 6-4. The oft-defeated Imperial nine really put on a show, and had the crowd of some 45,000 fans rubbing their eyes in sheer disbelief.

In the first game of the day, Rikkyo bunched seven of their eight hits in the second, third and fourth innings to defeat Hosei, 5-3.

EVERYTHING HAPPENS

Trailing Waseda, 4-2, and going into the eighth inning, the Imperial boys staged a hilarious uprising to score four runs to cinch the game. Practically everything in the "books" happened in this inning. The Waseda infield presented a "comedy of errors," a relief pitcher received an emergency call hot off the bench, while the "goat" emerged a hero with a lusty triple that scored the tieing and winning runs.

Yamamoto opened this inning by smacking Yuri's pitch for a clean single to left. Tomita followed by laying down a bunt, and when first baseman Minamura dropped Ono's throw, Yamamoto scooted to third. Error number two followed when Kakijima dropped Ono's throw as Tomita raced for second. The ball continued its way to the outfield and Yamamoto crossed the plate for a run.

Thirdbaseman Ogawa next took the spotlight for the Waseda infield. He kicked away Goto's roller and once again Imperial had runners on first and third, with none away.

At this point Pitcher Ishiguro, the number one Waseda flinger, hurriedly rushed in from the bench to try his hand in checking the Pesky Imperialites. Up to face him was Mizutake, who had assumed the role of the "goat" with his costly error in the second-inning Waseda rally.

TAKES NO CHANCES

Ishiguro was taking no chances. He whipped across two strikes, took aim and fired again. Mizutake swung from his heels and the ball sailed into deep left-center for a mighty three-bagger, giving Imperial its two run edge. The wildly delighted Imperial rooting section nearly surged into the field with hot enthusiasm.

Waseda was a beaten team. Trying hard to "kill" the ball they were easy victims to Sato's slow stuff in their final two turns at bat.

Lost to the crowd in the shuffle and excitement of that garrison finish was pitcher Sato's masterful one-hit performance. Matsui's double in the second-inning totaled the efforts of the Waseda batters. Thereafter pitcher Sato had the Tooma boys eating out of his hand with his slow deliberate style of pitching.

UNEARNED RUNS

The four runs that Waseda scored in the second inning were unearned. After one away, Sato walked Ogawa. Mitsutake then fumbled away a sure-fire double-play roller which would have retired the side. Given life, Waseda then scored its runs on another error, a walk and Matsui's double.

In each the fourth and fifth Imperial picked up one run. Goto after smacking a triple to left scored when Nakamura came up with an error on Mitsutake's slow tap. Again in the fifth, following two base on balls, Yamamoto sent across a run with a single to right. Yuri then replaced Kagawa on the mound and escaped further damage till the aforementioned eight-inning rally.

In the Hosei-Rikkyo tilt, pitcher Yoshimura after spotting Hosei a two-run first inning lead, pitched good balls to easily earn a victory.

Following Tagawa's walk, successive singles by Yamaya, Matsushita and Murakami scored two runs. Rikkyo came right back in the second-inning to close the gap by one run and then took the lead with two more runs in the third.

In the fourth Rikkyo again sent two runs across when Tsuji came through with a bingo following two singles to score Yoshimura. Yuki relieved Morishita and gave up a hit to Yamashita which scored the second tally.

Hosei completed the scoring for the game in the sixth, when they filled the bases on two walks and followed by a double play which sent across one run.

BRITISH HOLD THREE VIEWS ON NEXT BATTLE

Madrid Paper Correspondent Describes Hypotheses Current In London Military Circles

Transocean

MADRID, Oct. 9—Three outstanding hypotheses are at present engaging British military circles, according to a dispatch sent to the Spanish newspaper ABC yesterday by its London correspondent, Luis Calve. The correspondent enumerates these hypotheses as follows:

1. That Germany is regrouping its air squadrons;

2. That there is the prevailing conviction that the air war by the German air force has so far been unable to destroy the morale of the British people, and;

3. That shifting of fronts to other theaters of the war is imminent and that Germany is regrouping and enlarging its air force for this purpose, simultaneously, however, drawing on new and reserve forces and training these for the continuation of London attacks.

The correspondent writes that these hypotheses were merely a drop in the bucket of disillusioned hopes, simply because German bombings slackened down temporarily during the past week.

Nevertheless, says the correspondent, these three hypotheses were still being generally discussed on Sunday, while the next day the Germans resumed their bombings with almost unbelievable ferocity, so that hopes of these assumptions were disappearing again.

There exists an indisputable impression, writes the correspondent, that there have been conflicting differences of opinion and a breach of confidence within the scope of the British conduct of the air war. This impression is now rapidly gaining ground in political circles in London and the appointment of Air Marshal Portal as the Chief of General Staff of the British air force is generally regarded as a confirmation of this impression.

It is an open secret, says the correspondent, that this appointment is traced to Winston Churchill. Churchill and his small circle of advisers are said to be determined to develop an air offensive against Germany in the most drastic form.

Posters were recently seen in London, stating that London could only be liberated if air raids were carried out against Germany in the most rigorous way and with great persistency, according to the correspondent.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Lang, however, has on the other hand severely criticized this policy of unrelenting reprisals.

Shioya Club Wins Lawn Bowls Match, Defeating Y.C.A.C.

The Shioya Country Club defeated the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club in the annual lawn bowls interport match by 82 to 53 on Sunday at the winners' rinks near Kobe. The Kansai bowlers won all four games played.

In the two matches contested Sunday morning, both Shioya fours gained victories to give their club a 14-point lead. The scores were 17 to 16 and 21 to 8, putting the S.C.C. ahead by 38 to 24 on the morning's play.

The two Y.C. and A.C. quartets gained 29 points in the afternoon to their opponents' 44, the results of the afternoon games being 22 to 16 and 22 to 13 in Shioya's favor.

American Aviator Believes Reich Using Robot Planes

Transocean

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—"To me it seems that the Germans are using robot pilots in their attacks on Britain," Patrick Breen, American aviation instructor, told newspapermen here upon his retuhrn from England.

"While watching attacks on London with other pilots I noticed a twin-engined German bomber fly at an altitude of 5,000 meters, drop a bomb of 500 kilograms, and then continue at the same altitude despite intense anti-aircraft fire. Everything indicated that this plane was being controlled by another flying at a still greater altitude."

Breen added that he and other American aviators had been offered $10 daily while flying and a monthly pay of $150 for bringing aircraft over from the American continent. When they arrived in England they were asked to join the British Air Force. This pays only about $2 per day.

Pork Rationing Order Is Issued in Sweden

STANFORD BEATS SANTA CLARA

Palo Alto University Wins by 7-6; First Victory Over Broncos in 5 Years

Domei Tsushin

PALO ALTO, California, Oct. 12—An underdog Stanford eleven limped off the green of the Stanford stadium this afternoon with the scalp of the Santa Clara Broncos hanging from their belts—slightly mangy, it is true, but nevertheless satisfactory—for they defeated today the team that held the Indian sign over the Indians for four seasons straight.

The score, 7-6, gave the Palo Alto school its first victory over a Santa Clara team since 1935.

An overflow crowd of 60,000 watched Stanford score a touchdown in the second period, and follow with a conversion that made the score 7-0 against the big Bronco team.

They watched a furious Santa Clara eleven come back after the half with a drive that netted them a touchdown in the third quarter only to have the tying conversion smothered by a surging Stanford forward line.

That ended the scoring for the day with the white-jerseyed Redskins desperately digging in with their cleats to guard their slim lead against the battering assaults of the Broncos.

Argentine Paper Gives Views on Conference With London Mission

Transocean

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7—The maintenance of Argentine pre-war trade relations with the Eastern Hemisphere was demanded by the newspaper La Nacion in an article dealing with the Brazilian-Argentine economic conference at Rio de Janeiro and the economic mission announced by London.

Contrary to the negotiations at Rio de Janeiro, which are striving for a lasting settlement of trade relations between Brazil and the Argentine, the negotiations of the British mission can only result in a temporary settlement as they do not include continental Europe, the Argentine newspaper declares, recalling that the pre-war trade channels are still intact and will be necessary also in future.

The paper goes on to say that the Argentine is a wholesale producer of raw materials, which are needed also in the Eastern Hemisphere. Despite the prevalent American viewpoint and the enthusiasm for the Rio conference, this should not be forgotten. The Argentine should adhere to the principle of universal goods exchange which will be reestablished after the war. The Argentine is and will remain a selling country, but at the same time it is a wholesale purchaser. These conditions, La Nacion writes, will again be prevalent when normal trade routes to all nations are reestablished.

In conclusion the paper points out that an increase of trade with the American countries is absolutely compatible with the reestablishment of trade relations with those countries with which they are at present interrupted owing to the war.

REICH LEADERS WELCOMED IN RUMANIA

Cementing of Relations Between Two Nations Hailed by Generals

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 14—The Saturday noon train of carrying the members of the German military mission, which upon the request of the Rumanian Government will assist in the future training of the Rumanian Army, arrived at the royal station at Beneasa near Bucharest.

GUARDS AT STATION

A company of honor of the Rumanian Army was lined up in parade formation at the platform of the station as well as formations of the iron guard and representatives of the foreign organization of the N.S.D.A.P. The leader of the German mission, General Hansen, was the first to step from the train. He was cordially welcomed by German Minister Fabrizius and the Rumanian Chief of the General Staff, while a military band played the Deutschland song and the Horst Wessel song together with the Rumanian royal anthem.

In the reception room of the station the chief of the Rumanian General Staff made a welcome address in German language welcoming the German military mission on Rumanian soil in the name of General Antonescu. He declared that the cooperation between the Rumanian and the German armies, which had been fostered already in the past, is being revived in a particularly important historic moment giving rise to future hopes "for the Rumanian Army and the whole country, knowing and admiring the efficiency of the German Army, are confidently looking forward to this cooperation. Let us therefore begin this cooperation with the sincerest wish that the connections, which have now been established, may be carried on as definite."

General Hansen thanked in the name of the German mission for the cordial words of Mr. Joanitziu. He declared that the honors extended to the German mission and the reception accorded it by the army and by the population already during the journey are auguring well for the future cooperation.

VOICES THANKS

General Hansen then requested that his thanks may be conveyed to state leader General Antonescu and King Michael stating that "the German Army gladly complied to the Rumanian request to communicate to the Rumanian Army the latest experiences of war and its methods. The Fuehrer comissioned me to overtake this task. He may be assured that it will be my mission's sincerest endeavors to live up to this task. We believe that we thereby will serve the cooperation with the Rumanian Army, which we known as a brave and excellent army and this will also serve to the welfare of our two countries."

The mission and the reception committee then drove in a long procession of gray colored automobiles over the long Kisseloff avenue to the city.

The news of the arrival of the German mission spread like wild fire, which fact had until then been kept confidential. The crowds in the streets enthusiastically cheered and saluted with raised hands the German officers and soldiers, who made an excellent impression. Particularly great was the enthusiasm of the German nationals living in the city throwing flowers at the passing automobiles. The cars drove up as far as to the square in front of the Royal Castle, where automobiles parked. Rapidly the crowds gathered round the automobiles and very soon contact between the population and the German soldiers was established.

Travelers Urged to Stay Home Due to Plague

HSINKING, Oct. 13—Travelers with no urgent business and especially those going on sightseeing, are requested to refrain from traveling for the moment in order to prevent the spread of the plague which has occurred in the capital, according to an announcement by the Press Section of the Kwantung Army today.

YOKOHAMA YACHT CLUB RACES UNINTERESTING SUNDAY WITHOUT BREEZES

Helmsman	Boat	Elapsed time	Handicap	Corrected time	Position on H'cap
Vignes	Shamrock	2.27.31	1%	2.26.02	1
Harden	Vinga	2.38.45	Scr.	8.38.45	3
Woodbridge	Chinook	2.43.52	6%	3.35.02	2
Weidemann	Joan	2.53.55	4%	2.48.01	4

Listless and fitful zephyrs disappointed the skippers and crews in the sixth points race and ladies' prize event of the Yokohama Yacht Club Sunday afternoon.

It was a drifting match that put the first boat across the line in 2 hours 27 minutes and the last one in almost three hours. Two sloops gave up and were paddled home and another was washed on to one of the marks to be disqualified. The weather man might be reminded that sailors prefer breezes.

Good old Shamrock won the race, even without her old owner. Vignes took the helm and with a 1 per cent handicap sailed home in 2.26.02, for five points. Miss Vi Woodbridge's Chinook, 6 per cent was second in 2.35.02, for four points. Mr. C. Harden's Vinga, scratch, got third with 2.38.45 for three points and the Dr. Weidemann-Parsons combination in Joan were fourth, 4 per cent in 2.48.01, for two points. Blue Wanderer and Winsome Mary retired and Mr. Max Pestalozzi's Daphne was disqualified for touching the mark. M. Ellerton was officer of the day.

There was the usual cheerful crowd at the club house.

BRITISH RADIO NEWS BRIEF

London Censors Cut Out Reports of Reich Raids During Broadcasting Hours

D.N.B.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 12—For the first time the British censors interfered with the news-service of the British radio station to such an extent that, for instance, the most severe attacks of the German air force on London and all England during the night from Thursday were only casually mentioned in the forenoon European program of the British radio station.

The radio merely stated: "London experienced an air raid also during the past causing the destruction of 4 German as well as 4 British planes." The articles of the Swedish papers, however, speak another language, although they are also strongly censored. So, for instance, "Stockholm's Tidingen" writes in this connection that many hundreds of bombs were dropped over London and that the German bombers flew over to London as if they were regular traffic planes flying according to schedule. The number of fires, which were now noticeable in the city, were very large as hundreds of incendiary bombs were dropped over the city.

The "Svenska Dagbladet" gave the following description: "The great effect caused by the German night attacks was principally due to the mass use of parachute flares, which bathed everything in a brilliant blue green light." The Swedish papers also published street scenes in London showing heaps of debris as high up as 3 feet and extending for thousands of feet along the streets in the devastated area, while windows were shattered and not a soul was to be seen in these districts.

GREECE GRAIN SHORTAGE SEEN

British Blockade Blamed For Lack of Foodstuffs; Leaders Check Hoarding

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 12—Can Greece escape starvation? This is the question, heard daily and from various quarters in Athens. The Greek production is too small for a supply of the country and the stocks are too small.

Experts estimate that the amount of bread grain available will last not longer than until January. To parry this situation the Greek Government tried to conclude an agreement with Egypt for the delivery of 100,000 tons of grain. Such an agreement, however, was vetoed by the British.

At the present the Greek Government is conducting negotiations with Moscow for the delivery of bread grain. Similar negotiations are also under way with Rumania, from where Greece also tried to obtain oil. The efforts of obtaining livestock and grain from Turkey failed on account of the opposition of the Turkish Government to such transactions.

The economic troubles of Greece, which are a result of the British blockade against Europe, are further increased by the fact that large numbers of reservists had to be called to the colors in Greece. Consequently the agricultural sections are lacking labor power. In addition there is a tendency among the farmers of keeping back their stocks of grain and other products.

The government inaugurated strict measures against hoarding as well as against excessive prices. To these economic troubles financial troubles are to be added. They also were greatly caused by the calling up of reservists. In general the excitement about an impending war being increased through wild rumors is somewhat abating. Nevertheless, since the Greek Government concentrated its main forces along the Bulgarian-Greek and along the Albanian-Greek frontiers political quarters wonder, how Greece will be able to defend its isles, in case England should try an occupation analogous to the occupation of the Greek port of Salonika in 1916.

Jugoslav Government Party Holds Conference

Transocean

BELGRADE, Oct. 8—The Jugoslav Government party convened yesterday in northern Jugoslavia with Premier Zvetkevitch in the chair.

It was pointed out during the session that the present government's aim is to preserve foreign political and inner political peace and to avoid foreign political complications.

It was also pointed out that the coalition with the Croats has so far been showing satisfactory results and that it would be continued. One of the chief tasks of the government is the feeding of the population and finding work for unemployed, it was stated.

Mexico Denies Order To Oust Japanese

Domei Tsushin

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11—Sensational reports given wide prominence by all local papers today to the effect that the Mexican Government has decided shortly to advise all Japanese nationals to leave the country were categorically denied by Mexican Foreign Office authorities tonight as being entirely without basis.

On the other hand, it has been revealed that the news was distributed by a certain American news agency apparently for the purpose of throwing a scare among Japanese residents in Mexico and Central American countries, thereby indirectly inducing them to leave for Japan.

Mexican Foreign Office officials, denying the validity of the reports, stated that Japanese nationals in Mexico have conducted themselves in an "orderly and gentlemanly" fashion in the past and, hence, face no fear of being ordered out of the country.

The former Director General of this concern, M. George Gheerghiu, has also resigned. He was replaced by M. Dan Perietzeanu, an engineer.

AXIS FINANCE CHIEFS MOOT FRESH SETUP

Economic Reconstruction Of Europe Begins to Take Definite Shape

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 14—Last week the Italian Minister of Foreign Exchange and Foreign Trade Rafello Riccardi arrived in Berlin. The fact that he is going to have a lengthy discussion with the German Reich's minister of economics, Dr. Walter Funk, has confirmed the impression that the economic reconstruction of Europe is being tackled by the Axis Powers with ever greater emphasis.

It is moreover pointed out in economic circles that his visit is taking place soon after the conclusion of the Three-Power Pact between Germany, Italy and Japan and for this reason it is believed that these discussions between Dr. Funk and Mr. Riccardi will not touch upon the European problems exclusively.

TO AID EACH OTHER

In article 3 of this pact the partners to this agreement have pledged themselves to support one another with all political, economic and military means. From this it follows that these three countries also claim the economic leadership in the respective spheres of their interest.

The reconstruction of Europe as was announced by Reich's minister Funk in his speech 11 weeks ago is already beginning to show itself in its outlines. The economic negotiations, which had been conducted by Germany in the past concerned chiefly the position of the Reichsmark in the clearing traffic. In the course of the mutual clearing traffic between Germany and other countries considerable Reichsmark accounts have partly accumulated, for which there was not always immediate use.

Under these circumstances there arose more or less high fluctuations of clearing marks as compared with the unrestricted foreign exchange. Germany therefore always tried in its negotiations with other countries to avoid too great fluctuations of the rate of exchange.

Thus with the exception of Jugoslavia, where a new Reichsmark rate of exchange has been fixed at 1 Reichsmark equalling 17,82 Dinars (formerly 14,80 Dinars), the clearing mark will be raised in its relations with other countries.

This stabilization of the Reichsmark will be of great importance for the entire economic traffic of Europe. While by these methods the economic resistance of the Axis Powers is greatly being stabilized and improved Britain's weakness is becoming more and more apparent. The British national debt exceeded the 10 milliard mark last week according to neutral newspapers. This can be generally described as a record.

10 TIMES LARGER

It is frequently recorded that in the World War at the end of 1915 only one milliard had been reached while today after the same time had elapsed the amount, however, was 10 times larger. How great the lack of foreign exchange has become in the empire is seen from the fact that American securities of Australian citizens are being called up by the Australian Government.

The treasury is no longer very particular of how it can secure these means. The association of Scotch banks was again asked these days to place 20 million of pounds sterling at the disposal of the treasury against receipt. The amount thus borrowed from this group of banks was increased to 160 million pounds sterling. Every means is feasible in Britain today in order to delay the inflation, which is becoming inevitable.

Swedish Paper Rejects British Claim on Malmoe Bombing

Transocean

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 8—The claim ain is not responsible for the bombing of the British Government that Britain of Malmoe last week, is sharply rejected by the newspaper Aftonbladet.

The newspaper in a long article rejects this claim by citing findings of Swedish Government investigators who have established beyond any doubt that the bombs dropped on Malmoe were of British origin.

The newspaper declares that the claim of the British Government and the British Air Ministry came as a surprise to the Swedish public.

BRITISH PRESS ATTACHE REBUKED BY EDITORS OF MADRID PAPERS

D.N.B.

MADRID, Oct. 14—The tactless attempt of the press attache of the British Embassy in Madrid to advise the Spanish press with regard to the editorial policy, which they should follow, received a sharp rebuke, which it deserved, since the Spanish press told the arrogant Englishman that he would do better to mind his own business.

The British press attache had addressed letters to the editors of the various Spanish papers, in which he criticized the editorial policy of the Spanish papers. He declared that the Spanish press was apparently no longer supporting the catholic ideals and advised the editors to follow the examples of the Portuguese press, which, he said, was still holding up the ideals of catholicism.

This impertinent interference of the British press attache received the right answer. Thus the editor of the Spanish evening paper "Informaciones", Victor de la Serna, declared in his reply that, if the reading of the Spanish papers were no pleasure for the British press attache, it could likewise be said that the reading of the British press was by no means a pleasure for Spaniards.

The advice of the British press attache as to the editorial policy, which the Spanish press as the press of a catholic country should follow, was certainly not wanted.

The British press attache in case he really was interested in the cause of catholicism, should have championed the cause of catholicism in 1936 and not at this late date. If he had done so, he would have helped to avoid a great deal of bloodshed.

FAMOUS OLD ART TREASURES RETURNED TO ALSACE CITIES

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 12—The Isenhaim altar, the great masterpiece of the German painter Mathias Gruenewald of the 16th century, who was ranked by Melanchton with Duerer and Cranach, has been returned to the Alsatian town of Kolmar, from where it was removed by the French authorities to Dordogne at the outbreak of the war together with other Alsatian art treasures.

The famous stained glass windows of Strassburg Cathedral, as well as of the St. Thomas and St. Williams churches in Strassburg and those of the churches at Walburg, Weissenburg and Zabern, from Schlettstadt, and Muehlhausen have also been returned from the Dordogne.

The principal art treasures of the museums at Kolmar, Strassburg and Muehlhausen, also have been brought back to Alsace. The artworks, which now returned to Alsace include many fine paintings by such masters as Konrad Witz, Hand Baldung Grien and Sebastian Stosskopf, magnificent miniature sculptures, stained glass windows, and the famous collection of gobelins of the Chateau de Rosan.

All these art treasures were removed from Alsace at the outbreak of the war and are now returned to Alsace completely intact, since they had been carefully preserved by the French authorities under the supervision of Alsatian officials. The stained glass windows of the Alsatian churches, will for the time being remain in safe storage in order not to expose them to the risks of air bombardments.

JAPAN BEATS GERMANY, 3-1, IN NET GAMES

Visiting Reich Players Offer Good Competition; Playing at Osaka Next

By taking one singles match and breaking even in another Sunday at Den-en stadium, the Japan tennis team defeated Germany by the score of 3-1.

Thus Japan squared its defeat of three years back, this fall. At that time the Germans visiting here, remained undefeated and walked off with the singles and doubles titles of the All-Japan Tennis Tournament.

The visitors are next scheduled to journey to Osaka, to take part in a three day meet, October 23-26, at the Koshien courts.

TSURUTA WINS

In the first singles match, Sunday afternoon, Yasuo Tsuruta of Keio University assured Japan of a victory when he defeated young Kolner Gies in straight sets. The score was, 9-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Tsuruta, after being extended in the first set, came back by taking the last two sets in masterly style. In the first set Gies the younger and speedier player with a nice net-game evened things up at 7-all. However Tsuruta making beautiful placements took the final two games and the set.

In the second set, after losing the first two games, Tsuruta took the next four, scoring a love-game in one and taking another on deuce points. Gies then tied it at 4-all but from here Tsuruta, with his fast serves and perfect placements scored love-games in the final two tilts.

In the final set, Gies staged a rally to take two games to close a 3-0 lead. However he lost the next two and after winning the eigth game lost the final two games and the match.

DECLARED DRAW

The second match of the afternoon between Henner Henkel and Haruo Koidera, this year's No. 1 player, was fought to a draw. Playing into the late afternoon, with darkness settling over the court, the officials decided to call the match a draw. This match will officially go down in the books as a draw. There will be no resumption of the match.

Koidera in drawing with Henkel, staged an up-hill fight all the way. Henkel a fine volleyer, came up behind his forcing ground strokes to make clean winners at the net, and he was in perfect touch. Many times he tamed Koidera's sharp returns with delicately executed drop-volleys, and Koidera rarely, ever attempted to get to these balls.

After dropping the first set to Koidera, 4-6, the German took the next two sets by identical scores of 7-5. In the fourth set, Henkel was one game away from taking the match, with the score at, 5-3. Koidera however, showed his great "heart" by taking the next two games, the last a love-game, to tie the veteran German star.

THE SUMMARIES, SINGLES

Yasuo Tsuruta, Japan defeated Kolner Gies, Germany 9-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Haruo Koidera, Japan and Henner Henkel, Germany draw, 6-4, 5-7, 5-7, 6-4, 5-5.

Team points: Japan 3, Germany 1.

BAER CLAWS FOE INTO SUBMISSION

Patrick Edward Comiskey, of Paterson, New Jersey, hangs helplessly on the ropes as referee Jack Dempsey pushes Max Baer, of California, away and begins to raise his hand in token of victory at Roosevelt stadium, Jersey City, September 26. Baer, former heavy weight champ, was the winner in 2.39 of the first round. The fight had been scheduled for 15.

DAILY MAIL HITS ATTITUDE OF OFFICIALS

Incredible Delay Seen In Giving Shelter To Homeless People

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 19—The 'Daily Mail' commenting on the catastrophic conditions in London, which have been caused by the German air raids, declares that it is true that the civilian life is "the front" no matter how bombs are dropped and that the civilians have to stick it out and have to continue their work with the greatest energy.

All of this was sure to come. Why were we not better prepared? Why did we have a chaos, the paper continued, and why do we still have incredible delays in giving shelter to the homeless? why, why, why? One could ask hundreds of questions of this sort.

Admiral Sir Edward Evans was placed in charge of the solution of the air raid shelter program of London. He is confronted with the greatest confusion. "We have learned a lesson, which ought to be sufficient for us for the remainder of the war," the paper concludes.

"This description refutes the remark of certain political personalities, who try to minimize the chaotic state of the British air raid shelter program. It also reveals the lack of understanding on the part of the officials for those, who have lost their homes as a result of these raids. In reality the misery of these homeless persons is tremendous and instead of rendering aid, the government places new burdens on these people.

"This has been proven by the introduction of the new turnover tax, which will start on October 21. Many of these homeless persons appeal to the government not to apply this tax for the present in order that they might have a chance to purchase the most necessary articles for the daily use and for the urgently needed clothing at the old prices.

"The treasury, however, declined this request. The homeless people have been embittered by this decision of the treasury since they are compelled now to pay with their limited means higher prices for the replacement of their clothes."

IZZY JANAZZO WINS WELTER TITLE OF WORLD BY DEFEATING COCOA KID

Domei Tsushin

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15—Izzy Janazzo gained a decision on points in a 15-round bout with the Cocoa Kid from Puerto Rico last night, winning the Maryland Athletic Commission's recognition as the world's welterweight champion.

The Maryland Commission recently withdrew its recognition of Henry Armstrong's claim to the title a few days before the negro lost the championship to Fritzie Zivic. Armstrong was unanimously recognized as the world champion prior to taking the worst beating in his career and losing the title to Zivic last week.

Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion acted as referee, and cast his vote for Janazzo as did one judge.

The Cocoa Kid received the vote of the second judge and many newspapermen agreed that the Kid should have gained the nod.

Three thousand fans watched the bout which was a tame affair lacking a single knockdown.

Janazzo weighed 148 pounds and the Kid exactly the same.

DAYTON SPEECH SAID PRELUDE TO U.S. ENTRY

Rome Thinks America Paving Way to Back Britain in World War

By ELEANOR PACKARD

United Press

ROME, Oct. 14—Fascist political circles yesterday expressed the opinion that President Roosevelt's speech at Dayton Saturday had "paved the way for the United States to enter the war soon on the side of Great Britain."

The speech, it was said in these circles, shattered all hopes of an understanding being reached between the United States and the Axis.

PRELUDE TO WAR

Some authoritative spokesmen here described President Roosevelt's remarks as "a declaration of a state preliminary to war". Relations between the United States and the Axis, these spokesmen say, are almost certain to reach a new low.

Informed Fascists spoke gravely yesterday of aggravated ill feeling on the part of the Axis Powers which, they said, was likely to result from the President's "disparaging references" to dictators. The fact that Mr. Roosevelt has taken such a strong stand against the totalitarian states in the speeches he has delivered during the present campaign is looked upon here as evidence of increasing war sentiment in the United States.

One prominent Fascist told this correspondent today that "Italy, for her part, must be prepared to cope with this state of affairs."

TO MEET THREATS

United Press

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 13—President Roosevelt proclaimed a Western Hemisphere doctrine of "All For One and One For All" here last night and defied the new military alliance between Japan and the Axis Powers.

Mr. Roosevelt announced that the United States is determined to continue its military aid to the British people "whose heroic fight now holds aggression far from our shores".

"No combination of the dictator countries of Europe and Asia will stop the help we are giving to almost the last free people in the world besides us. The British are fighting to hold these dictator nations at bay."

President Roosevelt said the United States rearmament program has been designed for the defense of the United States "and, in cooperation with the other American Republics, to help defend the whole Western Hemisphere".

"Unprecedented dangers," the President said, "have caused the United States to undertake the building of a Navy and an air force sufficient to defend all the coasts of America against any combination of hostile Powers."

President Roosevelt declared that the United States has acquired eight new naval and air bases from Britain in the Western Hemisphere "not for the protection of the United States alone".

"They were acquired," Mr. Roosevelt said, "for the protection of the whole Western Hemisphere. They have been opened by the United States to other American Republics for cooperative use."

Mr. Roosevelt affirmed the intention of the United States to do its utmost to continue its "traditional peaceful use of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans." He emphasized that for years he had done his utmost to prevent the involvement of the United States or any of the American Republics in any of the world's wars.

BRITISH FEAR INFLATION TREND, HIGH TAXES

£2,700,000,000 Not Enough To Cover Expenditure Since Start of War

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 19—British experts fear now that the high amount of £2,700,000,000, which was placed at the disposal of the British Government since the outbreak of the war, will not suffice to cover the financial needs of the government for the present budget year.

Unusual difficulties are confronting England in the realization of her credit power. The armament loan, which has been opened for subscription since the end of July has shown poor results.

The result of the savings campaign, which had widely been advertised, has gone back gradually. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Kingsley Wood as well as Lord Stamp and Sir Robert Kindersley are proceeding from false prerequisites in their request to the English public to hand over its money to the government. The increasing cost of living, having gone up for months and with which the development of wages and salaries has not kept pace, has naturally reduced the means, which are at the disposal of the masses. Despite all advertising the British treasury will not be able to count on an increase in the weekly returns of the savings campaign, the total result of which for the first 11 months have been estimated at £400,000,000. The former average of slightly more than £9,000,000 a week will not even cover one-fourth of the weekly deficit in the British budget.

It therefore will be no surprise if the old Keynes plan of forced savings is being widely discussed again. Further increases of taxes are also under consideration and the introduction of the new turnover tax on October 21 can be regarded as the beginning of a new tax wave.

CONSOLE PUBLIC

The chancellor of the exchequer tried to console the members of Parliament and the British people by stating that the prices of goods would not be raised for some time and that the goods on hand would have to be sold at the old prices. This consolation, however, is ineffective since the trade in England is adjusted to the new tax and since the prices have been raised already.

A reader of the 'Birmingham Post' in a letter to the editor pointed out that the price for a dress in a shopwindow had gone up in one week from 59 to 70 shillings. The reader expressed her fear of coming inflation in this letter. There is no means at hand for preventing the new turnover tax, which amounts to one-third of the price, from causing an increase of the wholesale prices as well as of the living costs. England will not be able to check the wage movements resulting from this increase. A further step toward inflation has been made on the same path, which has been followed for some time already.

SUNER TO DROP OLD ORDER

New Spanish Foreign Minister to Streamline Administration Structure

D.N.B.

MADRID, Oct. 19—The formal installation in the office of the new Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Serrano Suner, took place on Friday noon.

The ceremony was attended by Miguel de Rivera, Primo de Rivera, the new Minister of Industry and Trade, Carcellor, and many other members of the government.

Minister Suner declared that in the administration of the Foreign Office he would adhere to the ideals and aims, which marked his work at his previous posts. He would do everything in his power to serve his country in the present critical situation. He then stressed that he was not willing to tolerate the obsolete methods, which hitherto prevailed in the Foreign Office. All those, who were able to cope with their tasks, would be welcomed by him as collaborators.

He then declared that it was painful and shameful to think of the work, which hitherto had been accomplished at the Foreign Ministry. He would liquidate the old course, however. The absurd situation that statesmen of other European countries were seeking information about important questions were shocked by the ignorance on the Spanish side, had to cease forever. The minister then stressed that the Flange and the foreign organizations of the Falange must in future be treated by the Foreign Ministry with great respect toward the Falange spirit, which in future would also have to prevail in the Foreign Ministry.

U.S. Dollar Rate Lowered in Vichy

United Press

VICHY, Oct. 15—American banks in unoccupied areas of France by common agreement yesterday lowered the current value of the United States dollar from 43.60 to 42.97 French francs.

The purchase price of U.S. dollars was retained at 44 francs, although dollars may be sold only to the amount of $500 upon presentation of a French exit visa showing that the buyer is leaving the country.

The dollar has sunk to its lowest point since the beginning of the European War. American banks explained that this is a result of the difficulty and cost of transferring dollars between New York and Vichy.

KO SASAZAKI SCHEDULED TO MEET TOKUNAGA

Fight Game Open Affair Ever Since Defeat of Horiguchi 2 Weeks Ago

A fight card, headed by a 10-round battle between Ko Sasazaki and Susumu Tokunaga will take place Wednesday night at the Hibiya amphitheater under the sponsorship of the Usuda Boxing Club. The first preliminary boys will enter the ring at 6:30 p.m.

Ever since the defeat of Piston Horiguchi, two weeks ago, by Ryushin Boku, the fight game has become a wide open affair. Today, fighters of merit, within the weight class are all being considered as serious contenders for the top position held by Boku.

SOLDIER HAS CHANCE

Of these, soldier Ko Sasazaki can be listed as the first in line for a shot with either Piston Horiguchi or Boku. Of late the soldier has come through with flying colors. Always a willing mixer, he has caught the fancy of the fight fans with his aggressive two-fisted style of attack. His record also is impressive. In his last fight here he scored a T.K.O. in eight rounds over Lojnikoff, the Shanghai Russian. A decision over Toshiro Aoki and a T.K.O. over Shoichi Nakamura also graces his past.

Tokunaga of the Dai Nippon Club will be making his appearance here after a lapse of some time. His past record while not as impressive as the soldier boy is considered good enough to rate a fight with Sasazaki.

The winner of this fight will no doubt be matched with Horiguchi in the near future. Sasazaki can be considered a slight favorite over Tokunaga.

YAMADA TO APPEAR

In the semi-final "Snake" Shintaro Yamada will square off against Sueo Ohashi. Yamada another good fighter of the feather class has in his last fight scored an impressive decision over Toshiro Aoki. The fight is scheduled for eight rounds.

In a special six-round event, Tomizo Nakamura will meet Toshi Masuda. Three preliminary bouts will complete the evening card. They are: Six-round. H. Oki vs A. Izumi. Four-rounds, S. Hirai vs. C. Hasegawa and A. Takashima vs S. Sano.

H. G. Wells Under Fire in Parliament

United Press

LONDON, Oct. 13—H. G. Wells, British author, will come under fire in the House of Commons soon because of his visit to the United States, it was learned last night.

G. E. Winterton, Laborite, plans to ask the Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, R. A. Butler, whether Mr. Wells was obliged to undertake propaganda work on behalf of Britain in the United States before being granted an exit pass from England.

Mr. Winterton will object to the sending of British writers to the United States as propagandists on the grounds that they do more harm than good. He will ask that writers leaving for America will not be obliged to undertake to "engage in propaganda or make statements inimical to the national war effort."

CHURCH LIFE IN GERMANY DURING WARTIME IS ACTIVE

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 21—The German semi-official news agency reported about the church life in Germany during the war is very active. Forty-eight dioceses of the Catholic church in Germany with 33,000 priests enjoy full freedom of religious life without any hindrance and the same is true for the 20,000 Protestant church parishes with 16,000 preachers and 26,000 parish employes.

The total payments of the German state to the churches amount to 500,000,000 marks a year. These figures do not include the occupied Polish territory. Many existing church organizations in the Protestant parishes and also many existing branches of orders and congregations for men and women belonging to the Catholic church prove the vivid life of all churches in Germany.

The Protestant church for instance has nearly 19,000 institutions of public welfare with 47,860 diocese sisters as well as 20,000 welfare workers and 4,800 diacons. The mission sector of the church embraces 1,600 missionaries and 12,500 native assistants. These have 23,000 Protestant church buildings and 14,000 preacher's homes at their disposal.

The fact that the Catholic church also has full freedom of action is apparent from statistical figures. Within a period of one year 162,251 Catholic couples married and 389,329 children of Catholic parents were babtised.

Over 300,000,000 communions were received by Catholics in Germany during one year or over 14 for each Catholic. Eight theological faculties at state universities are at the disposal of the Catholic church for the preparation of young priests and to this figure more six theological state seminaries must be added.

After all it was rather remarkable that state universities in France, England, Italy and Spain did n t have Catholic faculties. Another remarkable feature and another proof for the unhampered church life in Germany during wartime was for instance the fact that the Prussian state alone expended during the period from 1935 to 1939 not less than 6,600,000 marks for building purposes of Catholic churches in Prussia. From this sum the total expenditures of all the other German states for churches etc. may be estimated.

SOUTH AMERICA IS SCEPTICAL

Thinks American Approach Is Dangerous; Respects Declaration by Germany

D.N.B.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—The propaganda slogan of the United States stressing the necessity of defending the Western Hemisphere is being accepted with great astonishment by the Latin American states, it is reported by the Buenos Aires correspondent of the New York Times in an article published by this paper in a Sunday edition.

The correspondent stated that the people south of the Rio Grande believe they are even better protected by the surrounding oceans than the North Americans.

"Numerous leading South Americans are convinced that the sovereignty of their states is much more endangered by the United States than by Germany" the correspondent stated.

The report continues that the sceptic attitude of the South American countries toward the foreign policy of the United States is mainly due to the efforts of President Roosevelt, who himself rather enjoys popularity as the most outstanding defender of Democracy, to create a unified Pan-American defense front, which is considered in wide circles as rather dangerous, as the United States thus gains a foothold in a number of military bases in South America.

The German declaration that Germany had no territorial demands whatsoever in the Western Hemisphere made a rather strong impression in South America, the correspondent declared. Also the statements about the active trade between Europe and South America after the war certainly assisted the German position considerably.

The United States could offset these tendencies only by granting economic advantages. If America, therefore, encountered difficulties in their plans to establish military bases in South America, one had to understand that the respective governments in such plans saw very promising trade objectives, which they were resolved to sell only for a dear price.

The Times correspondent, therefore, advised the Washington Government to enter into negotiations with three or four South American states, which are ready to negotiate on principle, in order to lease their bases for considerable amounts of money.

CONSCRIPTION BILL OUTLINED

Those Between 21-31 Must Register; 12,000,000 Expected to Sign Up

United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Major provisions of the Conscription Bill which became effective recently in America.

Who must register and how.—With few exceptions, all men who have passed their 21st birthday and have not reached their 31st birthday, must register. This applies to citizens and aliens alike; but aliens will not be subject to draft unless they have declared their intention to become U.S. citizens. The fact that a person has dependents does not exempt him from registration. Election officials throughout the land will conduct the registration. It is estimated that 12,000,000 men must register.

THOSE EXEMPT

Exemptions from registration.—Specifically exempt from registration are active, reserve and cadet members of the Army, National Guard, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard; members of the Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service; officials, but not employes, of the Federal and State Governments.

Who will be drafted and how:—The bill permits 900,000 conscripts to be in training at any one time. About 400,000 probably will be drafted this autumn. A lottery will determine the order in which men will be called before local draft throughout the country for determination whether they should be inducted into the army.

The bill gives the President broad powers to lay down regulations for the boards to follow in deciding whom to select. The Army says it does not intend to take any men who have dependents or who are employed in essential industrial or agricultural pursuits. College students probably will not be drafted. The bill exempts divinity students for service. Physical fitness, of course, will be considered.

4,500,000 EFFECTED

The Army estimates that after deferments for these reasons there will be about 4,500,000 able-bodied, single men from whom to select. Each state and locality will be given a quote in proportion to the total manpower it registers. In brief, those to be drafted will be mostly single men with unimportant jobs or no jobs.

Appeals:—Boards will be set up to hear appeals from men who wish to contest their selection by the local draft boards.

Penalties:—To evade the draft, and assist anyone to do so, will be punishable by up to five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine, or both. The cases would be heard in the Federal courts rather than by military courts, which decided Great War draft cases.

Length of service:—One year. This could be extended indefinitely if the country became engaged in war or Congress declared the national interest was imperilled. Conscripts would become members of the reserves after completing their year of active duty. Almost all the conscripts will be taken into the army; the navy may take a few later.

Conscientious objectors:—Exempted from military service, if they can prove to the Department of Justice that their objections are based on legitimate religious scruples. The President could assign such objectors, however, to non-combatant service.

GET $21 A MONTH

Pay:—For the first four months of their year's training, draftees would receive $21 a month. For the next eight, they would receive $30, unless they won promotion to higher grades at slightly higher pay. The original bill provided pay of $5 a month.

Use of conscripts:—Permitted only in the Western Hemisphere, the United States, its territories and possessions, including the Philippine Islands. This provision was inserted to prevent the dispatch of a conscript army to Europe.

Job protection:—Conscripts on the Federal Government's payroll would be guaranteed the return of their jobs without loss of seniority. Congress expresses its desire that state and local governmental subdivisions follow suit. Private employers would be required to rehire conscripts, unless it is impossible or unreasonable for them to do so. Draftees denied re-employment could appeal to Federal Court for a judicial ruling.

Debt protection:—The bill provides a moratorium on tax and insurance charges for which draftees are liable until after their training period.

Cost of program:—Estimated by army at $1,000,000,000 annually. An authorization for appropriations is embodied in the bill, but Congress retains control of the program by its ability to vote, or withhold, the necessary money.

Voluntary enlistment:—Any person between the age of 18 and 35 is given the opportunity to enlist voluntarily for one year.

REICH DENIES INTENSIFIED BALKAN MOVE

No Pressure Necessary, Says Berlin Spokesman; No Ultimatum Sent

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 21—In view of rumors circulated abroad about the allegedly intensified diplomatic activity of the Axis Powers in Southeastern Europe, competent quarters here declared on Saturday that no pressure is being exerted on any of the countries of Southeastern Europe to join the Axis group.

The idea that the Axis Powers deemed it necessary to exert such pressure was absurd. Replying to questions of foreign press representatives at the press conference here, on Saturday, the official German spokesman stressed above all that nothing was known here about the ultimatum, which according to a report from Cairo, was allegedly addressed to Greece in order to induce her to join the Axis group. Reports about the allegedly strained relations between the Reich on the one hand and Greece, Turkey and Jugoslavia on the other were characterized as intentions of the British propaganda.

It was pointed out, moreover, that there is all the less reason for Berlin to exert any pressure, since it is a matter of course that in any case the new Europe will be based on the political system of the Axis Powers. If some people, who still believed in Democracy, England and the British fleet, should be anxious to "miss the bus," no one could help these people.

Small nations naturally had the right of pursuing a policy of their own liking. Those, who "missed the bus" would realize later that after the new-building of Europe such a chance would never return.

It is stressed, however, that there is no reason to inform the governments of the states concerned officially of this view of the Reich Government. No special importance is attached in Berlin to the intensified British diplomatic activity in Egypt and elswhere in the Southeast. "Since the conflict with England already reached its fourth act, we of course do not care, if some amateur diplomatist thinks that it was still the first act of the drama", declared the German official spokesman in reply to a question in connection with Anthony Eden's present Mediterranean tour.

The conference of the British diplomatists in Istanbul was characterized as "a meeting in which perhaps plans for further retreats were discussed or formulas drafted, by which lost positions could be presented to the public as British victories." It is pointed out, moreover, that there cannot be the slightest doubt that the Axis Powers were alone able to take any initiative, as far as Southeastern Europe is concerned. The rumors circulated about the alleged developments in the Southeast should not deflect the attention from the more important problems in any case.

Kansai Universities Defeated by Keio, Waseda Elevens

Two Kansai elevens of Doshisha and Kansai Universities proved no match against Keio and Waseda, as they went down to decisive defeats, Sunday at the Hankyu Nishinomiya stadium, Osaka.

In the first game, Keio scoring in every period crushed Doshisha by the score of 55-0. Waseda then overwhelmed Kansai University by the score of, 39-0.

In the first tilt, Keio scored once in the first period, twice each in the third and fourth, and three times in the final sessions. In the Waseda-Kansai fracas, Waseda after being held to 7 points in the first half, came back with a rush to tally 32 points in the second half, to complete the rout of the Kanto elevens over the Kansai teams.

Both Kansai and Doshisha Universities are scheduled to play here in the latter part of November.

U.S. WARNED AGAINST RACE PREJUDICES

Colored Democrats Hit Willkie Because of His German Ancestry

United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Americans were warned here last night against strong racial prejudices which may arise in the United States as a result of the European war.

The warning was sounded by the New York Lieutenant-Governor, Charles Poletti, during a speech delivered before a large crowd of New Yorkers celebrating Columbus Day.

Referring to the alleged "whispering campaign" against the Republican candidate, Wendell Willkie, because of his German ancestry, Mr. Poletti declared: "Any such attacks deserve the condemnation of every right thinking citizen. No American should be made to suffer prejudice or discrimination because of his racial origin."

ATTACK ON WILLKIE

United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—The negro division of the Democratic National Committee yesterday began issuing pamphlets bringing attention to the fact that the Republican Presidential candidate, Mr. Willkie, is of German ancestry.

The pamphlet also alleged that in the past Mr. Willkie engaged in anti-negro activities in his native town of Elwood, Ind.

Meanwhile, the national committee of the Democrats For Willkie organization charged that Democratic leaders "have descended to a smear campaign."

BORN IN GERMANY

"Willkie's father was born in Germany," said the pamphlet issued by the negro division of the Democratic Committee. "Willkie's grandfather also was born in Germany. The parents of Willkie's mother were born in Germany. And Wilkie's wife was born in Kentucky of German parentage. His whole background is German.

"Hitler in his book 'Mein Kampf' stated: 'Negroes are lower than apes.' He says that France should be destroyed because France was 'polluted by negro blood.'

"Willkie was never a candidate for public office until the present international situation arose. Willkie was nominated at the Republican convention in Philadelphia by the Hitler-formula known as 'blitzkrieg'."

Allan Valentine, director of the Democrats For Willkie movement, said the pamphlet issued by the negro Democrats was an "unscrupulous attempt to make the voters think that Mr. Willkie is running for the Presidency simply in order to help Hitler."

DEFENDS TACTICS

Regarding the charge that Mr. Willkie was nominated by "blitzkrieg" tactics, Mr. Valentine said: "This charge comes from a little group of ambitious men who nominated Roosevelt by acclamation at the Democratic convention in Chicago."

"These charges and slurs against Mr. Willkie, who enlisted in the American Army the day the United States entered the Great War, who fought against Germany, who volunteered his services to defend negro soldiers before court martials in France, and who fought the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, establish a new low in these efforts to conceal the menace of the third term 'grab' for Roosevelt."

Grain Prices Probe Started

Transocean

VICHY, Oct. 14—Despite the strict order not to increase grain prices, some companies in French Morocco have been demanding an additional 12 francs per sack for seed grain on the pretext that this variety is scarce, the newspaper Echo du Marsque charged today.

The French Office du Ble, which is in charge of all grain transactions, commenced an investigation, this newspaper added.

TREATY FIXES GERMAN STAND IN BALKAN FIGHT

Berlin's Relations with Third Powers Determined By Alliance with Italy

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 31—With reference to Germany's situation toward the Italo-Greek conflict no doubts are left in the Wilhelmstrasse that German relations with third Powers are determined by its treaty obligations and cooperation with Italy. The decision, which Italy had thought necessary to bring about, thus became also a German decision. Even if the Italian measure, militarily, was part of the Italian fighting sector, politically it was a part of the German-Italian battle against England. Authentic information, whether diplomatic relations had already been broken off between Greece and Italy, are not yet on hand.

With regard to the reaction of such a step on German-Greek relations it was stated that in such a case the Reich would have to examine the whole question of its relations with Greece on the basis of its alliance with Italy. In reply to the question, brought about by foreign journalists with regard to a possibility of German efforts to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Greek conflict, it was stated that the decision of the Italian ally was also Germany's decision.

In view of the latest developments in southeast Europe Berlin emphasizes an unchanged opposition against British tactics of extending the war, which is continually trying to obtain new bases, to let new theaters of war develop and thus interrupt normal European communications, which in accordance with Europe's structure would benefit Germany and Italy as well. The Axis Powers turned against this. The Italian justification of its demands addressed to Greece therefore primarily pointed to the unbearable measures by the British to draw Greece into the war-expansion policy.

Italy had left it an open question as to what extent the Greek Government had acted under British pressure or had met the British demands halfways. Berlin declares it to be only natural that those least interested in an expansion of this war were the Axis Powers, who were in their war against England already were on their way to victory.

AMERICAN BROADCASTING

Responsible French Government quarters on Wednesday sharply protested against the tendencious and false reports spread by an American broadcasting station at Boston. The station is said to have asserted that Vice-Premier Laval made statements over the French radio and later before the press with regard to the German-French conversations. Official French quarters insist that these assertions of the American radio station are pure inventions. Since the Boston radio station recently repeatedly broadcast untrue reports about conditions in Europe and especially in France, responsible French quarters see themselves compelled to give some enlightenment about the Boston station, which, as was stated here, is being financed by Jewish capitalists, who are trying to spread disunion among the ranks of the French people.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR RURAL FOLK

Marked activity is being seen in the joint efforts of the official and civilian organizations to provide healthy entertainments for the rural folk. Amateur theatrical troupes among the farming young people are given all encouragement while professional stage players are organizing "mobile" corps to visit the country districts. Shown here is an alfresco stage performance given before an enthusiastic rustic audience.

Germans Internees Arrive in Istanbul

Domei Tsushin

ISTANBUL, Oct. 31—Thirteen Germans interned in Syria since the outbreak of the war last year, arrived here today on their way back to Berlin.

The party asserted on their arrival here that they had received good treatment from French authorities during their period of detention, and commented favorably on the polite attitude of Turkish border authorities.

Wimbledom Tennis Club Hit In Recent Night Air Raid

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Oct. 31—The All-England Lawn Tennis Club at Wimbledon, mecca of budding tennis stars and scene of countless international tennis tournaments, including Davis Cup and Wightman Cup matches, was damaged in a recent night raid, it was revealed today.

One of three high explosive bombs which fell on the club premises crashed through the competitor's stand badly damaging the structure. Wreckage and debris were strewn on the carefully kept, famous center court.

Mongols Leave for Tokyo

Domei Tsushin

KALGAN, Oct. 31—Mongolian representatives, to the celebration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese Empire, left here for Tokyo at 1:05 p.m. today. The party consists of the Director of the Welfare Department, Director of the Police Department, of the Federation of Autonomous Governments of Mongolia, and six others.

As befitting a coal producing country, the party will present 3,000 tons of coal to the Japanese Army and Navy.

NOT UNDER PRESSURE FROM HITLER, FRENCH CHIEF OF STATE DECLARES

D.N.B.

VICHY, Oct. 31—"Reichschancellor Hitler did not exert pressure on me nor does. What he understands under cooperation, amounts to a dictate," declared Marshal Petain in a radio speech on Wednesday noon. The marshal furthermore declared. "If this talk was at all possible, it was because the dignified attitude of Frenchmen had been appreciated, because the French navy took the heroic stand and because France was able to suppress the rebels in her colonies successfully.

"A foundation for cooperation between France and Germany is now under construction. We are now entering the phase, where the modalities of this cooperation will be laid down. All that will happen in this connection will be under my supervision. No minister will be responsible except myself. I alone carry the responsibility before history for everything connected with this new development. I accepted the invitation of the Reichschancellor on my own free will. What we agreed to amounts to a hope for a new Europe. We have to take this new road. We must do so to save French unity. The first results of these deliberations will bring alleviations for our war prisoners, for the provisioning of our country and remove the difficulties and complications created by the line of demarcation.

"Frenchmen, this task has to be accomplished. The salvation lies above all in our hands. It is our duty not to allow any dissension to arise. You must realize that an armistice does not mean peace. Our cooperation with Germany has to be loyal. Have confidence in me. Nothing will happen that might reflect on our honor. Follow me."

ITALIANS IN ALBANIA BOMBED

Domei Tsushin

ATHENS, Oct. 31—While Greek warplanes bombed Italian forces in southern Albania, warships of the Greek fleet today heavily shelled advance positions of the Italian forces in Albania in the vicinity of Monispalis, opposite the Island of Corfu, according to a radio announcement here.

SUPPLIES TO GREECE

Domei Tsushin

SOFIA, Oct. 31—Britain is sending troops, as well as abundant supplies of munitions, to Greece, but so far there has been no indication of any important British troop landings on Greek territory, reliable diplomats disclosed here tonight.

Commenting on the progress of the Italo-Greek war, they added that the Italian advance into Greece today moved slowly and did not exceed nine miles in any direction up to nightfall.

PRICE OF BRITISH PAPER INCREASES

Nearly Twice As Much As During Peace Time

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 31—The British ministry of supplies according to a Reuter report has increased the price on paper. Machine standard paper will go up from £24 to £28 10 shillings per ton. For better qualities an average raise of 4 pounds per ton has been fixed for an increase to £31.7.6. The reason which was given for this raise was the lack of materials. Because of the repeated increases in prices since the beginning of the war the paper in England is nearly twice as expensive as during peace time. In addition a number of other increases has been planned. In connection with the 6 per cent increase in railway rates, experts are counting on a 10 per cent increase in the price of steel in November.

Simultaneously, Reuters announces that the British ministry of shipping has demanded from British shipping lines the raising of a special 15 per cent surtax on the present tax rates for the shipments of rubber to England. This tax will go into effect on December 1. British experts declare that this measure would result in a further increase in English rubber prices.

The British Ministry of Trade according to a Reuter's dispatch announced that the raise in war risk premium rates for goods was being investigated. At the present time the premium is 5 shillings for 100 pounds. The new raise, which is already unusually high at the present, will go into effect on December 1. All these price measures clearly show that the tendency of raising prices is being continued, despite all speeches on the desired stabilization of prices and that England is heading actually for an inflation. According to statistics of the British financial press wholesale prices increased since the outbreak of the war by 37 per cent and retail prices 20 per cent. Wages, on the other hand, have only increased 12 per cent. The English working class, just as during the World War, has to bear the burden of England's inflation.

Chinese Journalists Coming to Tokyo

Domei Tsushin

PEKING, Nov. 1—A party of North China journalists numbering 33, who will participate in the ceremony of the 2,600th anniversary of founding of the Japanese Empire, left here for Japan by train at 7:50 a.m. today.

The Chinese journalists will stay in Tokyo for 10 days beginning November 4.

They are also expected to make an inspection tour of Japan and Manchoukuo, and are scheduled to leave for home on December 1.

CROPS IN GERMANY REPORTED EXCELLENT

Production of Butter and Milk, Also Pigs, Goes Up

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Oct. 31—According to latest official estimates, hog raising as well as dairy products especially milk and butter have increased considerably in Germany. This year's potato crop including the districts in the eastern territories will total 70.1 million tons against 40 to 42 million tons average in the old Reich during the years 1928 till 1932.

The sugar crop will amount to about 21.2 million tons against 11 to 13 million tons average during the years from 1928 to 1930 in the old Reich territory. The crop of beets is estimated at 50 million tons. According to careful German estimates some 15 to 18 million tons of potatoes will be needed for human consumption leaving a tremendous surplus for feeding. As a result of this abundant crop a great increase is planned in the raising of hogs, which will yield more fat and meat to Germany for the winter period of 1941 to 1942. A huge fodder surplus will also enable Germany to produce more milk and butter thus promising the German people an increase in the rationing quotas of these commodities in the course of the coming months.

ITALIAN DRIVE AIMED AT SUEZ, EXPERTS THINK

Fascist Daring At Gibraltar Arouses Praise

While military experts anticipate that the current Italian drive into Greece is aimed at a general offensive on the Suez Canal, the torpedo attacks on British warships lying at anchor in the waters under the shadow of Gibraltar, which were carried out by Italian war vessels, early Thursday morning, found the world breathless at the daring deeds by Italian seamen, reports a New York dispatch to the Yomiuri.

The dispatch reveals that two torpedoes were discharged at British warships, and according to an announcement made by British authorities, the two torpedoes missed their targets and no damage was inflicted to the warships. It cannot be denied, however, that the defenders of Gibraltar, while used to aerial attacks, did not expect to be attacked by enemy vessels at such short distance and were greatly alarmed by the enemy's bravery.

Local military experts believed the attack to have been carried out by the mosquito-fleet of the Italian navy.

Regarding the Italian surprise attack on British warships at Gibraltar, the New York Times, on Friday, carried the following news about the surprise attacks carried out by the Italian Navy in the last World War. "It may be possible that the death-defying Italians had used a newly invented weapon," said the New York Times, describing Italian naval surprise attacks in the late World War.

EXPLOIT AT POLA

"Raphael Rossetti and Raphael Paulti, two officers of the Italian navy, were captured with their torpedo-boats at the mouth of the port of Pola by the enemy on November 1, 1918. The two Italian officers were dressed in water-proof clothing, suited for a long period in water with compressed air apparatus on their chests and backs. The torpedo heads are said to be made out of two tubes, each containing 400 pounds of T.N.T. with devices separating them from other sections when necessary.

"A clock-timing device in the tubes, setting off the torpedo when attached to the ship's sides, was said to be arranged in the torpedo. Cylinders in the torpedo were said to be of simple make and the torpedo engine was operated by compressed air. The torpedo weighed one ton and was nine yards long, going through water at a speed of two miles per hour. The buoyancy of the torpedo could be adjusted by a manipulator. Special devices enabling a man to ride on the torpedo or be fastened to it, were said to be arranged.

"Rossetti and Paulti, after safely getting through wire-nets and other protective gear at the mouth of the port, fastened a torpedo on the side of a warship in the port and blew the ship up. The daring Italians also succeeded in torpedoing and sinking an auxiliary cruiser nearby."

The New York Times, further remarked, "that it would have been a feat for the Italian Navy if the recent Italian naval attack on Gibraltar had succeeded because the 42,100-ton warship, Burham, and the 42,100, Hood, besides other cruisers and destroyers were riding at anchor at Gibraltar. It is impossible to decide whether the recent attack was carried out by human controlled torpedoes or by the fast darting mosquito-fleet.

"The Italian Navy is on its way toward grasping the hegemony of the Mediterranean with a powerful weapon, the mosquito-fleet," continues the dispatch. "Large boats in the mosquito-fleet weigh over 30 tons while there are some small fast boats of only 12 tons. Some boats possess a maximum speed of over 50 knots per hour. The M. A. S. boat of 12 tons, is 52 feet long but motor torpedo boats are usually of smaller build with two torpedoes. The M.A.S. boats have two machine-guns, two torpedo-tubes and some of them have a speed of over 50 knots per hour. The characteristics of the motor torpedo boats, is, that after switching the engines off, they can stealthily approach the enemy and discharge their torpedoes. The title of human torpedoes is appropriate to these boats because the chances of the men, coming back alive are very small.

movement among the natives is closely related to the class movement because their Dutch rulers and Chinese plutocrats have constituted the aristocracy of the islands under whom they have been exploited and oppressed. With the fall of the Netherlands and the progress of the East Asia movement under Japan's leadership, the natives are raising the cry of "Indonesia for Indonesians," concludes the paper.

ing Britain at present is what is the shipbuilding capacity of its dockyards, or what are remaining after the intensive German bombings, and what is the extent to which the United States can supply ships to Britain. It is observed in New York quarters that besides the sale of American merchant shipping to Britain, the question of American ships calling at British ports is expected before long to become an issue as involving revision of the Neturality Act.

ed to be in process through a German intermediary, the journal declared, adding that well-informed foreign diplomats at Belgrade believe that Italy intends to effect a settlement with Greece similar to the one which Germany recently concluded with Rumania.

The Italo-Greek settlement presumably would include Greece's rejection of the British guarantee, a change in the Greek national administration and territorial concessions to Albania, Italy and Bulgaria. In exchange Bulgaria would be asked to abandon her status of neutrality for a status of non-belligerency.

Turkey's non-belligerent stand did not surprise any one in the Balkans, the newspaper said, pointing out that Anakara is unable to move without first securing the understanding of the Soviet Union and securing the safety of her back door. Turkey's stand is regarded as definite indication of the powerful sway which Germany has over the Balkans as a result of its influence in Rumania.

NAPLES BOMBED

Domei Tsushin

LONDON, Nov. 1—Rushing to assist Greece in resisting the Italian invasion, a small force of powerful long-distance bombers of the Royal Air Force last night launched a destructive assault on Naples, the first since the beginning of the Italo-Greek conflict, the Air Ministry announced today.

The Air Ministry's news service, elaborating on the British raid disclosed that British bombers circled over the Naples area for three quarters of an hour, dumping high explosives on vital military objectives.

Low-flying British raiders, braving an intense but ineffective barrage of anti-aircraft fire, are claimed to have scorred devastating hits on an oil refinery and storage tanks at Loggioreale, causing terrific explosions and fires.

BATTERY SILENCED

High explosives are said to have been dropped on a station and a railway junction in the heart of the city, after which anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights reporedly were attacked. One ground battery was silenced in the course of the raid.

The Air Minis ry declared that no operations last night were carried over western and central Germany, owing to bad weather. During daylight aerial operations yesterday, British bombers, however, scored a hit on a 3,000-ton supply ship off the Norwegian coast.

It was officially announced tonight that nine Nazi warplanes were destroyed in aerial activity today. Six British fighters admittedly are lost, though the pilots of two of them are safe.

OLD RESIDENT DESCRIBES LIFE IN SINGAPORE

Returning Japanese Relates Amusing Episodes Seen in Famous Naval Base City

"Even the Chinese make fun of British soldiers in Singapore," said Rokuo Tsutada, a graduate of an annexe of the Singapore Cambridge University, who arrived in Japan for the first time after 22 years in Singapore, describing recent conditions in the British Gibraltar of the Orient, Thursday night, at his home at 3628 Moro-machi, Itabashi Ward, to the Yomiuri.

"I was indeed surprised on my arrival at Kobe," continued Mr. Tsutada. Automobiles, tram-cars, and buses were seen in the streets entirely contrary to my anticipations. How peaceful and quiet is the life in Japan even in wartime! The Japan I saw, is utterly different compared with the Japan I heard.

"My letters to Japan were often miscarried or delayed and it was the same case with mail I received in Singapore from Japan. I had even believed the rumor that there were no more automobiles running in Japan.

"Wild rumors about Japan can be heard everywhere in Singapore. Resident Chinese, numbering 400,000 in the city's population of 700,000, at first believed in a certain British victory in the European War, but they are now harboring ill-feelings against England as rumors of England losing the war prevail in the town.

AMUSING EPISODE

"Just before my departure, I experienced an amusing incident in a tram-car in Singapore. A Chinese was asking his friend if he knew what the initials, B.E.F. (British Expeditionary Forces) stood for. His friend, laughing, replied. 'Sure, British Empire Fall' The two Chinese youths, however, were instantly arrested by the British plain clothesmen on the same car.

"Khaki uniforms, simply flood the bars and cafes in the city. Drunken soldiers, getting off with free drinks and causing riots are a common night scene. The natives seeing intoxicated British soldiers fighting among themselves, enjoying looking on.

"Japanese are now able to go anywhere in the city and declare in a loud voice that he is a Japanese. After finishing the local Japanese school, I entered an English school and advanced to the preparatory course of the annexe of the Singapore Cambridge University.

"I failed to pass my first examinations to enter the medical department but had a very unpleasant experience when taking my second entrance examinations. The president of the university asked me what I would do if Japan and England should happen to go to war. I replied that I would, naturally fight for Japan. Hearing my words, the president just crossed my name off from the list that he had with him. I, then determined to return to Japan.

SEARCHLIGHTS PLAY

"Searchlights play in the skies every night and the booming of cannons in the fort nearby gives one an impression of being in the midst of a war. We were not permitted to see our friends off or welcome them at the wharves. All of our letters are opened and examined before reaching our hands.

"Supplies are abundant in Singapore. If the supply of rice should run low, it certainly would mean the loss of English prestige among the natives. As proof that the British authorities are going beyond their means in maintaining an ample supply of materials. Goods imported from Japan are stamped British make with the mark of the Robinson Department Store, which is the biggest store in the city. There are cases where old Japanese newspapers are found stuffed in the boxes of portable phonographs which were stamped with marks indicating that they were made in England. There are about 20 movie houses on High Street which are packed every night. Expressions of anxiety and fear can be seen more plainly everyday on the faces of English residents.

"Singapore, a paradise of tropical blue skies, coconut trees and tropic cherry blossoms, is at present under dark, threatening clouds."

52,000 YOUTHS PARTICIPATE IN MEIJI SPORTS

Solemn Ceremonies End Eight-Day Meeting in Great Shrine Stadium

The eight-day Meiji Shrine Athletic Meet, which commenced on Sunday, October 27 and participated in by more than 52,000 youths was brought to a successful close yesterday, with solemn ceremonies at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

During the eight-day period the athletes engaged in various sporting events, mass gymnastics, military sports and demonstrations.

In the final tabulation of the Young Men's Associations inter-prefectual competition, the youths from Hokkaido scored the greatest number of points to take the championship, repeating their victory of last year.

In order followed: Osaka city, Kobe city, Oita, Fukuoka, Nagoya, Hiroshima, Tokyo city, Yamaguchi and Toshima.

In the men's track and field championship Sunday, Ohzawa of Nihon University running a brilliant race, established a new Japan record in the 3,000-meter run. His time was 9:25.2.

In the inter-university baseball tourney, Waseda University took the championship by defeating Keio University, 9-3, at the Meiji Shrine stadium.

The total points scored by the Young Men's Associations in seven various events follow:

1.	Hokkaido	25½
2.	Osaka City	24
3.	Kobe City	21
4.	Oita	19
5.	Fukuoka	17¾
6.	Nagoya	17
7.	Hiroshima	16½
8.	Tokyo City	16
9.	Yamaguchi	15
10.	Toshima	15

600 SURVIVORS ESCAPED WRECK OF C.P.R. LINER

From 50 to 150 Lost Lives When Germans Destroyed Empress of Britain

United Press

LONDON, Oct. 29—Approximately 600 survivors of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, which was sunk near England yesterday, were landed at an English port late yesterday.

Admiralty authorities estimated that from 50 to 150 lives were lost when the luxurious steamer went down. Most of the dead were members of the crew.

The Admiralty and War Office in a joint communique announced that the Empress of Britain was lost as result of enemy aircraft action, which set the giant liner afire. Salvage operations were commenced immediately, the communique stated, but whilst in tow the ship subsequently blew up and sank.

Of the 643 persons reportedly aboard the steamer at the time of the attack, 598 were landed by British warships, the Admiralty announced.

Survivors said that the blazing liner was abandoned after a German bomber had first machine-gunned her and then dropped a shower of high explosive and incendiary bombs.

Many of the survivors reached shore with their hands and faces bandaged heavily because of burns and abrasions caused when they slipped down ropes into lifeboats. Most of the rescued seamen wore only life jackets on the upper parts of their bodies.

"The fire spread furiously," one seaman said. "Our lifeboats on the starboard side soon were blazing fiercely, which forced us to take to the portside boats. Some of us were not picked up until six hours after we had abandoned the ship."

United Press

BERLIN, Oct. 29—The High Command in a communique last night announced that a German submarine commanded by Lieutenant Jenisch sank the Empress of Britain.

The submarine's mission was carried out despite a strong guard of destroyers which sought to protect the large liner, the communique asserted.

60 MILES OFF IRELAND

United Press

BERLIN, Oct 28—Modifying earlier reports that German aerial bombardment had sunk the Empress of Britain, D.N.B. yesterday said the vessel was on fire off north-western Ireland.

The crew of the stricken vessel took to life boats, said the official German news agency.

"Loss of the ship can be reckoned," however, said D.N.B., because the vessel was set fire and heavily damaged by German bombs while it was about 60 miles off north-western Ireland.

The Empress of Britain had been used as a troop transport since the beginning of the war, D.N.B said.

French Physicians To Be Organized

Transocean

VICHY, Oct. 27—A professional organization of medical doctors has been created by the French Government.

The new organization is headed by a council of doctors and works through the medical chambers in the various Departments. In future no body can carry out the medical profession without a special permit of the medical council.

PUBLIC SERVICE APPRECIATED

Fujino Terada, 59, who has worked for 36 years as a nurse in the Ikushin-kai, was one of the eight persons who received public appreciation for their services in general in upbringing children, at the Tokyo Prefectural Office, Nov. 3. Families with more than 10 children (10,300 in all) were also given ceremonial recognition at the same time.

COVERING THE WORLD

From German Sources

BRITISH LANDING

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4—The application of British assistance for Greece remains a secret. While the first Lord of the Admiralty on Saturday evening spoke of "landing of British troops on Greek soil," the official statement modified this report by saying "British forces have landed on strategic British islands." Therefore, it is stated that the landing of British troops on the mainland of Greece has not been effected. One of the strategic islands without doubt is the island of Crete which has since long been the center of British operations and intrigues.

ARAB ACTIVITIES

ROME, Nov. 4—Great political and military action is being prepared by Ibn Saud with support of his Wahabit troops, against British intervention in Southern Arabia and Transjordania. The Sultan of es Escher is said to have appealed to Ibn Saud for help, because Bedouin camps in the sultanry of Hadramaut had been attacked by British planes and were machine-gunned from the air. The British intelligence service in South Arabia is said following the activities of Ibn Saud with increasing concern.

CIANO IN AIR SERVICE

ROME, Nov. 4—The Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, who is again taking active part in the Italian air force against Greece, was promoted to the rank of Lieut.-Colonel of the air force. Count Ciano is commander of an air force squadron called "La Disperata," which took part in the actions against Salonika with great success.

BRITISH BROADCAST BANNED

VICHY, Nov. 4—A new law has been issued in France prohibiting the listening in to British broadcasts on public squares, in restaurants, cafes, and other public meeting places. Those violating the new regulations are to be punished severely.

TURKEY SWINGS TO GERMANY

BERLIN, Nov. 4—"Turkey has normal relations with the Reich; Turkey wants normal relations" it was stated by the Turkish Ambassador to Berlin in an address to his countrymen on the occasion of celebration of the Turkish national holiday. He furthermore emphasized that the Turkish youth should adopt German working methods and German mode of living for examples and that the best way to come into closer contact with Germany would be to participate in German life and in German sports.

FINLAND RETURNING TO WORK

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 4—Direct postal service between Finland and Soviet Russia was resumed via the frontier station of Wainikiala. The Petsamo Nickel Co. has issued a statement to the effect that the nickel mines at Petsamo will resume operations in December. Repair work and preparations are in full swing.

TURKEY AND SOVIET PAPERS

MOSCOW, Nov. 4—In connection with the war between Italy and Greece, Moscow papers are greatly interested in the speech delivered by the Turkish President Inoenue at the opening of the parliamentary session. They take special note of his statement that Turkey, together with her ally England, were studying questions arising from this conflict. His reference to the existing friendly relations between Turkey and Soviet Russia has also been received with much interest.

GREEK APPEAL TO ENGLAND

ISTANBUL, Nov. 4—Unconfirmed reports here state that the Greek Premier Metaxas sent an appeal to the British Government for immediate assistance. The Premier is said to have stressed that he needed urgently an adequate supply of British troops.

IRISH REFUGEES' STORIES

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4—London impressions of Irish refugees were published by the "Irish Times," which says that all travelers had gone through frightful experiences in London, Liverpool and other large cities of England, what with many sleepless nights in cellars, and narrow escapes from destruction.

MORRISON BROADCASTS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4—The British Home Secretary and Minister for Home Security Herbert Morrison admitted in a broadcast that the British Government were not in a position to provide adequate protection for the population of London and other large towns during air raids. The minister said that it would be impossible to provide London with an adequate number of air raid shelters before the winter and that only provisional measures would be undertaken, by using subway stations etc. In his appeal he asked the Londoners to evacuate their children from the town as quickly as possible.

From British Sources

GREEK AIR FORCE

ATHENS, Nov. 3—The latest news from the front is in a communique by the General Headquarters here. On the Epirus front and western Macedonia there are lively artillery duels, the communique reports. In the Florina sector Greek positions in Albania were held, in spite of heavy attacks from artillery and aircraft. Koritza airdrome was bombed and several aircraft on the ground caught fire. Oil tanks were set on fire. Concentrations of Italian troops and batteries were also successfully bombed.

The town of Patras and other towns and villages have been bombed. No military objective was attacked. These were some dead and wounded among the civilian population. Four Italian bombers have been shot down in air battles and two Greek planes did not return.

The Italian raids yesterday are dealt with more fully in a communique issued by the Greek Ministry of Home Security, which states: "At Patras and its neighborhood there were two raids, causing very few casualties although there was some damage to buildings. At Salonika a number of casualties was caused to the civilian population and buildings were damaged. One Italian machine was brought down here. There were few civilian casualties and minimum of damage at Corfu and Yanina. An enemy plane was brought down in the raid on the latter."

The Italian bombing of civilians, leaving military objectives undamaged, is causing some considerable indignation in Athens.

Though small in numbers, the Greek air force has already proved its worth, and its exploits are followed eagerly by the population. Since last Monday many pilots have attacked Italian lines of communication and raiders over Greece, and have now taken part with British airmen in attacks on Tirana. Already people are talking of the exploits of two Greek airmen yesterday. One, who led the attack on Tirana, though badly wounded and with his machine damaged brought the craft safely back before losing consciousness. Another rammed an enemy bomber over Salonika after his ammunition was gone. He made a forced landing and escaped unhurt.

Two Italian bombers landed at Kastoria, 18 miles from the Albanian frontier, it is reported here. The machines were intact and the pilots admitted that they did not meet anti-aircraft fire. Another Italian machine landed further south through lack of petrol. The machine was captured intact by the Greeks.

Yesterday, it is reported, British bombers joined with Greek bombers to raid Tirana, the Albanian capital. At the same time ships were bombed in Albanian ports. Well-informed circles here commented that the war plans had been carried out in unexpectedly good time with the whole country on a war footing in less than a week. Large reinforcements have been moved up toward the front.

The Director of the French Institute at Athens has sent a letter to General Metaxas sympathizing with the Greek cause and offering money. From all corners of the world, and from Greeks everywhere, have come messages to the Prime Minister expressing admiration and in many cases the wish to take part in the fight. Women in Cyprus are volunteering for nursing duty.

BRITISH AID FOR GREECE

LONDON, Nov. 3—British help for Greece is now taking definite shape, according to statements made today. Two important steps were announced this morning. British forces have landed in Greek territory, and a military mission has been set up by Major General Parry, of the Middle East Command, in Athens. General Parry, who arrived from Egypt by air, is already reported to have conferred with the Greek High Command about the coming winter campaign.

News of the arrival of British forces was announced by the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. A. V. Alexander, in a broadcast this morning. "We shall honor our pledge to Greece," he said. "The Navy is there and air support is being given. British troops have landed in Greek territory. All that we can do, we will do."

Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent and the Greek Minister in London attended a service of intercession for Greece held today. King Zog of Albania and the Free French forces were represented at the service.

AIR FIGHT

MALTA, Nov. 3—Enemy planes yesterday were engaged by British fighters and anti-aircraft fire, an official communique reports. Two were brought down and possibly a third. Bombs were dropped, causing slight damage to private property. There were no casualties.

ITALIAN SUBMARINES LOST

ROME, Nov. 3—The Italian communique today admits the loss of two submarines.

AIR RAIDS

LONDON, Nov. 3—The only air activity over Britain today has been a few attacks by single planes. This afternoon a German plane dived out of the low clouds and machine-gunned streets in London. The people took shelter and no one was hurt. Anti-aircraft fire drove the raider away.

Last night's raids were again on a small scale and in all areas came to an end before midnight. There were very few casualties though some houses and shops were damaged. One bomber was shot down into the sea off Kent, its cargo of bombs exploding.

Yesterday two German airmen, believed to be the crew of a Heinkel bomber which crashed in Essex, surrendered themselves to a lodge keeper. Altogether nine German planes were brought down yesterday, while not one British machine was lost.

By half an hour after midnight Friday, five German night bombers had been shot down since the sounding of the night alert, an Air Ministry communique stated yesterday. During Friday's attacks on Britain it is now known that 11 German aircraft in all were brought down. Seven British fighters were lost, but two of the pilots are safe.

Heavy attacks on Berlin and oil targets in central and western Germany were among the R.A.F. operations on Friday night. The Berlin raid lasted nearly five hours, and the city's three main railway stations Schlesischer, Potsdamer and Anhalter, were repeatedly hit by heavy caliber high explosive bombs. The Tiergarten railway station and power stations at Klingenburg and Charlottenburg in the outskirts were also attacked.

Thailand Waits Next Move by Indo-China

United Press

BANGKOK, Oct. 28—The next move in relations between Thailand and French Indo-China is up to the French, the Thailand Government said yesterday.

There have been no communications between the governments of Thailand and French Indo-China since the last rejection of Thailand's territorial demands by Indo-China, the Government announced in a communique.

There has been no communication sent to French Indo-China "because the Government considers it the duty of the French themselves to examine Thailand's request in a sympathetic spirit and to give justice to Thailand in this respect," said the communique.

Jugoslav Peasants Till Soil in Rumania

Transocean

BUCHAREST, Oct. 30—Jugoslav and Rumanian peasants living in the border districts and having land on the Rumanian side were given permission yesterday by the Rumanian Ministry of Finance to cross the frontier in order to bring in the maize harvest and till soil there. Rumanian frontier peasants have been granted similar permits. Hitherto Rumanian frontier authorities had forbidden Jugoslav peasants having land on the Rumanian side to cross the border.

GOERING ISSUES PROCLAMATION ON 4-YEAR PLAN

Reich Marshal Announces Fuehrer's Commission to Continue Former Project

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Nov. 4—Reichs Marshal Hermann Goering on the occasion of his commission by the Fuehrer for carrying out the second fouryear plan issued the following proclamation from his headquarters:

According to the Fuehrer's decision the fouryear plan will be continued for another four years. Before us lies a new area of constructive work in all fields of economic as well as social life. We start in an historic hour and with a proud conviction to be able to construct on the base of big successes, which we achieved by our own energy during the past years. What has been achieved since autumn 1936 has come up to my expectations, nay, in some respects, has been surpassing them.

Then I called up the nation for a cooperation in the fouryear plan and all responded gladly. On farms and fields, in mines and mills, in factories and workshops, in designing offices and laboratories, employes and employers in joint collaboration attained outstanding achievements. By industrious work, farmers secured bread supplies. Also housewives and German youths have done their shares in the four-year plan.

We have increased production in foodstuffs and particularly in raw material production. We have introduced new methods of production and processing and we have established numerous vast industrial plants. At the same time the national defense, which from year to year has been calling more and more on the labor power and the raw material production, has been strengthened. I had to ask much of the individual, but I have always found understanding and I have never been disappointed.

GREAT GRATITUDE

Thus today, after the first four years elapsed, I was moved by a feeling of great gratitude to all working compatriots. I thank especially all my collaborators, who aided me in acquiring the vast task, which the Fuehrer has assigned to me. What we have constructed in untiring labor after the will of the Fuehrer and in accordance with the fouryear plan, which we drafted, has stood acid test in wartime. All hopes of our enemies to force Germany down to her knees by means of a malicious blockade proved to be in vain and will remain so in future.

The foundation of the German economy is standing firm and cannot be destroyed. The four-year plan and the German economy are in their entirety strictly organized in accordance with the requirements of the gigantic fateful struggle for the German freedom. An efficient economic structure is as indispensable as a sharp sword. I trust also in future in the German people, in their loyalty, their goodwill and their capabilities. They have proved themselves worthy of this confidence in the historic events of the recent times.

They will also be able to live up to their great tasks and will be able to master the inevitable difficulties of the daily life. From our faith in and from our love to the Fuehrer we gain the strength and energy for the highest sacrifice and enthusiastic deeds. The bravery of the soldier at the front and the dutiful labor at home will assist him in gaining victory and accomplishing his marvellous work. Goering, Reichs Marshal of the Greater German Reich.

FAITH IN FUTURE

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Nov. 3—Grand Marshal Hermann W. Goering, expressing deep gratification on his appointment as new administrator of Germany's second Four-Year-Plan, today declared he hoped that the Reich's new industrial program would achieve as great, if not greater, industrial progress as the initial economic plan adopted by the Reich in the autumn of 1938.

In a signed announcement which was prominently published in all German papers today, Marshal Goering lauded the past cooperation given by the German people, asserting, "I have had to demand much from every person, but I have always been understood and have never been disappointed."

Praising the German people for their initiative, he declared they have introduced new methods of production and the finishing of raw materials, expanded their industrial plants and have reinforced the Reich's national defense by ingenious means.

He concluded his statement:

"I rely also in the future on the German workers. From love and devotion to our Fuehrer, we must attain strength for the highest achievements and enthusiastic deeds."

Radium Returns To Paris from Hiding Place

United Press

VICHY, Nov. 2—The Curie Institute's precious reserves of radium, approximately eight grams, have been returned to Paris from a hiding place in the Loire valley, it was learned here.

The radium was taken secretly from the hiding place and re-installed in a lead safety vault at the Curie foundation. It was hidden in the Loire valley prior to the German occupation.

So well kept was the secret of the Loire valley radium cache that not even occupation authorities knew its whereabouts.

Japanese Club Is Started in Rome

Domei Tsushin

ROME, Nov. 3—Reflecting increased Italo-Japanese relations, the Japanese community today formally inaugurated the Nippon Club of Rome at a general meeting attended by 80 influential Japanese living in Rome.

The inaugural meeting was held at the Japanese Embassy following a formal celebration commemorating the birthday anniversary of the late Emperor Meiji of Japan.

The new club has been organized to bring together the Japanese residents in the Italian capital who have increased in number from a mere handful three years ago to 150 persons, including members of the Japanese Embassy, military and naval officers, officials of the Japanese Commerce and Industry Ministry, Domei News Agency and various Japanese banking and commercial enterprises.

COVERING THE WORLD

From German Sources

BRITISH CRUISER SUNK

BERLIN, Nov. 5—It is announced on Monday that a German submarine sank the British auxiliary cruiser Laurentic, 18,724 tons, and the Patroclus, 11,314 tons. The submarine further succeeded in sinking one armed merchantman of 5,376 tons.

BRITISH ACTION WANTED

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 5—Reports here from London state that the Sunday's papers demand the intensification of the war against Italy. Especially Lord Beaverbrook's paper "Sunday Express" complains bitterly about the present British warfare in the Mediterranean stating that a whole week had elapsed since the Italian ultimatum to Greece and that no air offensive had yet been made against the Italians. Both Germany and Italy had countless troops and armored cars and airplanes, which could immediately go into action in the Balkans if necessary; but nobody could say, how long England would be able to hold out against such forces.

'WINDSOR CASTLE' HIT

BERLIN, Nov. 5—One German airplane successfully attacked several hundred kilometers West of the Irish coast the large British steamer "Windsor Castle," 19,141 tons, in the Atlantic. The vessel, which defend herself with her antiaircraft guns, received a direct hit. Another bomb was dropped just behind her stern rendering her incapable of movement.

MORE BRITISH SHIPS

BERLIN, Nov. 5—Off Kinnaird Head in Northern Scotland our fighting planes attacked British vessels, scoring hits on one destroyer and on a patrol boat, while a steamer of 10,000 tons was set ablaze. The destroyer received a direct hit of a heavy caliber bomb.

NO PEACE WITH BRITAIN

BERLIN, Nov. 5—In the present military and foreign political situation Germany and Italy have no cause whatever to make a peace offer to Britain, it is stated in the Wilhelmstrasse with regard to the fresh rumors about a peace offensive in the European war. Berlin refrains from voicing any opinion as to how far these rumors have originated from the American presidential election campaign.

BRITISH IN CRETE

MILAN, Nov. 5—Commenting on the recent speech of the British First Lord of the Admiralty, the "Corriere dela Sera" states that so far, with the exception of a few British destroyers in Greek territorial waters, no British warships have been seen there. These destroyers had been there before the delivery of the Italian ultimatum. The Italian air force up to now has not contacted with any British pilots over Greek territory, the Greek airarm being reinforced only by 60 British machines. With regard to British troop landings, this has been effected only on Crete, where British soldiers had been reinforced. These troop camps had already been bombed by the Italians. British assistance to Greece would consist of nothing but the continuation of English warfare against Italy in the Mediterranean with the proposed use of Greek bases.

419 PLANES DESTROYED

BERLIN, Nov. 5—Altogether 419 British planes were destroyed in the month of October, in the German air attacks on the British isles or in the British attacks on Reich territory, these numbers are only for those planes, which are with all certainty destroyed so that the actual losses of the British air force will be considerably greater. The German air force on the other hand lost only 138 planes in the month of October.

TANGIER TAKEN BY SPAIN

MADRID, Nov. 5—The abolishment of the international Tangier zone and the incorporation of this territory in the Spanish protectorate of Marocco was officially announced here by an official communique.

LONDON AIR ALARMS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 5—A detailed list of air raid alarms in London in October has been sent by the correspondent of the Danish paper "Daglight Allehanda" showing that the alarms there lasted for 330 hours last month. This makes an incessant alarm of 15 days and 20 hours for the month of October alone. Alarms during night time totaled exactly 280 hours.

NAVY OFFICER HONORED

BERLIN, Nov. 5—The Fuehrer and the Supreme Commander of the German armed forces conferred the Oak leaves to the knights cross of the iron cross on Lieutenant Commander Kretschmer, who has passed the 200,000 tons mark in sinking enemy shipping.

From British Sources

GREEKS HOLD OUT

ATHENS, Nov. 4—Considerable Greek reinforcements have safely arrived at the front, it was reported today. Mobilization is not yet complete but is proceeding with remarkable speed. The Greek High Command in no way under-rates the strength of the Italians and much intensified enemy action is regarded as imminent.

From the official communique and other sources it is evident that the Greeks are counter-attacking all along the line and are everywhere holding their positions or pushing back the Italians. In their first advance into Albania they captured a position overlooking Koritza. Today's communique reported that on Saturday they captured a new range and now held positions threatening Koritza itself.

The Italians made heavy attacks in the Florina sector, but the Greeks threw them back with hand grenades and bayonets. The Italians suffered losses and a number of prisoners were taken.

On the Epirus front yesterday Italian attacks supported by tanks were broken up and nine tanks were destroyed. On this front the Italians have been pushed back to the north of the Kalamas river and the Greeks have retaken a hill commanding the route which the Italians had taken in their attempted advance southwards towards Yanina.

Salonika was bombed by Italian aircraft again today. In yesterday's raids four Italian planes were brought down by anti-aircraft fire. There were a few casualties but little damage. During air attacks on Corfu yesterday the British consulate was repeatedly singled out for bombing and it is believed British civilians were killed. There were Italian air attacks on many points in the weekend. A number of small places in the interior of no military importance were also attacked.

BRITISH AID ARRIVES

LONDON, Nov. 4—Reports received from Athens today express the satisfaction felt there with the increasing help coming to Greece from Britain and the stand all along the line. There was no reason to doubt reports that the British forces which have landed in Crete included land, naval and air forces.

It was officially stated in Athens this morning that an Australian destroyer had also arrived there.

NAVAL ENGAGEMENT

BELGRADE, Nov. 4—A further report of a naval engagement between Greek forces and Italian naval units has been received here today. It says that the Greek forces prevented the Italians taking a position between Corfu and the mainland. The engagement was reported broken off after an hour, and one warship, believed to be Italian, was seen steaming north on fire.

ITALIAN AIR LOSSES

CAIRO, Nov. 4—In the past few days Anthony Eden, the British Minister for War, who is on a tour of inspection in the Middle East, has seen the Governor of the Sudan and chiefs of the British forces. Mr. Eden also met General Jan Smuts recently at Khartoum, when the South African Premier was on a visit to the South African troops on the East African front.

Today's communique issued from General Headquarters here states that there is no change in the situation on all fronts.

The air battle over Mersa Matruh last Thursday, in which the Italians fantastically claimed 17 British aircraft had been destroyed against 3 of theirs, was unquestionably a grand sight for thousands of British troops who saw the Italian machines either falling in flames or plunging into the Mediterranean. From the four Savoia bombers and four C.R. 42 fighters brought down only one Italian airman escaped, according to details of the engagement revealed today. This was the second pilot of an S. 79 which had a crew of five. He baled out, according to his own story, on the orders from his first pilot. Another member of the same crew had also baled out but his parachute failed to open. The Savoia came down in flames with no possible chance of any of the remaining crew surviving.

Two of the C.R. 42's which were destroyed fell victim to a Gladiator pilot who, as soon as the fight began, realized that he had engine trouble. He was at 18,000 feet and was gradually losing height and he realized that he must make a forced landing, but below him he saw the two Italian fighters. As he dived the Italians went past him and he let them each have a burst, then he saw them go crashing down. Then he landed his own aircraft safely.

A Rhodesian pilot belonging to a South African squadron which has now brought down between 30 and 40 Italian aircraft told of a forty minutes' chase he had with a C. R. 42. "When I first saw it, I thought it was a Gladiator," said the pilot "I went down to make sure and followed him round. He kept evading me by doing steep turns but in my faster machine I was able to keep outside him. This went on for ten minutes or more and then I let him have three bursts and as he went down I followed and put a fourth into him. He then dived straight into the desert."

The Italian losses—8 machines shot down in flames and four others seriously damaged—were at least twice those of the R. A. F. In personnel the British losses were one killed and one missing, while the enemy must have lost a number up to 30.

RAIDS OVER NAPLES AND KIEL

LONDON, Nov. 4—Through bad weather the British bombers carried out successful raids on Naples and on the Kiel naval base last night, the Air Ministry announced today. During daylight yesterday Flushing was attacked. Four British planes are missing following these operations.

Details of the second attack by aircraft of the Bomber Command on Naples show, according to the Air Ministry news service, that the Italian anti-aircraft guns provided more effective opposition last night than on the first raid. The city was well blacked out and as the British aircraft approached they were met with heavy and fairly accurate fire. Though the attack was hampered by cloud, the leading aircraft dropped flares and then came down low to bomb their objectives. Other aircraft attacked the oil tanks at Poggio Reale on the southern outskirts of the city and bombed them effectively.

Adverse weather conditions over the greater part of Germany severely restricted last night's operations by aircraft of the Bomber Command. Early this morning conditions showed some improvement and an attack was launched against the naval dockyards at Kiel, which were heavily bombed for nearly 70 minutes by relays of aircraft. The first raider reached the target area shortly after 4 a.m. today and started fires which were burning strongly when the second wave of the attack arrived later. Bombing through the gaps in the clouds the new arrivals scored repeated hits with heavy caliber bombs in the dock area and started two large fires which gave off great clouds of black smoke. The pilot of one heavy bomber planted a stick of heavy caliber bombs accurately across the dockyard. Heavy fire from powerful ground batteries greeted each attack.

ITALIAN SHIPS SUNK

LONDON, Nov. 4—Very few enemy aircraft have crossed the coast today, the Air Ministry reports this evening. London also had a quiet night last night, undisturbed by air-raid alarms. The Air Ministry stated that only a few craft crossed the coast and their activities were confined to northeast England and east Scotland. During yesterday there was only slight activity over Britain. One bomber was brought down and one British fighter is missing.

Two more Italian U-boats have been destroyed by our light forces, states an official Admiralty communique. The hunt in one case was carried out in co-operation with the Royal Air Force.

The Admiralty also announces that the armed merchant cruisers Laurentic and Patroclus have been torpedoed and sunk. According to reports so far received the survivors rescued from the Laurentic are 52 officers and 316 ratings, and from the Patroclus 33 officers and 230 ratings.

MADRID CABINET HEARS REPORT FROM SUNER

Spanish Foreign Minister Tells Colleagues about Latest Developments

Domei Tsushin

MADRID, Nov. 3—The Council of Ministers, assembled last night under the chairmanship of Generalissimo Francisco Franco for the first time since the Hitler-Franco meeting at the Spanish frontier on October 23, heard Foreign Minister General Ramon Serrano Suner's detailed report of the latest developments in Europe, as well as the Axis' campaign against Britain.

The Council, later, approved the appointments of Vice-Admiral Moreu, former Commander-in-Chief of the Navy Ministry; Vice-Admiral Francisco Rapalo, as Second Chief of the Admiralty; Manuel Arburur, as Undersecretary of Commerce and Industry, and Miguel Martin, as Director-General of Trade and Customs.

ENGLISH NOT INTERESTED, SAYS A.B.C.

Transocean

MADRID, Nov. 1—England is badly informed on events in the Italo-Greek conflict, reports the London correspondent of the Spanish paper A.B.C.

According to the correspondent, the population in England is not interested in the new conflict, although the press does its utmost to point out the importance of this new theater of war.

The English take only their own country seriously and show but little understanding for events in foreign countries, the correspondent writes. The British press, on the other hand, clearly realizes the possible consequences of the Italian action against Greece.

The London press believes that the Battle of England has entered its second phase. An early landing of a British expeditionary corps in Greece is considered possible, although the British after experiences made from the Dardanelles to Andalsnes show very little enthusiasm for military expeditions, according to the correspondent.

According to well-informed London sources, the Italian advance from Konispol is a new chapter in the attack on Greece. Frontier fighting is reported to have occurred near Melissoperia between Keritsa and Janina.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT" -by Ripley

WASEDA TO PLAY HOSEI THURSDAY

Football Game Scheduled With Intercollegiate Score at Halfway Mark

With the schedule of the Tokyo Intercollegiate Football League at the halfway mark, Waseda vs Hosei is offered to the gridiron fans this Thursday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium. Kickoff at 3:00.

Waseda, one of the two remaining undefeated elevens with its stronger line, better running backs and greater reserves should win, though it will be meeting a Hosei eleven fresh from its victory over Rikkyo.

The game should be interesting to the extent of testing the real strength of Waseda. To date this team has run up 118 points while lightly inhaling and exhaling Rikkyo and Nichidai. It has largely the same team that last year copped the title with no defeats.

The forward line opens up with Yamada and Tsunoto at the ends, Fukushima and Kageyama at the tackles, Fujioka and Kashaya at the guards and Kato at the center. The backs are Fujimoto and Tosaya at the halfs, Naguwa at full and Yamada, a new-comer, filling in the directing of the team as the signal-caller.

Hosei can start with a fairly capable eleven but lack of adequate reserves is a big handicap. Its starting eleven should find Sakumae and Toyama at the ends, Tohara and Kurokoichi at the tackles, Yamada and Ishii at the guards and Sasaki center. The backfield is headed with Kunimoto at quarter, Fujisawa and Yokoi halfbacks and Yonahara fullback.

MICHIGAN, CORNELL, AND STANFORD LEADING IN AMERICAN FOOTBALL

United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—Michigan, Cornell, and Stanford rule the football domains of the Midwest, East, and the Far West as the October football campaign comes to an end.

The Big Reds of Cornell overwhelmed the 1939 Big Ten champions, Ohio State, 21-7, to keep in the fight for national honors as the Michigan Wolverines also continued their winning streak by downing Pennsylvania by the score of 14-0.

Yesterday's greatest upset, however, was scored by the Stanford Indians, who swept through the Trojans of U.S.C. in their greatest triumph of the season, 21-11.

Saddest among the results scored yesterday was the 19-0 defeat suffered by the once-great Army team which lost to the Lafayette Leopards of Easton, Pennsylvania, from a school boasting an enrolment of 953.

Undefeated Navy triumped Yale, 21-0, at New Haven before 40,000 fans, while St. Mary's nosed out Fordham in a close traditional intersectional game, 9-6.

ITALY FOUND IT

the near future."

On October 23, a new stage had been reached. Now the Times (London) asked openly for an immediate occupation of the Greek islands and of certain strategic areas in the Aegian Sea. After having indicated the strategic importance of Greece and the key position of Salonika as the gateway to Central Europe, the Times continued: "In case the Aegian Islands should become British, instead of Italian or German airbases, the Axis would no longer be a threat to Turkey. Our position around the Near East would be strengthened at the expense of the enemy. This time there is no reason why we should be outrun again as in Norway."

BRITISH FLEET READY

The London correspondent of the Stockholms Tidingen commented on these reflections as follows: "I feel that such considerations will be taken up seriously in the future. London will never permit Trondheim to be repeated. This time the British fleet is ready."

Already on October 19 a cable from Algeciras disclosed the existence of large units of warships and troup transports in the harbor of Gibraltar. On October 25 and 27 American reporters mentioned another gathering of ships in a telegram from Las Lineas. This reached Germany via Vichy. All these ships, when leaving Gibraltar, steamed in an easterly direction.

The New York Journal was informed by its special correspondent for Eastern Europe that the British ambassador to Turkey had suggested to the British government that it would be wise to occupy Crete and other Greek islands immediately with the help of the fleet.

Renewed cases of terrorism in Albania finally proved that it was high time for Italy to act since a British attack could be expected almost any moment.

On October 27, the political and military situation in Greece was precisely the same as in Norway on April 9, when the facts about the British minelaying in Norway became known. The attitude of the Greek and Norwegian governments were similar. In spite of the bitter experiences made by other small states, the Greek government still believed in the English promises of help.

BRITISH DIPLOMATS ACTIVE

Thus the British embassy in Athens was permitted to expand its activities to such an extent that it rendered the Greek claim of neutrality futile. As the Giornale d'Italia reported: British convoys unceremoniously used Greek territorial waters. British warships operated around the islands of Greece. About 30 military bases and centers of information were created on Crete, Cherigo and the Greek mainland. In Egypt a British division was ready to be embarked for Greece. Greece imported much more fuel than she needed herself. According to "Piccolo" the British were ready to occupy the Dodecanese Islands.

In the meantime these Italian reports have been confirmed by the "Daily Telegraph." On October 29 the paper disclosed that Great Britain had prepared Greece for war and had had discussions with the Greek admiralty for a long time.

Those messages, exchanged during the next twenty-four hours between Churchill and Metaxas as well as the kings of Great Britain and Greece, proved beyond doubt the illusory character of Greek neutrality.

GREEK GOVERNMENT INFORMED

The Greek government was informed several times that such a development could not be accepted by the Italian government. Again and again Italy offered a friendly hand. Still on June 10, on the occasion of the declaration of war between Italy and England, Il Duce mentioned Greece as one of the countries which did not need to be afraid as long as they took their promises of neutrality seriously.

Greece has chosen another course. It refused to guarantee its neutrality, which could have been done best by renouncing the agreement with Great Britain. Even after Rumania had set a good example by doing this and sending British troublemakers home, the Greek government kept up its ambiguous attitude.

The examples of Norway, the Netherlands and Belgium should have taught nations that ambiguity is a bad policy. Governments which adhere to it are serving the enemies of Europe and are sinning against their people.

The Greek government did not grasp the importance of the moment. It foolishly permitted Great Britain to make those military preparations which had to be nibbed in the bud by Italy.

U.S. Seems Anxious About French Isles

Domei Tsushin

BERLIN, Nov. 4—A new order for the German workers to be achieved within 10 years after Germany's victory in the war was promised by Dr. Ley, chief of the German labor front, today.

Plans for the welfare of the Reich's working masses which are on the planning board at the present time and which will provide a safe future for all "creative Germans" were outlined by Dr. Ley this afternoon before a meeting of workers and employes in Berlin.

Old age pensions, he said, is one of the most prominent projects of the new social order which will be of "almost revolutionary extent."

Other proposals for public welfare were help to the sick, periodic medical examinations to safeguard the health of the working people, creation of healthful living conditions including the housing problem, and opportunities for recreation.

Dr. Ley promised that the German labor front, within 10 years after conclusion of the war, will carry out social achievements totaling 6½ milliard marks in construction of public welfare projects, including recreation homes, hotels, seaside resorts and Kraft durch Freude ships.

COVERING THE WORLD

From British Sources

30,000 ITALIANS TRAPPED

ATHENS, Nov. 5—The most important development on the Albanian-Greek frontier is that Greek artillery has started to shell Koritza. It is confirmed here that a body of Italians has been cut off in one sector of the front and are in difficulties.

Greek reinforcements are being rushed to the front to spring the jaws of a pincer trap around a column of 30,000 Italian troops reported surrounded in a pocket in the mountains between Yanina and Koritza. Aircraft and artillery hammered them continuously. Attempts to break through by the Italians were repulsed with heavy losses to them. Large numbers of machine-guns and howitzers were reported to have been captured during these skirmishes.

There is no news of fresh fighting from the Epirus sector beyond the statement that Greek planes have made heavy attacks on concentrations on the coast near Yanina.

The Greek communique said that the Greek forces have captured Italian prisoners, trench mortars, machine-guns and other war materials. It added that Italian planes bombed Piraeus and Kastoria, both raids being directed against civilians. Few casualties and little damage resulted. One plane over Piraeus carried Greek markings. Five Italian planes have been shot down and one Greek plane is missing.

Reports reaching here stated that the Greeks are holding all the ground they have gained and Italian attacks yesterday appeared less rigorous than they were at the outset of the war. The 30,000 Italians in the Koritza trap are said to be facing death or surrender. They were lost and then encircled as they attempted to retreat before the thrusts of the Greek offensives. Efforts to keep the column supplied with food and ammunition from the air were said to have misfired. By mistake an Italian airman dropped forty sacks of food and 25 sacks of barley into a Greek camp.

An Italian warship has been sunk between Corfu and the mainland sither by torpedo from a submarine or by a mine, according to a message received here today.

ITALIAN SUBMARINES

TANGIERS, Nov. 5—A second between Corfu and the mainland Italian submarine has taken refuge here after being pursued by destroyers, it is reported today. The report also quotes "reliable sources" as stating that three Italian submarines have been sunk in the Straits of Gibraltar.

HEAVY ITALIAN LOSSES

LONDON, Nov. 5—Following the Admiralty announcement yesterday of the destruction of two more Italian submarines by light naval forces, it is stated that, including these two, the Italians have now lost 29 submarines since their entry into the war, which is one quarter of the total of the Italian submarine strength.

IN CRETE

CAIRO, Nov. 5—A Greek corps seven thousand strong is being raised in Egypt, it was stated here today. Many Greeks are reported to have escaped from the Dodecanese to fight.

It was learned here last night that British ships in Crete were bombed by the Italians a few hours after their arrival but there are no casualties. The main body of the British forces followed by sea, a small number having arrived by air. They took up their appointed positions at once.

Italian eastern coast ports and ports on the Albanian coast have been attacked by British bombers, it is also reported today.

RAIDS ON LONDON RESUMED

LONDON, Nov. 5—German air raids on Britain were resumed shortly after darkness last night. They were widespread and on a fairly heavy scale. London's alert lasted throughout the night, but in the Midlands and eastern and southern Scotland the main attacks ceased shortly after midnight. Bombs were dropped at many points, but this morning's Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqus states that the damage was not heavy and the casualties were small.

British bombers again attacked the invasion ports and occupied France last night, but it is officially stated that adverse weather conditions did not permit the usual heavy scale operations.

Early this morning two squadrons of eleven planes crossed the Kent coast. One attacked a coastal town damaging a score of houses in working class streets. On another town a single raider dropped twelve bombs but most fell in open places and fields, and there were no casualties.

PRIME MINISTER'S STATEMENT

The Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill, has made a statement about the position in Greece in the House of Commons this afternoon announcing that Britain has already established naval and air bases on Crete. Bombing of south Italian bases has already begun and will be continued with ever-increasing vigor.

Mr. Churchill's statement of what Britain will do was part of a general survey in which he dealt with the more favorable balance of British and Italian armies in the Middle East, the strength of the Mediterranean Fleet, successes in the fight against U-boats menace, and the diminishing effect of air attacks on this country.

Despite the threat of invasion, large numbers of troops had left Britain to reinforce the armies in Egypt and more have been withdrawn from the Empire to the Middle East. The Fleet in the eastern Mediterranean has been ceaselessly strengthened and is a great guarantee to our friend and ally Turkey. The renewal of U-boat sinkings, Mr. Churchill said, had been more serious than the air-raiding, but our U-boat hunting was still having successes. Two more U-boats had been sunk in the last two or three days in the western approaches, one of them the same which sank the Empress of Britain.

RELATIONS WITH TURKEY

In the House of Lords Viscount Halifax, the Foreign Secretary, making a similar statement to Mr. Churchill's referred to Turkey. He said: "We have been in close consultation with the Turkish Government regarding the situation that has arisen, and the attitude of that Government has been stated with great clarity and great resolution by the President in a speech at the opening of the Turkish Parliament. Thanks to the wise and far sighted policy of the Turkish Government, Turkey constitutes a very solid barrier against aggression and I do not doubt that Your Lordships fully share the confidence felt in the ability of the Turkish Army to carry out any task that may fall to it. I would take this opportunity of endorsing and repeating on the part of His Majesty's Government the words used by the President when he said that the bonds of alliance which united the two countries are solid and unbreakable. We have on this side the same faith in Turkey as we believe Turkey has in us.

"The relations of His Majesty's Government with the Egyptian Government are, I am glad to say, close and cordial as is indeed only natural in view of the treaty alliance, which the Egyptian Government are implementing in letter and spirit and with great goodwill."

AIRCRAFT LOSSES

LONDON, Nov. 5—It was officially stated by the Air Ministry at 9 o'clock tonight that seven enemy aircraft have been destroyed today. Six Royal Air Force fighters have been lost, but three of the pilots are safe.

RAIDS ON JUGOSLAVIA

BELGRADE, Nov. 5—Twenty-eight bombs were dropped by planes of unknown nationality on the Jugoslavian town of Monastir today killing 19 and injuring 21 persons and causing extensive material damage, according to the Belgrade radio. The bombs were dropped on two visits during this afternoon. Nineteen of the 28 bombs exploded. A commission of specialists has been sent to the spot in order to ascertain the nationality of the planes. As soon as the investigations have been completed, the Government will take the necessary action.

From German Sources

ITALIAN LOSSES EXAGGERATED

ROME, Nov. 6—The British reports that Italy in the present war had lost already 29 submarines were emphatically denied by competent quarters. It is stated that Italy has lost so far only 9 submarines, while another is damaged. on the other hand, losses of Great Britain as a result of war operations are given at 19 submarines lost.

RIBBENTROP IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Nov. 6—Reichs Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop is again in Berlin as was stated by the official spokesman while answering questions of foreign press representatives. The spokesman made no further comment about the alleged meeting of the Foreign Minister with Italian statesmen.

RESULTS OF GERMAN BOMBINGS

BERLIN, Nov. 6—During the night of November 5 wave upon wave of German bombers launched their attacks again on London. In addition, a number of other squadrons launched their attacks against a number of cities in Scotland. Hillingsen, where the most famous and most important British armament works of the Rolls Royce Company is situated near Glasgow, was also heavily raided and five huge explosions and fires were caused.

ITALIAN SUBMARINES PASS GIBRALTAR

ROME, Nov. 6—Large-scale Italian submarine action against British shipping in the Atlantic is forecast by Virgino Gayda in the "Giornale d'Italia." He states that passage through the Straits of Gibraltar was a most difficult task for Italian subs, but that so far all boats which attempted its passage have succeeded in reaching the Atlantic safely. The routes of British shipping are now carefully observed and studied with close cooperation with the German navy. Very soon, he said, joint action would be taken against the British shipping.

NO PEACE WITH GREECE

ROME, Nov. 6—The Greek-Italian conflict can be ended only through the cessation of military resistance by Greece or through Italian operations, as was announced at the Italian press conference with regard to a report from Belgrade stating that diplomatic conversations were under way between Germany and Greece to induce Greece to accept the Italian claims as conveyed in its ultimatum.

REICH SOLDIERS' CONDUCT

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 6—Swedish press correspondents, taking a trip through Germany and the occupied territories, say that nothing could have been more wrong and more stupid than the propaganda of the Allies, which used to slander the conduct of German soldiers. The correspondents says that his touring party saw streets of Paris crowded with German soldiers, who are all behaving like perfect gentlemen, well dressed and well disciplined, who could be taken as examples by any soldiery in the world.

BULGARIAN POSITION

SOFIA, Nov. 6—The decision to place the Danube under the control of only one commission was welcomed by all Danubian countries, especially by Bulgaria, which has come nearer to the Danube estuary since the Southern Dobrudja was incorporated. Bulgara's interest in the Danube and its estuary now forms an indivisible entity with the interests of the Reich, Italy, the Soviet Union and Rumania in the same area.

CHURCHILL'S SPEECH

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 6—The British Premier, Winston Churchill, again made a statement before the House of Commons, trying to describe, as usual, the present war situation in relatively favorable light. He said that the fact that no German invasion had been attempted on England meant a historical victory of the British Isles." He further revealed that so far 14,000 people were killed and 20,000 seriously wounded by air raids and that four-fifths of these casualties were among the population of London. He also predicted a new and fierce form of submarine warfare will be conducted by the German and Italian navies in the Atlantic next year.

PEACE TALK EXPLODED

BERLIN, Nov. 6—The reports of new peace proposals by Germany were described by the Berlin press as mere invention, rumors being without foundation of any sort. British propaganda was directed so as to influence American voters in favor of Roosevelt, who was credited with the ability to restore world peace.

BRITISH AIR RAID SITUATION EXPLAINED

Result of Operations Over Germany by R.A.F. Described by Berlin

D.N.B.

BERLIN, Nov. 3—In order to get a clear picture of the British air raid situation the following points should be remembered.

About 50 British airplanes per night reached Germany between September 1 and November 1. Most of them appeared after dark. They dropped not quite 18 tons of explosives on daily average over the whole territory of the Reich.

The amount of destruction obtained in the Reich in proportion to the number of bombs is amazingly small too; 50 to 60 per cent of the bombs fell on open country; 20 to 25 per cent on residential districts. They hurt a number of houses and civilians, some of whom were killed, but they did not do any serious damage to Germany on the whole. The other bombs hit harbors, lines of communication, industrial, military and other objects. The damage done there is so insignificant too that neither the output of Germany's war equipment nor its conduct of war are affected.

Eleven timber yards at Berlin, 20,000 liters of fuel in another place, a small paper mill and a few store houses in a seaport burned down. Bombs with a time fuse caused interruptions of traffic for several hours.

Frequently British reports stated that Berlin's big electric plants and gas companies were severely damaged. But there was never any confirmation from Berlin, saying that the distribution of electricity or gas had to be interrupted even for a short time only. Neither do British assertions that the chemical plants of Leuna, the producers of a certain percentage of Germany's synthetic fuel, were attacked, prove yet that they were actually hit, nor that certain percentage of fuel is lacking now.

Indeed the German fuel industry is fully capable of yielding a maximum output as before. The German air force does not have to economize during its daily mass attacks on Great Britain.

British reports about successful attacks on German bases in occupied areas are also badly exaggerated. Occasionally a few port facilities, storehouses with provisions, freight trains or piles of seized ammunition were hit. Hundreds of French, Belgian and Dutch houses have been destroyed or damaged and that many defenseless civilians have been killed or hurt.

So far German airports have not been bombed effectively yet. Otherwise those incessant mass attacks on Great Britain would not be possible any more.

Bulgarians Approve Axis Views on Greek Affair

Transocean

SOFIA, Nov. 1—The Bulgarian public fully agrees with the statements made by the Axis Powers concerning the Italo-Greek conflict.

The Bulgarian newspaper, Mir, writes that the Italo-Greek conflict is going to be the basis of reconstruction of the Balkans. Every Balkan nation will be given enough natural, historical and political space.

The paper further stresses that Bulgaria's foreign policy is neither imperialistic nor irredentistic.

Anti-British Riots In Nigeria

Transocean

VICHY, Oct. 31—Serious anti-British demonstrations and riots have taken place in British Nigeria, it was reported by the French radio.

British troops have had to be landed at Lagos, the capital of Nigeria, in order to quell the riots which were assuming very considerable proportions.

Quintuplets Born In France, One Dies

Transocean

PARIS, Oct. 31—Quintuplets were born in the northern French town of Roulettes near Lille.

While four of the babies are boys in good health, the fifth was a still-born girl.

The mother, who gave birth to a child only 10 months ago, is doing well.

Skoda Works Raided By R.A.F., Reuter Says

LONDON, Oct. 29—The first bombing of the Skoda works at Pilsen ended in the early hours on Monday, which was the 22nd anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovak State.

High-explosive and incendiary bombs resulted in huge explosions and spreading fires after one of the most ambitious raids yet carried out by the Royal Air Force, which had prepared for such long-distance flights with leaflet raids into Czechoslovakia and Austria in the early days of the war.

Paramount Film Company In Rumania Liquidates

Transocean

BUCHAREST, Oct. 31—The Paramount Film Company in Bucharest has decided to liquidate voluntarily.

The chief shareholder, S. Radulescu, who held 84 per cent of the total capital of the firm, was paid back his invested money. The firm had been importing about 60 per cent of all American films screened in Rumania.

VATICAN IS ANNOYED AT BRITISH THREAT

Press Organ Ignores Talk of Bombing Rome

D.N.B.

ROME, Nov. 5—The statements by the British military attache in Berne, Commander West, to the effect that Britain would not start heavy bombing of Rome until the presidential elections in the U.S. were over in order not to scare the American Catholics before the elections, is given a flashy display in Rome papers without commenting on this statement. The only paper which completely disregarded this news item, is the Vatican organ the Ossavertore Romano. Also Vatican circles themselves show greatest reserve toward this statement and refuse to make any comment.

The efforts of foreign correspondents to get any comment from the Vatican in connection with this sensational prediction failed to receive the slightest reaction. The impression prevails in Rome political circles, however, that this statement of an authorized British military expert produced a very annoying effect in the Vatican. It is recalled now that, when Italy entered the war, there were many reports to the effect that the Vatican requested London and Paris to spare Rome as the capital and head of the Catholic church from all bombing raids.

These reports, even if they did not come up to the fact, had at any rate left the impression that the Pope personally was most interested to protect Rome against all war devastations and that he exerted his whole influence accordingly. The statement by the British military expert, which reveals the British plan of influencing the Catholic voters in the U.S., can hardly be overlooked in the Vatican. It is therefore expected that the Vatican as spiritual guardian of the Catholic population in the U.S. will still have something to say with regard to this authorized British military statement.

U.S. ARMY'S MOTORIZATION OUTLINED

186,000 Vehicles Will Be Required, Assistant War Secretary Patterson Says

The motorization policy of the American Army was outlined by Robert P. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War, addressing the annual dinner of the Society of Automotive Engineers, reports the N.Y. Times of Oct. 15.

Mr. Patterson said the War Department would require 186,000 vehicles to equip a field force of 1,400,000 men. Animal-drawn transportation is to be motorized down to the cavalry reconnaissance regiments—in which the Army even contemplates using motor trailers to move the horses between the points where they jump off on their own legs.

In concluding, the Assistant Secretary of War reminded his hearers that the search for mobility must not obscure the fact that the decisive part of any armed encounter is when the infantry takes over. He said the final victory never could be made secure without "that pedestrian-at-arms, the infantry man."

"It is now possible for me to present to you, and no audience is more deserving of hearing it, an outline of what our motorization outline policy is," Mr. Patterson said. "A fundamental point in that policy is the use of motor equipment as manufactured by the automotive industry with the fewest modifications consistent with securing vehicles of required sturdiness and cross-country mobility.

FOR ALL-WHEEL DRIVERS

"The department's plans visualize that all tactical transportation shall be of the all-wheel drive type and contemplate the procurement of sufficient numbers of vehicles to equip a field force of 1,400,000 men, with a modest amount of equipment in reserve.

"All animal-drawn transportation is being replaced so far as practicable with motorized equipment. This does not mean that the death-knell of the horse has been sounded, or of the Army mule either. But of the twenty-seven divisions in the continental United States, twenty-five now rely entirely on motor transport for tactical operation and supply. The field trains of our cavalry divisions have been motorized. And as a final indignity to the horse, our cavalry reconnaissance regiments are partially motorized and are equipped with motor trailers for the transportation of their horse elements.

"One hundred and eighty-six thousand vehicles will be required to carry out our motorization policy. Of these, 16,000 have been purchased from 1940 funds, and 39,000 will be delivered before January 15. Funds for the remainder are already appropriated or are before Congress.

"We are faced with an inevitable conflict between the employment of existing facilities, standard assemblies and the like, and the advisability of designing and building ideal military automotive transportation.

STANDARDIZING OF EQUIPMENT

"Advances in the automotive industry are so rapid that it has been difficult for the War Department to measure the merits of different types of transportation in the light of their military practicability. We have so far as possible standardized our conception of commercial types with a view to their military adaptability, favoring the one-half ton, one-and-a-half ton, two-and-a-half ton, four ton and six ton chassis. We are rigidly holding to these limitations on all tactical transportation.

"The question of the interchangeability of parts is one that might seem to have been created to bedevil an army. The quartermaster general tells me that with the assistance of your advisory committee the following reductions have been effected:

"Gas-tank patterns have been reduced from eight types to three; instrument-board fittings, spark plugs and generators from eight to two; coils, condensors and speedometers from six to one; fan belts from twenty-one to three; batteries from twenty-nine to one; door handles from eight to one."

Mr. Patterson was introduced by K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation. A brief business meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers was conducted by its president, Arthur Nutt, engineering vice-president of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation.

Brief remarks were also made by Arthur Nutt, president of the Society of Automotive Engineers, and by A. T. Colwell, nominated as president of the society for 1941. The annual meeting of the society was set for January 6 to 10 in Detroit.

French Madagascar Command Changed

United Press

VICHY, Oct. 28—Brigadier General Guillemin yesterday was named supreme commander of French African forces in Madagascar.

The appointment was another step in a move to reinforce military positions throughout France's colonial empire.

Brigadier General Guillemin will establish headquarters at Tinnanarive. He replaces General Maurice Martin as commander of the island's defenses.

Bergen Declares State of Siege

United Press

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 28—Persistent rioting, sabotage and street demonstrations in Bergen, Norway, have resulted in a state of siege being proclaimed there, it was reported here yesterday.

Several persons were said to have been killed and others were said to have been injured seriously enough to require hospital care, during clashes at political meetings.

Rioting against Nazi party representatives has gotten beyond control of Bergen authorities, said newspaper reports from Stockholm.

Backed by German troops, Bergen police have made wholesale arrests in efforts to suppress disturbances. A number of persons have been convicted of espionage in connection with the riots, it also was said.

Japanese Attache Leaves Berlin

Transocean

BERLIN, Oct. 27—The President of the German-Japanese Society in Berlin, Admiral Richard Foerster gave a reception at the Adlon Hotel here in honor of parting Japanese Naval Attache Admiral Yendo.

Japanese Ambassador to Berlin Kurusu, Admiral Yendo's successor Captain Yokai and representatives of the German Foreign Office, the Ministry of Propaganda and prominent members of the Party were present.

COVERING THE WORLD

From German Sources

ITALY DIDN'T APOLOGIZE

ROME, Nov. 7—The report spread abroad that Italy apologized for the alleged bombing of Monastir was denied by competent Italian quarters. They again stated that the bombing attack on Monastir was not carried through by the Italian air force but either by British or by the Greek air force.

CENSOR CRITICIZED

BOGOTA, Nov. 7—The fact that the British censor also interfered with the Pan-American airmail aroused greatest indignation in Colombia. The newspaper El Siglo, published in big headlines on the front pages a report from Rio de Janeiro stating that several letters showed the interference of the British censor.

RIVER KALABAS CROSSED

ROME, Nov. 7—According to the Italian army report Italian divisions crossed the River Kalabas into the Epirus. The advance was supported by the Italian air force which in addition attacked the railwayline Genina Kalibaki, the station of Florina and the port facilities of Patras and Vollos.

ITALIANS FOR GERMANY

ROME, Nov. 7—Another batch of 20,000 Italian workers of the industry will leave shortly for Germany, as was announced recently. It will follow the first batch of 40,000 workers, who are already employed in Germany.

HERTZOG HONORED

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 7—The demonstrations held in honor of the South-African political leader General James Hertzog by his local adherents immediately after the announcement of his resignation from the leadership of the National Party at Bloemfontain afforded Hertzog the opportunity to explain the reasons for his resignation in a brief address. He thanked his adherents for their loyalty and stated that the road, which Congress took with its policy necessarily would lead to destruction. He furthermore stated briefly that for the time being he did not intend to form a new party, but that he would await further developments. Well-informed quarters emphasize that the conflict between General Hertzog and the pro-English Smuts Government would rather be accentuated by Hertzog's resignation, because a large part of the population of South Africa are behind Hertzog.

BRITISH CONVOY ATTACKED

BERLIN, Nov. 7—A British convoy, which tried to reach London port under the cover of bad weather, was attacked by German dive-bombers. The German fliers scored a direct hit on a large cruiser causing conflagrations and damaging the vessel severely. Numerous armed merchant-vessels tried in vain to prevent the German raiders from dropping their bombs. A merchantman of 10,000 tons received a direct hit in its forepart and remained listing, while a steamer of 5,000 tons was set afire.

S.A. ATTITUDE

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 7—"South Africa is a sovereign independent state and the party is convinced that a republic separated from the British crown is the best form of government and the only guarantee that South Africa will not again be drawn into the wars of Great Britain." This is one of the principal planks of the party platform adopted by the reconstituted National Party of South Africa at its party congress, according to reports from Pretoria.

"The party will strive to attain this aim. The Republic can, however, only be realized on a broad basis of the will of the people, taking into consideration the equal rights of the language and of the culture of the two white sections of the population," the party declared.

DAMAGE TO BE REPAIRED

VICHY, Nov. 7—All bridges blown up in Northern France as well as the roads will be repaired by the end of this year, making normal traffic in this area again possible, as was declared by the French Minister of Transportation Berthelot. Also the towns, which suffered heavy damage in the course of the hostilities, will be reconstructed and repaired. The minister declared that especially the highway from Paris to Strasbourg would be enlarged and put into excellent condition in order to facilitate traffic on this road.

'METAXAS LINE'

SOFIA, Nov. 7—The "Metaxas Line" is no combined and connected line of fortifications, but consists of separate pill boxes measuring six meters and of walls, which are 80 centimeters in thickness, according to Greek fugitives. The pill boxes could house ten men and there were no second line of defense.

COLONIAL PROPOSAL MADE

VICHY, Nov. 7—Rumors were current here that England had proposed to the Vichy Government to recognize the status quo of the French colonies on the condition that France would do the same with regard to the British colonies. It was declared in competent quarters that nothing was known about this proposal. It was remarked that the idea alone of such a proposal was highly remarkable, but that it had no real sense since France never had the intention of attacking the British colonies. On the other hand, Britain, in such an attempt would meet with strong resistance.

From British Sources

BOTH SIDES ACTIVE

ATHENS, Nov. 7—Today's Greek High Command communique mentions artillery fire along the whole front and says that there has been much air activity on both sides. The small Greek air force without loss has again bombed Italian troops and made reconnaissances. The places raided included airdromes in Albania and the Italian base at Bashtova on the Albanian coast.

The communique also reports that Greek troops had withdrawn a short distance at the Adriatic end of the front. The Italians claim that in that sector their troops have crossed the Kalamis River. The last news from this sector was that the Greeks had captured bridgeheads over the river, which is some eight miles inside the frontier.

More than 1,000 Italians who were captured in the Greek thrust against Koritza have arrived at various points in Greece, it was reported today.

CORFU RAIDED

Italian bombers raided Corfu, Yanina and Corinth as well as a number of other places yesterday. In most cases no military damage was done and no casulties are reported. Greek fighters are claimed to have destroyed six out of a force of twenty Italian bombers which attempted another raid on Salonika. The only air-raid on Greece up to mid-afternoon on Tuesday was carried out by a single Italian bomber on Missonghi, where the heart of Byron is buried.

The highest Greek official quarters were stated yesterday to be satisfied with the position. Meanwhile, the Greeks are full of confidence that all the British promises will be fulfilled. Great amusement has been caused here by the Italian claim to have destroyed the Larissa railway station Monday. The Italian Minister to Athens, it is pointed out passed through Larissa safely on Tuesday night in a special Legation train bearing him to Jugoslavia. The line between Athens and Salonika is completely undamaged.

R.A.F. ATTACKS NAPLES

CAIRO, Nov. 7—The official Royal Air Force communiqué issued here today reveals that on Monday night British bombers made a third raid on Naples. Extensive damage was caused and nine bombs exploded on the railway line near the railway junction.

SWISS PAPERS BANNED

BERNE, Nov. 7—The Italian press is launching a campaign of abuse against Switzerland, ostensibly for failing to report the news on the Greek front "objectively," it is noted here. All except two Swiss papers have been banned in Italy.

NAZI HELP TO ITALY

BUDAPEST, Nov. 7—Reports that German troops will soon be sent to Italy's aid have been received here from various sources. This would appear to indicate that Germany's opinion is that Italy is living up to its tradition of the last war—not quite capable of carrying on a successful battle.

A dispatch from a newspaper correspondent in Berlin reports that the High Nazi military circles apparently believed that Italy is unable to defeat Greece alone, foreshadowing the march of German troops southward.

The Jugoslav Minister of War resigned his post last night, under pressure following the aerial bombardment by either Italian or Greek planes of Jugoslavian territory, according to a report from Belgrade today. He was held responsible for having failed to take proper precautions against just such an attack.

MUTUAL BOMBINGS REPORTED

LONDON, Nov. 7—British bombers during daylight yesterday flew inside Germany to attack oil refineries, and a few hours later night bombers were over Berlin.

The Air Ministry this afternoon stated that in daylight attacks the oil refineries at Fochbergen were set on fire. Bombs were also dropped on a German airdrome, and a hangar was hit and enemy aircraft on the ground machine-gunned, one being set on fire. An enemy convoy of naval vessels off den Helder was bombed. Two British aircraft are missing from these operations.

Last night's raids were on a fairly extensive scale: Works at Spandau, a suburb of Berlin, and a junction in the northwestern section of the city, synthetic oil plants at Leuna and Homburg, factories near Dusseldorf, railway yards near Cologne and several other military objectives in Germany were attacked.

Aircraft of the Coastal Command attacked enemy gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez.

The statement in Rome that Italian aircraft and airmen have taken part in the attacks on London has been noted, and the Royal Air Force reserve full liberty of action in regard to Rome.

The German long-range guns shelled the Dover area this morning with little effect. Last night's attacks on Britain were spread over many parts of England and the west of Scotland, though London was again the main target.

In yesterday's raids six enemy aircraft were destroyed and four British fighters were lost, but the pilot of one was saved.

Seven enemy aircraft have been shot down in the raids on Britain today, while five R.A.F. aircraft have been lost but all the pilots are safe, states this evening's Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communique.

Three formations of enemy aircraft, the communique said, approached this country during the day. The first entered the Thames estuary but did not succeed in penetrating to the capital. About the same time a single enemy aircraft flew over London at a great height and was shot down. The second and third formations unsuccessfully attacked the Portsmouth area during the afternoon. Both attacks were intercepted and no damage or casualties are reported. A few bombs were dropped early in the afternoon at two east coast towns but they caused but little damage and only a few casualties.

Of the seven machines brought down, four—three Messerschmidt 109 fighters and a Junkers 87 dive-bomber—were sent crashing into the sea off the coast by one Hurricane squadron.

WHY BERLIN REFUSED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—Germany has refused safe conduct for an American ship to proceed to Ireland to bring back United States citizens although Italy has granted safe conduct, it is announced today by the State Department.

The German Government is said to have declared that the areas around England were "areas of military operations" and that "Berlin is not in a position to furnish any sort of assurance of the nature requested." The Italian Government's prompt and favorable reply communicated to Germany but Berlin declined to act likewise, the State Department has revealed.

The United States contemplated sending a liner, possibly the Manhattan, to a west Ireland port to evacuate about 200 to 500 Americans from Britain. Immediate reaction by officials here was that Germany's answer will probably intensify the already strained relations between Germany and America.

British Credits for Greece

D.N.B.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 7—The twenty million pounds sterling loan for Greece, which the English Government contemplated, will not be coming forth a was reported from London. Instead, considerable credits will be opened up to the Greek Government in London for the purchase of war material. It is assumed in London that the credit, which will be granted now, will be much less than 20 million pounds.

It is also rumored in London that considerable quantities of wheat, maize, coal, rubber and tin will be shipped from Egypt to Greece "for the support of this newest ally of England."

Informed quarters add that the English purchases of Greek figs and raisins, which were not effectuated because of price differences, will now be done after all, since Greece under war pressure must try to get rid of her accumulated export goods at any price.

Germans Evacuated From Bessarabia

Transocean

BUCHAREST, Oct. 27—The last six trucks with Germans from Bessarabia arrived yesterday morning in Rumania, thus concluding the transfer of roughly 90,000 Germans from Bessarabia to Rumania.

About 12,000 Germans are still in transit camps in Galatz, while all others have left already by boat. However, by October 28, these Germans will also be on their way. An ambulance train will fetch about 300 sick persons. A few members of the transfer commission will remain in Galatz for some time to wind up matters. Other members of the commission will go to Dobruja to arrange for the transfer of Dobruja Germans according to the German Rumanian Transfer Treaty.

On October 30 the head of the Central Bureau for German Nationals, SS Leader Lorenz, who has been commissioned by the Fuehrer with directing the transfer action, will arrive at Constanza. Dobruja Germans will embark at the Danube port of Cernavoda for home. This transfer will be concluded by November 15, although over 15,000 persons are involved.

AMERICAN MONEY AIDED FINLAND

U.S. Help Mighty Factor In Keeping Nation Alive According to N. Y. Times

American help has been a mighty factor in keeping Finland alive since the end of the Russian war, it is indicated by American and Finnish reports that are now available for the first time writes A. Marcus Tollet in the N.Y. Times of Oct. 15.

This help has come from two sources and in two forms. The first source is the $30,000,000 authorized by Congress last winter for loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, of which $18,000,000 has already been spent for the purchase of American products other than armaments. The second is the $3,430,000 raised in this country by the Finnish Relief Fund, Inc. under the chairmanship of former President Herbert Hoover, with contributions from thousands of individual Americans.

Finnish authorities state frankly that American supplies, material and medical, have helped to save their country from widespread destitution, hunger and death in the aftermath of the Finnish-Russian struggle. Every corner of Finland has been benefited by them; every section of the population is said to be grateful to the United States Government, and to Mr. Hoover and his American contributors.

The Congressional fund, to begin with, has enabled Finland to buy commodities here which might otherwise have been unobtainable because of the British and German blockades. Every ten days, on the average, a ship from the New World has unloaded the proceeds of the Congressional fund at Petsamo, the little Arctic port which is now Finland's only dependable inlet for ocean-borne supplies. From Petsamo the American cargoes have been carried southward by trucks across the Arctic highway to the once-flourishing cities and towns that were ravaged in the winter war.

COTTON SHIPPED TO FINNISH MILLS

Among foodstuffs, Finland's chief requirements here have been lard, grain, dried fruit and peas and soya beans for feeding the Finnish people and their livestocks. Cotton has been shipped in large quantities so that the looms of Finland's textile mills could operate once more.

Among industrial products, trucks and tractors represent by far the largest shipments, together with spare parts and tools. Other items in the $18,000,000 worth of supplies already purchased, include factory machinery, tin and steel plate, telephone wire, radio sets and tubes, tobacco, chemicals, fertilizer, cotton duck, medicines and medical equipment. Purchases are still being made with the $12,000,000 remaining and will continue to be shipped as long as there is a Finnish port to receive and handle them.

More direct and personal help to individuals in Finland has come from the Hoover Fund, which amounted to more than half of a world-wide relief fund totaling about $8,000,000. The people of the United States thus contributed more than those of all other nations together. The next largest contribution came from Sweden, with about $1,500,000.

Up to the end of July the Finnish relief authorities had distributed $1,401,000 of the American money through provincial governors for general relief expenditures. It had purchased, in Finland and Sweden, $235,122 worth of clothing, shoes, bedding, tools and household utensils. It had made grants to other relief organizations totaling $162,920, and had contributed $177,350 toward the maintenance of hospitals. The expenditure thus had been brought to a total of $1,976,392, leaving almost $1,500,000 on deposit in Finnish marks in the Bank of Finland awaiting distribution.

Help from the Hoover Fund was restricted to evacuees, civilian victims of air raids and families of disabled soldiers. If it had not been for relief contributions from abroad "the position of evacuees and other civilians in distress would have become unendurable," according to former Premier Aimo Cajander.

RELIEF STRICTLY ALLOCATED

Work directly connected with Finland's defense, with the relief and medical care of soldiers, was rigorously excluded; ordinary poor relief was also entirely outside the program. The chief objects of the relief administration were first aid to the sick or injured, rehabilitation of families that had been uprooted from their homes in the areas ceded to Russia, sanitary and medical care of those in need, and moral and spiritual help of many kinds.

Altogether, more than 400,000 persons were helped financially by funds collected in the United States, each receiving on an average about $5. About 55 per cent of those receiving such help were children under 15, in accordance with the wish expressed by the American committee. The wish was wise, as the young in Finland were the most numerous sufferers.

In the lonely rural districts of Northern Finland no less than 46 per cent of the evacuated children were found to be ill, and in one district the mortality among these transplanted youngsters was four times higher than among local children.

Thanks to the Hoover Fund, "travelling children's clinics" have visited every part of the country; nurses tended expectant mothers among the evacuees, and many temporary maternity hospitals were opened, as well as wards for children and consumptives. Hospital wards maintained by the Fund had beds for 3,725 patients; allotment gardens were purchased for 3,000 families of killed or wounded soldiers; small libraries were established for the refugees, and Christian welfare work was begun among the young people who had lost their homes.

90,000 EVACUEES RETURNED

The committee's workers have reported much hardship among the 90,000 evacuees who were able to return to the places in the battle zone where their homes had stood. Some of these families, it is reported, are now living in huts made of twigs and branches, some in caves and hollows.

"On my travels," said one of the Fund's inspectors, "I found that in many evacuee homes there were no real beds, but straw mattresses made of sackcloth were placed in the corners of the rooms. There was a great need for pillows and blankets; one family of nine had only one quilt and one blanket. In another home seven children had only one blanket among them.

"When I asked the mother how the children managed with only one cover, she replied smilingly that they use it in turn, so that the one who felt coldest was allowed to use it for a while, then it was taken over by the next, and so on."

In a radio talk before leaving Finland in August, Robert Maverick, who acted as Mr. Hoover's personal representative there, said that "everywhere the emergency was being met with courage and determination, and a fine spirit of mutual helpfulness was being shown by all the Finns from high officials down to little children."

But relief work will have to be intensified this fall and winter, for it is feared that a second "war winter," with drastically reduced food rations, will lead to undernourishment and widespread disease, especially among children.

In Kuhmo Parish, near the forest battleground along the Russian border, about 100 children have already died since returning to their war-shattered homes. It will be fortunate for Finland that the Finnish relief organization has kept a staff of 11,000 persons, chiefly women, of whom 97 per cent are unsalaried, and that a substantial balance of the American funds still remains to be spent during the winter that lies ahead.

Battleship Barham Leaves Gibraltar

Transocean

ALGECIRAS, Nov. 2—Among the British warships reported to have left Gibraltar yesterday was the battleship Barham, temporarily repaired in Gibraltar.

All British warships and auxiliary cruisers took a course in the direction of the Mediterranean.

This harbor of Gibraltar is still crowded with warships and merchantmen, British scouting planes are in the air almost continuously.

An Italian U-boat is rumored to have been sighted on Tuesday night, close to the entrance to the harbor of Gibraltar. The submarine is reported to have fired a torpedo directed against the harbor entrance.

It is generally assumed that Italian naval forces are in the vicinity of Gibraltar.

A number of British convoys, escorted by destroyers, auxiliary cruisers and aircraft, is said to have left Gibraltar this morning.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh founded at Yale University yesterday a students' anti-war intervention organization.

It will organize affiliates in all the universities in the United States.

Floods in Jugoslavia

Transocean

BELGRADE, Nov. 1—Thousands have been rendered homeless and much cattle and food destroyed as a result of floods in Montenegro, southern Dalmatia, and western Herzogovina.

Reports this morning indicated that railway traffic between Belgrade, Serajevo, and Dobrovnik has been interrupted. Shipping along the Dalmatian coast has also been affected.

Snow is falling in the Velebit mountains.

BRITISH CONVOY DESTROYED

BERLIN, Nov. 8—German surface warships, which are conducting commercial warfare in the Atlantic, completely destroyed a British convoy in the Northern Atlantic on the Western route of British supplies. The gross register tonnage which was destroyed in one blow by the German forces was 86,000 tons.

PARLIAMENT DESERTED

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 8—London's famous parliamentary building had been deserted, the House of Commons and the House of Lords is no longer meeting in the big building. Their present place of meeting is being kept a secret. This was announced over the London radio giving as explanation that the Houses of Parliament were too easy a target for air raid bombings.

NAZIS RETALIATE

BERLIN, Nov. 8—In reprisal action against London several hundred airplanes participated, dropping more than 100,000 kilograms of bombs on the London area alone.

BULLITT NOT TO RETURN

VICHY, Nov. 8—All French papers report from Washington that the former American Ambassador William C. Bullitt will not return to Vichy as Ambassador. The papers insinuate that Bullitt, during the course of the Franco-German war, was much engaged in activity for British interests, which could not always be reconciled with his diplomatic mission. Also, the American Ambassador to Rome, Philipps, would not return to his post on account of "the condition of his health." Political circles declare that they would welcome a new American Ambassador to Vichy, who would be able to grasp the situation faced by France at the present time.

FUEHRER RESOLVED

BERLIN, Nov. 8—"We will fight until the end and until victory is assured for us," the Fuehrer told the old party guard in Munich Loewenbraeu cellar on Friday night, when the historical march to the Feldherrnhalle and the first rising up was commemorated, by which the protagonists of the new Germany registered their protest against the ignominious peace of Versailles. The Fuehrer continued to declare: "I was ready to make peace and for my part was willing to disarm to the fingernails. If the Britons had been willing to accept. But they were not! All right! But now we shall be conclusive and have no halfway measures! I hate nothing worse than compromises and halfway decisions. I have made up my mind: Either we are not soliders or the first in the world, and I then made all preparations accordingly and I had this done most thoroughly! We have increased our production beyond all imagination!"

BRITISH CRUISERS HARD HIT

BERLIN, Nov. 8—One cruiser was set afire by several hits and was brought to a standstill accompanied by many explosions in the course of attacks of German dive bombers. Another British cruiser, which also had to protect a convoy, was made to list heavily by several direct bombhits. On this occasion a total of 6 merchant vessels of 31,000 tons out of a British convoy were sunk by the German dive bombers, while further 6 freighters of 23,000 tons were seriously damaged.

BRITAIN WANTS EIRE PORTS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 8—Swedish papers deal with the British hope for obtaining naval and air bases in Eire. The papers state that England would do everything to obtain two bases on the Southwestern and the Northwestern coast of Eire, in which connection Berchaven and Lough Swill are being mentioned in London in this respect. The papers furthermore say that it was possible that the British Government would ask the U.S. Government to use its influence on the de Valera Government to make it agree to a compromise. It appeared, as if London was once again considering Eire's demand for including Northern Ireland in Eire.

NEDITSCH REPLACED

MILAN, Nov. 8—It is reported from Belgrade that War Minister Neditsch was replaced by General Peter Peschitsch, which event caused a great sensation. With this fact, the paper Gazetta del Popolo says, England had lost its game in Jugoslavia as well, because Neditsch had been the man who had always furthered the spirit of unrest and alarm against the Axis Powers.

The British bombardment of Monastir had caused the climax of the tension on the Cabinet. Neditsch requested full mobilization and stopping of the traffic to South Albania, which was opposed by other members of the Government. A session followed lasting one night and the following morning with the result of replacing Neditsch. It then was again stressed that it was the necessity and the resolution of Jugoslavia to maintain most cordial relations with her neighbors.

BRITISH VICTORY CERTAIN

ATHENS, Nov. 8—A warm tribute to the Greeks has been paid by Major-General Parry, Chief Liaison Officer between the Greek General Staff and the British Middle East Command. "My admiration is that of the whole British Expeditionary Force," he said. "Your country has given a magnificent example to the world and I am sure her voice will resound as a clarion call from one end of the world to the other.

"The considerable British forces, in the Middle East," General Parry added, "are capable of crushing the enemy from whatever quarter he may come. Victory is certain and, as Mr. Churchill has said, we shall share its fruits."

General John Metaxas, the Greek Premier, in a message to the Anglo-Hellenic League today, expressed certainty that victory will eventually crown the struggle for morality, justice and freedom among nations.

General Metaxas also declared in a speech today that British aid to Greece is now flowing regularly and according to plan, it is reported here.

Official military circles confirmed reports that the Italians are continuing pressure on the Epirus front. At the coastal end of the front the Greeks have withdrawn some fifteen miles to the Acheron river, which is about twenty miles from the frontier. The Greek communique this morning indicated that Italian attacks were being successfully repelled.

The Greek forces have improved their forward positions in the Tenri and Koritza sectors where slight local advances are claimed, according to late reports received here. At the same time the artillery duel continues along the entire front line.

ITALIAN BASES BOMBED

A formation of British R.A.F. bombers from bases in Greek territory carried out a most successful raid on the enemy airdrome at Valona on the Albanian coast on Wednesday, according to official information released here. Enemy aircraft on the ground were bombed and machine-gunned and a large number of airmen on the airdrome were also attacked. Several direct hits were observed and several near misses. Opposition by enemy fighters was ineffective and all the British machines returned safely to their bases. Other British bombers attacked the Italian naval base at Brindisi, in the south of Italy, and bombs were dropped on the naval dockyard, destroyers and submarines, the railway terminus and goods yards.

Unconfirmed rumors state that the Italian commander in Albania has been replaced by Marshal Badoglio, Commander-in-chief of the Italian General Staff, who was called in to re-plan the Abyssinian campaign when it was making too slow progress at the end of 1935.

Persistent reports circulating in American circles here refer to increasing trouble and unrest in Albania. Other reports received in these circles state that Italy is sending stronger forces of bomber aircraft and fighter machines to continue their attacks on the civilian population.

BRITISH RECAPTURE GALLABUT

CAIRO, Nov. 8—Yesterday's communique issued from General Headquarters here reported the recapture of Gallabut on the Sudan frontier. In itself Gallabut has no special importance, either strategic or military, it is pointed out. It might be compared with Moyale, a British post captured by the Italians on the Kenya frontier some months ago. But hitherto the British policy has been one of elastic defense which has led to a series of withdrawals, and the superior strength of the enemy at all points of contact has enabled him to score successes which have naturally been much magnified out of all proportion by the Italian press.

The recapture of Gallabut is a sign of the beginning of a reversal of progress. The British forces have been sufficiently strong to hit back, and hit back hard. Gallabut was held by a comparatively strong force of Askaris with Italian officers, who did not make a strategic withdrawal. They were caught napping by a well organized British and Sudanese force backed up by the R.A.F. and armored cars. The Italians were driven out and beaten. Their attempts to counter-attack were also beaten off with success.

ITALIAN AIRCRAFT DESTROYED

NAIROBI, Nov. 8—Shipping on the Juba river was bombed and machine-gunned from low levels by aircraft of the South African Air Force, says an official communique issued here today. The communique adds that enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground on Gobwen airdrome, in Italian Somaliland. All the South African aircraft returned safely.

R.A.F. ATTACK FACTORIES

LONDON, Nov. 8—In this morning's brief Air Ministry communique the phrase "exceedingly heavy" was used for the first time to describe the R. A. F. attacks on Germany last night. Munitions factories in the Ruhr, including the great Krupps armament works at Essen, were among the main objectives bombed.

Further details of the extensive R. A. F. raids show that the targets were consistently hammered by successive waves of forces of medium and heavy bombers over a period of four hours. Some of the heaviest caliber bombs yet carried into Germany and thousands of fire bombs were rained down on one of Germany's largest armament factories, a vast expanse of which became one huge sheet of flame while the buildings glowed at white heat. The attacks began at 8 p.m. on Thursday and for a period of three quarters of an hour the explosions could be seen continuously occurring from within the factory buildings. It was well after midnight that the last of the attackers, diving clear of the clouds to within 1,500 feet, dropped the final load of bombs, continuing the fires which could be seen sixty miles away.

Other objectives included a synthetic oil plant at Cologne, blast furnaces at Dusseldorf, the Dortmund-Emd Canal and shipping in Dunkirk harbor. The enemy submarine base at Lorient was also heavily bombed and many tons of explosives fell on naval workshops, shipbuilding ways, dry docks, a power-station and railway approaches. From all these operations all the British aircraft returned safely.

Enemy air activity over Britain up to 5 p.m. today was on a small scale. A few bombs were dropped by single aircraft, states this evening's Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communique, at a point on the west coast and in country districts of the Midlands. Formations of fighters or fighter-bombers crossed the southeast coast on two occasions. Only a small number penetrated to the London area where a few bombs were dropped. There was little damage and the casualties few.

Large formations of fighters and fighter-bombers are not now very common, it is commented here, and when sent over are almost always intercepted. The Germans are not anxious for engagement, and the losses on both sides are relatively low; recent results are reasonably satisfactory for fighting of this type.

Bulgaria's Southern Frontier Is Calm

Transocean

SOFIA, Oct. 30—The situation on Bulgaria's southern frontier was completely calm, so the Bulgarian Minister of War, General Daskaloff, stressed in a statement before press representatives here yesterday.

The Minister mentioned the fact that officers of the Bulgarian frontier guard had accepted a Turkish invitation to attend the Turkish national holiday celebration in Adrianopel as guests of the Turks in order to show that relations between the two countries continued to be completely friendly.

It is believed here that Turkey does not intend to intervene in the Italo-Greek conflict as long as her own frontiers are not threatened.

This at least is the interpretation given here to the statement made by the Turkish Minister of war, Safet Arikan, who declared in the Turkish newspaper Ulus that the Turkish Army would defend the national frontiers, honor and rights of the Turkish people if necessary.

The express train running between Istanbul, Sofia and Belgrade, which failed to arrive at the Bulgarian frontier on schedule Monday, since the Greeks had not allowed the train to pass through Greek territory, was given permission to pass through Greece yesterday.

The train which had been compelled to interrupt its journey at Adrianopel thereupon continued its journey to Belgrade via Sofia, passing through the narrow strip of Greek territory between Adrianopel and the Bulgarian frontier.

NEW YORK LEADING IN DIAMOND CUTTING

Becomes World Capital for Industry, Succeeding German-Captured Antwerp

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, December 15.—New York City has become the diamond cutting capital of the world.

Figures released by the bureau of custom statistics show that during the months of July, August, and September, 133,590 carats of rough stones valued at $6,157,918 were imported from South Africa by diamond cutting houses in New York. These figures were exceeded only in the boom days of 1929.

Prior to the German invasion, Antwerp, Belgium, was the center of the industry with approximately 20,000 diamond cutters employed. Amsterdam, Holland, with between 2,000 and 2,500 men working, was in second place. New York was a poor third with only 350 men working in various diamond cutting houses. But that standing has been changed and since the Low Countries were occupied by Nazi forces. New York City has moved to the top.

Status Before the War

In value of carats produced, New York ranked only slightly behind the two foreign cities prior to the Nazi attack on Belgium and Holland. Because of United States custom duties it was cheaper to send the larger diamonds here to be cut. There is a 10-per-cent duty on finished stones while rough stones may be imported free of duty. Consequently, New York received the larger stones to be finished.

The English blockade of German-occupied lands now prevents the Low Countries, Belgium and Holland, from getting rough diamonds to work with. This leaves New York the sole remaining large producer of finished stones.

Also Belgium and Holland no longer can obtain rough diamonds since the South African diamond market is controled by an English syndicate. They will not sell to Belgium or Holland for fear that the diamonds will be seized by the Germans. Germany at the present time needs large quantities of diamonds which are vital for various machine tools used in defense industries.

Before the war all rough diamonds were shipped directly to England so that the diamond syndicate could control their distribution to the various cutting centers so that the prices would remain constant.

Shipped Directly to U.S.

At present the rough diamonds are either flown to the United States by the Atlantic Clipper or are shipped directly here from South Africa.

Puerto Rico, a United States territory, ranks next to New York as a diamond cutting center. The Insular Department of Agriculture and Commerce recently helped a refugee diamond cutter from Antwerp to set up a diamond cutting shop there. Another shop has been located on the island for 15 years.

Chicago Philadelphia, Cincinnati and San Francisco are other American cities having diamond cutting houses. But these shops are engaged chiefly in diamond repair work.

Not only has New York become the diamond cutting capital of the world but attempts are also being made to establish it as the jewelry center of the world. The world's largest jewelry exchange was opened recently with more than 50 nationally prominent jewelers contracting for permanent booths in the exchange.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN BORDER OUTLOOK

Dispute Between Thailand and Indo-China Better After Reprisal Raids

United Press

VICHY, December 22.—The situation between Indo-China and Thailand is improving after French reprisal air raids, dispatches from Saigon indicate today.

The French Government says that the dispatches show authorities at Bangkok are not opposed to resumption of negotiations between the French and Thai representatives.

Negotiations were arranged last June but never actually took place because Thailand, instead of proceeding with friendly negotiations to settle disputed possession of areas near the Mekong River, chose direct action, the Government says.

Mr. Rober Garreau, counselor of the French legation at Bangkok, did not hold full instructions enabling him immediately to engage in conversations with Thai authorities, the French claim.

EXPORT CONTROL TIGHTER

More Articles Due for Licence Restrictions in America

United Press

WASHINGTON, December 20.—Colonel Russell Maxwell, U.S. Export Control Administrator, announced on the radio today that license restrictions probably will be imposed on several articles and materials.

Colonel Maxwell emphasized that the action did not mean an embargo but that shippers will be required to obtain licenses before the materials affected leave the country.

New Regulations Prohibit Express Passengers From Getting Off at Intermediate Stations

Now regulations enforced by the Tokyo Local Railway Bureau to prohibit express train passengers from alighting at certain stations have since their introduction Saturday resulted in breaking of the rules by a number of passengers.

In a single day, Monday, there were 87 defaulters along the Tokaido line, 12 along the Tohoku line, 7 along the Joban line, totaling 106, the Asahi reports.

Along the Tokaido line, most of the rule-breakers were discovered around Atami, Ito and Hakone. Having entered an express train, the offenders, mostly third-class passengers, including salaried men and factory workers, would break the rules by alighting at the stations where such procedure is not allowed, apparently lured by the attraction of the hot spring resorts.

At Numazu, many passengers, even among the first and second classes, narrowly averted having their tickets confiscated and paying double fares, when they were reminded that they must return to their cars, after enjoying a stroll along the station platform during the fairly long stop.

Those routes not to be covered independently in express trains, as quoted by the Asahi, follow:

From Tokyo to Numazu on the Tokaido line; Ueno to Shirakawa on the Tohoku line; Ueno to Hidachi on the Joban line; Ueno to Minakami on the Jeetsu line; and Ueno to Karuizawa on the Shinetsu line.

CAMACHO PROPOSES JUDICIARY CHANGES

Mexico's President Advocates Appointment of Judges for Indefinite Terms

United Press

MEXICO CITY, December 20.—General Manuel Avila Camacho, Mexico's President, in a message to the Mexican Senate, today requested a constitutional amendment changing the present six-year tenure for all Mexican judges to an indefinite term in order to establish a permanent judiciary of "independence, honesty and wisdom."

It was President Camacho's second major reform proposal since he was inaugurated less than three weeks ago, following by eight days a decree giving individual peasants the right to acquire private title to land.

This might be the beginning of the end of the communal farm system which General Lazaro Cardenas, General Camacho's predecessor as President, promoted, informed sources believed.

It was significant that General Camacho's two major acts thus far represented two important reversals of his predecessor's policy, said observers.

President Camacho emphasized he desired the change in judiciary tenure to keep judges "away from political agitation, which so many times has twisted the application of justice."

Mr. Camacho recommended the retention of a law allowing the President to remove a justice with the approval of Congress.

He said that such an instrument was necessary to purge the courts "of those who take bribes or who are inefficient."

He emphasized that the permanence of term under the new legislation would gurantee security and freedom to righteous judges.

He said that the system had been tried successfully in other countries.

AMERICANS NOW GETTING PROPAGANDA CONSCIOUS

Skepticism Healthy Sign, Says Hallowell, but Danger of Over-Indulgence Warned

I.N.S.

HOLLYWOOD, December 15.—"As never before, the American public has become propaganda conscious. To the extent that this awareness of propaganda has fostered an attitude of skepticism it is a healthy sign but when, as too frequently happens, this attitude of suspended judgment becomes an attitude of cynicism it is a dangerous indication of degeneracy," Dr. John H. Hallowell, instructor in political science on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California, told a University Extension Division here.

"An increasing number of people are saying: Everything is propaganda, you can't believe anything. Now those who adopt this cynical attitude are surrendering the right of judgment by refusing to believe in the truthfulness or value of anything. They are, in effect, delegating the right of judgment to some one else. As more and more individuals refuse to accept the responsibility of making judgments as to the truthfulness and value of events and opinions, fewer and fewer individuals will assume this responsibility for them," Dr. Hallowell warned.

"If carried far enough eventually a small group of self-chosen leaders will perform the functions of defining truth and value for everyone. No one except them will have anything to say about what is good and what is bad. This is what happened in the totalitarian dictatorships for it was in no small part, indeed, an attitude of cynicism, a disbelief in the existence of objective truth and value, that made the totalitarian dictatorship a possibility."

BUCHAREST, December 21.—General Edward Rydz-Smigly, Polish "strong man" until his country was overrun in 1939, "simply ran away" yesterday from the former monastery in the village of Tasmana where he had been interned after Poland was crushed.

Tasmana is about 125 miles from Bucharest. General Rydz-Smigly was confined there under exceedingly free conditions.

The gendarmerie captain who was guarding him was arrested after the escape.

AID TO BRITAIN AIM OF FRENCH OCEANIA

Capital of de Gaulle in South Seas Needs U.S. Help to Carry Out Task

United Press

NOUMEA, New Caledonia, December 21.—As capital of General Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement in French Oceania, New Caledonia is making determined efforts to adjust itself to a purely Pacific economy and to aid Great Britain as a loyal ally.

Following last September's bloodless evolution by the local people, exiling partisans of the Vichy Government to French Indo-China, New Caledonia was given the assurance of Mr. Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister, that collaboration with the British Dominions would not affect French sovereignty.

To insure united effort, General de Gaulle, leader of the Free French movement, has nominated Mr. Henri Sautot New Caledonia Governor, as High Commissioner for all French Oceanic possessions, including Tahiti.

Volunteers Leaving

Small drafts of Free French navy volunteers are leaving each week for Europe and a Pacific battalion of French and native Polynesian and Melanesian troops similar to that sent overseas during the last World War now is in process of formation. These forces are expected to join de Gaulle forces in North Africa early next year. Three hundred men now are ready in Tahiti and another 300 where forming the first contingent.

New Caledonia's difficult economic position as a result of sudden severance from Europe has been ameliorated by an agreement under which Australia accepts 570 tons of nickel concentrates monthly from this colony in exchange for vital supplies such as smelting coal and flour. The agreement followed mutual cancellation of customs duties and the appointment of an Australian commercial attache for Noumea.

Rejected Offer

New Caledonia also rejected a Japanese offer to buy the colony's coffee and copra output for which Japan would have paid badly-needed American dollars if it were allowed to import nickel concentrates.

It was hoped here that Washington was beginning to realize New Caledonia's plight, involving its need to sell minerals, and an acute shipping shortage.

Mr. Sautot is particularly anxious to maket in the United States the colony's surplus nickel, chrome, coffee and copra, in exchange for petrol and agricultural and mining machinery, which has been found to be too expensive in Australia.

Accordingly, Mr. Sautot has just asked General de Gaulle to request Washington to appoint a consul or attache for Noumea at the earliest possible moment. Such a move would give satisfaction and confidence to New Caledonia, tending to cement Pacific relationships with America. The Colony's isolation was due to the Paris centralization policy, which, some officials here said, treated the island as a colony for exploitation, run on behalf of European shareholders, rather than for white colonists.

The desire has been freely voiced for the development of a self-governing French colony here on the New Zealand model.

PRESIDENT'S TRUST IN HOPKINS EVIDENT

Former Commerce Secretary Sticks Close to Roosevelt's Side Despite Illness

I.N.S.

WASHINGTON, December 15.—Frail, fearless Mr. Harry Hopkins is accepted in and out of Washington as probably President Roosevelt's closest friend and unofficial adviser.

Had his health held, there are many who believe he would have been Mr. Roosevelt's running mate in the campaign just closed instead of Vice-President-elect Henry A. Wallace.

The 50-year-old transplanted Iowan no longer holds any public office—he was forced to retire several months ago as Secretary of Commerce because of poor health—but 1,6000, Pennsylvania Avenue and Hyde Park, New York, are his home addresses and he is a constant companion of the President.

It was Mr. Hopkins, aided by Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, and Attorney-General Robert H. Jackson, who stage-managed Mr. Roosevelt's nomination for a third term at the Chicago convention. The manner in which he did it brought the wrath of old line Democratic leaders down on his head with such terms as "political amateurs" but the fact remains that the desired ticket of Roosevelt and Wallace was nominated and elected.

Won Election Pool

Political amateur or not, it is noteworthy that Mr. Hopkins won the Hyde Park electoral pool from Presidential aides and newspaper men with a forecast of 448 electoral votes for Mr. Roosevelt, as against the 449 he actually got. The President modestly predicted he would win with 340, and the forecast of former National Chairman-Postmaster General James' A. Farley, who correctly anticipated all but Maine and Vermont in 1936, was that Mr. Roosevelt would get only 355 votes in 1940.

In President Roosevelt's 1940 campaign travels, the name of Mr. Harry Hopkins was almost never on the official list but he was almost always on the train, helping the Chief Executive on his speeches, along with New York Supreme Court Justice Sam Rosenman and Mr. Robert Sherwood, Pulitzer prize-winning playwright.

On election night, while Mrs. Roosevelt was entertaining most of the Hyde Park guests at supper at her Val Kill cottage several miles distant from the big family house, Mr. Hopkins was one of a trio who remained behind at the mansion during the tense period when early returns showed the trend. The other two who slipped in and out of the dining room which the President had converted into his work room were Personal Secretary Marguerite LeHand and Judge Rosenman.

Formerly Social Worker

Mr. Hopkins first came to the President's attention when the latter was governor of New York. A social worker since his graduation from Grinnell (Iowa) College, Mr. Hopkins was director of the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association in 1931 when Mr. Roosevelt appointed him executive director, then chairman of the State's Temporary Emergency Relief Administration.

In 1933 when Mr. Roosevelt came to Washington as President he brought Mr. Hopkins with him to head the old Civil Works Administration, first of the federal relief agencies. This was changed into Works Progress Administration and Mr. Hopkins became WPA administrator.

It was as WPA chief that Mr. Hopkins had his famous run-in with former Governor Martin L. Davey of Ohio over the manner of expenditure of federal relief funds in the Buckeye State. After a bitter exchange, Governor Davey announced that Mr. Hopkins would be arrested on sight if he ventured into Ohio. The lanky WPA administrator hopped the first train and exposed himself to arrest or the personal wrath of Governor Davey but neither was forthcoming.

In 1938, Mr. Hopkins underwent a major intestinal operation at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota.

Named Secretary of Commerce

While he was recuperating, President Roosevelt named him Secretary of Commerce and had Congress create the post of Undersecretary of Commerce so the Department could be efficiently managed pending Mr. Hopkins' return to health.

Early in 1939, Mr. Hopkins made his first speech as Secretary of Commerce—and he chose Iowa, the state of his birthplace, as the locale. That same spring, while vacationing at Warm Springs, Georgia, with the President, Mr. Hopkins announced he had leased a farm at Grinnell, Iowa, and was re-establishing his residence there.

Only the President and Mr. Hopkins have the answer to this move but it was widely speculated at the time that Mr. Roosevelt was grooming his protege to be his 1940 running mate—or White House choice for the Democratic presidential nomination had not the Chief Executive finally decided to run for a third term. An Iowa residence would have been necessary had Mr. Hopkins gone on the ticket as vice-presidential nominee in view of the traditional restriction making it undesirable to name two men from the same state. Both the President and Mr. Hopkins voted then in New York.

Long Period of Convalescence

Whatever the plans may have been, the Commerce Secretary suffered a relapse in the summer of 1939 and had to return to Rochester, Minnesota, for treatment. Then followed a prolonged period of convalescence, part of which was spent at the White House.

In between his undercover political activities this year, Mr. Hopkins aided the President in plotting the framework of the national defense set-up.

Although he regained a good measure of his health, Mr. Hopkins reluctantly decided in September, 1940, he could not give the required attention to his Cabinet job and resigned, to be succeeded by Mr. Jesse Jones. The President accepted the resignation in a letter which emphasized that their close friendship and association would always continue.

Will Head F.D.R. Library

Eventually Mr. Hopkins will become active head of the President's cherished Hyde Park Library. This structure will be formally opened to the public next July, but with Mr. Roosevelt serving a third term it is doubted that any of the Chief Executive's political and personal papers of recent years will become available. Already, however, Mr. Hopkins has aided the President in the gigantic task of cataloguing the vast quantity of material that will go into the library, going back to 1910, when Mr. Roosevelt first entered politics as a state Senator in New York.

During the coming year Mr. Hopkins plans to do some lecturing and writing. It is a safe bet he will be found at the White House or at Hyde Park a good part of the time.

KREUTZER APPEARS IN BENEFIT CONCERT

Outstanding Pianist Gives Hibiya Hall Concert for Asahi Charity Fund

By I. J. Fisher

For the benefit of its Charity Fund, the Asahi newspaper presented Leonid Kreutzer, eminent concert artist and pedagog, in a recital last evening at the Hibiya Public Hall. The pianist was for a number of years one of the two outstanding teachers in the Berlin Hochschule. He also was known in Europe as an orchestral conductor, of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, wielded the baton with Kreutzer as the soloist.

The program last night opened with Brahms' Sonata in F minor, opus 5. After the intermission Schumann's Carnaval, opus 9, was given. Four Nocturnes by Chopin, C. minor, opus 49 No. 1; C sharp minor, opus 27 No. 1; G Chopin, consisted of Six Etudes: C minor, opus 10. No. 12; E Major, opus 10, No. 3; F Major; G flat Major, opus 10, No. 5; G sharp minor, opus 25, No. 6, and the A minor of opus 25, No. 4.

Played Difficult Numbers

The early Brahms' work is orchestral in writing and early critics could not understand how it could be played on a piano. The writing does give this impression and seems to have neglected the gentler possibilities of the instrument. However, as it was rendered by Mr. Kreutzer it was evident that he had fathomed the melodic lines and the gentler aspects of the composition, and the melodies stood out clearly from the maze of intricate writing, and the whole work was imbued with depth of feeling. The romantic element in the gentle-flowing beautiful song, so nocturne-like, in the Andante; the pathos and tragic in the unusual Scherzo; and the touch of passion in the finale were all understandingly brought out.

Schumann's Carnaval was a masterly performance, and the two sides of the composer's character, the reflective and the impulsive, were felt. The lengthy, moody work was given a brilliant and a poetic rendition. In the Preamble there was a warmth of tone, control of tempi and energy that foretold what to expect in the remainder of the work. The Arlequin was sparkling; the Valse Noble was given with subtle expression and eloquence and the skilful use of rubato before the repeat of the waltz was most effective. The Eusebius was given with such calmness and intimacy, contrasting with the passion given to the Florestan. Coquette charmed with its tonal variety and the perfect rhythmic control. Papillons was charming, and the lightness and almost floating way in which the Lettres Dansantes was played showed wonderful control. Musically the Chiarina and Chopin movements were highlights, making such contrasts between mobility and simple loveliness. In the Reconnaissance the duet section between treble and base was a thing of beauty. Finally the closing Marche des Davidebundler contre les Philistines had spirit, power and yet showed remarkable restraint. Certainly the artist caught the inner spirit of the music.

Chopin Selections Good

Space forbids itemizing all of the Chopin numbers, but mention must be made of the realization of the dramatic touch in the C sharp minor Nocturne and the perfection of the wave-like arpeggios. The sections of the G Major Nocturne were magnificently contrasted. The lightness and sparkling tone in the G flat Major Etude with the left-hand restraint was indeed virtuoso playing, and the exquisite and Chopin delicacy in the G sharp minor outstanding.

The entire program was marked by such perfection of details: the variety of tonal quality and shading given to notes and chords repeated three or four times, the carrying over of sustained tones by perfect use of the pedal, and other similar characteristics that distinguish between playing and the work of a genuine artist. These finer points were certainly understood by the audience and each group was roundly applauded, as was the case with individual numbers in the Chopin groups, and the artist was repeatedly recalled.

SPEED ICE-SKATE RECORD SMASHED BY MEITEN RI

New High Mark Set in 1,500-Meter Event at Mt. Akagi Training Quarters

Meiten Ri of Meiji University set up a new Japanese record in the 1,500-meter speed ice-skating event last Monday atop Mt. Akagi in Gumma Prefecture, reports the Miyako.

During practice races held by members of the Meiji University skating team there, he covered the course in 2 minutes 23.8 seconds, breaking the mark of 2 minutes 25 seconds held by Shoen Ri, his team-mate.

The members have been training on the summit of Mt. Akagi for some time and are aiming to win the crown for the ninth consecutive time at the coming National Speed Ice-Skating Meet.

BRITISH HOLD BULK OF THAILAND TRADE

England Retains Leading Place In Nation's Industry—Western Ideas Spread

Thailand has long had close trade relations with Great Britin, and nearly 40 per cent of the total Thai trade, both imports and exports, has been with the British, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. Only about 10 per cent of the trade is with Japan, it reports.

"Of the Thai exports, more than 80 per cent go to Penang, Singapore, and other British ports, and less than five per cent go to Japan. English products entering Thailand are almost double the Japanese goods purchased. Nearly all the tin, which constitutes more than 20 per cent of the export, passes through Penang, British port of the Malay States to the south," the bulletin says.

"In Bangkok live several hundred Japanese merchants and over 2,500,000 Chinese. Many of the latter operate bakeries, tailor and butcher shops, hardware, jewelry and general stores. They make up the bulk of the traders and money lenders, and in large part constitute the middle class of Thailand.

British Hold Wood

"The northern part of the country is well-forested. The teak wood industry is almost entirely in British hands, with production normally in excess of $2,000,000 worth of timber a year.

"In the past, young men and women of Thailand to the number of 150 and more have regularly been students in English universities, in line with the Thai policy of sending students abroad on Government scholarships. Normally, many go to Japan, the Philippines, to France, Germany, Canada and other countries. There are now 84 in the United States.

"The former president of the council and commander of the army studied in Germany, where he was a classmate of Marshal Herman Goering. In later years officers were sent to Japan for naval and military training. Thailand also found warships could be purchased most cheaply in Japan and in Italy, in building up the navy. Thailand now has universal conscription, and has been spending about a fourth of the national income for defense, about $50,000,000 a year.

"The finance Minister has a British adviser, and the country's reserves are mostly in British securities. Many Thai technical experts are Americans.

Trend to Democracy

"In 1932, Thailand adopted a constitutional government, and new treaties were drawn designed to give the nation full jurisdictional and fiscal autonomy. This trend to democracy has been attributed largely to the infiltration of Western idea following the foreign education of number of the more intelligent and influential people.

"The Thaiens are more than 80 per cent farmers, and the new Government has carried out extensive irrigation work, established fish hatcheries, and is conducting experimental work in hemp, fruits, tobacco, rice and cotton cultivation. Agricultural exhibits have been promoted throughout the nation.

"Almost a million acres are in rice, with smaller areas in rubber, coconuts, tobacco, cotton and pepper. The rubber plantations in southern Thailand export about $10,000,000 in rubber annually. This is the principal mineral export.

"The farm power is supplied for the most part by more than a million bullocks and water buffaloes. In the teak forests to the north elephants drag the logs to the rivers. A recent census of elephants showed more than 10,000, most of them domesticated.

"Thailand is shaped somewhat like an elephant's head, with ears raised, Bangkok the capital in the mouth, and the trunk extending somewhat irregularly down along the Malay Peninsula. Its area of 200,000 square miles is almost twice that of Colorado, and its population is nearly 15,000,000.

"With the development of war conditions in the Far East, its geographic position has become somewhat precarious. It is almost surrounded by French Indo-China on the east and the British province of Burma on the west."

LARGE SCALE MINTING

More New Coins to Be Issued by Indian Government

Reuters

NEW DELHI, December 23.—The Indian Government has decided to institute a large scale minting of silver rupees for early issue, owing to the increased demand due to trade and absorption by hoarding.

The new coins will consist of ½ silver and ½ alloy, as compared with the present coins which are 11/12 silver and 1/12 alloy.

The new coins will have a special groove in the edge which will constitute a practically absolute safeguard against counterfeiting.

Insufficient Air Volunteers

Transocean

WASHINGTON, December 16.—Insufficient numbers of American youths are volunteering for services in the United States air forces. Consequently requirements must be made less rigid, American newspapers stated today. In their editorials many of them deplored "the unexpected lack of enthusiasm of American youth" which is endangering the plan to create a great American air force.

ROME PAPERS ISSUE WARNING ON U.S. AID

War Entry Will Mean Clash With Japan—Tri-Power Pact Now in Active Phase

United Press

ROME, December 21.—The United States will face Japan's fleet in the Pacific if America goes to Britain's aid, Rome newspapers said this morning.

Commenting on announcement of formation of mixed commissions to work out details of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Tripartite Alliance, the papers also said the commissions indicate the pact is entering an active phase.

"The United States can be certain, that if it goes to the aid of England it will be faced with the Japanese fleet in the Pacific, said the Popolo di Roma. The Messaggero affirmed that the pact has a peacetime as well as wartime purpose.

"The rapid constitution of military, political and economic commissions demonstrates that the tripartite pact has entered an executive phase for all accords which are destined to aid collaboration of the three great totalitarian nations," the Messaggero said.

"The tripartite pact has not only the character of a military alliance but also high constructive significance," the paper explained. "This is its fundamental value for the destiny of three continents."

"The recent decision of three Governments transforms the Berlin pact from a theoretical sphere into the field of concrete, actual practice," wrote the Popolo di Roma.

"Thus that tripartite pact, which was perfectly developed through the function of political, military and economic commissions, enters an active, dynamic phase.

"At the same time it retains all its weight, which is the joint will of Rome, Berlin and Tokyo to oppose any foreign intrusion in the present conflict.

"There can exist no doubt," the Popolo di Roma said, "as to the consequence of possible Anglo-American military solidarity. The United States may be certain that in going to the aid of England it will find itself faced with the whole power of the Japanese navy, and thus be forced to divert its forces to the Pacific."

URUGUAY AND ARGENTINA AGREE ON CO-OPERATION

Military and Economic Protocols of Far Reaching Effect Are Signed

Transocean

MONTEVIDEO, December 16.—Far-reaching military and economic co-operation between Uruguay and Argentina was inaugurated with the signing of two protocols by the Argentine and the Uruguayan Foreign Ministers following their conference at Colonia.

These protocols provide for the exchange of military experts between the two countries in order to bring about actual military co-operation. Also it was agreed that far-reaching economic co-operation would be attempted. The two foreign ministers will submit memoranda to their Governments showing the advantages of a Uruguayan-Argentine customs union.

Nevertheless, informed South American political quarters pointed out, the question of the establishment of naval and air bases on the Rio de la Plata was not settled. This project, with which the United States is closely connected, has been complicated by the fact that Brazil has served notice that it will not consider any arrangement in relation to the Rio de la Plata as final unless it also is consulted.

This has given rise to the belief that another conference will be called in which the Foreign Minister of Brazil will confer with his Uruguayan and Argentine colleagues. It was expected that Paraguay and Bolivia might also send delegates to such a conference, since Rio de la Plata questions also vitally affect them.

Anti-British Demonstrations

Transocean

KABUL, December 19.—Many protest demonstrations were held recently by Indian students against the arrest of their leader, Maschar Ali. It was also reported that similar demonstrations were held throughout Punjab Province against the arrest of workers, peasants, farmers and students, who had exposed themselves as followers of the Indian Congress movement and whose activities the British have now for several weeks been trying to suppress by large-scale arrests.

New Mexican Ambassadors

TEACHERS WILL GET ILLNESS INSURANCE

Cabinet Approves Mutual Benefit System for Primary School Instructors

With the objective helping primary school teachers in cases of sickness, injuries and other emergencies, a mutual benefit union system was officially decided at Friday's Cabinet meeting. It will come into effect from February, next year, after announced by an Imperial ordinance, reports the Asahi.

Teachers in primary and young men's schools are qualified to receive aid from this system which is similar to mutual benefit systems for Government officials. The headquarters will be established within the Education Ministry and branch offices will be opened in prefectures under the supervision of prefectural authorities.

A small portion of one per cent of the teacher's monthly salary will be deducted and to this will be added a subsidy from the prefectures, equivalent to the total amount of the members' installments. One half of the prefectures' subsidy will be allotted from the national treasury.

Teachers will be able to receive aid in the following cases:

1. All medical expenses will be paid members who have become sick or injured during their duties while 80 per cent of the expenses will be paid if the ailments occurred while off duty.

2. Half of the medical expenses will be paid for six months to families of the union's members in cases of sickness or injuries. However, in cases of tuberculosis, the six-months' period will be extended to that of one-year.

Teachers who have resigned from their posts because of tuberculosis and in consideration of their pupils' health, will receive benefits amounting to their six-months' salaries.

Expectant mothers will receive an allotment of ¥20.

Existing aid organs for the benefit of teachers will be absorbed by the new union. However, existing organizations which have shown good results will be allowed to continue.

LITTLE STRAIN SEEN IN NAZI CHRISTMAS

Gifts Somewhat Harder to Obtain, but Stores Bulge With Shoppers

United Press

BERLIN, December 26.—Germany's second war Christmas generally was about the same as 1939, except shoppers this year found desirable gifts harder to obtain than last year and more items were sold out by November.

Approximately 4,000,000 Germans stood under arms, but Germans at home attempted, insofar as rationing and other restrictions made it possible, to achieve a normal Yuletide.

Department stores throughout Berlin were decorated. Display shows—which were not allowed to feature the war angle—included wreathed ceilings inside, trimmed with long red and green cloth streamers, flaked with minute stars.

Stores were filled with purchasers who fingered various articles, then rembered that the strict economic system rations practically everything from candies to ladies' underwear.

Germans took the famed Rhine or Mosel wine, which is relatively inexpensive, or they drank moderately good German beer, which at present is inferior to the pre-war product.

A few drank German champagne. French cognac and wines were unobtainable.

They sat at a table not as rich as in previous years, but, nevertheless, appetizing. Even though many were without goose, blue-carp, venison, rabbit and delicacies such as marzipan and pfeffernuesse, the German frau was able to prepare a good meal with pork or chicken, possibly also a variety of sausage meats, flanked by the usual potatoes, vegetables, nuts and raisins.

Christmas toys mainly were miniature tanks, machine-guns and cannons. As usual, construction and detail were nearly perfect. Model toy soldiers, fliers and sailors increased the heart tick of many youngsters.

Model building sets for Stukas and destroyer and pursuit planes were also featured.

However, many such toys, plus electric trains and talking dolls, were received this year by children whose parents were far-sighted enough to buy them months ago. Stocks were virtually exhausted.

There also were war and colonial games, ranging from espionage to farm-building in the colonies. Typical titles were: "We Are Sailing Against England," "Enemy Listening," "Girl in the Colonies," "Building a Colonial Farm."

One game featuring the colonial angle allots the winner the right to marry a farmer.

Most popular Christmas gift, however, with children and grown-ups alike, was books. Prices were normal, paper still was good and binding was excellent.

The major presents for exchange in families were home wares, handicraft products and tobacco. Clothing is on the point system, which practically eliminated clothing gifts to anyone outside the immediate family. Hats and leather gloves, however, are still point-free.

Record Christmas Mail

Reuters

LONDON, December 19.—Christmas parcel and packet post is the heaviest ever known despite the black-out and other war handicaps. Every few minutes huge consignments of Christmas mails are arriving for sorting, and many tons are going out hour after hour, night and day.

It is noteworthy that the amount of letters and parcels constitutes a record, while there seems to be a definite decline in the number of Christmas cards.

Wrestlers Pay Homage to Own War Dead

The service was attended by Admiral Isamu Takahita, retired, the president of the association and others concerned.

SOCIETY COMPILING SCIENCE OF JAPAN

International Cultural Relations Group Will Distribute Report Abroad

Compilation of the Science of Japan will be undertaken next spring by the Society for International Cultural Relations, and volumes will be widely distributed abroad, reports the Asahi.

Mr. John Henry Wigmore, an American and a doctor of law, who recently completed a volume regarding the history of Japanese law by a request from the Society for International Cultural Relations, is the principal factor bringing about the compilation of the Science of Japan. Mr. Wigmore, dreading the aggravation of the feelings of the American public toward Japan, repeatedly has advised the society to enlighten the American public regarding Japan through cultural enterprises, says the Asahi, the compilation of the Science of Japan will be with this objective.

The first conference was held Tuesday at Tokyo Club and the work of compiling a Japanese edition of the Science of Japan will begin from January. The Japanese edition is expected to be completed by March and will be translated into English, German, French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese.

Members of the editing committee are Mr. Teizo Ogawa, professor of the medical department at Tokyo Imperial University, who will take charge of the medicine and pharmacy division; Mr. Yakuchi Noguchi, professor of the agricultural department at Tokyo Imperial University, who will be in charge of the agriculture science division; mathematics will be under charge of Mr. Shokichi Yanaga, assistant professor of the science department at Tokyo Imperial University; astronomy and physics, Mr. Junichi Sugai, vice-director of the culture department of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association; chemistry, Mr. Seiji Uno, Kanagawa Industrial Laboratory; mineralogy and geology, Mr. Mascience department at Tohoku Imperial University, biology and anthropology, Mr. Shuzo Ishida, professor at Bunka Gakuin, and science in general, Mr. Hideomi Takushoku, Toa Laboratory.

AIR UNITS PLANNED WITH HOME GUARDS

Courses Considered in Bombing And Formation Flying for Civilian Pilots

I.N.S.

WASHINGTON, December 20.—Plans to establish a Home Guard Air Force in the event national guard aviation units are called into Federal service, are taking "definite shape," the National Aeronautic Association reports today.

Under the provisions of a proposal now before the Aviation Advisory Committee of the Civil Aeronautics authority, home guard units would be drawn from a Civil Air Reserve of private pilots, which would be established under Civil Aeronautics Authority auspices.

Aeronautics association officials declared the proposed Civil Air Reserve would be most effective if organized under the immediate surveillance of the army and navy, just as the naval reserves, organized reserves, and the sea scouts have been.

The merits of such a reserve have already been demonstrated, they declared, by several groups of private fliers who on their own initiative have undertaken programs to train their members for military and non-combatant service.

As an example of these programs, National Aeronautic Authority officials pointed to the Civilians Air Reserve, originally formed by Mr. Milton Knight of Toledo, Ohio, which with the unofficial co-operation of the national guard in several states, has arranged courses for its members in bombing, formation flight and observation. The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association has several hundred members who have voluntarily and at their own expense formed their own air guard and are taking military flying courses in which army texts are used.

Kyoto's Temple Bells To Speed Parting Year On National Broadcast

The sound of the bells of the Kiyomizu, Chionin and other old temples in Kyoto in speeding out 1940 on New Year's Eve will be broadcast by the Radio Broadcasting Corporation of Japan on a national hook-up. The bells will begin to ring at 11:58 o'clock.

RURAL BRITAIN GETS ADDED MEDICAL AID

Practitioners in Cities Flock to Relieve Need in Congested Countryside

I.N.S.

LONDON, December 15.—Hundreds of doctors are today leaving the cities for country to help country practitioners who are being swamped by the increase in the number of their patients as the result of evacuation.

While many pitiful tales are told of doctors in London and the big towns whose practices have gone, country doctors have been working as many as 20 hours a day and many have broken down under the strain.

Appeals were sent from the reception areas and an organized scheme of transfer of doctors has been set up.

The work is being done by the Central Medical War Committee, which the doctors themselves set up at the beginning of the war at the request of the Minister of Health.

Dr. Anderson, of the British Medical Association, said today that the committee has already placed hundreds of doctors.

"We are almost daily receiving calls for help from doctors in the country.

"At the same time we get others coming to us with the news that practices have disappeared, and wanting to know if we can help.

"The whole object of the committee is to organize the medical services of the country so they may give the greatest benefit to the greatest number. That, I think, we are doing."

Some of the district nurses go days on end without taking off their clothes. Reception towns have been forceed to extend their health services and need more nurses and doctors.

All this will soon be abolished, the committee declared, and enough doctors and nurses, concentrated in various areas to deal with any possible winter epidemics.

POPE ISSUES PLEA FOR WORLD ACCORD

Says New Order Must Not Be Based on Principle Might Makes Right

United Press

VATICAN CITY, December 25.—Pope Pius XII, in a Christmas message broadcast to the world, said today that the "Church cannot favor any political system rather than another," but that the "new order must be based . . . on victory over the principle that might makes right."

"It is stated by some that new forces must create a healthy new order of Europe," the Pope said.

"We say peace must conform to the principles of justice.

Discusses New Order

"The new order must be based on:

"Firstly, victory over hate and cessation of methods and propaganda which are based on hate;

"Secondly, victory over lack of trust in and observance of pacts which are necessary for relations between nations;

"Thirdly, victory over the principle that might makes right and a return to morality in relations between nations;

"Fourthly, victory over certain national economic theories;

"Fifthly, victory over cold egoism which sullies the honor of nations and which must be replaced by sincere and fraternal economic and legal collaboration between nations so people can work freely.

Hope Expressed

"We hope the men who create the new order are sufficiently mature and capable to base the new order upon justice.

"This conflict will be remembered as one of the darkest eras in history.

"Contributions of Catholics in the United States have aided our relief to war prisoners.

"The Church cannot favor any political system rather than another, but wants only morality and justice for all nations.

"Only if people are understanding can the phrase 'new order' have any real meaning.

"Pain often teaches more than easy successes."

The Pope finished with a blessing for all, "especially those who are war victims."

30,000-Year-Old Drawings

Transocean

VICHY, December 10.—Drawings and human bones 30,000 years old were found in a vast subterranean hall of the Labeaunic-Latrone caves, near Nimos, yesterday.

Geological students found the walls of the hall covered with drawings of animals—elephants, serpents, and spiders—in ochreous red and black.

2,600TH BABY IS HONORED

Lucky Infant Presented Clothes by St. Barnabas' Hospital

St. Barnabas' Hospital at Saikudani-machi, Tennoji Ward, Osaka, presented Mr. and Mrs. Shintaro Mishima with a suit of holiday clothes for their newly-born boy-baby Friday afternoon, congratulating them upon the fact that it is the 2,600th baby born in the hospital since January 1 this year.

In celebrating the 2,600th anniversary of the Japanese Empire Foundation, St. Barnabas Hospital had been preparing to present a suit of gala dress to the 2,600th baby to be born in the hospital, and keen interest had been aroused among the public as to who would be this lucky baby. Mrs. Shigeyo Mishima, 22-year-old wife of Mr. Shintaro Mishima, won the honor, when she gave birth to a boy on the morning of December 22 at 9:43 o'clock. The presentation of the gift to this lucky boy and his parents took place at the hospital auditorium Friday afternoon in the presence of all doctors, officials, nurses, and a large number of interested people.

JAPAN SPORTS YEAR SEEN IN RETROSPECT

1940 Was Banner Year Despite Being Fourth of China Hostilities

Despite the emergency period prevailing throughout the Japanese Empire, in the fourth year of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, Japan's sportsdom had a banner year in 1940, with various athletic events of international interest being held.

Also in observance of the 2600th anniversary of the founding of the Empire, special commemoration games were held bringing together athletes from neighboring countries and Japanese overseas residents.

Heading the games of international interest were the East Asia Games held in Tokyo and the Kansai in June. The games gathered over 800 athletes representing Manchoukuo, China, Mongolia, the Philippines, Japan and the Asahi baseball team from Hawaii.

Throughout the year various athletic associations of Japan sponsored meets and tournaments which saw competition of the first order.

In June the Pan-Pacific table tennis tournament sponsored by the Nippon Table Tennis Association was held, with teams from the United States and Australia. Three men and two women composed the American team while Australia was represented by two men.

While competition was keen throughout the tournaments held in Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya and Hiroshima, Japan emerged victorious with a 5-2 win over the United States, while shutting out Australia, 5-0.

In September on the invitation of the Nippon Amateur Boxing Association, a Hawaiian boxing team boasting among its five members a national Amateur Athletic Union title-holder, took part in four meets here. The Japanese team consisting of scrappers representing the finest in amateur circles did well in holding the visitors to two victories besides tying in the others.

German-Japan Tennis

In October, Reich-Japan amity tennis matches were held in Tokyo and Osaka under the sponsorship of the Japan Lawn Tennis Association. The three-man Reich team was made up of Max Plunck, non-playing captain, Henner Henkel and Kolner Gies.

In their first matches held in Tokyo, the Germans, playing under the handicap of meeting the Japanese while still feeling the effects of the long train ride via Siberia, lost to the Japanese stars, 3-1.

In the Kansai meet, the Germans defeated the Japanese, 4-1, while two other exhibitions were held in Nagoya and Nakamozu. For veteran Henner Henkel this was the second visit to Japan, having competed here in 1937 with Baron Gottfried von Cramm.

During the year of 1940 Japanese athletic teams invaded the Philippines, Hawaii, South America and Thailand. As in the past several years, the Philippines played host to the greatest number of Japanese teams.

In January, a swimming team of three, at the invitation of the Japanese Sporting Association of Brazil, toured South America for five months. The team was headed by Takahiro Saito, official coach of the Amateur Swimming Association, with Tetsuo Hamuro, Olympic title-holder in the breast stroke swim and Masanori Yusa, ex-Olympian.

Taught S. Americans

During their sojourn the Japanese swimmers not only took part in some thirty meets but turned instructors, teaching the finer points of swimming to the South Americans.

It was during one of the meets in Brazil, that Yusa and Hamuro, each established new Japanese records for the year.

Among the various teams which competed in the Philippines were tennis, basketball, swimming, boxing, and track aggregations, and six pro golfers.

Early in the year a tennis team of four was despatched by the Japan Lawn Tennis Association to compete in the Open Tennis Tourney. The members were, Haruo Kodera, Yasushi Kimura, Misses Yukiko Kamo and Sumiko Kamo. Kimura advanced as far as the semi-final losing to F. Amzon who won the championship, defeating A. Sanchez. Kodera was defeated in the semi-finals while in the women's division Sumiko Kamo reached the finals, before losing to Miss Solisa. Yukiko Kamo was eliminated in the first round.

A boxing team made up of Korean stars engaged in three meets, winning one, while the Rikkyo University basketball team won five of the eight games played.

Also competing in the Philippines were a track team of 15 stars from Formosa and six professional golfers headed by Tomekichi Miyamoto, who finished third in the open golf tournament which was won by Harold McSpaden of the United States.

In December the Rikkyo University swimming team of five left Kobe to compete in the Philippines Intercollegiates and All-Philippines swimming championships.

Hawaii was visited by the Keio University baseball team during the summer vacation. The Japanese played in twelve games, winning ten and losing two.

At present visiting Thailand are two of Japan's outstanding tennis players Yasuo Tsuruta and Ryuzo Yamagata, both students of Keio University.

Sights Hamburg Lifeboat

United Press

BROOKLYN, December 27.—Mr. Joel Gomes, captain of the Portuguese freighter Goncalo Vehlo, said after he docked yesterday that he had sighted an empty lifeboat marked Hamburg, 200 miles east of the Azores. The Hamburg-American Line owns a 22,000-ton luxury liner of that name, but there has been no record of its sinking.

HOSTILE FLARE-UP GREETS WALLACE

Crowd of 500 Blames Washington Government for Collapse Of Almazan's Fight

A hostile demonstration at the United States Embassy by partisans of General Juan Andreu Almazan, unsuccessful Presidential candidate, marred the welcome recently to Mr. Henry A. Wallace, President Roosevelt's Ambassador to the inauguration of General Manuel Avila Camacho as President of Mexico.

Several hundred persons milled about the automobile procession, as it inched its way through the square before the Embassy, but his escort of motorcycle police prevented them from reaching Mr. Wallace's car, reports the New York Times. They pounded on the windows of other machines in the procession, however, shouting "Viva Almazan!" and "Death to Avila Camacho!"

Later, while Mexican officials were taking their leave of Mr. Wallace at the residence of United States Ambassador Josephus Daniels, around the corner from the Embassy building, the crowd tried to storm the Embassy gates. Police reserves were called out and dispersed the demonstrants with tear gas.

During this melee Colonel Gordon H. McCopy, the United States military attache, was punched in the jaw, and the United States naval attache, Commander Wallace M. Dillon, was struck on the head, presumably by a policeman's club. Both were in full-dress uniform.

Mr. Wallace and his party were met by representatives of President Lazaro Cardenas and of the Federal District Administration, who accompanied them the rest of the way.

If the popular welcome in Mexico City was rather in a minor key, there was no fault to find with the enthusiasm shown by the populations of all places along the route from Ciudad Valles on. In Tamazunchale, in Jacala, in Zimapan, in Ixmiquipan and in Zapotian, to mention only the most important places, large crowds turned out to cheer President Roosevelt's Ambassador to the inauguration of General Manuel Avila Camacho as President of Mexico and to press around him whenever he descended from his automobile.

Mr. Wallace was almost smothered with confetti, had flowers thrown at him, received addresses of welcome from officials and notables and generally was told in no uncertain terms that the Mexican people were glad to have him among them.

The most important political manifestation of Mr. Wallace's trip so far occurred in Zimapan, when in replying to a speech of welcome by the Governor of Hidalgo, Mr. Xavier Rojo Gomez, at an open air luncheon, the American visitor extolled the friendship and co-operation between the United States and Mexico as bulwarks that would contribute to make democracy safe on this continent.

Reading a prepared speech in good Spanish, Mr. Wallace said in part:

"National Highway No. 1 over which have been traveling since I entered Mexico, makes me think of the significance for our two peoples of the Pan-American Highway. This asphalt ribbon is symbolic of the spiritual and material ties that happily join our two peoples.

"Our being united in true understanding cannot but continue a powerful influence in fortifying this hemisphere as a sure haven of peace and culture where democracy will live always.

"Friendliness has been shown to me not as an individual but as a symbol of the goodwill and common interests that forever bind our two countries. I trust that the evidence of friendliness and goodwill here manifested will be impressed upon peoples in all corners of the world."

Mr. Wallace and his party left Ciudad Valles on the 390-mile run to Mexico City. Their first stop was at Tamazunchale, where the whole population was in the streets and was overjoyed when Mr. Wallace got out of his car and strolled around the hamlet, chatting amiably with its inhabitants.

After Tamazunchale came the hardest part of the whole trip, from the border to Mexico City, for here the road in sixty miles between Tamazunchale and Jacala rises more than 1,200 feet to the first high rampart constituting the Mexican high plateau. The scenery is magnificent, but unfortunately today the valley was filled with mist, with a result that visibility was poor and driving somewhat dangerous.

At one point along this stretch of road the Wallace car was obliged to stop while motorcycle policemen removed several large rocks which fell down upon it from above.

At Zimapan a regiment of soldiers at present arms lined the streets and girls in colorful native costumes showered flowers and confetti upon Mr. and Mrs. Wallace. A luncheon of about two hundred covers was served out of doors in the shade of an enormous sequoia, reputed to be one of the largest trees in the Americas.

After further stops at Ixmiquilpan and Actopan, Mr. Wallace's party reached the monument erected to mark the highest point, 8,250 feet above sea level, of the whole road from the border to Mexico City. There Ambassador Daniels was waiting, together with the counselor of the Embassy, Pierre Boal.

The third secretary, Stephen Aguirre, and Consul-General George H. Shaw, Mexican officials and notables also were waiting in such numbers that from this point more than fifty motor cars followed Mr. Wallace's instead of the fifteen that had started from Laredo, Texas, two days before.

Darkness fell just before the Wallaces reached this city. They were officially welcomed at the place where two large bronze statues of Mexican Indians at either side of the road mark the beginning of the urban area. The ceremony was brief, and the Wallaces, surrounded by a score of motorcycle policemen with shrieking sirens, sped on toward the Embassy.

The main thoroughfare was brilliantly illuminated and festooned with strings of red, white and green electric lights across streets.

Outside the Embassy the pro-Almazan demonstration occurred, but Mr. Wallace's car drove through so quickly that he wasn't seriously molested, although later at least one person was injured in clashes with the police.

PASSENGERS OF KITANO BRING NEWS OF RAIDERS

Queen Mary Now Anchored at New Zealand—Australians Hope Better Relations

The Cunard White Star Line's huge luxury line Queen Mary, which sometime ago quietly slipped out of New York harbor, is now anchored at New Zealand, to shield itself from the activity of German raiders, passengers who returned to Kobe on the liner Kitano Maru from Australia reported Sunday, according to Domei.

The N.Y.K. vessel, carried 57 passengers, who brought news concerning activity begun by the German navy south of the Indian Ocean.

About November 29, when the Kitano Maru entered Sydney, three ships were sunk in the southern part of the Indian Ocean, while four oil tankers were sunk in the vicinity of Australia, bringing forth the belief that there was a second Emden.

Accordingg to the story of a victim of a ship sunk north of New Zealand, it was not a German submarine, but a large cruiser of about 8,000 tons which shelled the ship. Also, sailors from a British ship which sank off Newcastle, Australia, say that their ship was not sunk by a mine, but from a torpedo attack. From these activities, the German navy must have sent a substantial squadron for operations to cut off British shipping routes.

Since Sir John Greig Latham was accredited Australian Minister to Japan, the people of Australia are looking forward to amicable diplomatic and trade relations between Japan and Australia.

Y.C.A.C. RUGBY TEAM WINS NINTH VICTORY

Kyoeikai Fifteen Defeated, 23 To 3, by Strong Bay City Club Players Sunday

The Yokohama Country and Athletic Club rugby team won its ninth consecutive victory on Sunday afternoon by defeating the Kyoeikai fifteen, 23 to 3 on Y.C. and A.C. field. The winners have yet to be beaten this season, their record being nine wins and one draw in 10 games.

After 15 minutes of play the Y.C. and A.C. obtained the first score of the game. The forwards had worked the ball deep into their opponents' territory, where Harriss gained possession and passed to Thomas who went over for a try. Planas converted from a difficult angle to give the home squad a 5 to 0 lead.

The next score was made shortly after, the result of a good three-quarters movement. With play at midfield the Y.C. and A.C. backs obtained the ball. It was relayed from Harriss to Thomas, to Planas, and then to Russell who made the try near the corner flag. Planas again made a good conversion to bring the home team's total to 10.

Given Free Kick

The Kyoeikai then pressed strongly and were awarded a free kick near their opponents' 25-yard line when one of the defenders was guilty of being offside. The visitors tried a placement kick and the ball hit the crossbar and bounced over to give them three points.

Soon after Thomas cut through the Kyoeikai defense and scored between the posts after a 40-yard run. Planas converted to make the count 15 to 3.

Shortly before half-time the Y.C. and A.C. obtained another try, also the result of a long run. Harriss got the ball from a loose scrum near the center of the field, cut through and sent a long pass to Russell on the wing. The latter made a 40-yard gain to place the ball behind the posts. Planas made his fourth successful conversion in as many attempts to bring the score to 20 to 3.

Even After Interval

Play was much more even after the interval. The visitors threatened several times and the ball was within five yards of the Y.C. and A.C. goal line on three occasions, but the home team always managed to clear.

Ten minutes before the final whistle the Y.C. and A.C. pack heeled the ball in a scrum just within their territory and Harriss picked it up and ran through to the 25-yard line where he passed to O'Neill who went over. With the convert being missed the scoreboard read 23 to 3. Although both sides threatened before the end neither could break through for another score.

Playing for the Y.C. and A.C. were F. Rodriguez, M. L. Russell, J. J. Planas, G. Thomas, E. Eastlake, E. Salter, F. R. Harriss (captain), P. Smith, M. Brigel, W. Salter, L. A. M. Frank, D. M. O'Neill, J. Robinson, V. Makieff and G. Agajan.

Mr. A. A. F. Shearer was the referee.

JAPAN PINGPONG RANKING FOR 1940 IS ANNOUNCED

Sai Is No. 1, Kon Dropping to No. 2—Yasuko Matsuura Women's No. 1

The Nippon Table Tennis Association has announced the national standings for 1940, under international rules.

Tengan Sai of Rikkyo University is ranked first, while Takashi Kon, who headed the 1939 standing, drops to second place and, third place is awarded to Konko Sai of Kwansai Gakuin.

In the women's standing, Yasuko Matsuura of Kyoto is awarded the top position in the singles, while the Tanaka-Takaichi team of Ehime is ranked at the head of the doubles list.

Norikazu Fujii, a secondary school boy of Kyoto, who defeated Kon by 2 to 1 in the national championship meet is ranked in fifth place.

The association announced that this year's rankings are based on performances throughout the year, character, and playing attitude, instead of the former procedure which was centered on the showings of the national championship meet.

Standings for the international rules are as follows:

Men's Standing

Singles: 1. Tengan Rai (Tokyo), 2. Takashi Kon (Tokyo), 3. Konko Sai (Hyogo), 4 Noboru Yamamato (Hyogo), 5. Norikazu Fuji (Kyoto), 6. Suekichi Suyama (Tokyo), 7. Tadashi Kawakami (Aichi), 8. Tessho Nakata (Chiba), 9. Tadashi Hayashi (Tokyo), 10. Ryozo Mayeda (Tokyo).

Doubles: 1. Sai and Nishiyama, 2. Kon and Suyama, 3 Mayeda and Hiramatsu, 4. Nagao and Ko, 5. Saito and Shimoyama.

Women's Standing

Singles: 1. Yasuko Matsuura (Kyoto), 2. Emi Takaich (Ehime), 3. Kuniko Nagata (Tokyo), 4. Nobuko Nakanishi (Tokyo), 5. Fusako Yoshino (Ehime).

Doubles: 1. Tanaka and Takaichi, 2. Matsuura and Asahori, 3. Tei and Rei, 4. Yoshino and Fujii.

TO CREATE U.S. BUREAU

Australia to Spread Information in America and Seek Markets

Domei

MELBOURNE, December 29.—The Government has decided to establish an Australian press information bureau in New York to provide American publicists with accurate and full information concerning Australia, it was officially announced today.

The proposed bureau will be capable of assuming a major role in the establishment of Australian markets in the Western Hemisphere when the European hostilities are over.

First Orders Arriving

Reuters

LONDON, December 28.—Sir Walter Leyton, British banker and economist, said yesterday that the first orders placed by Britain in the United States were just beginning to arrive. If Britain could hold its own throughout 1941 American production would make an ultimate victory certain, he declared.

ALL-STAR GRIDDERS PERFORMING TODAY

Cream of Football Crop Performing in East-West Game At Meiji Shrine Stadium

Ready, All-East! Ready All-West!

Whatever his starting signal, the referee, will blow his whistle on the fourth annual East-West All-Star American football game between the 1940 Tokyo Intercollegiate All-Star and the Kansai All-Stars at the Meiji Shrine stadium today at 2 o'clock.

Twenty-four strong, hand-picked players from the Tokyo colleges and club team, the latest edition of the All-East, will throw its rugged power, its speed, its passing and punting skill against the Western champions of the Kansai district.

That the West has never been able to crack through the East will not detract from the interest of the game. A new crop of Kansai boys under a new coach will try again. They have with them boys who have played good football for the last several years and who have given the Tokyo teams a tough battle. Todoroki, Tsuboi, Yamanouchi, all of Kansai University and Miwa of Doshisha, all backs of high talent, together with lineman as Yoshioka, Kandai, Furuyama, Kandai Takeuchi, and others have been moulded together to form the strongest All-West team to date.

West Looks Good

The nucleus of the All-West will be the Kansai University eleven. A team which has shown tremendous improvement this past season, so much that Meiji, one of the leading teams in the Tokyo league fell before it's powerful onslaught in Osaka.

Against this array from the Kansai coach Chuji Shimamoto will throw another powerful East team. Yoichi Sato of Keio, one of the sweetest backs in Nippon gridiron history, Fukuda of Rikkyo, the big powerful fullback who can be counted for three yards every time he lays his hand on the pigskin, Green of the Y.C. & A.C. the speedback who specializes in wide sweeps, all these boys will be battling together to put across another win for the East.

The game promises rousing action. It is no surprise that the East is favored. They have beaten the West the last three years. Despite this record of the new Eastern team have shown no complacence in their drills at the Meiji Yoka field the last week. In fact the local boys have been at practice with a vengeance, for they feel that the Kansai University team in defeating Meiji somewhat tinged the honor of the East.

The East expects to win. But they have been steamed up by Shimamoto to expect surprise, for the All-West appears to be a better, stronger organization for actual battle than their predecessors.

The forward wall of the East will have Yamagata and Tomita at the ends, Tanifuji and Oguro at the tackles, Yoshida and Kasahaya at the guards and Tetsu Yoshida at center.

Both Backfields Good

As for the starting backfield, Coach Shimamoto has two units which are just about on par with each other. He can star with Suzuki at quarter, Green and Hamasaki at the halfs and Fukuda at fullback or Yasuda at the signal calling job. Tosaya and Kunimoto at the halfs and Sato in fullback. Both sets can do just about everything required of a backfield. Fukuda of the first unit may be the back of the day. He is a powerful runner, can pass, punt and defend with the best of them.

While coach Hanacka of the West team can start an all-Kansai University team, it appears that the ball carriers who will start the opening whistle will be Tsuboi, Yamanouchi, Todoroki all of Kandai and Miwa of Doshisha University.

Babies Born as Bombs Fall May Be Nervous Individuals for Life

Domei

BOSTON, December 30.—Babies born amid the crashes and bursting shells of war may run the risk of nervous ills even before they come into this world, Dr. L. W. Sontag, director of the Samuel S. Fels Research Institude, Antioch College, recently indicated in a speech before the Society for Research in Child Development meeting at Harvard Medical School here. A frightened mother who must give birth to her baby among the unusual noises of bombardment and anti-aircraft fire may find that the infant is affected by this unfortunate environment. If the disturbed conditions continue for a long period just before birth, the baby may actually suffer from a neurosis both before and after birth. He will be restless and overactive. He may have feeding difficulties and heart spasms. He will probably be thin.

be enforced to give full support to them. At the same time, forests must be cleared, marshes reclaimed, and make possible the emigration of farmers in over-populated agrarian districts in Japan Proper to Manchoukuo, according to set plans.

Farming Experts Sent

"The Movement to Serve the Nation Through Agriculture aims at the increase in the output of farming products. To this end, parties composed of farming experts have been dispatched to the remotest corners of the country to encourage farmers, and students and factory-hands have been frequently called out for collective service for the growing of vegetables and fruits on waste land.

"In current circumstances, the enhancing of the national spirit among farmers, and the elevation of their technical capacity are the most compelling needs. With this in mind, at the end of 1939 some 14,000 young farmers were gathered at the Uchihara Training Camp in Ibaragi Prefecture where they underwent severe training.

"The Government has not the slightest idea of granting subsidies to farmers to make up possible losses incurred as a result of the maintenance of the official maximum price of rice in 1941 at the same level as in 1940. Some people are of the opinion that the Government should grant subsidies to compensate such losses, but I cannot agree with this idea.

"I am in no mood to predict what course the silk industry of Japan will follow this year. At any rate, Japan should make up its mind now, and be ready to face whatever emergency that may arise. Generally speaking, Japan's silk industry has developed as an export industry, and naturally all silk policies of the Government in the past were established to suit this purpose.

"Of course, Japan should sell silk to foreign countries as much as possible, but from now on the silk industry must be looked at from different angles. In other words the Government's policy on silk industry must be shaped in such a form as to make it a more secure enterprise based on the demands at home, and closer to the actual demands springing up out of national economy.

"Henceforward, silk will be used as far as possible as the textile for the masses of the people in this country, while at the same time, making the most of the shortness of silk fiber, it can be used for other important purposes.

Afforestation Problems

"The more industries in Japan developed, the poorer became the timber lands. Despite the clearing of forests over wide areas in this country in recent years, little attention has been paid to afforestation, while ever since the outbreak of the China affair, the demand for timber has been surpassing its supply.

"The denudation of forests is often the cause of floods, drought, and other natural disasters, and being fully aware of this, the Agriculture and Forestry Ministry has established a plan for the afforestation of some 3,234,000 acres of land 10 years from 1941.

"Thanks to the smooth progress shown in the Government's charcoal production increase project, and the successful adjustment of the supply and demand position, the nation may rest assured this year as far as the distribution of charcoal is concerned.

"In order to keep the equilibrium of the supply and demand of charcoal stable, the charcoal manufacturing facilities under the management of the Government will be expanded, and Formosa and Manchoukuo will also be urged to increase their production of charcoal."

Industry Spurred By Scrap Embargo

acceleration of development of oil resources and encouragement of use of substitute fuels in order to ensure adequate supply in wartime. However, difficulties will mount in the immediate future in getting supplies of oil, and therefore, it will be inevitable that regulations of oil consumption be intensified hereafter."

Coal Industry

Referring to coal industry the Commerce and Industry Minister said that the Government has been directing considerable efforts to increase production of coal in view of the fact that coal is the basis for the productive capacity expansion plan. The Government's measures have functioned to increase the production appreciably. But in view of the shortage still prevalent, the Government will make further endeavors to augment coal output, especially in Saghalien, Manchoukuo and North China, and to also adjust demand and supply in Japan, Manchoukuo and China. With the Nippon Coal Company which started its business in October last, it is expected that the production-increase scheme will be placed on the right track, so that distribution and prices of coal may be adjusted rationally.

The New Year message of the Commerce and Industry Minister also deals with questions concerning the textile industry, unemployment and shifting of business in some sections due to the economic control system, and commodity prices. Finally the Minister touched on international merchandise trade, and said:

International Trade

"A favorable trend characterized Japan's foreign trade during the first quarters of 1940, when a sizable increase was registered in our export business as compared with the corresponding period of 1939. Naturally optimism was then entertained regarding future developments. Contrary to this sanguine view, however, subsequent developments were unfavorable. The European war extended over the northern and western parts of Europe, and Italy participated in the war on the side of Germany. These developments have caused further broad restrictions of commercial navigation. Simultaneously the foreign trade and exchange control which has been in force since the outbreak of the war in the sterling trading areas, which constituted important markets for Japanese merchandise, has further been intensified, and British currency has lost its position as the world currency.

"On the other hand, our trade with the United States has suffered the adverse influences of restrictive or prohibitive export measures which have been bolstered time and again. It is regrettable that under these circumstances our trade was not able to attain the expansion expected earlier. Yet it is a matter for congratulation that our commerce with the non-yen trading areas showed rather favorable results in comparison with 1939, despite the aggravation of the international situation, thanks to the concerted efforts of the Government and people."

In concluding the message the Commerce and Industry Minister stressed the point that Japan should endeavor to establish self-sufficiency economy for the Greater East Asia Co-prosperity Sphere, but at the same time he stated that the Government is making untiring endeavors to expand export trade through compensatory trade agreements and the barter system, with the object of augmenting the nation's ability to import essential goods.

Flames Hit London As Nazis Let Loose

reportedly was bombed successfully in low altitude attacks.

German raids yesterday on British merchant shipping were claimed to have sent one freighter to the bottom and to have heavily damaged a 10,000-ton ship and a British minelayer.

An aerial attack on a large convoy sailing approximately 125 miles west of the northern tip of Ireland succeeded in the destruction of a cargo ship, the High Command said. The damaged merchant vessel and the minelayer were both attacked in the Channel.

German warplanes during the day were reported to have carried out reconnaissance flights over Britain. Bombs were dropped on London "in several attacks," the High Command briefly said.

British warships which attempted to stealthily approach the French channel coast by taking advantage of heavy mists cloaking the Channel, were claimed to have been spotted and driven off by several volleys from German coastal naval guns.

A "few" British planes entered Germany and German-occupied territory last night but only "dropped bombs on open country or on the sea," the High Command said. Two British aircraft reportedly were shot down by German anti-aircraft fire.

The High Command also reported today that Plymouth was attacked Sunday night by German warplanes which raided the city's port facilities, setting fire to docks and quays and causing a number of explosions.

London Heavily Raided

Domei

NEW YORK, December 30.—Continuous waves of Nazi warplanes last night swept over the London area, releasing tens of thousands of high explosives and incendiaries in one of the most intense raids the British capital has suffered since the outbreak of the war, reports the United Press. Extensive damage is reported to have been done.

Shortly following the attack, direct radio communications between New York and London ceased. However, stations in western England acknowledged messages from New York.

Matsuoka Appeals For World Accord

blame, and enabling all the nations and people to have each its proper place, to determine and develop its own destiny, to give full play to its characteristics, and to minister to each other's needs. The Hakko Ichiu, namely the ideal which inspired the founding of the Japanese Empire, clearly indicates the way to be followed.

"Viewed in this light, the violent destructive operations now going on in the East and West, are preceding magnificent and epochal constructive work which is to come. The first World War of more than two decades ago, the current second European War, the China affair, all these are after all but struggles preceding an unprecedented reformation of the world.

1940 Eventful Year

"Last year was an eventful one rarely found in the annals of the world. It closed upon humanity in breathless anxiety and bewilderment. What will the New Year, the 2,601st year of the Japanese Empire, bring to this country in particular and the world in general? Will it be auspicious or inauspicious? I can neither foresee nor judge which it will be. In greeting the New Year it may sound inpropitious, and it is, indeed, the last thing in the world that I wish for, but in my inner-most heart I fear lest this year may perchance prove to be a most tragic and most unfortunate one for the entire mankind. I pray to God and wish all truly God-fearing people throughout the world to co-operate with me, with the same reverence as mine, in saving this year from degenerating into the first year of destruction of modern civilization.

"This is my most earnest appeal addressed to them. It is my fervent desire that the New Year will become the first year of the world revived under a new order in the true sense of the term with the foundation of a fair, lasting and real peace firmly built throughout the world, instead of becoming the year of collapse of modern civilization or the initial year of its downfall. This desire is not limited to me alone. It is the heartiest desire of the whole Japanese nation. In fact, this is the very spirit in which the pact among Japan, Germany and Italy was conceived and which lies at its basis.

"In welcoming the fourth New Year of the China affair, I take this occasion to pledge to render to the Throne my humble service with unswerving devotion, externally by dealing effectively with the ever-changing international situation and internally by devoting myself to the discharge of my duty as His Majesty's subject."

BRITISH SHIPS IN TROUBLE

Distress Signals Picked Up From Three Freighters in Atlantic

Domei

NEW YORK, December 31.—The MacKay Radio yesterday received distress signals from three British freighters in the Atlantic, it is announced today.

The first two SOS calls were received from the 6,402-ton City of Bedford and the 5,342-ton steamer Bodnant. Both ships gave approximately the same position, and it is assumed here that the vessels were part of a convoy that was attacked by a German submarine.

The 6,579-ton freighter Nalgora, was the third ship to radio for help, stating that she was being followed by a mysterious ship about 200 miles east of the Azores Islands.

TEAMS ANNOUNCED FOR SUMO TOURNEY

Futabayama and Minanogawa Head Array of Wrestlers for Annual Spring Meet

The East side led by Grand Champion Futabayama and the West led by Grand Champion Minanogawa changed sides in the new list of the professional rikishi (Japanese wrestlers) which was announced yesterday morning, prior to the January 10 opening of the spring tournament.

The change of sides took place because of the defeat of the East in the tournament last summer in Tokyo by a wide margin of 202 to 141 points.

The new East side, led by Minanogawa, has three Ozeki or wrestlers ranking next to the Grand Champion who are Akinoumi, Itsutsushima and Mayedayama. Akinoumi, who scored the largest number of individual victories in the last tournament, is the regular Ozeki, the other two are voted as extraordinary Ozeki.

Haguroyama, the best disciple of Futabayama, the Grand Champion of the new West side, still remains in the Ozeki rank. Futabayama himself, whose record in the last tournament was quite unworthy of a Grand Champion, is expected to stage a spectacular comeback in the coming tournament. He is said to have recovered his confidence, having made a good showing at the Meiji Shrine tournament and during provincial tours. It will be remembered that last summer he underwent a Spartan spiritual training at a temple in Kyushu.

Minanogawa, the giant leader of the new East side, is said by Domei to be training now with a furious zeal in preparation for the coming tourney.

Terukuni and Hishuzan, who scored good marks in the last tourney, are the Sekiwake, or wrestlers ranking next to Ozeki, of the new West and East sides respectively.

VISCOUNTESS NABESHIMA DIES AT HOME IN TOKYO

Famous Lady Was President of Japan Red Cross Nurses For Many Years

Viscountess Eiki Nabeshima, mother of Viscount Nachide Nabeshima and holder of the Third Order of Merit, who had been recuperating at the Viscount's residence in Shoto, Shibuya Ward, from kidney trouble, passed away at 5:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the age of 87.

H. I. H. Princess Itsuko Nashimito arrived at the Viscount's residence on Thursday night, with H. I. H. Prince Morimasa Nashimoto, on hearing of the critical condition of her mother, the Viscountess, and remained at her bedside till the end. H. I. H. Prince Nashimoto again visited the Viscountess' bedside yesterday afternoon with H. I. H. Princess Setsuko Chichibu, granddaughter of the Viscountess. Viscount Nabeshima, breathed her last surrounded by T.I.H. Prince and Princess Chichibu, Viscount Nabeshima, Mr. and Mrs. Tsuneo Matsudaira and other relatives.

A gift of fruit was sent by Their Majesties the Empress Dowager and Empress, yesterday, to the bedside of the Viscountess, on hearing of her critical condition.

Besides being actively engaged as the president of the Nurses' Association of the Japan Red Cross Society for 50 years, since 1887, the late Viscountess also sponsored many women's organizations such as, the Women's Mutual Fostering Society, Taisho Woman's Society, Dai Nippon Woman's Education Society, and others. She was a pioneer in women's movements in Japan.

The late Viscountess was active as a nurse during the China-Japan and Russo-Japanese Wars, and went on consolation tours of military hospitals at Hiroshima, Ujina and Saseho. She was called the Florence Nightingale of Japan. The late Viscountess was the first person to become vaccinated in Japan.

SHIP PLANES TO CHINA, SAYS U.S. SPOKESMAN

Sending of Heavy Bombers and Other Planes May Give China Power to Attack Japan

United Press

NEW YORK, December 31.—Release of more warplanes to the Chungking regime was urged by Rear-Admiral John Henry Towers, chief of the navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, and other experts, the Herald Tribune said yesterday.

Quoting authoritative Washington quarters, the Herald Tribune said that at least 400 warplanes may soon be released to China. Admiral Towers is reported to have declared that 400 is the minimum number of aircraft needed by China.

Chinese representatives in Washington are stressing the need for modern planes because of the Japanese introduction of new Messerschmitt pursuit planes. The planes to be released to China, may include six of the American army's famous Boeing Flying Fortresses, the newspaper said, pointing out that such planes would enable China to wage an offensive on Japan and stage night raids.

The Herald Tribune's disclosure came on the heels of President Roosevelt's "fireside chat," in which he praised China's "great defense in the Orient" and promised all possible material aid to Chungking.

R.A.F. Raids Tripoli

I.N.S.

Wrestler Gets Promotion in Rank

Mr. Setsuo Nagata, professional sumo wrestler under the name of Akinoumi, received news of his promotion yesterday to the rank of ozeki in the East Camp from his former status of sekiwake in the program issued for the coming 15-day sumo tournament to open at the Kokugikan Amphitheater in Ryogoku. He won 14 out of 15 matches in the last tournament.

MORE SHIPS URGED BY MURATA IN '41

Communications Head Says Close Co-operation of Shippers With State Needed

Japan's marine industrialists are urged to be prepared to calmly cope with increased economic pressure from the United States and Great Britain in a New Year's message issued by Communications Minister Shozo Murata.

Following is the message in part:

"With the world-wide disturbances extending to all corners of the globe, changes unprecedented in the history have been taking place, but the world, I believe, is marching ahead for the establishment of a new order. In coping with the world situation, this country has been carrying out various measures in the fields of military, diplomacy and domestic administration according to its firm, unshakable national policy.

"Japan last year concluded an alliance with Germany and Italy, and manifested its determination to participate in the establishment of a new world order in co-operation with these friendly Powers. Meantime, the nation-wide movement for the realization of the new national structure got under way last year. In other words, diplomatically Japan is doing away with Anglo-American inclination and definitely, has firmly established the so-called self-determining policy in East Asia and domestically has been endeavoring to complete a powerful national structure for the establishment of a high degree defense State.

Means Expansion

"The new structure in the nation's economy means the establishment of a new economic structure for the execution of programs for the expansion of productive power. ..... The goal of the new economic structure for the expansion of productive power is the completion of a structure in which all enterprises of the nation can collaborate and head to the direction required by the State. The economic structure of the country must free itself from the old system and instead, must be reorganized in a new one. When all enterprises carry out their activities in perfect unison, keeping organic relations to each other, the task of expanding the nation's productive power can be accomplished.

"Economic pressure of the United States and Great Britain against this country has been intensified greatly of late. Applying various wartime regulations against the transportation of German goods, they have been manifesting hostile nature against this country. At this moment, our marine industrialists must be prepared always to cope calmly with any sudden incidents in the future.

Sees British Defeat

"Following the cessation of the current European war, the British marine industry will naturally lose its prestige and be replaced by Germany. We, however, must frankly admit the power of British shipping industry which boasts centuries of prestige will not be completely wiped out. For the strengthening of auxiliary vessels for the navy as well as for the purpose of taking control of waters in the East Asia co-prosperity region, Japan's shipping industry must be repleted in various respects in the new year. In order to resist outside pressure as well as to prepare for the future activities, close co-operation of the Government and the people is needed more than ever in the shipping industry.

"Besides the Japan-Manchoukuo-China air service already in service, the Government has decided to open a direct air route between Japan and Manchoukuo via the Japan Sea. For the advancement of the Japanese aviation industry in the South Seas area, the Government is also planning to inaugurate a regular air service connecting Yokohama, Tamsui and Palao. The Japanese-Thai air route via Canton, Hanoi and Saigon has been planned and its inauguration will be in the near future."

JAPANESE, FRENCH RESUME MEETINGS

Brief Announcement Made Following Session at Foreign Minister's Residence

The second session of the Japan-French Indo-China parley on economic problems began at 10 a.m. yesterday at the official residence of the Foreign Minister.

Present were Mr. Hajime Matsumiya, Special Japanese Ambassador to French Indo-China; Mr. Itaro Mizuno, chief of the Commerce Bureau of the Foreign Office and several Foreign Office secretaries, and Mr. Rene Robin and Mr. Jean Cousin, chief and vice-chief respectively of the French delegation, and other French officials from the Vichy and the French Indo-China Governments.

After basic discussions on economic matters continued from the previous session between Ambassador Matsumiya and the chief French delegate, Mr. Robin, the session adjourned at about noon. The third session is expected to be held Tuesday.

The Bureau of Information made the following statement at 1 o'clock regarding yesterday's meeting:

"Ambassador Hajime Matsumiya and Mr. Rene Robin, chief of the French delegation, met this morning and discussed economic problems relating to Japan and French Indo-China in continuation of their previous discussions."

Shadanko Loses Post

I.N.S.

MOSCOW, January 2.—It is announced that General Shadanko, the Deputy Defense Commissar has been relieved of his post.

SEVEN GOVERNORS MAY BE REPLACED

Reshuffle of Prefectural Heads Expected to Take Place Late Next Week

A reshuffle of prefectural governors is expected to be effected about January 10, says Domei. The shifts will affect about seven governors, including the chief executives of Tokyo, Kyoto, and Osaka, three principal cities of Japan.

Home Vice-Minister Gunzo Kayaba is working out details of the plan which was laid down by Home Minister Kiichiro Hiranuma following his assumption of office last month. The plan is expected to be presented to the Cabinet at its regular session Tuesday.

Home Minister Hiranuma called on Premier Fumimaro Konoye at his official residence at 10:40 o'clock Saturday morning and during the meeting, which was devoted to a discussion of the more important of domestic problems before the Government, he reported on the lines along which the coming gubernatorial changes would be effected.

Governor Kiyoshi Nakarai of Osaka, according to the Hochi, has expressed a desire to be relieved of his duties and according to one report his resignation is already in the hands of the Home Minister. Governor Shuzo Okada of Tokyo and Governor Jitsuzo Kawanishi of Kyoto are other local chiefs who are expected to step out in the forthcoming gubernatorial shake-up.

Candidates prominently mentioned for gubernatorial posts include Director Genshin Takano of the Police Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Board, Director Naoaki Hattori, Osaka prefectural general affairs bureau; Director Yoneyuki Doi, Hyogo prefectural general affairs bureau; Director Kokki Osafune, Shizuoka prefectural general affairs bureau; Mr. Eizo Hirose, chief of police of Osaka; Director Kanichi Naito, Employment Bureau of the Welfare Ministry; Director Shigeyuki Tanaka, Social Education Bureau of the Education Ministry, and Mr. Kyoshiro Ando, former director of the police bureau of the Home Ministry.

The plan of the Konoye Cabinet for reform of the system of government officials will be put in practice Monday when the Imperial ordinances necessary for effecting changes in the system on which favorable action was taken by the Privy Council last Tuesday will be published in the Official Gazette, to go into effect immediately.

One of the ordinances, which will number 10 in all, will abolish the law guaranteeing of status of officials which is blamed by many observers for the alleged accentuation of the tendency for officials to be indifferent to the improvement of their standards.

VETERAN JOURNALISTS OTANI AND OSHIMA DIE

Former Was Great Leader Of Public Opinion and Had Colorful Career

Mr. Matao Otani, a director of the Miyako Shimbun, died of apoplexy at 9:40 o'clock Friday afternoon at his home in Harajuku, Shibuya Ward, Tokyo. Domei reports that he was 71 years old.

Another leading Japanese journalist, Mr. Ukichi Oshima, president of the Shin Aichi, a Nagoya daily with a large circulation, died at 6:32 o'clock last Tuesday evening at his home in Moriyama-cho, Nagoya, at the age of 88, according to the Asahi.

Born in Tottori Prefecture, Mr. Otani joined the staff of the Miyako in 1894, subsequently covering the Sino-Japanese War and the Formosa expedition. A leader of public opinion, he advocated war with Czarist Russia. Dissatisfied with the Portsmouth Treaty, concluded after the Russo-Japanese War, he led the noted Hibiya Park riot incident. He also exerted himself toward union of Japan and Korea and represented Japanese journalists at the Versailles Conference.

Last rites for the late Mr. Otani will be held from 2 to 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Aoyama Funeral Pavilion, Tokyo.

Funeral services for the late Mr. Oshima will be held in the offices of the Shin Aichi in Nishi Ward, Nagoya, at noon, January 13.

8 SKIERS LONG OVERDUE IN NIIGATA PREFECTURE

Rescue Squads Combing Mountains as Group Fails to Return to Takahan Inn

Eight skiers have been unaccounted for since Friday when they left the Takahan Inn at Yuzawa, a noted skiing resort in Niigata Prefecture, says Domei.

They failed to return to the inn Friday night and a band of 17 skiers combed the nearby mountains all night. The rescue squad was reinforced Saturday by members of local air raid and fire fighting associations.

The missing persons are Mr. Kurakichi Sekiguchi, 54, of Kawaguchi city, Saitama Prefecture, and his 20-, 14- and 13-year-old sons; Mr. Masaharu Mayeda, 45; Mr. Tokijiro Mayebara, 29; Master Kiyondo Misawa, 13, and Master Atsuhito Misawa, 12.

CUSTOMS AUTONOMY GIVEN

Indo-China Granted New Powers by Vichy Government

Domei

VICHY, January 3.—A Government decree giving French Indo-China customs autonomy as of January 1 was published by the Official Gazette today.

Tariffs will be applied on an ad valorem basis and will be applied to imports from France as well as from foreign countries. It is reported that Indo-China under the new regime of tariff autonomy intends to negotiate independent agreements with other countries, beginning with agreements now being negotiated with Tokyo.

Authoritative sources point out that economic unity of the French Empire will be maintained by a system of reciprocal agreements, providing lists of duty free articles in the exchanges among France, Algeria, Tunisia, Morocco and the other French colonies.

MADRID ROLE SEEN VITAL WAR FACTOR

Fall of Gibraltar to Axis Seen Impossible Without Full Spanish Aid

Domei

WASHINGTON, January 4.—Diplomatic and military observers are closely watching for sign as to the position Spain will take in the new European order which the Axis Powers are attempting to create.

Many informed quarters believe that the course taken by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Government may prove decisive in determining the outcome of the present European hostilities as the shifting of the center of military activities to the Mediterranean region gives new import to Madrid's role.

Military observers generally are agreed that any full-scale Axis attack on Gibraltar, Britain's guardian to the gateway of the Mediterranean cannot be attempted without the use of Spain as a base of operations.

Not in Position

The Axis naval forces are not at present in a position to attempt an assault on the "Rock," and their aircraft, while capable of inflicting considerable damage, would apparently have little chance of forcing Gibraltar to surrender. Aircraft could open the way for an invasion, but they could not "capture" the rocky fortress.

A concerted land and air effort, however, would seriously threaten this vital base, and informed military opinion holds that the "Rock" could be taken if the attackers were willing to pay the price in men and material.

Some quarters have speculated that the Axis might reach some sort of agreement with Madrid whereby Axis troops would be granted passage across Spain without bringing this country formally into war with Great Britain. However, there appears to be no indication at present that such an agreement has been reached or is actively being discussed.

U.S. Relations Cordial

The United States maintains cordial relations with General Franco's Government in Madrid and has indicated a desire to create greater friendship between the two countries. Shortly after the Spanish war ended, for example, the United States made a substantial loan to Spain for the purchase of cotton to rehabilitate that country's war-devastated textile industries.

However, any real cordiality in American-Spanish relations would apparently be determined by Spain's attitude toward Great Britain, since the United States now is pursuing a policy of maximum-aid-short-of-war toward Britain in the latter's war effort against the Axis.

SINKING OF U.S. TANKER WITHOUT WARNING TOLD

Two Sailors Lost as Torpedoes Strike Vessel in South Atlantic

United Press

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone, January 3.—Two torpedoes, fired without warning, sank the Standard Oil tanker, Charles Pratt, in the South Atlantic on December 21, its captain told the United Press yesterday. Two American sailors lost their lives.

Interviewed, Captain E. R. Blomquist said:

"The submarine fired two torpedoes without the slightest warning, despite the Panama flags we had painted on both sides, leaving the ship a blazing, sinking hulk.

"We had left Aruba (oil shipping port in the Dutch West Indies) on December 5 with an entirely American crew. We were carrying 5,000,000 gallons of oil consigned to a firm in Freetown."

SENATOR GLASS FAVORS UNLIMITED BRITISH AID

Democratic Leader Predicts U.S. Budget Will Reach $27,000,000,000

United Press

WASHINGTON, January 4.—Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrat, said yesterday he favors loaning Great Britain all the war equipment the United States can spare "to wipe Germany off the face of the map."

"I have said that 40 times and my opinion has not changed," he declared.

Questioned regarding reports that the Federal budget would total about $17,000,000,000, Senator Glass grinned and said:

"If you would add about $10,000,000,000 to that you would be closer right."

BRITISH REDUCE RATIONS

Sacrificing Meat at Home for Munitions in Libya

United Press

LONDON, January 3.—Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, today announced a further lowering of food rations throughout the British Isles.

The Minister explained that the measure was being taken to meet a shortage, declaring:

"We are deliberately sacrificing meat at home for munitions in Libya."

Tormey to Chungking

Domei

WASHINGTON, January 5.—Major Bernard A. Tormey has been transferred by the War Department from Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana, to Chungking as an assistant military attache, it was announced yesterday. Major Tormey will leave New York for the Far East on April 3.

Future Sumo Champions Examined

More than 30 sumo disciples desiring promotion in the ranks underwent rigid physical examinations yesterday under the direction of the Japan Wrestling Association. Above are some of the youngmen of Herculean muscles taking their tests under the direction of veteran sumo artists.

SUMO CHAMPIONS DUE MORE RESPECT

Wrestling Association Formulates New Rulings in 'New Structure' Move

Rikishi (Japanese professional wrestlers) who attain the rank of grand champion will be treated with high respect in the wrestling world as Toshiyori or elders, after their retirement from the ring, says Domei.

The new regulation of the Japan Wrestling Association is a part of its new structure which is now being drafted by its leaders. Former grand champion elders will be known by the names they assumed while they were grand champions.

Another reform now contemplated by the wrestling association is not to send novice professional wrestlers on provincial tours. Spiritual and military training will be added to their exercise routine.

The Association of Rikishi, Sunday, decided to wear haori and hakama (ceremonial overcoat and skirt) in visiting the Kokugikan bowl during the annual 'spring' and 'summer' tournaments, reports Domei.

SIX COLUMBUS CREWMEN REACH JAPAN ON ASAMA

British Consul in San Francisco Verifies Report That Group 'Escaped'

United Press

SAN FRANCISCO, January 4.—Mr. Paul Butler, British consul-general in San Francisco, today verified reports that six Germans belonging to the crew of the scuttled German ship, Columbus had "escaped" on October 25 and had now reached Japan on board the N.Y.K. liner Asama Maru.

Mr. Butler said the six men, officers and crew members of the German ship, were "military agents."

The officers and crew of the ship had been held by the U.S. immigration officials in San Francisco to prevent them from entering the United States, in accordance with immigration regulations.

PAPER FLAYS ROOSEVELT

Rome Journal Claims Mussolini Foresaw Move and Created Axis

United Press

ROME, January 3.—President Roosevelt already has intervened in the European war, the newspaper Lavoro Fascista says today.

Mr. Roosevelt's recent speech constituted a declaration of war against the Axis nations, the newspaper declares and goes on to say that Premier Mussolini long ago foresaw the present development in Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy and prepared for it by creating the Axis.

"The problem of whether or not the United States will intervene in the conflict will be solved by Congress," the organ added.

BRAZIL GETS NEW SHIP

Destroyer, Built of Domestic Material, Launched by Navy

Domei

RIO DE JANEIRO, December 28.—A destroyer entirely constructed in Brazil was launched here yesterday.

The warship is the second to be designed and built in Brazil using almost exclusively domestic materials. The new destroyer will join the coastal defense fleet when commissioned.

Four more destroyers are said to have been laid down recently.

Lighter One-Sen Coins Being Minted in Osaka To Be Circulated Soon

The Osaka Mint has started turning out a new one-sen aluminum coin which is smaller and lighter than those now in circulation, says Domei. They will make their debut around January 15. The new coin is smaller in diameter by 1.5 millimeter and lighter by 0.15 gram than the present ones in use which have a diameter of 17 millimeters and weigh 0.9 grams. The Osaka Mint is capable of turning out 2,700,000 pieces daily. The new coins, to be presented to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor, will be minted on January 9.

GUARANTEE FOR U.S. IN TRADE IS SOUGHT

America Will Take Care of Pacific if North Atlantic Route Is Assured

United Press

WASHINGTON, January 30.—The United States wants definite guarantees that American shipping companies will not be "frozen out" of the rich North Atlantic carrying trade before agreeing to take over British shipping routes in the Pacific Ocean, it was revealed here yesterday.

A high Administration official, questioned as to whether the U.S. might take over operation of British trade routes in the Pacific and thus free British bottoms for the all-important North Atlantic route, said that the most important condition of any such agreement would be a guarantee that American shipping would be allowed to return to the North Atlantic routes after the war, on the same tonnage basis as existed before the outbreak of hostilities.

The official pointed out that the trans-Atlantic routes are the richest in the world.

"If we are able to get them back without an expensive struggle after the war," he said, "it will be a great contribution to our post-war economy."

SOFIA DENIES REPORTS

Claims of Soviet-Nazi Border Confrontation Said 'Fantastic'

United Press

SOFIA, January 3.—Reports that Soviet and German troops were lined up facing each other on opposite sides of the Bulgarian-Rumanian border were "so fantastic as to be useless to deny," an official spokesman said today.

The reports said that German troops had entered the Dobrudja district in extreme southeastern Rumania, while Soviet forces were stationed across the bombed in the Varna district of Northeastern Bulgaria.

VON LUCKNER RAIDS WITH BRITISH SHIP

Famed Commerce Chaser Again In Pacific on Vessel Seized In Denmark

United Press

HONGKONG, January 3.—Captain Count Felix von Luckner, commander of one of Germany's most famous sea-raiders during the World War, is again on the high seas in the Pacific, commanding a speedy British boat converted into a German raider, it was reported here today.

According to these reports the British ship Glengarry, owned by the Glen Line, was under construction in Copenhagen when the Germans staged their blitz conquest of Denmark.

Work on the vessel was rushed and it was outfitted and armed as a raider. Apparently the last word in sea-raiders, the ex-Glengarry even carries an airplane.

Upon completion the vessel was said to have been placed under the command of the veteran Count von Luckner who sailed it to the Pacific under the British flag.

Upon arrival in the southern waters of the Pacific certain alterations in appearance were made and the ship appeared as a Japanese vessel, in which guise it has since operated.

The vessel is said to be capable of a speed of 22 knots.

NEW TOKYO ZOO PLANNED IN NORTHWEST SUBURBS

City Plans Competition for Ueno Park—Project to Cost ¥1,000,000

Construction of another large zoo for Tokyo will be started this year at Inokashira Park in the southwestern suburbs of the city, says the Asahi, explaining the zoological garden is expected to be completed within five years.

The second zoo is planned as a means of relieving the crowds at popular Ueno Park. It will be much larger than the existing zoo and will offer the public a better opportunity of studying animals in semi-native haunts.

Estimated cost of the zoological garden is ¥1,000,000. The Asahi says the project can be completed within three years providing the necessary building materials can be obtained.

PRO TENNIS IS BACK IN AMERICAN ARENA

Nation-Wide Tour Opens With Star-Studded Bill in New York

Domei

NEW YORK, January 5.—After a lapse of one winter, "big time" professional tennis will again go on nation-wide tour after a grand opening tonight in Madison Square Garden with a new star heading the bill.

Miss Alice Marble, who took the big step November 9 by signing with Promoter Jack Harris, will make her professional debut against Miss Mary Hardwick of England, a familiar opponent of the Beverly Hills star in numerous tournaments last year.

The headliners of the professional troupe, however, will be young Don Budge, of Oakland, California, and veteran "Big Bill" Tilden, who at the age of 47 is still one of the best in the game.

Aside from the men and women's singles matches, Miss Marble and Tilden will team together in a mixed doubles exhibition against Miss Hardwick and Budge.

Although dates for their appearance in the leading cities of the United States were not announced, it was rumored that the group will also hold exhibitions at Nassau, Havana, and certain Canadian cities.

RECORD ACTIVITY IN U.S. BUSINESS

Boom Due to Huge Expenditures for American Defenses, British War Orders

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, January 1.—American business closed 1940 at a record rate of activity.

The boom reflected the billions being spent on American defenses, the huge British war orders and the stimulating influence both of these combined had on general business in the country.

The situation was somewhat reminiscent of a year ago when business was zooming in the brief boomlet caused by outbreak of the European war. Then, too, as this year, industries like steel and aircraft reached all-time highs in orders and production.

However, the difference at the end of 1940 was that the American defense effort and expenditures were still in their early stages. Many of the plants designed to turn out planes, tanks and other war materials were months, and in some cases a year or more, from completion.

Peak Not Reached

Thus the peak of the spending was not expected until some time in 1941. Consequently, the outlook for business was maintenance of extreme activity for some time to come, as evidenced by forecasts of Republic Steel Chairman Tom M. Girdler and other steel leaders regarding their industry.

The year, though, finished with numerous uncertainties outside the normal operations of business and industry. There was the question of the European war and whether Britain could stand up under the devastating and concentrated Nazi air raids. Some offset was provided by the reverses Italy suffered, and the possibility it might be "knocked out" to give Britain a continental foothold.

At home the two big questions were wages and taxes. Industry looked for drives to raise both in 1941. Since Government pressure to keep prices down was regarded as inevitable, the outlook was that corporation earnings would suffer.

Steel, Aircraft Lead

The 1940 boom in business was spread out widely over the nation's entire industrial life. Direct effects were seen in such lines as steel, aircraft, shipyards and other armament lines.

In addition, industries such as woolens, shoes and lumber also received large Government orders as a result of formation of the nation's first conscript army.

Business started the year on a declining note as the 1939 war boomlet began to disappear. Low point was reached in April, the month the Nazis began their invasion in the west. This was followed by the Administration's launching of the defense program. Business soon began to turn up and gained momentum during the rest of the year.

Fluctuations Noted

The trend is shown by the fluctuations of the Moody's Index of Business Activity, a composite average of steel production, railroad car loadings and electric power production, adjusted for seasonal variations. This slipped to the 1940 low of 91.1 in the week of April 20 and then moved up above 118 at the end of the year, highest since Moody's began keeping these records in 1928.

The steel industry at the opening of 1940 ran at 94.4 per cent of capacity, but it was in a downtrend early in the year. By the end of April, production was down to 80 per cent, the year's low. There was a strong recovery thereafter, and at the end of the year the industry was running at better than 96 per cent of capacity.

Steel has run higher than 100 per cent a few times in its history, but on a tonnage basis the 1940 year-end production was a record considering the industry's bigger capacity. Output at the high was 1,470,301 tons weekly, or at an annual rate of around 75,000,000 tons.

Power Output High

Power production set an all-time weekly record of 2,751,528,000 kilowatt hours in November. The low for the year was 2,381,456,000 kilowatt hours early in April. Every week in the year was above the 1939 period.

Railroad car loadings ranged from a low of 592,392 cars in the first week of the year to a high of 837,651 cars in the week of October 26. The high rate of industrial activity held declines for the rest of the year to less-than-seasonal proportions.

The auto industry set production and sales records at the close of the year. Actual output at the November high was near 130,000 cars and trucks, best since May 1937. However, the 1937 peak of 140,000 units weekly was set in the spring, the big production season, and not in the late fall. A big reason for the 1940 spurt was the fear that supplies bottlenecks might affect production later, and the situation in 1941 might possibly cause elimination of new models for the year.

WAR MEMORIALS PLANNED

Heroes of China Affair Will Be Honored by Group

The Association of Loyal Souls plans to erect five war-dead memorials, 18 memorials to mark battlefields and six memorials for Chinese war dead in North China and Inner Mongolia, reports Domei.

War monuments, each costing from ¥200,000 to ¥300,000, will be erected at Tientsin, Taiyuan, Shihmen, Hsuchow and Lienyunkwang in North China. Eighteen outstanding battlefields in the China affair, including the Marco Polo bridge, Yuncheng, Tsinghuachen, Pacting, Kaifeng, Pataling, Tatung, Pingtichwan, Khokho, Paotow, Nanyuan, Niangtzekwan, Lingshih, Changtien, Luan, Tsanghsien and two points near the Great Wall, will have memorials requiring ¥20,000. Peking, Tientsin, Taiyuan, Shihmen, Hsuchow and Lienyunkwang will each have a monument for Chinese war dead, says Domei.

EAST ANGLIA STAYS MUCH LIKE HOLLAND

Resorts, Farms Now Cover Region Once England's Prime Industrial Area

East Anglia, where some German planes have dropped bombs, is an early name still applied to the easternmost bulge in the English mainland, north of the Thames Estuary, explains a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. Roughly it comprises the counties of Suffolk and Norfolk.

"Because of its proximity to European markets, East Anglia early developed trade with Flemish merchants, and in the 14th and 15th centuries was a leading industrial area of England, with textiles one of its leading products," continues the bulletin. "The increasing use of water-power in other regions, however, lured the textile industry away. East Anglia is almost devoid of water-power.

"East Anglia is now primarily agricultural, its rolling land offering a natural drainage where wheat, barley, turnips and beans thrive, and sheep and cattle graze. The coast is low save for the chalk cliffs in the northwest, whence a chalk ridge runs south, forming low hills which overlook the fens to the east. This ridge is cut by the Thames River at Goring Gap.

Has Many Lagoons

"Much of East Anglia is the 'netherland' of England, with many lagoons and much marshland. Like the Netherlands across the North Sea, it has dikes and windmills which pump water to reclaim fertile acres. Engineers from the Netherlands were called in to assist in the reclamation which began in the 17th century.

"Netherland influence is traceable in some of the architecture along the coast where the narrow rows of houses and tree-shaded quays are reminiscent of Amsterdam. Dutch immigrants and Flemish weavers flocked to this part of England in the days of its commercial supremacy.

"Every summer thousands of city dwellers have gone to this popular playground area to sail its many miles of inland water, and to fish in its broad sluggish streams. Other thousands crowd its seashore, lined with resort hotels. East Anglia has fewer rainy days than most of England. Its sports and cool, healthful climate attract week-end motor parties from near-by London.

Invaded Once Before

"Norwich, on the Wensum River above its junction with the Yare, is the largest Anglian city, with 125,000 residents. It was one of the largest towns of England in 1004 when the Danes entered the harbor of Yarmouth, sailed their fleet up the Yare River, and plundered and destroyed the river town.

"Yarmouth, the great herring port, has received during the season as much as 4,000 tons of fish in a day from its fishing fleet of a thousand boats. Its rival fishing port—and for centuries a bitter rival—is Lowestoft to the south, with a population of 45,000.

"Ipswich's population of 95,000 gives it second place in East Anglia. Its factories turn out agricultural implements, railway rolling stock, electrical machinery, clothing and furniture. Norwich has extensive iron works, chemical plants, tanneries and shoe factories; it makes barbed wire for entanglements as well as gauze for surgical dressings. Lowestoft manufactures textiles and motors, with considerable ship and boat building. There is a munitions plant at Stowmarket, and Brandon still makes gun-flints for sale or barter to African tribes."

NEW YORK, January 6.—Miss Alice Marble, pretty 27-year-old Californian from Beverly Hills, tonight made her debut as a professional tennis player before a large crowd in the Madison Square Garden, defeating Miss Mary Hardwick, of England, in straight sets. The scores were 8-6, 8-6.

ALBANIAN ROYALTY PLANS U.S. REFUGE

Exiled King Considers Sending Family From London—He Would Remain

I.N.S.

LONDON, December 31.—The United States will shortly have some more Royal evacuees, according to reports here today.

King Zog of Albania is seriously considering sending his family to America. He himself will stay in London.

"I don't value my life any more than the humblest of London citizens," he told a friend.

His young Queen Geraldine has already been through several harrowing war experiences, particularly when forced to leave Albania owing to the Italian invasion, just after she had given birth to her baby son, in April, 1939.

The Albanian evacuees will include King Zog's sisters and a large staff. King Zog at present is trying to charter or buy a large yacht for the trip.

The King is one of the wealthiest of Britain's distinguished refugees. He was able to bring valuable gold stocks out of the country before Italy walked in.

Queen Geraldine is one of the most popular shoppers in the West End. She insists on paying for everything in cash, and refuses to run up a single bill.

U.S. Highways Lead

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, December 31.—The United States has 3,065,00 miles of highways, a road mileage three times as great as the total of England, France, Spain, Portugal, Germany and Italy combined.

WORLD WAR GHOST WALKS IN ALBANIA

San Giovanni di Medua Played Big Role in 1916 as Exit for Fleeing Royalty

The northward push of the Greeks along the Albanian coast toward San Giovanni di Medua recalls the big role which this small town played in World War I, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"At the opposite and from the present embattled southern coast of Albania, San Giovanni di Medua has only about 100 inhabitants. It is, however, among the four leading ports of Albania. Moreover, tiny as it is, this village occupies a highly strategic position as the doorway to northern Albania and beyond. It is about 10 air miles from the Jugoslav border.

Exist for Royalty

"During the World War, San Giovanni di Medua, as the northernmost port of Albania, was the nearest embarkation point for fleeing citizens, statesmen, and royalty from invaded Montenegro and Serbia, now incorporated in Jugoslavia.

"In January, 1916, following the Austrian capture of various Montenegrin towns and the mass exodus of Serbian armies and civilians, this town became the inadequate refuge of a vast host of men, women and children. That San Giovanni di Medua failed to become a 'Dunkerque' to the fleeing Serbian army of the first World War was chiefly because of the inadequacy of its shipping facilities. The Serbian forces moved southward in Albania to Durazzo for evacuation, and the northern port which had been an Allied base since early in the war was abandoned to the advancing Austrians.

Facilities Limited

"Today, the port facilities of San Giovanni di Medua are still far from impressive. Although large ships may anchor out in the bay, only small vessels can be accommodated at the wharves of the port itself. In all of 1937, only about 130 passengers were landed there; about 2,500 tons of cargo were handled.

"One famous character of history who disembarked at this Albanian port was Mark Antony, on his way to join Caesar in his campaign against Pompeii in 49 B. C.

"An ancient Roman settlement, San Giovanni di Medua received its present name in the 14th century; it was taken from the neighboring church of St. John. The Albanian name is Shen Gjin (St. John)."

BRITISH MAINTAIN CEASELESS WATCH

Men of Coastal Defenses Play Important Part in Vigil for German Invasion

I.N.S.

LONDON, January 1.—Ceaseless watch kept by men of the coastal defenses has played an important, if not spectacular, part in the frustration of Germany's invasion plans.

Their constant vigil in wild isolated parts around the British coast was described today by a high army officer.

Within the last six months these coast defenses have been constantly expanded, and today are in such a condition of preparedness that they are ready and have been ready to deal with attempts which Germany may make to invade these islands.

The men often live and work in conditions of considerable discomfort but it has made no difference to their efficiency, the officer declared.

One battery is posted on a breakwater where, except in the calmest of weather, spray breaks over men and guns continuously. Their longest walk is one of 500 yards, and if the weather is bad no boat can approach them and they become isolated for days at a time.

"Another battery is stationed in a fort in the middle of the sea and literally crammed with guns, engines and machinery.

"The only exercise the men can get is a kind of follow-the-leader game over their guns and beds. They can be approached from land only at certain stages of the tide and when the water is smooth."

The batteries, however, are ready for immediate action day and night. The officer explain that within five seconds of the alarm being given the first shells would be shrieking at the enemy.

Not only has expansion been great, but efficiency has reached an even higher standard, he said.

Only recently, it was stated, one battery fired a certain number of rounds from 6-inch guns at a range of 7,000 yards and every round was a hit.

BARON OSUMI URGES SOUTHWARD POLICY

Only Natural for Japan to Spread to Warmer Clime, Says Admiral

Admiral Baron Mineo Osumi, senior naval member of the Supreme War Council, in an interview with the Asahi, yesterday urged his countrymen to acquire a good knowledge of the South Seas region preparatory to expansion in that direction.

As for any excuses, he stressed that there is no necessity for a nation to justify itself when obeying the call of nature.

The admiral was interviewed in his residence at Shimotakanawa, Shiba Ward. The Asahi reporter found him in a sunny room looking to the south, and the thought occurred that the admiral must be enjoying the sunshine for his stand that a nation needs no excuse in seeking a region of heat and light.

"Japan has got to expand in some direction," said Admiral Osumi, elder of the navy. "There must be an expansion in the direction of every corner of the globe. It happens that there is much talk of expansion to the south. It is in the nature of things that nations, like individuals, should seek regions favored by nature.

Its Common Desire

"It is a desire common to humanity to expand in the direction of a region where there is plenty of heat and light. It is as natural for a growing nation to expand to the south as for a tree to bud in spring. Nothing in the nature of conquest or invasion is involved in the southward expansion of a country which is bound to develop.

"It is a mistake to think that it was only yesterday that Japan took it into its head to advance southward. The Japanese race has been eager to expand to the south for 1,000 years. The China affair, the necessity of obtaining supplies and materials, and the spread of the European conflict combined to give impetus to the southward movement of the Japanese," he said.

"I have yet to hear of a great task which has been performed easily. People adhering to the old order of things or acting contrary to what they preach, to the effect that God is benevolent to all, are sure to put obstacles in the Japan. These people already are way of the southward expansion of hampering Japan's southward policy.

Natives Work Hard

"I made a trip through the South Seas region in the spring of 1936. My impression of the natives of the islands under the Japanese mandate was exceedingly favorable. I found them working hard to solve the problem of improving their lot. It was evident they were under the influence of the Japanese conception of work.

"I was deeply moved by the excessive industriousness of Japanese in the islands. They were as wholesome spiritually as though they were in Japan proper. This discovery gave the lie to people who say that Japanese become lax and loose once they set foot on any South Seas island.

"There is not the slightest intention on the part of Japan to exploit the South Seas region. It is the heartfelt desire of Japan to share prosperity with other peoples of East Asia. It is a pity that natives of South Seas islands are unable to understand Japan's intentions. To do them justice, they are under the influence of people who are leaving nothing undone to prevent them from understanding Japan.

Their Defenses Useless

"The more consideration Japan shows them, the more they fear. At the moment they are purchasing warships and warplanes, which, I am afraid, would not be of any great help to them in trouble with us. They ought to be perspicuous enough to see that pent up in their lands they are bound to go to the dogs. I see a great need of Japanese enlightening them on Japan's real intentions as their seniors.

"Some people in the country want us, advocates of a southward policy, to indicate the exact direction in which we want Japan to spread. I see no need of rendering a clear definition of what we loosely call the South Seas region. In what is termed the South Seas region are included countries whose mention by name would strike terror into the hearts of some people.

"Suffice to say that the South indicates a region to the south where there is plenty of heat and light. It is necessary for us to see that there is no unnecessary friction. Be it understood that there is no thought of conniving at outrage and intolerance much longer.

Sees Turmoil Ahead

"The Pacific may prove a misnomer. We are engrossed in the study of the Pacific situation. I know for certain that the future will see an aggravation of the situation. The Japanese have got to overcome the difficulties facing them in order to attain national development. This is not the time for us to complain of a scarcity of charcoal or rice. This is not the time for us to wrangle over terminology.

"The Japanese, generally, are not well posted on South Seas affairs. Some of them have so hazy an idea of the South Seas region that they would not be surprised if Tarzan or the Queen of the Jungle were located there.

"There are some lands in the south where poisonous snakes, leopards, and other dreadful creatures abound. There are others where dahlias are in bloom all the year round. The south is being opened at a quick tempo. It is high time that the Japanese discarded their fantastic ideas of the south. Let the nation acquaint itself with the truth of the south.

"Then problems affecting the southward policy are sure to fund their own solution."

Waseda Wins Speed Competition

The Waseda University team won the speed competition in the 16th all-Japan ice skating championships by a margin of 38 to 27 against Meiji in its ninth consecutive win. The competition was held at the Nagane Rink, Hachito, Aomori Prefecture, beginning on Monday and ending yesterday.

NEW LAW REVISION AIDS ADVANCEMENT

Inspector Made Chief of Tokushima Police—Toyama Official Promoted

The recently-revised Civil Service Ordinance has proved a blessing to Mr. Mokusaburo Sampei, inspector of the Metropolitan Police Board, who has been appointed chief of the police section of Tokushima Prefecture.

The new chief, who is 56 years old, started his 25-year career as a police officer on a monthly salary of only ¥11, reports Domei. On his graduation from the Tokyo Prefectural Normal School, he taught for a while at a Tokyo Primary school, but quit in 1914, due to illness.

After passing the civil service examination in Fukui Prefecture in 1915, Mr. Sampei was appointed the following year as a police officer of the Metropolitan Police Board. He has subsequently risen gradually in the service due to his diligence and ability and in 1929 was elevated to chief of the police affairs section and then served as chief of the Minami-Senju and eight other police stations in the metropolis.

Due to his capabilities and experience, Mr. Sampei became a police inspector last February, a position usually open to persons having higher academic qualifications. Interviewed by Domei, Mr. Sampei attributed his unusual advancement to the co-operation of his subordinates.

Another person to be honored with unusual promotion is Mr. Shigenari Sasaki, director of the miscellaneous affair department of Toyama Prefecture who has been appointed chief of the economic section. He started his career as a boy in the Toyama Prefectural Office and after long service was made an official in 1927. He has since then held posts in the agriculture-forestry and miscellaneous affairs departments of the prefecture.

U.S. STRENGTHENING PACIFIC NAVY BASES

Appropriations of $12,798,000 Set Apart for Public Works In Islands

Domei

WASHINGTON, January 8.—Indicating a further strengthening of American naval bases in the Pacific area, naval officials here today revealed that the Navy Department's appropriations for the fiscal year ending in June, 1942, will run up to $12,798,000 for public works of military and semi-military character in the Hawaiian Islands, chiefly Pearl Harbor.

Pearl Harbor projects will include $6,776,000 for improvements and construction of additional buildings in the navy yard. Of this sum, $360,000 will be spent in improvements on the submarine base, $2,986,000 for additional air base facilities and $1,250,000 for improvement of the naval supply depot. An additional $1,348,000 is being asked for the construction of a naval air base at Kanetohe Bay and $78,000 for a naval ammunition deput near Honolulu.

The current year's appropriations amounting to $11,452,000 for the development of Pearl Harbor will remain virtually unchanged.

Other appropriations for naval projects in the Pacific area include $1,437,000 for the construction of roads and development of seaplane facilities in Guam, $250,000 for road building in Samoa, $742,000 for the construction of seaplane hangars in Midway, $150,000 for improvement of the naval station at Olangapo, in the Philippines, and $2,748,000 for further development of naval air bases in Alaska, chiefly at Kodiak and Sitka.

TOKYO TEAMS TAKE 3 HOCKEY MATCHES

Keio, Waseda and St. Paul's Each Lead by Comfortable Margin Over Opponents

RESULTS SECOND DAY INTERCOLLEGIATE ICE HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIPS
Keio 15, Kwansei Gakuin 0.
Waseda 7, Doshisha 2.
St. Paul's 11, Tokyo Imperial 0.

Three Tokyo college teams, Waseda, Keio and St. Paul's emerged with wins yesterday on the second day of the all-Japan intercollegiate ice hockey championships held at the Shibaura skating rink.

Thus, tonight's semi-finals will be a "home town" affair, with Keio lined up against St. Paul's at 6 o'clock and Waseda meeting Meiji immediately following the Keio-St. Paul's fracas.

Yesterday, all hopes for a team outside of the metropolitan area entering the semi-finals vanished as Keio shutout Kwansei Gakuin, of Osaka, 15-0, and Waseda humbled Doshisha, of Kyoto, 7-2. In the final match of the day, St. Paul's, the defending champions, vanquished Tokyo Imperial 11-0.

In scoring its win, Keio had little trouble penetrating the defense of the Osaka six. Turning on the heat from the first period, the Mita boys stormed across six goals in the first 15 minutes of play, four in the second and finished up with an additional five in the final period.

Practically every man on the Keio team had a hand in ringing up the goals, with Fukuzawa taking high point honors with four goals, followed by Meikari and Naruse, with three each. Others who scored were Kitabori, with two, and one each for Yamazaki, Kagaya and Kosuge.

Paced by Wingman Nakagawa, who flashed across for four goals, the Waseda team scored its second straight victory of the championship in downing Doshisha.

Starting slowly, the Maroons were held to one goal in the opening period. In the next period of play, both teams displayed some of the best hockey of the day to enter the final session of play with Doshisha trailing, 3-2.

In the end however, the superior skating and accurate marksmanship of the local lads added up to four more goals to clinch the game.

In a rather tame affair, St. Paul's, shoving across scores in every period, had little opposition defeating the Imperial six. Throughout the contest the Imperial six failed to fathom the defense thrown up by St. Paul's and spent most of the afternoon defending their goal from the rushes of defending champions.

The St. Paul's team was started on the road to victory by Goto 14 minutes after the start of the first period. He took a relay from Nanto and scored with a screamer from five feet out.

Just before the period ended, Yamamoto added another goal to give St. Paul's a 2-0 lead. Within five minutes in the next period, goals by Goto, Takahashi, and Goto further widened the margin. Five minutes from the end of the period Naito beat the Imperial goalie on a rebound to make it 6-0.

Never being able to organize for any effective rush of their own, the Imperial six resorted to long shots in the final period. Taking advantage of its opponents scattered defense St. Paul's dented the net five more times on shots by Omura, Yamamoto, Takahashi, Naito and Taga.

The score by periods follows:

Keio	6	4	5	15
Kwansei Gakuin	0	0	0	0
Waseda	1	2	4	7
Doshisha	0	2	0	2
St. Paul's	2	4	5	11
Imperial	0	0	0	0

HOME MINISTRY REVEALS SHAKEUP IN DIRECTORS

Changes Involving 63 Persons Include Switches in Censors, Special Section

An extensive reshuffle among section and department directors involving 63 persons was announced yesterday by the Home Ministry on the heels of the gubernatorial shakeup, Domei reports.

Outstanding among the changes was the transfer of Mr. Ryo Mizuiki, director of the special service section of the Metropolitan Police Board, to the directorship of the archive department of the Home Minister's Secretariat.

Mr. Saburo Takashi, director of the police section of the Fukushima Prefectural Office, was appointed director of the censorial department of the Police Bureau of the Home Ministry.

Mr. Itaru Shigenari, director of the censorial department, was appointed director of the town planning department of the Planning Bureau of the Home Ministry.

Mr. Kenji Hirooka, director of the police section of the Oita Prefectural Office, was appointed director of the firefighting section of the Metropolitan Police Board.

KID SAUDA MEETS T. AOKI TONIGHT

Five Fast Bouts Loom on Double-Main Event Card at Hibiya Public Hall

Two ten-round main events, featuring Kid Sauda against Toshiro Aoki and Slugger Isagawa versus Hoshimitsu Kushihashi are slated for tonight at the Hibiya Public Hall starting at 6:30 o'clock. Three six-rounders and one over the four-round route will complete the card.

Both Aoki and Sauda lost their last bouts, being victims of Soldier Sasazaki and Piston Horiguchi, respectively. However, both boys are top-notch featherweights and an interesting fight should develop.

Some heavy punching is expected when Slugger Isagawa tangles with Kushihashi. Isagawa, the Kobe veteran, never fails to keep swinging away and Kushihashi the up-and-coming scrapper of the Fujii club also has shown a willingness to stand toe-to-toe.

The six-rounders will find K. Sotobayashi vs. K. Ishida, Y. Tanaka vs. K. Karazawa and S. Suzuki vs. Y. Ohtake. S. Kikuchi and N. Fuminaga will open the card.

Kobayashi Demands Totality in Display Of National Power

are for the purpose of obtaining an increase in the output of iron, steel and coal, materials of vital importance for the program of constructing a high-degree national defense State.

Adequate Supplies Vital

"It goes without saying that the success of the program for extended production hinges on adequate supplies of iron, steel and coal. Thus, there must be the closest co-operation of the people with the plan for the increase in the production of these basic materials.

"A scarcity of goods to meet civilian requirements is a thing that cannot be helped in a situation where the Government is concentrating on the establishment of a high-degree national defense State. We must ensure that the restrictions on goods for civilian use affect general industries, for an industrial recession would stultify the productivity-extension program.

"Increased importance attaches to the question of adjusting the distribution of commodities at a time when it is increasingly difficult for the people to meet their needs. It is admittedly very difficult to ensure a smooth working of the distributive system. This is one reason why the need to increase the production of commodities as a means of checkmating a diminution in the supply of commodities of common necessity. One school of thought holds that a rise in official prices is sure to result in an increase in production. It is my firm conviction that there are some varieties of goods which could be produced in increased quantities by the efforts of the people themselves without resorting to an increase in official prices.

"With reference to the latest trend of trade, we adjusted exports to the yen-bloc countries as part of a plan to strengthen trade with them. In September last year we took steps to adjust prices of goods shipped to the yen-bloc countries and taken therefrom. The paramount importance of adjusting trade relations with yen-bloc countries is apparent from the fact that these countries are to form the basis for the mutual prosperity sphere in East Asia which is the objective of Japan's supreme policy. The Government can be relied on to leave nothing undone to assure a satisfactory operation of the system under which trade with the yen-bloc countries is regulated in quantity as well as in value.

"The European conflict is the major factor working to reduce exports to third countries. It also is responsible for an increase in the difficulty of assuring supplies of commodities produced in third countries. The present trend of events preclude optimism regarding the future position of Japan's trade. The situation surrounding the country home and abroad is in the background of the negotiations which the Government is carrying on for the establishment of rational trade relations with bloc countries outside the mutual prosperity sphere in East Asia with the construction of which the country is proceeding.

"The Government intends to adhere to the low prices policy which will be necessary to construct a high-degree national defense State and stabilize the living of the people. The future will see an extension of the system of official prices, which already is applied to hundreds of commodities.

"The Government is giving careful attention to the problem of unemployment among small and medium-size merchants and industrialists. It has established vocational guidance offices, training stations for people willing to work and the people's reconstruction bank as part of a plan to help the smaller merchants and industrialists who are in difficulties under the economic restrictions. It is the intention of the Government to give as much protection as possible to the smaller merchants and industrialists. It is my hope that these merchants and industrialists who find their positions untenable under the new economic structure will be advised to take up other jobs."

British Sailors Cause Incident

Transocean

CRISTOBAL, January 3.—British merchant marine sailors Monday night tore the nameplate from the German Consulate in the Panama Canal Zone. Also they hoisted the Union Jack on the consulate's flagpole. The next morning the missing nameplate was found aboard a British vessel. Two sailors were arrested as suspects by the United States authorities. The United States Governor General of the Canal Zone expressed his regrets to the German Consul.

Wrestlers Prepare for Meet Opening

Japanese sumo wrestlers are lustily working out in preparation for the annual spring tournament which gets under way at the Kokugikan Amphitheater today. The new ozeki-ranking entrant, Akinoumi, of the east camp, is shown working out with the maegashira-ranking Yamatoiwa, of the same camp.

BRITISH CONCERNED AS LOOTING MOUNTS

Authorities Double Prison Term, Threaten Drastic Penalties For Offenders

I.N.S.

LONDON, January 2.—Sterner measures to put down looting of stores and homes damaged by bombs were today under review by the authorities.

Magistrates and Home Office officials are seriously perturbed at the fact there were 140 cases of looting in the Metropolitan London area during September and more than 250 in October, irrespective of probably twice that number of cases in which looters were not caught and brought before the courts.

Easily England's greatest wartime crime, looting has increased steadily since General Goering's Luftwaffe commenced the deadly nightly bombing assault on England's great cities and towns. London in particular has proved the looter's paradise, with its intense black-out and narrow, tortuous streets making it extremely difficult for the police to intercept every isolated case of looting in the confusion of searching debris for dead and injured people and of putting out fires started by incendiary bombs.

Looting Is Widespread

From war-court reporters all over the the country cases daily reach the London Bureau of International News Service showing that looting is not confined to the criminal class or to any one district or zone. Towns as far apart as Grays, Essex County, Liverpool, Yarmouth, Weybridge and London daily figure in the news in connection with official prosecutions against looters.

In one day, for example, prosecutions were instigated against two soldiers, against members of an ARP demolition squad, against six N.C.O.'s and soldiers, a 16-year-old laborer who admitted 63 cases of looting, and against two young women. Sentences ranged from three months' to one year's imprisonment, in some cases with hard labor.

Of all the rampant illegalities facing England's wartime magistrates looting is easily the largest, toughest, newest. In place of London's West End night-life vices there are looters. In place of East Side drinking and disorder there are looters.

Principal Crime

They outnumber any other crime by at least five to one. They are heard in borough and county police courts, and in the courts that deal with juveniles.

The police in London have recently doubled their anti-looting squad; more offenders are being caugt. Magistrates have recently doubled their sentences; more and more are imposing the maximum summary sentence of one year in jail.

Certain serious cases of looting are being committed to London's famed Old Bailey for trial before judge and jury. It is being predicted that a death sentence will be handed down under the Emergency Powers Act, or at least sentence of life imprisonment, as a severe warning to future looters.

In the opinion of experts, such action is essential to put down the worst crime-wave of smalltime and bigtime stealing seen for years in England.

Black-outs Continue

The Cabinet has been giving considerable thought to a possible mitigation of the black-out during the dreary winter months. Many plans and suggestions have been considered for making the nights a little lighter.

It is felt in Whitehall, however, that English public opinion is not in favor of modifications of the black-out while air raids continue at anything like their present intensity. No immediate relaxation of restrictions is likely—unless by some miracle Marshal Goering decides to keep his sky-birds grounded at night for the remainder of the winter.

In the opinion of competent experts, there is nothing like the popular demand for relaxing the black-out that there was before the severe bombing began, and it is thought possible that now the majority of the population would be alarmed rather than pleased at the thought of lights being raised, even in small degree.

Example of Present Attitude

A startling pointer confirming this was seen one night opposite the writer's apartment, when passers-by noted a small gleam of light coming from the top of a roughly curtained window.

Police were summoned, and on no answer being obtained to repeated knocking at the front door of the house in question, forcible entry was made by the police—willingly assisted by the small crowd—the light doused, and the front door crudely fastened with a piece of board pending the return of the occupier.

People on recent nights, in which German bombers have crossed and recrossed the capital, have become perturbed even about the faint "starlight" emitted from certain street lamps and have climbed lamp-posts and doused the lamps, despite official assurances they cannot be seen from the air.

Use Special Lights

The writer, driving his automobile about blackened-out London and using the officially approved driving lamp which illuminates the roadway for about 40 feet ahead and which, according to experts, cannot be seen from the air, has several times been gruffly warned by pedestrians to "put that light out or else . . ." Remonstration that the light is officially approved, permitted by the police, is useless, particularly if the driver has an un-English accent.

In connection with minority pleas to mitigate lighting restrictions, it has been officially pointed out that the amount of lighting which could be used is directly connected with the air-raid warning system. The more light used means that the warning must be given earlier, so that lights can be extinguished before they can be of use to guide enemy aircraft.

With German air bases within a few minutes flight of the English coast and London only a few minutes flying time from the coast, any alleviation is felt absolutely out of the question in present circumstances.

Record U.S. Budget Seen Hypothetical

affairs committee, commended the budget as "comprehensive, logical and precise."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, advised the American people to thoroughly understand the United States position in world affairs.

"I hope," he said, "taxpayers will wake up to what is going to be the cost of fighting another European war. This is just the beginning, and I hope they will think long enough to realize what is going to happen to this country after the war craze is over."

Asserting that Americans should think realistically about the future of the United States, he declared, "It isn't good enough to take all this budget down in one gulp."

Senator James Byrnes, South Carolina Democrat, expressed belief that appropriations made necessary by the lease-lending program-for-aid to Britain would come along later. He said they would necessarily by "divided over a period of two years in view of the fact that defense contracts now are outstanding."

Representative Andrew J. May, chairman of the House military committee, stated that "Congress should give separation to defense and non-defense items and both should stand on their own merits."

Representative Carl Vinson, Chairman of the House naval affairs committee said, "I am in favor of cutting to the bone all non-military appropriations so that we can concentrate on the national defense program and in levying taxes so we can carry the burden."

Meanwhile, Representative Harold Knutson, Minnesota Republican, sarcastically declared, "Mr. Roosevelt won't be satisfied until he has established the biggest national debt we've ever had and it looks as though he is going to attain the objective."

RUMANIA TAXES OIL FIRMS FOR EARTHQUAKE REPAIRS

Levy Affects Crude Intended For Export—Government Approves Pipeline

Domei

BUCHAREST, January 8.—The Government today approved a special tax on crude oil used for refining and export purposes, to be collected from petroleum producers to raise funds to repair damages caused by the recent earthquake in the oil districts.

An extraordinary credit account of 100,000,000 Rumanian leis meanwhile was opened with the Rumanian National Bank, enabling the Finance Ministry to anticipate this income.

The Government also approved the building of an additional pipeline in the Ploesti district to enable increased petroleum exports. Construction of the line is expected to begin soon.

BRITAIN DISCUSSES CUBA AS SHIPPING RELAY POINT

Proposal Made to Carry Argentine Goods in Neutral Vessels to Havana

United Press

WASHINGTON, January 6.—A plan reported from Buenos Aires for the shipment of Argentine goods to Cuba for trans-shipment to Great Britain aroused considerable interest in maritime quarters here today.

The plan calls for shipments from Argentina to Havana in neutral vessels, then trans-shipment to British or other belligerent bottoms for the trip to England.

Well-informed quarters said that no information on the plan had reached official quarters in Washington.

It was generally believed that one difficulty in the execution of such a scheme was the lack of any extensive shipping services between Argentina and Cuba. It was pointed out, for example, that few if any United States vessels regularly operate between these points.

Unofficial observers, however, pointed out that there were a large number of belligerent merchantmen tied up in various Western Hemishere ports and suggested that some of these might be required for this service by various American Governments.

In connection with this plan, it was recalled that the recent Intra-American Marine Conference adopted a resolution looking to the establishment of free ports in the Western Hemisphere, including Cuba. Such a port in Cuba might prove most valuable in any trans-shipment scheme.

Neon Lights Assailed

I.N.S.

NEW YORK, January 2.—Contending that red and green neon signs confuse the city's drivers and distract their attention from traffic lights, the City Club urges a law prohibiting their display within thirty-five feet of street level. Existing signs would not be affected by the law until a change of ownership took place.

SUMO MATCHES OPEN FOR 'SPRING' SEASON

Crowded Stands Participate in Patriotic Ceremonies Held Between Bouts

Approximately 20,000 rabid sumo fans packed the giant Kokugikan Bowl at Ryogoku, Tokyo, yesterday to see the curtain rise on the 15-day "spring" professional wrestling tournament, and by 2 o'clock in the morning even "standing-room only" signs had disappeared.

The bouts of the first day actually started at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon and the gates were opened two hours later to let in a fairly large impatient crowd, says Domei.

A series of renovations have been introduced in keeping with the new structure in the "spring" turnament. Part of it was a ceremony held between bouts on the ring at 4:40 o'clock in the afternoon.

All in the amphitheater rose and sang the national anthem to the accompaniment of the Toyama School Military Band, which was followed by bowing in the direction of the Palace and silent prayer for the war dead and the success of the Imperial campaign in China.

This over, Akinoumi, the wrestler who won the individual championship in the last tourney, returned the victory pennant to the Wrestling Association. President Admiral Isamu Takeshita made a short speech, followed by General Takashi Hishikari, president of the War Dead Commemoration Association, who thanked the Wrestling Association for donating the proceeds of the first day to his association.

Kyushuzan, one of three professional wrestlers who recently returned from war service in China, made an address. A lecture by Colonel Kingoro Hashimoto, a manager of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, wound up the ceremony.

DEFENSE HOUSING HELD URGENT WORK

U.S. Magazine Insists It Should Accompany, Not Follow Military Expansion

Private enterprise has 60 per cent of the U.S. defense housing problem to solve—an estimated $420,000,000 worth—the magazine Architectural Form declares in its special Building for Defense issue.

Explaining that this year some 525,000 new dwelling units would be produced to meet the normal demand for housing, it is pointed out that the national defense program, with speed as its keynote, had spotlighted the need for new housing, has shifted and concentrated it and above all, has made it imperative that much of it be supplied immediately. Regardless of its attitude toward meeting normal needs, the building industry must quickly supply the defense housing demand, the magazine declared.

"Were generally increased employment the only factor, defense housing would be a comparatively simple problem," the Forum states. "But there is another factor: the employment increase is spotty, not general, and entails a shifting of workers from one community to another in step with labor demand.

Adequate Shelter Urged

"In general, it means the immediate provision of adequate shelter wherever military or industrial expansion has overtaxed the available supply. Statistically, it means the production of some 200,000 new dwelling units as well as the procurement of countless others through remodeling and renovation, which already exist but are either substandard or out of reach.

"Otherwise, housing shortages in vital defense centers will deflate the morale of both the armed forces and the industrial workers and will provoke a high turnover in industrial labor with attendant financial lost time wastage and production inefficiency.

"In the previous national emergency," the Architectural Forum points out, "some informed observers predicted that, had hostilities continued beyond 1918, the acute housing shortage would have caused a breakdown in United States armament production. Prime lesson of that previous emergency was that housing must be considered in conjunction with military and industrial expansion, not after it, and in many cases construction of the former must precede the latter.

Lesson of 1918 Unheeded

"So far, that lesson has not been heeded. Industrial and military construction is already a leap ahead of housing. Other lessons, however, have been heeded, for the United States has already acted to prevent housing from falling too far behind.

"Today, the Government has a Defense Housing Co-ordinator, the beginnings of a defense housing program, $250,000,000 with which to grease it and a half-dozen housing agencies among which to divide the money. When the apportionment is complete and the recipients have settled down to work, they will locate, design and finance about 80,000 dwelling units—all of them for rent, most of them detached, some of them temporary and, supposedly, none of them in competition with private enterprise.

"To the initiative of local architects, builders and financiers is left the bigger and equally important task of producing the other 120,000 dwelling units primarily in areas where the housing demand will exist after the emergency has passed.

"Private enterprise thus has 60 per cent of the defense housing problem—an estimated $420,000,000 worth—to solve but, for lack of local organization, has no established procedure to aid it.

"Indicative of possibilities in this direction is San Francisco, where a thousand houses are being erected in the Mare Island Navy Yard district by Mr. Henry Dogler, who heretofore has specialized only in large commercial and industrial construction.

PHILIPPINE ARMIES ARE STRENGTHENED

Forces Being Synchronized for Maximum Possible Degree Of Preparedness

United Press

MANILA, January 5.—Coincident with the reinforcement of United States military and naval forces in the Philippines, the United States and Philippine armies are synchronizing their plans for Philippine defense with a view to achieving the maximum possible degree of preparedness, reliable sources revealed today.

United States and Philippine Commonwealth military chiefs, it is understood, are taking into consideration the tremendous pace of national defense activity in the United States in working out plans for the defense of this country.

United States army officers were reported to have conducted an inspection of Philippine army training cadres, mobilization centers and depots to determine equipment needs and other defense requirements of the scantily armed Filipino militia.

It is understood the inspections were made for the specific purpose of estimating the appropriations necessary for financing a mobilization of Filipino man power in an emergency.

Have 12 Divisions

There are 12 divisions of trained Filipino regulars and reserves. Combined with the 10,000 United States army regulars in the country, including the Philippine Scouts, these divisions comprise the first-line land force of the Philippines.

Washington reports indicating the possibility of a $50,000,000 appropriation from the gold devaluation and sugar processing tax funds for Philippine defense were enthusiastically received in defense circles here. United States army authorities as well as the Commonwealth Government are understood to be in favor of this contemplated procedure. The sum, if it should be made available to the Commonwealth, would likely be used to procure armaments for the Philippine army.

The amount would not be sufficient to cover all Philippine defense requirements, but it would immensely strengthen the Philippine army's defense capacity. Some informed sources understood that U.S. Federal funds may be used to cover Philippine defense requirements that would remain unprovided after the expenditure of the hoped for $50,000,000.

Outlay Increased

The Commonwealth normally appropriates $3,000,000 yearly for defense, but for 1940 the outlay was said to be only $3,500,000. The reduction is attributed to the official belief there is not much sense in training more men while there was not enough armaments with which to equip them.

While an impressive number of young Filipinos have undergone military training since the advent of the Commonwealth Government in 1935, there has been little progress in acquiring armaments necessary to a modern military force.

The Philippines air defenses were recently bolstered considerably by the U.S. army's dispatch of two full pursuit squadrons to the islands. The U.S. army here now has a known first-line strength of 89 planes while the navy has at least 26 long-range naval patrol bombers.

Navy Forces Stronger

United States naval forces in the Philippines waters at present are stronger than at any time since the American occupation. The Asiatic fleet now includes three cruisers, the Cincinnati, Houston and Marblehead, three divisions of destroyers, an aircraft carrier, six S-type submarines and 18 large submarines, 12 of which arrived here recently.

The Commonwealth has no navy but the Philippine army operate an offshore patrol consisting of two fast motor torpedo boats called "Q" boats.

An offshore patrol reserve has been created to absorb merchant marine officers and sailors into the national defense structure. Creation of the offshore patrol and the O.S.P. reserve constitutes the first step toward the organization of Philippine seagoing forces.

Major-General Basilio J. Valdez, chief of Staff of the army, has announced the appointment of about 200 merchant marine officers and sailors to various grades in the O.S.P. reserve. This reserve force constitutes the nucleus of a future naval reserve capable of manning whatever maritime facilities the Government may commandeer in an emergency. Like the Philippine army reserve it is subject to speedy mobilization whenever necessary.

RANK DECISION AWARDED AOKI IN LISTLESS BOUT

Semi-Finals Prove Best Bout on Inferior Boxing Card at Hibiya Hall Last Night

Yawns featured the boxing card at the crowded Hibiya Hall last night, as Toshio Aoki, leading Japanese featherweight pugilist, got an undeserving decision over his adversary, Tsugumitsu Soda, after ten rounds of bad tap-dancing.

For the first three rounds, not one blow was exchanged. A few light taps on Aoki's shoulder were contributed by Soda in the fourth, just to keep the fans from getting too mad. However, in the fifth, Soda began to show some fire and dashed about madly, stirring up a lot of dust, but Aoki still showed great unwillingness to give the crowd its money's worth. This state of affairs kept up till the end of the bout, considering that although Soda failed to connect any of his wild blows, by virtue of at least showing a little willingness to fight, he should have gotten the nod. Aoki weighed in at 124 pounds, and Soda, 118 pounds.

The semi-finals proved to be more entertaining. In this event, poker-faced Saburo Isakawa and midget-sized Toshimitsu Kushihashi exchanged blows freely, although nothing happened. However, the fans were amused at the end of the bout, when the referee, by misreading his decision slip, first pointed to Isawa as the victor, blushed like a beetroot, then asked him to step aside, and raised surprised but elated Kushihashi's arm.

Isakawa's seconds immediately pointed out to the judges that the gesture was a deep insult to the fair name of their champion, and kept on making a fuss till the main event was announced.

Other results follow: Ishida defeated Sotobayashi by a decision. Maruyama beat Karasawa with the same verdict. Suzuki bested Otaka, the same way while in the most exciting preliminary of the evening, the referee stopped the fight in the third round after aggressive Kikuchi had dazed Fuminaga who was hanging on the 'sufu' ropes.

ECONOMIC MEET DELAYED

Discussion of Agricultural Policies Postponed to Next Week

The scheduled conference of seven economic Ministers to discuss outlines of agricultural policies was suspended yesterday in the absence of Commerce and Industry Minister Ichizo Kobayashi and Agricultural and Forestry Minister Tadaatsu Ishiguro. The economic conference will be held Tuesday.

The two Ministers had to attend a meeting of the investigation committee of the Privy Council for the study of a business adjustment plan.

CIVIL WAR AVERTED BY SOUTH AFRICANS

Activities of Nazi Agents Kept Dominion From Effective Work at Start of War

I.N.S.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 21.—Great Britain's "problem child"—the Union of South Africa, with its large population of Teutonic-minded Boers—narrowly escaped a civil war when World War II broke out, and still is in a state of political confusion. This was the report of Dr. James M. Tinley, associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of California, following his return from South Africa.

Dr. Tinley, born in South Africa but an American citizen arrived in Pretoria the day England declared war on Germany, and stayed until last April.

"Germany's propaganda policy," he said, "was to play upon and stir up feeling among the anti-British elements of the population, and so divide sentiment that effective action for many months after the war was difficult.

Traded With Germany

"South Africa was the only British dominion to enter into a barter agreement with Germany. She traded wool, corn, and other goods for German locomotives, electric equipment, machinery and Junker transport planes, which were supposed to be convertible into bombers. But when war broke out, it was found that essential conversion equipment was lacking.

"When an American or British firm sells equipment, it sends one or two technicians. Germany sent one or two dozen. Only one or two were real technicians; the rest were Nazi agents who spread throughout the country.

"In one way or another practically all German groups were lined up by the Nazis.

"South African German officials of firms seeking German trade found it necessary to join the foreign organization of the Nazi party. It was later found that the sole function of many key officers in such firms was Nazi propaganda.

Nazi Pressure Brought to Bear

"Pressure was brought to bear on all Germans to join the foreign organization. Children were excluded from the German schools, of which there are a number, if their parents of German extraction did not join the Nazi foreign organization.

"When war came, it was found that the chief aviation engineer of the South African Airline was a prominent Nazi. Many key officials in the state-controlled iron and steel industry were Nazi agents. Nazis were active in the universities and colleges.

"One objective of German propaganda was achieved when the country was unable to take effective action for many months after the war started. Civil war was narrowly averted.

"There are a number of organizations—the National Christian Socialists are one—which distribute anti-Semitic and other propaganda indistinguishable from National Socialism.

Dutch Divided in Allegiance

"About 50 per cent of the Dutch are favorable to Britain; probably not more than 20 per cent are violently anti-British; another 30 per cent are on the fence. The Dutch papers which are anti-British slant news from England unfavorably.

"When Holland and Belgium were invaded the country was for the first time solidly behind the Government but when France fell there was a feeling that South Africa should make peace with Germany now. This attitude was whetted by the Berlin radio, whose commentator speaks Afrikaans. The Boers believe Berlin's assurance that if Germany wins they will have an independent republic in no way influenced by Germany.

"The Boers have controled the South African Government for 15 years and many pro-Nazi Dutch are still active in Parliament. General Smuts, himself a Boer leader in the war against England but now a staunch British supporter, believes it better to let them vituperate than to make them martyrs."

SCHOOL AIMS DISCUSSED

Education Ministry Sponsors Conference on East Asia Problems

The first round-table conference to promote education in East Asia was held at the Education Ministry yesterday morning, Domei reports.

Those who attended the conference included Professor Asataro Makisaki of Bunrika University, Professor Chokei Kobayashi of Keio University, Assistant-Professor M. Umishiro of Tokyo Imperial University, Mr. Isao Makata, chief of the second section of the Department of Political Affairs of the China Affair Board, and representatives of the army and navy and the Imperial Education Association.

Education Ministry authorities plan to establish a committee and publish periodicals.

ANAMI IMPRESSED BY WAR FRONT TRIP

War Vice-Minister En Route to Tokyo—Praises Morale of Fighting Forces

Staying overnight in Fukuoka, War Vice-Minister Lieutenant-General Korechika Anami and his party hopped off for Tokyo at 10:25 o'clock yesterday morning, reports Domei.

The War Vice-Minister arrived by plane on Friday after completing his inspection tour in South China and French Indo-China.

Traffic on the Burma Road is completely cut off on account of the repeated raids of Japanese naval planes, the War Vice-Minister said in a press interview there.

"The chief objects of my present trip were to inspect conditions in South China and French Indo-China and to keep in close touch with the troops at the front. Leaving Tokyo on January 3, I inspected conditions in Canton, Hainan Island and Hanoi. I was very glad to see that the Imperial troops at the front were maintaining high discipline and morale. Owing to the efforts of the Japanese forces, peace and order have now been restored in Canton, and as a matter of fact, influential Chinese people are returning there in large numbers, and the city has now been restored to normalcy."

He went on, "Intelligent Chinese people in Canton are making serious efforts for the realization of collaboration between Japan and China by disseminating the spirit of the recently concluded Sino-Japanese Treaty among the people through distribution of posters and in speeches, which is certainly a proof of the fact that intelligent Chinese people are now beginning to understand the moral spirit which is at the back of the China affair. It is really a matter for great congratulation that such an active movement is being staged by the Chinese people in Canton where the Chinese revolution started and I felt confident that the great work of ushering in an era of permanent peace in the Orient would not be so difficult if we Japanese people would push the work in the spirit in which we are now working."

Turning to Hainan Island, the lieutenant-general said, "Conditions on the island have been greatly improved, thanks to the efforts of the Japanese forces there, especially the navy, and it is a matter for great felicitations that peace and order are being rapidly restored.

"In French Indo-China I was greatly moved to see the high morale of the Japanese troops there. I had the pleasure of meeting the Governor-General of French Indo-China and also the Commander of the French troops, and I got the impression that they were beginning to have more understanding of the Japanese troops. It was specially noteworthy that the Annamese were and discipline of the Japanese troops. greatly impressed with the high morale Traffic on the Burma Road was completely cut off, thanks to the activities of naval planes.

"What I specially want to add," the War Vice-Minister continued, "is that both the army and navy at the front are closely co-operating in their activities. It specially struck me that the successes that we are having are simply due to the spirit of collaboration between the army and the navy, and I now feel all the more that the first and foremost necessity for the final settlement of the China affair is the firm unity of the military, civic officials and the people."

DIET MEMBERS CLUB HITS GAG ON PRESS ACCOUNTS

Group Hears Rumor Information Board Plans to Censor Debate Reports

Mr. Yadanji Nakajima, a member of the former Minseito party, taking up rumors that the Board of Information will control the press reports on debates in the Diet, declared Friday that this would be a serious problem for the Diet if the rumors are true.

He further declared that such an attempt should be checked in the light of the Diet's mission.

His remark was made at a meeting of the recently formed Diet Members's Club, at which Mr. Yonezo Maeda, director of the Parliamentary Bureau of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association presided.

The general affairs section of the club decided it would examine the matter closely so that the mission of the Diet may be fully completed. It was also decided that a general meeting of the club will be held in the Diet building January 20, when a statement will be issued to clarify the responsibilties of Diet members under the present situation.

VENDETTA ANNIVERSARY IS FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Dead of 47 Loyal Ronin Remembered With Program at Temple in Shiba

Rituals and lectures featured the annual memorial services for the 47 Ronin of Ako at Sengaku Temple, Takanawa, Tokyo, Saturday afternoon, which, according to the lunar calendar, corresponds to December 14, the date that the loyal retainers carried out their famous vendetta 239 years ago.

Rear Admiral Tanetsugu Sosa, retired, spoke on The Crisis in the Pacific, and Major-General Masanosuke Ito, retired, on The Wartime Structure and the 47 Ronin.

The program wound up with sword dances by young men, news reels and other forms of entertainment in the temple compound. The meeting is annually sponsored by the Takanawa Gishi-kai, the society which aims at commemorating the heroic deeds of the 47 Ronin and fostering the national spirit.

U.S. DEFENSE UNITY IS URGED IN SPEECH

American Official Tells Harvard Alumni Labor Must Not Bicker In Emergency

Mr. Robert P. Patterson, American Assistant Secretary of War, recently said that industry and labor must not bicker if the nation is to rearm in time to defend itself properly.

Speaking before the Harvard Alumni Association, Mr. Patterson said that the greatest disaster for America would be not to a awaken in time to the seriousness of the nation's position in the world of today.

"The achievement requires only that we go about it as men who realize the gravity of the threat presented by the dictators and who have the resolution to go the limit to avert it," Mr. Patterson said.

"Do sensible men in such a predicament stop production because of a quarrel over wages? Do they resist priorities urgently required by the needs of the army on the plea that some competing civilian activity of their own might have a trifling value for national defense? Do they hold back from vigorous effort because they are not sure what the effect may be on their business after the time of stress may have passed.

Tells of Peril of Inaction

"No—not if they appreciate the gravity of the situation. Failure to appreciate that gravity is the only thing we have to worry about. The greatest evil that can befall us is not to awaken in time to the critical seriousness of our position, and to the tremendous magnitude of the effort we are making. Let it not be said of us, 'too little and too late.'"

Mr. Patterson described the huge task of increasing an army from 170,000 to 1,400,000 men within a year, and furnishing modern equipment such as tanks, guns and 23-ton bombers.

"It takes longer to forge the weapons than to train the men," he continued. "In the World War we would have taken 24 months to produce complete armament for our forces. The war was over before the work was finished. The army believes that it is better off today, due to careful planning and placement of production orders. It is estimated that 15 months will suffice."

Money Being Wasted

Mr. Patterson conceded that blunders are going to be made in the defense program and that money is going to be wasted. That is to be expected, he explained. when designs, armament and tactics are changing rapidly under the pressure of the conflict abroad. He said, however, that if America waits for perfect planes "we never will produce."

Mr. William Y. Elliott, professor of government at Harvard University declared the United States should rid the country of undesirables.

Professor Elliott voiced his views in a Harvard faculty symposium on "the relation of the United States to world affairs." As the "best national strategy" to be followed to defend the Americas, he also recommended:

1. "A flat and clear warning that we will fight" if Japan attacks Singapore or the Dutch East Indies.

2. Extension of the Monroe Doctrine to neutral Eire and the sending of convoyed ships there.

3 Underwriting of England's war efforts by mobilizing its assets and by accepting an economic partnership in the resources of that empire. ("This will give us the means of dictating peace terms of whatever character we see fit.")

4. Repeal of the neutrality act.

Professor Elliott asserted that "the very basis of our whole neutrality policy must be revised." Maintenance of a balance of power that includes the American and British fleets dominating the seven seas must be assured, he said.

"It must be clear that if England must pay on the drumhead for everything it buys from us we are not giving aid to Britain but selling it. Its ability to continue paying indefinitely is certainly limited to months rather than years. . . . If it is not to fail for lack of financing, two things must be done: (1) the present delays involved in paying for each individual purchase before delivery must be remedied by a repeal of the neutrality act. (2) We must force the British to mobilize assets in the Pacific . . . and to put on the table an adequate share of their oil, copper, tin and other commodities which we need or shall need in the future. Only through the control of these assets can we assure peace."

AMERICAN CAGERS DOWN AOYAMA GAKUIN, 53-23

Jerry Downs Piles Up 25 Points as Black and Orange Wins Romp

With Jerry Downs, speedy forward, piling up 25 points for the Orange and Black, the American School basketball team romped through the Aoyama Gakuin five Friday afternoon on the American School court.

Both teams had hard luck on their first shots until Jerry Downs finally broke through the opposing defense to score against the visitors. The Gakuin tied when speedy Awai, high scorer for the visiting five, sunk a basket. The first quarter ended with the American squad leading 11 to 8. Durgin was high with six points to his credit.

In the second quarter the Black and Orange quintet more than doubled its score. with right forward Downs making four baskets in a row. The score at the half was 24-12 in favor of the home team.

The Gakuin squad started on a scoring spree in the second half and totaled six points before Yusha, Black and Orange guard, started his team mates off again. The third quarter ended with the home squad leading 35-20.

In a fast and furious last quarter scoring spree the American School kept racing down the court while the visitors could make only 3 points. Of the 18 points made in the last quarter by the home five, Downs had 10 to his credit. The score:

American School	Pts.		Aoyama Gakuin	Pts.

SYMPHONY CONCERT SPONSORED BY CITY

Hayakawa, Aniuchi Conduct Chuo Symphony Orchestra In Popular Program

By Hans Erik Pringsheim

Opening a new phase of cultural activities for the benefit of the public, the Tokyo Municipality, sponsored a popular musical program at the Hibiya Public Hall last night by the Chuo Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Yazaemon Hayakawa and in one of the selections, by Mr. Shoichiro Aniuchi.

The event was the first symphony concert among the numerous offerings given under the auspices of the city since last year, under its recent plans to provide "healthy entertainment" for Tokyo people at low admission prices. Tickets for last night's concert sold for only 50 sen, and a capacity audience turned out and enjoyed every number on a program which kept a proper balance between popularity and quality.

Dawn, an overture by Miss Miwako Murayama, was the opening selection. The piece was this time presented in a much more favorable light than at its premiere performance, which was given under the young composer's baton a few weeks ago, by the same orchestra and at the same hall. Last night, under Mr. Hayakawa's experienced direction and obviously in a much better rehearsed rendition, this overture proved a fairly well written piece of music, even though it was evident that Miss Murayama must have been strongly impressed by Beethoven's Egmont, Coriolan, and Leonore overtures at the time of writing. Including a recent broadcasting performance, this was third hearing given to this work within less than a month.

Mr. Shoichiro Aniuchi, a pupil of Mr. Naotada Yamamoto, was presented as the conductor of the following number, Jan Sibelius' tone poem, Finlandia, a work which musically ranges somewhere between Grieg and Tchaikowsky, just in the same way in which Finland is geographically located between Scandinavia and Russia. In spite of Mr. Aniuchi's well controled movements, his interpretation was rather mechanical and dull, lacked in dynamical differentiation and failed to catch the atmosphere of the slow middle section. Thus, Sibelius' tone poem, which is known as one of the most appealing and brilliant orchestra selections, lost much of its broad and elevating effect and met with very weak response from the audience.

Appearing as the soloist of the evening, Miss Toshiko Sekiya was heard in vocal selections from Bizet's opera, Carmen, which she sang in irreproachable French. Altogether, she kept rather well in tune, but her voice lacked continuity and balance in color, volume, and quality. However, the popularity in which this singer is held by the public, and the appeal of Carmen's music secured for this number an outstanding success.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, in C minor, which concluded the concert, is one of the most frequently played pieces in the Chuo orchestra's repertory. Mr. Hayakawa gave the score a solid and academic reading, and the orchestra's performance of the symphony as well as of the other parts of the program was precise and reliable.

Through its increased activities in recent years, the Chuo Symphony Orchestra has gained for itself a place in the musical life of the capital and the favors of the public, as was shown by the cordial applause heard each time the curtain rose. The municipal authorities certainly have done well in securing its co-operation for their cultural enterprises, which are a valuable addition to the facilities offered for popular entertainment in Tokyo.

Dolls to Be Displayed Abroad

The Board of Tourist Industry of the Railway Ministry plans to send a complete set of formal Japanese dolls, together with the usual accompanying utensils and furniture, to several foreign countries on the occasion of the Dolls' Festival in March, each set costing about ¥300.

KHAKSARS OF INDIA TAKE REICH MODEL

Al Mashriqi, Leader of Group, Assumes Hitlerian Role, Wielding Dictator's Power

Requests have come from the United States for precise information concerning the Khaksars of the Punjab, who have figured in recent news dispatches, and asking what their movement is supposed to portend, says a Simla correspondence to the New York Times.

Eight years ago, on August 22, 1932, there paraded at Pandoki, a tiny hamlet in the Punjab, some sixteen miles from Lahore, the first spade-bearing militia, known as Khaksars, before Allama Inayatullah Khan, called by his followers Al Mashriqi—"Sage of the East." This was the beginning of the Khaksar movement, which has grown to considerable proportions and now menaces the internal peace of India. In 1939 Inayatullah Khan could boast that his followers numbered 400,000. "India," he proclaimed, "needs dictators. She must find them."

Thirteen years ago, in 1927, this former member of the Indian Educational Service visited Chancellor Adolf Hitler in Germany. That the Khaksar movement draws its inspiration largely from Nazi sources is evident from its organization. Like the Fuehrer's Brown Shirts, the Khaksars have gradually grown into a private political army. They sport a distinctive dress.

Spade Their Weapon

They wear khaki uniforms on parade and carry spades over their shoulders. These implements, made in Birmingham, ostensibly symbolize the Khaksars' devotion to the soil. The term khaksar translated literally means "earth-like," freely rendered, it means "humble."

But the Khaksars, as recent clashes with the police in India reveal, have other uses for their weapons. In a melee the spade can be a useful weapon and, besides breaking earth, can break heads. Nor is humility the hallmark of the leader, Al Mashriqi. For months before his recent detention under the Defense of India Rules the Allama Mashriqi, through his weekly paper Al-Islah, was issuing "ultimatums" and threats to various provincial governments.

The Khaksar leader revels in theatrical gestures. Among the most fantastic of his demands was a peremptory call on the Punjab government to permit the Khaksars to install radio transmitting stations at Lahore and Peshawar on the frontier of India. The Sind government was asked to hand over the administration of certain schools in the province to a representative committee appointed by him. "Severe action" was threatened if these demands were rejected.

Last August the Khaksars for the first time launched direct action in connection with a dispute between two rival sections of Muslims called Shias and Sunnis in the United Provinces of India. Inayatulla Khan warned the Congress Government which was then in power that he had ordered 3,000 Khaksars to leave for Lucknow and threatened a forcible settlement of the Muslim dispute if the government's terms proved unacceptable.

On August 18 his Al Islah declared that Al Mashriqi's followers would smash the government. Later he entered Lucknow and called on his men "to take lives, to beat and kill these men and drive them away." This was immediately followed by rioting in the province.

On September 1 the leader was arrested, but released on giving a personal bond not to enter the United Provinces for a year. He immediately repudiated the bond as a forgery, reentered the United Provinces, was rearrested and sentenced to a month's imprisonment. Meanwhile, serious clashes occurred between the police and the Khaksars.

Social and Religious

That the Khaksars should still find influential apologists who explain their activities as "social and religious" is not the least extraordinary feature of this mysterious movement. With the outbreak of war the Khaksars turned their attention to the Punjab—India's richest recruiting area—and redoubled their agitation in this province. On March 15 last the Al Islah declared that even if all the leaders were arrested the movement would not subside "until every Khaksar had bathed in blood."

The old familiar threats were repeated. "If the Punjab Government declares war," the weekly said, "the provincial leaders of fifteen provinces in India will send 30,000 Khaksars to Lahore within one week."

Inayatullah Khan is an interesting figure. Born at Amritsar on August 25, 1888, he had a brilliant academic career, took the M. A. degree at the age of 19 and graduated from Christ College, Cambridge, in the Mechanical Science Tripos. For a time he served as a member of the Indian Educational Service and from 1917 to 1919 was Undersecretary to the Government of India Education Department. He was Director of Public Instruction, Northwest Frontier Province, when he resigned in 1930.

In his books he propounds a vague reformist program. His teachings are violently anti-Koran and his anti-clerical bias accords with that of most totalitarian leaders.

The Khaksar creed, as incorporated in its vows, is a compilation of loosely drawn, if ambitious, principles. Khaksars aim at world domination or conquest and to establish the superiority of this nation over others. The ideal of the Khaksars also emphasizes that Islam means the early Islam of the Holy Prophet. The enemy must be crushed, but who the enemy is the Khaksar does not explain.

Similar to Nazi Model

In its graded hierarchy and draconian discipline, the organization resembles closely its Nazi model. Al Mashriqi wields dictatorial power and exacts unquestioning obedience. To his followers he is also known as the Amir, a term roughly equivalent to Fuehrer or Dictator. The rank and file are divided into four groups, headed by Commanders, picked men, who sign their vows in blood. They form the Praetorian Guard of the movement. Below these are volunteers who have given up their worldly belongings and joined the movement for life.

Discipline takes the form of a public flogging, from which no member is exempt. The victim is beaten with a leather whip. The Khaksars frequently conduct mock battles, drills and parades. They have branches even in Egypt, Iran and Afghanistan.

It has been definitely established that the Khaksar movement in India is being financed by some foreign Power, thought to be Germany, and that its members serve as Fifth Columnists. Having got scent of this, the Government of India took immediate precaution by outlawing the movement and confiscating all its funds.

There is less evidence to prove social activities and more evidence to suggest trouble-creating tendencies in the Khaksar movement.

EDUCATOR OPPOSES SCHOOLING METHOD

Decries 'Assembly Line' System Which Cuts Down Activities Of Students

"The more the advantages of education have been extended to the masses, the more education has been tempted to use mass methods," the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, director, Department of Education, National Catholic Welfare Conference, declared at a recent session of the symposium on education held in Keating Hall on the Fordham University campus, reports the New York Times.

According to Father Johnson, current educational methods often tend to lose sight of the individual and his needs and to introduced features that "smack of the assembly line." As a result, teacher activity tends to increase and pupil activity to diminish.

As a remedy for this standardization and systemization, Father Johnson proposed what he termed the "Activity Movement," a program which would call upon the individual student for more participation in the work of educating himself.

"The kind of education we need today,' he said, "is that which will inculcate humble learning, learning that does not presume upon itself, learning that is sure and true, learning that does not make for guile but is rooted and founded in charity, learning that is useful to our fellow-men and which shares itself in all liberality, learning which makes for better human beings and consequently for a better society."

Commenting on the application of research findings in elementary education Mr. Lawrence J. O'Rourke, director of research, United States Civil Service Commission, warned that for our national well being "the characteristics that are the basis for democracy must be given more emphasis in our educational system."

"We can't depend upon their being developed as by-products of the general educational process," he said. "We should rather direct a series of specific programs to developing and strengthening them."

Dr. J. Cayce Morrison, assistant commissioner for research, State Education Department, Albany, said that the "activity movement" is a system that "draws within itself many elements of education that have been proved, a movement that would unify these elements into an educational program that takes into consideration new knowledge of child development and new knowledge of the world in which children live."

The symposium ended with a luncheon at which the Rev. Francis P. Donnelly, Professor of Rhetoric at Fordham, was the only speaker.

Father Donnelly said that in the matter of educating the mind "we have not improved over the ancients."

He decried excessive vocational training, saying: "This modern vocational training brought into schools at great expense is all futile because one cannot be sure that the particular vocation will still exist when the students get into the world."

AMERICA'S ROME ENVOY HAS MESSAGE FOR KING

May Concern Continued Peace With Italy in Case U.S., Germany Involved in War

Domei

ROME, January 14.—Mr. William Phillips, United States Ambassador to Italy, arrived at Genoa yesterday en route to Rome and bearing, according to diplomatic quarters, a special message from President Roosevelt to King Victor Emmanuel III.

The message may be connected with the possibility of Italy and the United States keeping out of war should the United States and Germany become involved in the European conflict, it is understood.

Such an Axis precedent is seen in the fact that Germany still maintains a legation at Athens despite the Italo-Greek war.

At the same time reports were current that Mr. Phillips, who has been on leave in the United States, was returning to Rome only for a short time. Some reports had it that he would return to Washington within a month to make a special report to Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Alexander Kirk recently was appointed charge d'affaires at the Rome Embassy with a ministerial rank, it is pointed out. Mr. Kirk would continue at Rome despite Ambassador Phillips' return, it is understood.

Checking Goods Outflow

ment and had a wide circle of followers.

Sasai, also an author, left the Seijo Middle School in Tokyo before he had finished the entire course. He later took a night course at the Parmore English school in Kobe and upon graduating went into business. While manager of a trading firm he adopted the so-called Imperial principle. In February, 1927 he obtained a position on the non-official staff of the Home Office, and then in 1932 he identified himself with the movement to start the New Japanese People's League. The league was shortly disbanded and then he founded the Japan Reformist party, which he dissolved some time ago in order to start the Dai-Nippon party.

Saito started a grocery shop in his his home town in Fukushima Prefecture after he had graduated from primary school. In 1928 he joined the New Japanese People's League founded by Sasai of whom he was a great admirer.

Shimizu was apprenticed to a draughtsman after leaving primary school and in 1928 he joined the National Foundation Association. In the following year he joined the Dai-Nippon Production party. He was an authority on the Mito school of Japanese classics, and on close terms of friendship with Motobashi. Nakamura worked as a chauffeur after leaving primary school. In 1927 he came to Tokyo from his native town in Shimane Prefecture. He was associated with the Jimmu Society and a number of other societies working for national reform.

Watanabe came to Tokyo from his native town of Otaru in 1937, and made the acquaintance of Shimizu while working as a laborer at Shibaura.

Usui graduated from the Law School of Tokyo Imperial University. While on the editorial staff of a Tokyo newspaper he came under the influence of Homma, and came to be associated with activities intended to secure the triumph of the so-called Imperial principle.

Sugimori received a commercial education and was the proprietor of a clog shop before he came to Tokyo in 1927.

NEW DEFENSE CHIEF ARRIVES IN SAIGON

Commander of Indo-China Forces Confers With Officers As Battles Continue

Domei

SAIGON, January 17.—The French ship Padarran has arrived here from France via Indian ports bringing General Mordant, now commander-in-chief of French forces in French Indo-China, it was learned today.

Meanwhile, Saigon is partially blacked out, although residents believe Thailand is unable to carry out its threat of bombing Saigon. Shelter digging continues, however. Small numbers of wounded arrive daily at Saigon from Cambodia. The number yesterday reached 40, including half a dozen French.

One wounded Frenchman told the press that last week we noted a definite improvement in Thai artillery.

More Determination Seen

"It also seemed the Thai soldiers were more courageous and determined in their hit-and-run attacks, which now are more than just a few rifle shots," he said.

The French Monday hurled back 500 Thai troops who staged a determined drive on Pakse along the Mekong River, it was announced officially.

Three Thai planes yesterday aimed eight bombs at Pakse, but four of them fell in the river, it was said. French and Thai forces clashed at Vantanuy near Pakse, but no details are available here of the outcome.

Governor to Inspect

Vice-Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor-General of Indo-China, will tour Cambodia within the next few days, it was learned. Admiral Decoux recently arrived at Saigon from Hanoi.

Meanwhile, the court martial of more than 1,000 natives commenced here yesterday. Of the first 18, four were condemned to be shot on the spot where their "crime" was committed, four were given life imprisonment and 10 were given 20-year prison sentences.

Thai Forces Advance

Domei

HANOI, January 16.—According to information reaching French Indo-China, Thai forces have crossed the frontier and occupied a part of Cambodia and a northern section of Laos. Thai forces started an advance toward Pakse and Bassar cities across the frontier of south Laos.

On January 14, Thai air forces in co-ordination with land forces bombed Pakse, and heavy battles between Thai and French troops took place in Takhet and Savannaket.

Loyalty Declared

United Press

PNOM-PENE, Cambodia, French Indo-China, December 16.—King Sisowath Monivong of Cambodia said today that the Kingdom of Cambodia stood more strongly than ever behind France in the present hour of crisis.

The king, 65 years old and in poor health, granted an interview in his gilt-roofed palace, which is protected at many points by sand bags.

He said France had saved Cambodia from total destruction 70 years ago, and that since then peace and progress had reigned.

The affection of Cambodia's King and people for France, he said, was like "the true love that children give to their mother."

Bangkok Meeting Held

Domei

BANGKOK, January 15.—Mr. Roger Garreau, French charge d'affaires at Bangkok, on Monday visited Thai's Foreign Office and talked to leaders for about 40 minutes, it was learned today.

An exchange of views took place on the Thai-French Indo-China border incidents, informed quarters believe.

KONGO IS GIVEN DECISION IN HIBIYA HALL BATTLE

Advantage Taken of Otsu's Anger Over Alleged Series Of Low Punches

Iwao Kongo, stockily built featherweight of the Usuda Club, won a decision over his bewildered opponent, Shoichi Otsu, after eight rounds of fast-stepping boxing at the well-packed Hibiya Public Hall last night.

In the first three rounds, both exchanged blows freely, with Otsu showing greater speed and connecting better. However, he lost his head in the next round, when his protests to the referee against alleged low punches were completely ignored and Kongo lost no time in using him as a punching-bag. Greatly angered, Otsu retaliated by charging his adversary and succeeded in landing two uppercuts. However, in the fifth, Kongo went in for a series of blitzkrieg attacks, which floored Otsu once, and slowed him down considerably. However, the climax was to come in the last round, both tangled fearlessly, and at the time the gong sounded, things looked bad for Otsu. Kongo weighed in at 112½ pounds, and Otsu, 114.

In the other main event of the evening, baby-faced Tomi Nakamura got the nod over his slugging opponent, Saburo Isagawa, after applying a few sumo and judo holds.

The semi-final also proved to be an exciting bout, when nonchalant Izumi bested Kanemitsu after he followed up tricky side-steps with smashing rights to the latter's jaw.

Blood flowed freely in the preliminaries when Nomura drew with Hirai, Nakamura defeated Ishida by a decision, Haneda won a T.K.O. over Hanada, and Nishimura kayoed Okusa.

Akinoumi Goes Into Reverse

With the able assistance of Matsuragata, Akinoumi stepped backward nimbly over the edge of the ring and dropped his bout in the present sumo wrestling tournament at the Kokugikan Amphitheater yesterday on the seventh day of the spring meeting.

AMERICA IS WARNED ON STAND OF ITALY

Any Attempt to Disturb Axis Relations Doomed to Fail, Authorities State

Domei

ROME, January 16.—Any American attempts to disturb relations between Italy and Germany are doomed to fail at the start, authoritative quarters warned today in commenting on the return of Mr. William Phillips, American Ambassador to Rome, who has been reported as carrying a personal message from President Roosevelt to King Victor Emmanuel.

Axis harmony is evident, they said, in the recent arrival of German airmen in Italy to co-operate with the Italian air force, as well as in the participation of Italian airmen in several German raids on England.

According to unconfirmed rumors, Ambassador Phillips allegedly brought a personal message from President Roosevelt expressing the hope that the United States and Italy would not be fighting each other, even if a war between Germany and the United States develops.

Italian sources state, however, that the Ambassador's return has no special significance, as he merely is resuming his post after a routine leave of absence.

No significance is seen in the return of Mr. William Phillips, United States Ambassador to Rome following a brief visit to Washington, despite various interpretations that have been made concerning his return, the official Stefani News Agency says.

The Ambassador reportedly has denied carrying a personal message from President Roosevelt to King Victor Emmanuel, and has told American correspondents that he had no knowledge of such a message.

Officials here attribute the rumor of the message to British propaganda.

POPE MAY ISSUE APPEAL

Pontiff Reported Considering Message Against Civilian Bombings

Domei

VATICAN CITY, January 16.—Reports were circulating in Vatican circles today that Pope Pius VII is considering an appeal to all belligerents to refrain from civilian bombardments—possibly through a radio broadcast or through Apostolic Nuncios in various belligerent countries.

MECHANICS INCREASING

Defense Program Causes More to Enroll for Courses

I.N.S.

ST. LOUIS, January 5.—Unprecented interest in mechanical skills which are needed in defense industries was manifest in the enlarge enrollment of adults this year in St. Louis public school evening classes, particularly in classes which bear some relations to war industries.

Night school enrollment during the first two weeks of this school year totaled 9,500, an increase of 790 over the enrollment for the same period last year, it is announced.

Included in the 9,500 figure are 528 students in refresher and mechanical training countries paid for by the Federal Government as part of the national preparedness program.

Classes in mechanical trades were selected by 2,200 of the 9,500 enrollees.

AMERICAN CORRIDOR PLAN TO ALASKA IS RECEIVED

Foreign Office Gets Report on New Defense Link Scheme For North America

An official report of the American plan to establish a corridor connecting Alaska, Canada and the United States reached the Foreign Office on Thursday, reports Domei.

According to press reports, the plan which is before the United States-Canada committee on joint defense will shortly be published. The original plan has been changed and by the new program a corridor will start from the central part of Canada, pass east of the Rockies and reach Alaska by way of British Columbia and the Yukon. When completed, many air bases for smaller warplanes and radio beacons will be established in the area.

Developments are being closely watched since there is talk in the United States of consolidating a battle line in the shape of a horseshoe connecting Alaska, Canada, United States, British and American insular territories in the Pacific, New Zealand, Australia, Hongkong and Singapore.

Rare Collection Received

I.N.S.

PROVIDENCE, Rhode Island, January 5.—Brown University has received a collection of 6,200 phonograph records and 800 items of printed music.

4 WEEKEND GAMES DUE FOR Y.C. & A.C. ATHLETES

Basketball and Soccer Teams Will Perform in Important Matches

The weekend sports scheduled at the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club includes two soccer and two basketball games this afternoon and a rugby match tomorrow afternoon. A mixed hockey game may also be held on Sunday morning.

The first event on Saturday afternoon will be the soccer between the club's second squad and the Nissan eleven, while an hour later the first string players will oppose the Yokohama Shogyo Senmon College.

At five o'clock the same afternoon the Y.C. and A.C. second basketball team will meet the Honmoku Middle School casaba players. The club's first quintet will play against the five Ishikawa brothers at six o'clock. The Ishikawa's use a fast, short passing system to good effect and this family team is expected to give the Y.C. and A.C. basketeers strong opposition.

The club's unbeaten rugby team will play against the Keio University J.S.K.S. fifteen on Sunday afternoon, with the kick-off scheduled for 2:30 o'clock. This will be the home team's second to last before the inter-port match against the Kobe Regatta and Athletic Club at the Kobe Recreation Grounds on Saturday, February 1.

The probable line-ups of the Y.C and A.C. teams this weekend are as follows:

First Soccer Team: F. R. Harriss, M V. Fachtmann, P. Smith, M. L. Russell, H. Schoene, L. A. M. Frank, W. H. Blamey, F. Rodriguez, J. J. Planas, G. Agajan and W. T. Craigie (captain).

AUDIENCE PLEASED BY CHAMBER MUSIC

Professors Moguilewsky and Sirota Give First of Three Recitals at Hibiya Hall

By I. J. Fisher

Professor Alexandre Moguilewsky, violinist, and Professor Leo Sirota, pianist, gave the first of their three recitals last night before a large audience at the Hibiya Public Hall. In these three programs the artists will present the ten Sonatas for Violin and Piano by Beethoven.

Last evening's program consisted of the Opus 23 Sonata listed as the fourth in the cycle, and the Sonatas Nos. 1 and 2 of Opus 30 which chronologically are the sixth and seventh works of the cycle.

The first offering is a rather simple work and requires great skill to get the proper balancing of the tarantelles, the dance motives and the sprightly refrains, such as was given the sonata in the rendition. After the first movement the violin was warmed up and then the tene was pure and sang beautifully, and the two soloists were splendidly balanced and fused to perfection.

The No. 6 Sonata is distinctly pastoral in mood and as it was played last night the first and third movements were interesting and with much charm contradicting the commonly made criticism that these movements are "uninteresting to play and uninteresting to hear." In the first movement both artists succeeded in imparting to it a limpid charm and in the last movement, air and variations, there was wrought such a pleasing differentiation of light and shade and tonal variety as to make it altogether fascinating. The middle movement, Adagio molto expressivo, is magnificent and as rendered it was an ecstatic love song that mounted to the stars, and both instruments sang with superb legato tone. The violinist played this impassioned tune with deep feeling and also with great tenderness, while the piano part was exquisitely done, bring out out the full beauty of the music.

The third offering is a powerful work, heroic, bursting with exuberance. With its martial character it made a grand contrast to the pastoral feeling of the previous sonata. The four movements may be likened to successive scenes of a great military drama in which Beethoven has expressed in turn the joy of the conquerors and the lamentations of the conquered. The martial rhythms abound in the first three movements and the two performers were splendid in marking all with emphasis, precision, and a thoroughly sound musical interpretation. In the finale the depth of feeling and the joyousness imparted to this riot of festivity was superb and thrillingly played that the enthusiastic audience demanded that the last movement be repeated.

Both of these artists have been so well-schooled and prepared in the best European traditions and have had such a vast and varied experience in Europe that the blending of such ripe and mature musicianship is indeed a musical treat. Surely Tokyo music-lovers have a treat in store in the next two recitals to be given in February and March.

LONDON TIMES STRESSES TIES WITH EAST INDIES

Editorial Cites Mutual Dutch, English Interests, Denies Territorial Desires

Domei

LONDON, January 18.—The friendship between the British Empire and the Netherlands East Indies was stressed today by the London Times in an editorial commenting on the cordial relationships existing in the Far East between British and Netherlands colonial possessions.

"It has not needed the present war to persuade the British and the Dutch that their interests are almost entirely identical in the Far East," the Times said, adding that the "common danger" confronting both countries in western Europe has made "even closer than before the feeling of amity and mutual trust which exists between the communities of British Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies."

"The trustfulness of our Dutch friends," the paper said, "is a tribute to the value of good faith in international affairs, for if the slightest suspicion exists in the Dutch East Indies—and the Axis Powers have done their best to sow it—that Great Britain is seeking to acquire Dutch possessions, there would for them be little to choose between the British and Japanese Empires."

REFORMS IN BROADCASTS PLANNED BY CORPORATION

Programs to Be Brought Into Line With New Wartime National Structure

A series of fundamental reforms has been introduced in the activities of the Broadcasting Corporation of Japan in keeping with the new national structure, it was announced by the corporation yesterday.

Under the simplified structure of the organization, the business office is divided into seven sections, planning, publicity, lectures, culture, entertainment, music and international affairs.

Broadcast programs will be improved to meet the current international situation and the control of the programs will be strengthened. The reforms are expected to contribute to the promotion of unity within the nation, which is needed under the wartime conditions, says Domei.

Battledore and Shuttlecock Contest Held

The annual New Year battledore and shuttlecock contest took place yesterday under the auspices of the Tokyo municipality at the Hibiya Park amphitheater, with 70 contestants from 11 girls' high schools taking part.

American School News

The American School resumed classes again last week after a two-week Christmas and New Year vacation, with several new students, bringing the entire enrollment to about 90.

The Junior class received three new members: Kenneth Ishii, Rune Hardvendel and Hans Lotter. Kenneth Ishii and Rune Handvendel were formerly in the Yokohama International School. Hans Lotter and his sister Lotti Lotter, who is a special student, came from Lushan, in China.

Two new pupils, Mary Ishii and Conrad Roger, are enrolled in the Freshman class. Both were formerly in the International School. Conrad Roger is staying at the boys' dormitory on the school campus.

In the Junior High School, two boys recently entered the class: Brobie Hardvendel from the International School, and John Croft who had completed the work in the sixth grade and was transferred to the Junior high.

On Friday, a "pep" assembly was held to rehearse a few cheers for the Okura game, and the following game against the Y.C. and A.C. for the girls. Coach David E. Misner gave a short talk about the varsity team's progress and added a few words of encouragement for the coming tilts. A clever short skit was acted for the audience, and Jerry Downs gave a few words about his feelings as a varsity team member.

Bill Pearce, president of the Freshman class will leave for Shanghai this week, and Mario Villa Michel, Sophomore, will leave with his family for his home in Mexico. His two brothers, Primo, seventh grade, and Hector, sixth grade, also will leave with him.

Next Friday January 24, the boys varsity basketball team will play the Tokyo Y.M.C.A. team at the "Y" floor, at 7:30 p.m. The game will be recorded for broadcast to the United States, Canada, and the South Seas. All parents and friends of the school are invited to attend the match.

In a closely-contested tilt at the American School court, Friday afternoon, the Y.C.-A.C. girl's team eked out a victory against the Black and Orange girl hoopsters.

Starting out in the first quarter, Planas, visiting right forward made two baskets in a row before the home five was able to retaliate. Foote, home team captain, scored a short shot and was quickly followed by a swisher by Lord, Black and Orange guard. With the score tied, Brigell, Y.C.-A.C. high scorer, sunk a swisher, but was speedily followed by one, when Lord of the home quintet scored again. Just before the quarter whistle blew, Brigell sunk another long shot to put the girl's in the lead 6-8.

The second quarter was a nip and tuck battle of long shots between the two teams. Center Foote scored first, but Brigell registered another basket to lead her team. When Foote scored again, Brigell followed suit, keeping the Y.C.-A.C. in the lead by one basket. Prohaska, on a pass from Planas managed to sneak in a short shot for the visitors, but Foote retaliated with a swisher. Just before the half-time Brigell scored for the girls' quintet, and the score at the half was 16-14.

Rallying in the third quarter, the home five made five points before the Y.C.-Ladies could check the offensive. Brigell started on a scoring spree and sunk two long shots and a foul shot. With another basket by Planas, the score was 19-23 at the third quarter.

Foote, home team captain, started her team-mates off with a long swisher, and it was a fight to get possession of the ball. Planas managed to score against the home cagers, but Foote fighting hard scored another shot in a desperate attempt to even the score. Brigell scored again for the Y.C. and with a few seconds to go, Foote swished another basket, but the Y.C. carried away the victory.

The Okura hoopsters, never beaten by the Black and Orange team before, lost to the hard-fighting American quintet in a fast and furious game on the high school floor Friday afternoon.

Starting out in the first quarter, both teams were so evenly matched that the scoring was very low. Captain Tomino, high scorer for the visitors made the first basket quickly followed by speedy Downs, highscorer for the Black and Orange. Following his teammate's example Bruce Brown made the only other basket for the high school squad, and Okura retaliated with a swisher evening the score, until the visitors made a foul shot, giving them the lead when the quarter whistle blew.

The Black and Orange cagers really went to town in the second quarter. The Okura five managed to make only one basket during the entire quarter, while the fast-working home five outplayed the visitors and scored 11 points, making the score 15-7 at the half.

Rallying his team-mates in the third quarter, the Okura captain swished in a long shot, but they could not stem the scoring spree started by Downs who made two baskets in a row followed by four more by his team-mates.

All the Black and Orange substitutes saw action in the last quarter and kept the Okura scoring down to three baskets in a last minute rally to even the score. The final gun went off with a victory in the bag for the Black and Orange five: 34-16.

DISAGREEMENT REPORTED ON NEW U.S. NAVY BASE

British Authorities Said Trying To Give America Swamp Land at Trinidad

United Press

WASHINGTON, January 5.—British authorities at Trinidad, it is reliably learned, have vainly tried to convince the United States that it should choose a section of swampy land as one of its defense sites which Britain has promised to turn over in return for 50 destroyers.

U.S., official say, is insisting upon a site northwest of Port of Spain, which offers a good anchorage alongside high ground on which defensive guns might be placed. To the local island authorities' suggestion that the swampy area be reclaimed, the American officials objected that the cost of such an operation would be prohibitive.

Certain other obstacles also have to be ironed out, it is said, before actual construction can begin on some of the string of Western Hemisphere bases being acquired from Britain. However, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today that the negotiations are going along normally, and other sources expressed confidence that agreements satisfactory to both the United States and Great Britain would be reached.

(The United States transferred 50 destroyers, approximately 20 years old, to Britain. In turn, Britain agreed to give the United States 99-year leases on naval and air base sites, the American Government to pay for any private property expropriated in the process.)

If present negotiators should not be able to reach an agreement on the Trinidad site, the question would go eventually to Mr. Hull and Lord Halifax, the British Foreign Minister, for final settlement.

Location of the bases at Bermuda and St. Lucia also has not been settled definitely, reliable sources said, but only about 10 per cent of the problems there remained at issue.
